Councillor Smith said he had during the past week interviewed several of the merchants in No. 2. Ward as well as other citizens, and found they were very favorable to this expenditure, in fact some went so far as to suggest that a sum of money be appropriated on roads through the County in order to induce trade to Peterborough. A bridge across the river at South Monaghan was also spoken of. He would support the resolution provided the amount was limited.

Councillor Rutherford had no objection to the amendments.

Councillor Cahill suggested that a saving clause be inserted.

The resolution was then amended by adding the following words:—"And that the amount to be expended by this Corporation shall not exceed $500.00, nor shall the above appropriation be considered to prejudice our relation to the County Council in reference to the said bridge."

SIDEWALK ON WATER STREET.

Councillor Rutherford then brought forward the resolution of which he had given notice at the last meeting, namely, the sidewalk on the west side of Water street, between Murray and London.

After some discussion as to the necessity of laying down planks over the gravel walk at present treated the resolution was put and declared lost.

Councillor Smith then moved, seconded by Councillor Rutherford,—That the Street Inspector be and is hereby instructed to repair the curb on Water street between London and Mcdonel streets, and also to lay down an additional plank.

This resolution on being submitted was also lost.

A reconsideration was asked for but was ruled out of order, a majority of the whole Council not voting for it. It was then submitted as a notice of motion.

ANOTHER BRIDGE.

Moved by Councillor Cahill, seconded by Councillor McBain,—That a special committee consisting of Councillors Hughes, McBain, Smith and Denne be appointed to enquire what steps might be taken to have "Rose's Bridge" on the River Otonabee rebuilt—the first named to be Chairman.—Carried.

TREASURER'S BONDS.

Councillor McBain asked if the Treasurer had given bonds for the present year. He said he understood that those of last year had not been renewed. He asked for information.

The Mayor said it was not considered necessary to renew them every year except required by the Council.

The matter was referred to the Finance Committee.

THE MARKET HOUSE.

Councillor Rutherford said why the room over the butcher stalls was kept closed to the public on market days. He understood it was to be open for the convenience of those who wished to use it.

Councillor Cahill also alluded to the small scales which were purchased last year, and which owing to this room being locked up could not be used.

Moved by Councillor Rutherford, seconded by Councillor Douglas,—That the Clerk be authorised to take the proper steps to have the room over the butcher's stalls opened during the market days.—Carried.

WRONG ASSESSMENT.

A communication from John Carveth was received complaining of wrong assessment, and was referred to the Finance Committee.

Councillor McBain said he was unable to find out who occupied them. Messrs. Clarion and Coe, the owners of the property, promised to have the nuisance removed.

Council then adjourned for three weeks.

SCHOOL BOARD.

The regular monthly meeting of the School Board was held last Tuesday evening, 6th instant, in the Central School building. Present,—James Stevenson, Esq., Chairman and Messrs. Dennistoun, Cook, Leech, Cox, Kincaid, Errett and Shaw.

Minutes of last meeting were read and confirmed.

From R. Pearce, County Clerk, transmitting extracts from the report of Pinchon Commissioner and By-law No. 625, passed at meeting in June—the former offering $100 to the Town in aid of the establishment of a Model School; and the latter authorizing the County Treasurer to pay the Peterborough Board of Education the sum of $600 upon condition that pupils from the County are admitted upon the same terms as town pupils.—Received.

On motion Miss McLeod's reinstatement was effected, and the others referred to Committee on Appointments.

ACCOUNTS.

Accounts from R. Cornell, Cornell & Walsh, Wilson & Davis, Rowsom & Co., Henry Best, McKee & Davidson, Ralph Clements, Telfer & Dobbyn, Mercer and Dr. Taylor were received and referred to the Finance Committee.

PROPERTY COMMITTEE'S REPORT.

Mr. Errett, Chairman of the Property Committee reported as follows:

The Property Committee of the Board of Education for the Town of Peterborough have to report as follows:

Joseph Wand Square.—That the two Boston Ivy vines on the property, one of Dr. Hall's and Wand's, are nearly as much in the shade as they can well bear from eleven, and would thin in all branches they cover, and would thin in all branches they cover, a short time. They further recommend that two new ivy vines be put in their places, and that the plants in building be taken down and wherever badly replaced by new ones. The ivory around the Burnham Block, Hunter Street, and the Bethune Block, George Street, be also thinned out; the vines under windows to be carefully trained.

Third Ward School.—That a new window be placed in the west end of Mrs. Hamel's room, for the purpose of ventilation, uniform in size with other windows in room. That the smoke pipe from the furnace be brought up through the floor and made to pass the chimney in the first flat; that a heating drum be placed on the floor round the pipe, so that the heat now wasted in the chimney may be utilized. The front door having been made of badly seasoned wood requires to be fixed; the yard requires cleaning and Ecking. Your Committee ask power to make arrangements with the janitors of 1st and 3rd Ward Schools subject to the approval of the Board whether or not as possible to those existing with Central School Janitor, and thereby have keeping a list of petty accounts. They also ask for power to procure coal for 3rd Ward school for next winter's use.

Central School.—Your Committee have to report that they have examined the stoves supplied in both buildings, and find the stoves which, the exception of two, were cast—the pipes and stoves are in a very dangerous condition; it is therefore absolutely necessary that immediate measures be taken to place these costly structures in a condition of safety from internal danger of fire. If new stoves and pipes are to be got it will cost at least $200 to fix, and as the cost of coal and repairing the stoves and pipes in order annually to about $200 a year, the matter of heating has also been considerable trouble and thought. After considering the subject thoroughly, your Committee have concluded to recommend that the buildings be heated by steam. From the information your committee have been able to obtain they are of the opinion that a safe and thoroughly system of steam heating with boilers in the yard, using wood or coal, and all contents, can be put in for about fourteen hundred dollars—the cost of fuel for which will be about $450 per year. The saving effected in this item alone will in a few years repay the outlay; besides the health of pupils and teachers will be greatly benefitted, and the great danger of fire from such a number of stoves ($9) will be at once done away with. A considerable portion of the wood already laid in for next years use can be disposed of, and an offer has been made to take the same at the price paid for it, at once. As no time is to be lost, your committee respectfully request that this matter be considered and decided to night.

All of which is respectfully submitted.

R. W. ERRETT, Chairman.

On motion the report was received.

Mr. Menzies entered and took his seat.

COUNTY AID.

In the absence of Mr. Denne, Chairman of the Special Committee appointed to wait upon the County Council in reference to that body giving an equitable grant towards the maintenance of the High School, Mr. Dennistoun reported verbally, stating that the result of their interview had been a grant of $600 from the County for the remainder of the year, upon condition that county pupils be admitted on the same terms as those from the town. He thought the offer should be accepted, and the Board express their appreciation of the manner in which their overtures had been received by the County.

LOCAL INSPECTOR'S REPORT.

Mr. James Stratton, Local Superintendent, read and submitted the following report, also stating that as some of the teachers failed at the last examination he would not grant further permits without the authority of the Board:—

To the Chairman and Members of the School Board, Peterborough:

Gentlemen,—I beg to state that previous to the close of the schools for the holidays, I visited the different divisions of the public schools, and found them very orderly. The teachers were evidently doing all that could be expected to promote the interests of the pupils and their progress in their studies.

In many of the divisions very marked progress was visible in penmanship. This was particularly so, in the rooms conducted by Messrs. J. and T. Braden. More attention has been given to reading, and in consequence, this most important branch of an elementary education is attaining a higher position than was the case a year ago.

The attendance for the month I am not in a position to report, as the Principal told me it was his intention to report thereon, as he was accustomed to do.

I intended to refer to the state of the west or third ward school yard, but believed that the Property Committee would have it put in order during the holidays. The ventilation of the room occupied by Mrs. Hunt is so bad that the attention of Your Board should be drawn to it, so as if possible to find some remedy.

The result of the entrance examinations has been very satisfactory—considering the age of the pupils. Their papers were neatly prepared, and the solutions creditable to both pupils and teachers. The report of the Central Board of examiners has not been received yet. About 30% of the candidates will be successful, and I find that a greater percentage of pupils prepared in our schools pass, compared with those from other schools, although their average age is much less.

I am gentlemen,

Your obed't servant,

J. STRATTON,

Inspector P. S. I.

On motion the report was received and adopted, and the thanks of the Board tendered to the Inspector.

VACANCIES ON COMMITTEES.

On motion of Mr. Shaw, seconded by Mr. Errett,—Mr. Menzies name was ordered to be placed on all committees of which Mr. Samuel White had been a member.

MODEL SCHOOL.

Mr. Shaw moved, seconded by Dr. Kincaid,—That the sum of fifty dollars received from the Government on account of Model School be paid the Principal, Mr. Jeffers, for extra services rendered by him in connection with the recent Model School.—Carried.

BALANCE SHEET.

The Secretary submitted a monthly balance sheet for month of June. He also said the Board was obtaining their discounts in the Bank at 7 per cent.

THE COUNTY GRANT.

Moved by Mr. Dennistoun, seconded by Mr. Shaw,—That this Board having heard read the communication from the County Clerk with regard to the County Council having authorized the grant of $600 towards the support of the Collegiate Institute for the remainder of the present year, on the condition of pupils from the county being admitted on the same terms as pupils from the town, and accept the same on said condition, and now desire to express their appreciation of this action on the part of the County Council, and trust that this tangible evidence of the willingness of the County Council to join this Board in making our Institute as useful as possible to the County at large may induce the County Council for next year to follow the precedent now established, and continue their support to such an extent as may be at least proportionate to the benefits derived by the county, and further, that the Secretary send a copy of this resolution to the County Clerk.—Carried unanimously.

The first clause of Mr. Pearce's communication was referred to the Committee on School Supervision.

MR. ERRETT'S NOTICE OF MOTION.

The following resolution of which notice of motion had been given at last meeting was then taken up;

Moved by Mr. Errett, seconded by Mr. Romaine,—That the Committee on Appointments be and are hereby requested to consider, and report at the next sitting of the Board, a plan for the separation of the control of the High and Common Schools of this Board and for the appointment of a Head for the Common School, independent of and from the High School; and the Secretary is hereby directed to prepare a list of the teachers employed by the Board, giving the amount of salary paid each; the qualification or certificate under which they teach, and if a permit from the Local Superintendent, the date thereof, and whether the same is first issued to such teachers or not; and hand the same to the chairman of said committee as soon as he can prepare the same.

Moved by Mr. Errett, seconded by Mr. Cook,—That the motion be referred to the Committee on Appointments.

Mr. Cox thought the question was one of vital importance to the school and should be laid over till next meeting for discussion.

Mr. Errett said he merely asked the matter to go before the Committee now—the Board could discuss it after the Committee reported.

Mr. Dennistoun favoured the resolution going to the Committee.

Mr. Shaw thought the question of unqualified teachers was one which should be taken up and looked into. As the schools at the present time were working very satisfactory, the Board should not with great caution as they might upset what had already been accomplished.

After some further discussion as to which Committee the matter should be referred to, the motion was put and carried.

PROPERTY COMMITTEE' REPORT.

The report of the Property Committee was then taken up and disposed of seriatim—the first and second clauses being adopted.

On the reading of the third clause a lengthy discussion took place on the advisability of leasing the hitching of cheats,

THE SADNESS OF SUMMER.

O BEAUTIFUL Summer! thou bringest again
The pomp of thy life to the children of men;
The light, once of Eden, lies fair on thy hills,
The echoes of Paradise sing in thy rills;
Sweet, sweet are thy winds as they wander and sigh
Through the far tops of pines and the green spears of rye,
And warm on thy meadows lies, fold upon fold,
Thy mantle that glimmers with ruby and gold.

O beautiful Summer! thy flowers are fair,
And tons in their blossoms the scents of the sea;
They are crimson like wine, they are white like the snow,
And the breath of their cups is of censers aglow;
Thy lilies are pure, and all proudly they stand,
Unchallenged and chaste in the jubilant land.
No charm is less charmful, no splendor is worn
Of the slow-stealing eve or the swift-waking morn.

Ye, Summer the royal, the fault is not thine
If thou bear to our spirits more shadow than shine,
If, grasping thy roses with eldest desire,
Too soon of their passionate fragrance we tire.
In all the rich chords of thy manifold strain,
If to us be a minor, heart-edged as with pain,
Thou bringest back Eden, an angel of strife
Still bars from our taking its broom tree of life.

We are loosing the strength of the days that were young,
Our hopes are no longer like heaven cut-flung,
We have parted with friends who were leal at our side,
The voices of children in silence have died;
Of the plans which we planned, of the works which we wrought,
Of the turreted castles of glorious thought,
How little remains! they are crumbling to dust,
The robes are moth-eaten, the weapons are rust.

And all in rebellion we turn from the good
Thou offerest now. In perverseness of mood
We cry to thee, "Come not with smile nor with gift,
The cloud of our darkness thy beams shall not rift,
Laugh on with thy lilies, and garland the hours
With infinite tinting of exquisite flowers;
Sweet, sweet let thy winds in their gladness go by,
For us there is naught but to sorrow and die."

O beautiful Summer! we flout thee in vain;
There is patience with thee, though we, thankless complain;
Thy heart is the mother's. The mother knows best
When to let the grieved child rest lie close to her breast,
With soft arms to clasp it, with kisses to cheer,
With a calm word to soothe it, "My love and my dear,
Wait only, the trouble will pass with the day."
We hear the sweet whisper, we're fain to obey.

Cubeb Berries for Catarrh, Etc.

A new remedy for catarrh is crushed cubeb berries smoked in a pipe, emitting the smoke through the nose: after a few trials this will be easy to do. If the nose is stopped up so that it is impossible to breathe, one pipeful will make the head as clear as a bell. For sore throat, asthma, and bronchitis, swallowing the smoke effects immediate relief. It is the best remedy in the world for offensive breath, and will make the most foul breath pure and sweet. Sufferers from that horrible disease, ulcerated catarrh, will find this remedy unequalled, and a month's use will cure the most obstinate case. A single trial will convince anyone. Eating the unsmoked berries is also good for sore throat and all bronchial complaints. After smoking do not expose yourself to cold air for at least fifteen minutes.

Effect of Bones on Dairy Farms.

As an evidence of the great value of a dressing of bone-dust upon dairy farms, we have the testimony of an English agricultural writer of high repute, and the author of a Royal Agricultural Society's prize essay. This gentleman states that since bone manure has been applied to the Cheshire pastures, the product of the soil in herbage and cheese has been greatly increased, in many cases have been actually doubled. The increase of stock kept in the locality has been from 30 to 50 per cent., and in one case, of a farm of 160 acres, the number of feeding stock has been enlarged from 30 cows and 3 colts, to 35 cows, 8 feeding beeves, 16 yearlings and heifers, 5 horses and 3 colts. But at the same time it is true, the quality of the cheese has been, to some extent, deteriorated, except where the most skilful management has been applied to the manufacture, the richer herbage being found to produce milk which requires the greatest care and skill in ever step of its manufacture into cheese.

Invisible Patches for Shoes.

Not seeing a reply to one of your correspondents' inquiries for formula of a cement for invisible patches on shoes, I send it and say it can be relied on. Gutta percha, ½ oz.; bi-sulphuret carbon, 2 oz. In a wide mouth bottle put the two together, and shake occasionally until the gutta percha is dissolved, and it is ready for use. Directions.—Where the patch is to be applied, scrape the boot or shoe until the blacking is off, and the leather is a little rough. On this dust with fine rosin, minutest quantity; serve the patch the same way. Then spread a little of the cement on both the shoe and the patch, first having shaved the edges of the patch. Apply like court plaster, and smooth with a warm spoon or iron, and the shoe will be soon ready to wear. A few hours will harden the cement. When properly done, the patch will be invisible, and will last as long as the shoe. This cement is water proof. The gutta percha, shaved to thin slices, is kept in India rubber stores for the above purpose. Ten cents worth will do the work of a family for a long time. The bi sulphuret of carbon is sold by druggists, and will cost five or ten cents an ounce. The smell which is offensive soon passes off.—Country Gentleman.

Act from Principle.

How few persons there are whose lives are governed entirely from principle rather than inclination. Even those of us who may be endeavouring to live for high purposes come far short of our aspirations; alas, how very short! How often do we find our convictions of right and duty questioning if it might not be as well for us to yield to inclination, just or the time, promising our disturbed consciences that we will make up for the present indulgences by more vigorous self denial and strict attention to duty. Vain, fallacious reasoning of a weak nature! We can never make up for one neglected opportunity, one misspent hour, one wrong, selfish act. Once past the opportunity unimproved, the hour wasted, the act committed, it is beyond our reach to recall, except in thoughts of regret. We may atone for it, but we can never change the past. Alas! how painfully we are aware of this fact.

Then should we all endeavor the more earnestly to make our lives the embodiments of principle, for we all know that, after all, the path of duty, though sometimes rugged, is not without sweet pleasures; and let us never follow our inclinations if they would lead us from the right. Then shall we be permitted at the last to look back upon our lives with satisfaction, feeling that we have "done what we could," and that our Father regards us with approval.

A Contrast.

We copy from the Napanee Beaver the following, as affording a striking and honorable contrast to the course of Beaudry. "When the Hon. Richard Scott, the present Secretary of State, was Mayor of Ottawa, the Orangemen of Carleton determined to walk through that city, and very great fears were entertained of a bloody riot. What did Mr. Scott do? Did he abuse his power or strain the law? Not so. He sent for the Orange leaders, and told them all he asked was that they would take care their friends were sober, and he would see that no man offered to molest them. How did he manage? Why, thus: When the Orange body were formed for their walk, Mr. Scott, the Catholic Mayor of Ottawa, preceded the procession in his carriage, ready to commit any one who interfered with them, and not a single insult of any kind was offered to the Orangemen. And now mark the consequences. When that walk was over, the leading Orange delegates waited on Mr. Scott, thanked him for his courtesy, and since that time trouble in that city is unknown on such occasions. Comment is unnecessary, but all honour is due both to Mr. Scott and the men of both classes for their action in this matter, and the lesson taught is one the Montreal parties may well lay to heart.

A Practical Sweetheart.

A nice young man employed in the Kansas Pacific office received the other day to present his beloved girl with a nice pair of shoes. He accordingly procured her measure and went into one of the fashionable stores on Main street and purchased a two dollar pair of shoes. In order to make the present appear more valuable he marked $5 upon the soles of the shoes, and at his request the clerk put a receipted bill for $5 into one of the shoes. The presentation was made, and the lovers were happy, as lovers should be. But much the nonest. The girl examined the shoes in the daylight and was not satisfied. She was convinced that her lover had been cheated in the purchase of such a pair of shoes at that price. She decided to go and change the shoes and obtain a better bargain. Yesterday she appeared in the store and selected a pair of shoes, price $5.50, and politely requested the clerk to take back the shoes for which she said her husband paid $5. The receipted bill was produced in proof, and the boottman found it impossible to go "behind the returns." The smart girl took her $3.50 pair of shoes, and obtained $1.50 in money, and went home happy and satisfied. The boot seller sent a bill for $3 to the young man, who promptly paid the difference, but he thinks that girl a little too smart for him.

Worth Remembering.

Do not be too anxious to give away yourself, to wear your heart upon your sleeve. It is not only unwise, it is wrong, to make your truest soul common property; for you bring the delicate things of the heart into contempt by exposing them to those who cannot understand them. If you throw pearls before swine they will turn again and rend you. Nor again, should you claim too much openness as a duty due to you from a child, your friend, your wife or your husband. Much of the charm of life is ruined by conceited demands of confidence. Respect the natural modesty of the soul; its more delicate flowers of feeling close their petals when they are touched too rudely. Wait with curious love, with eager interest, for the time when, all being harmonious, the revelation will come of its own accord, undemanded. The exception has its charm, for as long as life has something to learn, life is interesting; as long as a friend has something to give, friendship is delightful. Those who wish to destroy all mystery in those they love, to have everything revealed, are unconsciously killing their own happiness. It is much to be with those who have many things to say to us which we cannot hear now. It is much to live with those who sometimes speak softly to us in parables, if we love them. Love needs some indefiniteness in order to keep its charm. Respect, which saves love from the familiarity which degrades it, is kept vivid, when we feel that there is a mystery in those we love which comes of depth of character. Remember, that in violating your own reserve, or that of another, you destroy that sensitiveness of character which makes so much of the beauty of character and beauty of character into so common as to make it not a cruel thing to spoil it.

DEATH OF MINNIE WARREN.

Minnie Warren, the youngest and prettiest of Barnum's dwarfs, died on Tuesday evening, in childbed. She was the youngest of a family of eight children, all of whom except herself and her sister, Lavinia, now Mrs. Tom Thumb, were of ordinary size. When Minnie was 11 years of age she joined the Tom Thumb troupe, and for fifteen years she travelled almost continually, visiting nearly all the civilised parts of the globe. She was 40 inches in height, and never attained a weight to exceed 45 pounds, being considerably shorter and more slender than Mrs. Thumb. She was 27 years of age at the time of her death. To a pretty face she added pleasant disposition and winning ways, and became the fast favorite of Mr. Barnum as well as of the public. When Tom Thumb was married to Lavinia Warren the general opinion was that Commodore Nutt would take Minnie for his bride; but the little Commodore had set his affections on Lavinia, and his little heart was blighted when Gen. Thumb won her from him. "Never mind, Commodore," the jovial Barnum said, "Minnie Warren is a better match for you. She is younger than you, while Lavinia is several years older." Thank you, sir," the Commodore said stiffly, "I would not marry the best woman living. I don't believe in women any way." Time lessened Commodore Nutt's grief, and he partly renewed his attentions to Miss Minnie. But after his first disappointment, it is said he became a fast young man, and Minnie, like a wise young lady, discouraged his addresses. A few years ago Barnum found another Lilliputian, Major Newell, who was rechristened Gen. Grant, jr., and added to the Tom Thumb combination. The Major and Minnie became great friends. About a year ago they were married, and lived happily together with Gen. Thumb and wife in Middleboro.

The secret had been closely kept by Minnie's family, but the New Haven women soon discovered the purchase of little bits of muslin lace and flannel by members of the Warren household, and secrecy became impossible. A lady friend who visited the Warrens described the little garments as "too comical for anything." Doll's patterns were used, and the little slips and wrappers were made one-sixth of the size of garments for ordinary babies.

The child died at birth. It weighed five pounds and ten ounces. Four hours later the mother died from exhaustion.

Major and Mrs. Newell were the smallest wedded pair that ever lived.

The Lumber Trade and Protection.

The following letter, which we copy from the Ottawa Free Press, is said by that journal to be written by one of the largest lumber operators in the Ottawa Valley. Now that Sir John Macdonald is on the eve of purposing to protect everybody at the expense of everybody else, it is well to see what the lumber interest has to say in the matter:

The five Ottawa Valley constituencies, whose commercial well-being depends solely, upon the prosperity of the lumber trade—viz. Ottawa City and Carleton, North Renfrew Pontiac and Ottawa Counties—are looking with great interest to see what action their representatives in Parliament will take to "protect" the industry in whose welfare they have so large a stake. The people of these constituencies very well know that, instead of being protected at the present time, this industry is taxed about ten per cent. on the value of the manufactured products, and yet the trade has not only obtained from any clamors for protection, in the way of free entry for all articles which ranks as supplies, but has not as yet asked for any relief from the burden" some tax laid upon it, which cannot be said to be simply an item in the cost of raw material; for independent of this tax the trade has to pay all the charges incurred by the lumber manufacturers of the United States, with whom these in Canada have to compete, upon most unfavorable terms.

They very well know that a single Act of the Congress of the United States could absolutely ruin the lumber trade of the Ottawa Valley, they know that protection property so called, while it would do the trade much harm could do it no possible good for the reason that its market is purely a foreign one, and they considered it an unfortunate coincidence that while the Canadian Parliament was taking retaliatory duties a motion was being discussed in the House of Representatives of the United States asking the appointment of a Joint Commission to consider upon what mutually advantageous terms reciprocal trade relations could be established between the two countries.

They very well know that if the prohibitive duty of 35 per cent. ad valorem, and $300 per thousand feet specific upon planed timber could be removed, the export of the raw material, rough lumber, could be largely curtailed, and a sister industry to the sawing of lumber, of nearly equal importance, one which legitimately belongs to the Ottawa Valley, viz., the planing and dressing of rough lumber, and the manufacture of all wood products such as doors, sash, blinds, etc., would take its place, and make this whole section a perfect hive of prosperity, instead of sending off the raw material to enrich the cities and towns of the New England States.

And they are also beginning to understand that if there are any constituencies throughout the whole Dominion that ought to support a Free Trade Government, the five that I have named are the ones.

LIFE A SCHOOL.

An Essay read at the Closing Exercises of the Brantford Young Ladies' Col. by Miss Agnes Jane Orr, Bobcaygeon.

We speak of school-days as if they only included the period which we spend within the walls of some building known as the school-room; no matter whether it be built of logs, stone or brick; no matter whether it be a common or high school, academy or college, or known by any other name. It may indeed be quite proper to call the time spent within these institutions of learning our school-days. We must not, however, think our education completed when we bid farewell to the class-room. We often hear the expression that the time spent at school is the happiest of our lives. This in some sense may be true, but it has many exceptions. School-days have a variety of phases. There are the bright sunshiny days when study is a pleasure, lessons being no trouble or worry, when teachers are thought to be reasonable and patient, when recreation is entered into with glowing spirits and when everything looks delightful. But there are also gloomy days, when the dark side of everything turns to view, and one is inclined to say that there is nothing right in this world. We are apt then to complain that everything is wrong and out of joint. These times are not happy; we become discontented with ourselves and nurse our own sorrows. It is, however, happily said that "misery sweetens comfort," and it is pleasant to know that there is the light as well as the shade even from our first entrance into the school of life.

Our first school is that of home and our mothers are our first teachers. They strive to lay the superstructure of after life so that our characters may be reliable and upright. It is certainly important that our first impressions should be just and good, as our tuition commences at the earliest period of our lives.

Some years ago there were found on the banks of the Mississippi the tracks of a human being deeply imprinted in the solid rock. These tracks were made when the rock was soft as clay. In time it became hard and was formed into stone. Children resemble the soft clay. Everything they come in contact with makes an impression either for good or evil. But as they grow older their characters acquire more solidity, and are less impressible, till at mature age they become fixed like the stone. How important, therefore, it is that our early impressions should be such as we should wish to be permanent in our after years.

The time allotted to some for attending school is very short. If they had to depend on that short period for their knowledge and culture they would have much reason to repine at the little they knew or at their limited power of thought. But the school of the world teaches more and better than the academy—it puts all our talents and acquirements to the test. The theoretical part of education having had its time, there follows the practical part which has to be learned and used in the busy and often laborious work of life. It is a truth that life is what we make it. When young persons, therefore, are entering upon the sea of life, then is the time they must acquire the pilot's art of steering their course so as to avoid the dangers that surround and beset them. When we know we are forming a character for eternity, it is our business to keep out of the way of evil influences and subject ourselves to the moulding of those that are good. Our character is constantly forming, whether we think it or not, under the influence of the circumstances that surround us. If we are determined to be educated everything will be a school to us. We shall then be constantly making contributions to our stock of knowledge from every object we see, and by seeking to act discreetly, wisely, and correctly in every place, we shall be led to form good and useful habits. It has been well observed that the difference between a wise man and a fool is that one goes through the world with his eyes wide open, while the other keeps them shut.

When we remember that our whole life, both for time and eternity, will be affected by the character which we form now in our youths, it should stimulate us to lay its foundation in knowledge, wisdom, and the fear of God. If we do this it will rise higher in excellence and loveliness as we advance in life. But if no good foundation be laid, or if it be laid in selfishness and sin and built up accordingly, it will certainly sink us lower in degradation and and deeper in wretchedness in the course of our existence.

THE HOUSEHOLD.

TO FRY PARSLEY.—This when done as it should be, is one of the nicest as well as cheapest of garnishings. The parsley should be washed and dried in a cloth; then if one is the happy possessor of a wire basket, put in the parsley and hold from two to three minutes in boiling drippings; take from the basket and dry until crisp before the kitchen fire. It may be fried without a basket, but requires more care in so doing.

ORANGES FILLED WITH JELLY.—Select large oranges, and from the top of each remove with a sharp penknife a round piece the size of a quarter; then, with the handle of a teaspoon, take out the pulp, careful not to break the rinds, and threw them into cold water. Make jelly, using gelatine and the juice pressed from the pulp, which should be strained that it may be quite clear; color one-half of the jelly a bright rose color with currant jelly wine, or a small quantity of prepared cochineal. When the jelly is somewhat cooled, drain, and wipe the oranges and fill them with alternate stripes of the two colored jellies. Each color must be allowed to set before the other is poured in. When the oranges are perfectly cold, cut them into quarters with a very sharp knife, and arrange tastefully in a glass dish with sprigs of myrtle between them.

APPLE PUDDING.—Make a paste with equal quantities of sifted flour and finely-chopped suet, a pinch of salt and a little water. Roll it out thin into a large piece, place this over a well-buttered basin, and push it in so as to line the basin with it, cut it off all round so as to leave enough to fold up; roll out the trimmings to such a size as to cover the top of the basin. Pare, core, and slice a quantity of good sound apples. Put them in the basin with brown sugar to taste, and either some fine chopped lemon peel, two or three cloves, or a little grated nutmeg; add a small piece of fresh butter, pack the apples tightly in, put on the cover of paste, turn up the edges and press them down, tie a floured pudding cloth over, and put the basin into a saucepan full of boiling water, which should come well over the pudding. Boil from two to three hours, according to size. 2. Proceed as above, putting the apples in layers with a little orange or quince marmalade between each.

BEANS.—We must not forget beans, which abound so in nourishment. But they must be very thoroughly cooked. For bean soup they should be boiled about five hours. Seasoned then with cream, or butter, and with salt, they ought to be relished by everybody. However I may have seasoned this soup, my children always wish to add milk upon their plates. Baked beans must either be boiled until very soft before baking, or must be baked a long time—from three to six hours, if not previously very tender—with a good deal of liquid in the jar, or pan. Those who use pork at all, usually put a piece of fat salt part in the dish of beans prepared for baking. But some of us very much prefer a seasoning of cream or butter. Split-pea soup, or common unsplit dried peas, boiled five to six hours without meat, is very nutritious, and much liked by many. I season it with salt, and cream or milk if I have it—the more the better—otherwise with butter.

HOW TO MAKE A GOOD PUDDING.—Measure three tablespoonfuls of rice with a light hand and do not heap them. Wash the rice twice in warm water, letting it stand in warm water half an hour; then drain off the water put the rice in a large pudding dish, pour over it a quart of milk, add four tablespoonfuls of white sugar, with butter the size of a walnut, and a saltspoonful of salt. Grate nutmeg over the top and place in a moderate oven. Now, the excellence of this pudding depends upon the baking. If your oven is right it will take about two hours. After the first half hour open the door and stir the pudding. Several times in the course of baking a rich creamy brown crust comes upon the surface and should be broken, allowing the milk to cover it, when another crust will form. The crust should be quite thin when taken from the oven. Let it get very cold by putting it on ice, if you have it. When cold it should be of the consistency of boiled custard. A pleasant change by adding a handful of raisins. It will be necessary then to allow another cup of milk.

TOILET SOAP.—Drippings, which accumulate in almost every household, can be used for the grease. They should first be boiled in water, and then left to cool; afterward they should be removed from the water and boiled alone until the water is expelled. The whiter the grease can be made the better the soap will be. The ingredients of the soap are six pounds of sal soda, seven pounds of grease, three pounds of unslaked lime, four gallons of soft water, and one half pound of borax. Boil the soda and lime in the water until they are dissolved, let the mixture stand over night to settle; pour off the clear lye, to which add the grease and pulverised borax, and boil to the consistency of honey. Take the mixture from the stove, stir in one ounce of oil of sassafras or lavender, and pour it into a tub or what is still better, a tight shallow box, to cool, and when cold cut into bars and put on boards to dry.

JOY AMONG THE CHILDREN.

COPELAND'S SWEET CASTOR OIL, equally suitable for children and adults. Endorsed by over 600 doctors in Canada. The difficulty of administering nauseous medicines and the desirability of having them pleasant to the taste, induced T. Copeland to undertake researches, which resulted in the discovery of a Sweet Castor Oil, perfectly palatable, of the same strength and medical qualities as the ordinary Castor Oil; and while equally safe and harmless yet acting with more certainty, and producing neither nausea nor griping. Some children say it is honey: others call it syrup—they all say they like it. One parent says—My children drink it like water;" another—"We had to hide the bottle or they would have finished it right off;" another—"My little girl has taken it twice without any trouble, and does not know what it is, though she hates the ordinary Castor Oil, and we never could get her to take it without a fight;" yet another—"I wish you success of your Sweet Castor Oil; it is a splendid thing—sure to take the place of all common oil."

The extraordinary demand for this improvement of a staple household medicine has brought fraudulent imitations into the market, but the public can guard themselves against substitutes (which unprincipled parties are attempting to sell on the reputation of this article) by seeing that the name, COPELAND'S SWEET CASTOR OIL, is on both wrapper and direction label.

The undersigned having purchased Messrs. T. Copeland & Co's interest in the above preparation, are now manufacturing it from the original recipe.

NORTHROP & LYMAN, Toronto.

Ask for Copeland's Sweet Castor Oil. Observe the name. Do not be deceived. Sold by all medicine dealers, Price 25 cents.

ELECTRICITY.

Thomas' Eclectric Electric Oil—Worth Ten Times its Weight in Gold—Pain Cannot stay where it is used.

It is the cheapest medicine ever made. One dose cures common sore throat. One bottle has cured Bronchitis. Fifty cents' worth has cured an old standing cough. It positively cures catarrh, asthma, and croup. Fifty cents worth has cured crick in the back, and the same quantity lame back of eight years standing. It cures swelled neck, tumors, rheumatism, neuralgia, contraction of the muscles, stiff joints, spinal difficulties, and pain and soreness in any part, no matter where it may be, nor from what cause it may arise, it always does you good. Twenty-five cents worth has cured bad cases of chronic and bloody dysentery. One tea-spoonful cures colic in 15 minutes. It will cure any case of piles that it is possible to cure. Six or eight applications is warranted to cure any case of excoriated nipples or inflamed breast. For bruises, if applied, often and bound up, there is never the slightest discoloration to the skin. It stops the pain of a burn as soon as applied. Cures frosted feet, boils, warts, and corns, and wounds of every description on man or beast.

BEWARE OF IMITATIONS.—Ask for Dr. Thomas' Eclectric Oil. See that the signature of S. N. Thomas is on the wrapper, and the names of Northrop & Lyman are blown in the bottle, and take no other. Sold by all medicine dealers. Price, 25 cts. NORTHROP & LYMAN, Toronto, Ont., Proprietors for the Dominion.

NOTE—Eclectric—Selected and Electrized

Mitchell's Belladonna Improved India Rubber Porous Plaster.

There never has been a time when the healing of so many different diseases has been up by outward application as the present. It is an undisputed fact that over half of the entire population of the globe resort to the use of ordinary plasters.

The principal ingredients used in making these Plasters are Gum Olibanum—or better known as the Frankincense of the Bible—Rubber, and Burgundy Pitch; which, when scientifically compounded, is full of electricity, and when combined with the pure medicinal gums, is found to be one greatest healing mediums ever brought before the human race.

They are acknowledged by all who have used them to act quicker than any other Plasters they ever before tried, and that one of these Plasters will do more real service than a hundred of the ordinary kind. All other Plasters are slow of action, and require to be worn continually to effect a cure; but with them it is entirely different; the instant one is applied the patient will feel its effect.

They possess all the soothing, warming, supporting and strengthening qualities of all other Plasters. Many who have been relieved of RHEUMATISM, TIC DOLOREUX, and various other pains in the KIDNEYS, BREAST or SIDE, and believe it is solely done by the electrical qualities which the Porous Plasters contain, and which is imparted to the system, thus restoring them to a healthy condition.

They are very soft and pliable, still very adhesive; and a sure cure for WEAK BACKS PAINS IN THE SIDE AND BREAST; and are invaluable to those who have a COLD of long standing, and often prevents CONSUMPTION. Some even tell us they believe they were entirely cured by the use of them of a long seated Consumption.

DESPAIR NOT.

Despair not. He is not asleep. What is He that we complain of day after day. Should grieve the four angels of darkness away: What is He, that we cling about worry and sorrow. It is likely to end with the death of to-morrow. Then despair not, but cheer up the drooping heart of gold. Though there is no silver, there's plenty of lead. Though fears at your coming may scatter and flee, Be true to yourself, you have nothing to fear. Despair not, and banish your Discontent, It never but Likely brought good, agree to say I beg to [illegible] Andrew Shaw on Life's ramed pathway it tops. WHO PAYS THE DUTY.

From the Montreal Journal of Commerce.

The Montreal Gazette has criticised at some length an article in which we endeavored to correct a prevalent error on the subject which is embraced in the foregoing title. After a careful consideration of our contemporary's remarks, we do not discover much ground for his criticism. The practical effect of customs duties is to raise prices in the country which impose them. We made no attempt to create a false impression. We admitted that, owing to the extent of the American market, it was probable that our export of horses would notinfluence it to any serious extent, but, nevertheless, the effect of the duty must be to raise prices by limiting the supply. We have no data on which we could base anything like a correct opinion as to the percentage of the increase in the price of horses in the United States, consequent on the duty. What is sufficiently obvious is that the effect of the abolition of the United States duty on horses would be to equalize prices in the two countries.

It was not our intention to discuss the question at issue between the Protectionists and the Free Traders, and which is specially adverted to by the Gazette towards the conclusion of his article. The advocates of the respective policies are never likely to agree, for the simple reason that they look to the interest of different classes of the community. The Free Traders maintain that, as the whole people of the country of both sexes, and of all ages, are consumers, and as such directly interested in having every article of consumption as cheap as possible, it is the duty of Parliament to impose only such taxes on imports as are absolutely necessary for revenue purposes. The Protectionists, on the other hand, are persuaded that it is for the public interest to foster manufactures by means of duties imposed on new [illegible] ing prices, believing, as the Gazette maintains, that, in process of time, domestic competition would have the effect of reducing prices. We scarcely think that the Gazette will deny the correctness of our statement as to the views of the contending parties. We readily admit that the effect of duties on imports will be governed to a considerable degree by the respective population of the countries trading with one another, and, as Canada has a much smaller population than the United States, this circumstance must always be taken into account. Let us now apply the principle we have stated to the various articles both of import and export. There is no dispute whatever that, as regards tea and coffee and other articles of import not produced in Canada, the duties imposed on them fall on the consumers. With regard to articles manufactured or produced in Canada for domestic consumption and not for export it is clear that the effect of a duty is to raise prices, and, as a consequence, that the consumer of such articles not only pays the duty on the manufacture or produce imported, but likewise an indirect tax to the extent of the increased price on all the domestic produce or manufactures which he purchases.

It is contended, and with some plausibility, that when a largely populated country like the United States, is contiguous to one, comparatively speaking sparsely populated like Canada, the price of the imported article will not be much affected by the duty inasmuch, as the imports would under any circumstance be so light as not materially to effect a price regulated by the supply and demand. We apprehend that, in the special case taken for illustration, that of horses, Canada could send a sufficient number to produce an effect on the market, and that the abolition of the duty would lead to considerable exports. But, if we admit that the import duty in the United States has but a small effect on prices, surely it must be obvious that Canada, as a nation, does not suffer by the American duty, which is what has been contended for. It cannot be denied that the effect of the duty is to ensure the price of horses to rule higher in the United States than in Canada. A horse that would sell in Canada for $125 would probably fetch $150 in the United States; and it is contended that the Canadian exporters would obtain this $150 if there were no duties in the United States. Unfortunately, those who use this argument, and who endeavor to persuade the Canadians that they are suffering from the American duties, never seem to think of any other interest than that of the producer or manufacturer. Now if the foregoing assumption be correct, it necessarily follows that every Canadian who has occasion to keep a horse obtains it for $25 less than he would do if the American market were open to those who raise horses for sale. Now the Canadian purchasers of horses furnish the great bulk of the aggregate demand and it is their interest that horses should be as cheap as possible. It seems probable that, if the United States were to remove their duties on horses, the price in Canada would fall still less, and it is even possible that it might be found unprofitable to raise them. There can be no doubt that the effect of high import duties in a densely populated country is to enhance, though perhaps slightly prices therein, while their effect in a sparsely populated country lying contiguous must be to keep prices down. High prices in the United States cannot be imposed by import duties and no advantageous to the Canadian producer, but they are for the purposes to the Canadian consumer, whose interests are but too often overlooked in the controversy. Although we have taken horses as an illustration, following the example of the journal whose remarks led to our first article, yet it must be apparent that there are other articles of export, which are likewise extensively consumed in Canada, which will be affected precisely in the same way. The class of producers to whom these remark apply are chiefly the agriculturists, and although, for their sake, we should sincerely rejoice at the abolition of the United States duties, yet, looking to the benefit derived by the Canadian consumers, we cannot affirm that those duties are so prejudicial to us as some of our contemporaries have endeavored to prove. At all events we cannot hope to induce the Americans to take off this class of duties, unless under some general scheme of reciprocal free trade.

Hon. Mr. Mackenzie as a Butcher of Catholics.

From the Montreal Witness.

Many times we have endeavored to point out the great danger which menaces the peace of the Dominion, and the integrity of our free institutions, by the Ultramontane-Conservative party in the Province of Quebec. We desire now to call the attention of the people of the Dominion, and of the leaders of the Conservative party in particular, to the line of action that is being followed in this Province by those professing to labour for the advancement of that party. We refer to the attempt they are making to inflame religious fanaticism by means of the recent Orange troubles, and then to enlist it on the side of the Conservative party in the approaching elections. The Minerve is generally accepted as the leading French Conservative organ in the Province of Quebec. Ever since the last 12th of July it, in common with the other French Conservative papers, has not ceased to make the most violent and insane appeals to the fanaticism of its followers to punish the Mackenzie Government for having as it was obliged to do, ordered troops to Montreal on that day to preserve the peace, in obedience to the requisition of the magistrates. We reproduce some portions of a recent article of the Minerve, which, representing as it does a policy of action, indicates that a most dangerous class of men are at work in this Province:—"Mr. Mackenzie in "a moment of religious enthusiasm, "and with all the energy of which he "is capable, cries to the Mayor of "Montreal: 'Take all the soldiers there "are in my barracks and slaughter for "me every one who opposes the Orange "procession.' While Mr. Mackenzie was "organizing a butchery of Catholics in "the streets of Montreal Mr. Joly was "organizing another kind [illegible] "Who but Mr. Mackenzie offered "troops to the Hon. Mr. Beaudry, to "massacre the Catholics in the streets "of Montreal? A man is known by "his works. We know Mr. Mackenzie "by the three thousand bayonets he "sent here to run through the Catholics. "The National and the Evenement will "never be able to wipe that away, for "the outrage is written in theheart of "all Catholics." We do not remember ever to have seen in a newspaper anything more attaccously false and more abominably wicked than the above. The matter is very serious indeed. It calls for a prompt disavowal by the Conservatives of the other Provinces. The party is generally supposed to be under good discipline. If so, there should be some means of checking the crazy antics of our Ultramontane-Conservatives when they are professedly performed in the interests of the Conservative party. It is time for Sir John A. Macdonald, the Mail and Gazette, to remonstrate with these people, and to endeavor to restrain them in their mad career. If by their silence they consent to all that is being said and done by the Ultramontane wing of the party, they will assuredly be held responsible therefor by the intelligent and patriotic people of the other Provinces. What the party may gain in Quebec by such tactics will be more than counterbalanced by its losses elsewhere. Let it not be supposed that the evil we have signalized is confined to a solitary newspaper or to a few crazy fanatics. It is the prevailing idea of nearly the whole French Conservative party. On the very day before the above article appeared in the Minerve a census of French Conservative politicians was held in its office, including Mr. Chapleau and other leaders of the party. Is it safe for such men to be entrusted with legislative power?

QUICK WORK.

Reaped from Standing Wheat in Four Minutes and Thirty-seven Seconds.

The last sensation occured last Tuesday, when about 50 men were present by invitation to see Jim Lawson beat his own time of two years ago, when his wife had bread baked in eight and a quarter minutes after the wheat was standing in the field. At 4.6 10 o'clock the reaper, drawn by Cy. Burnett's dun mules, stood at the corner of the growing wheat, machine in gear ready for a start. Men were stationed every few feet along the line of grain ready to seize an armful as it fell from the reaper and rush with it to the thresher close by, which, under the direction of veteran drivers, was getting under way for business. At the mill, just sixteen rods away, Lawton stood at the window watching the moment when McCaw, on the swiftest horse in the country, should start down the thresher with the grain, while Mrs. Lawton and her sister Miss Allen, had all the preparations ready to strike griddle cakes and biscuit in the shortest space of time. At the [illegible] the reaper was sprung in motion, and in one minute and 10 seconds the thresher was at work, about a peck was in the sack and on the horse and the race commenced for the mill. There were two bridges to cross, and the combined operations could only use a column of dust, here a couple of logs on the plank bridges as the horse flew over them at Rubbing speed; and the wheat was delivered to Lawton in the mill. In 1m. 17s. the flour was delivered to Mrs. Lawton, and in 1m. 33s. from the starting of the reaper the first griddle-cake came from the hands of Miss Allen, was gobbled up by a dozen eager hands and—that was the last seen of it. In 4m. 37s. from the starting of the reaper, according to the best double-timer stop-watch in the country, a pan of biscuits was delivered to the hungry crowd by Mrs. Lawton, and that was the last seen of them. Then other pans of delicious biscuits were baked meats at leisure, and boiled ham and "one minute biscuits" formed a sandwich it was right hard to beat, and then, as it would be impossible for a Western gathering of any kind to be worthy the name without a speech of some kind, Mr. Sanily proposed that Gen. Shields make a speech, which he did in those incomparably graceful words of his that fill even no prosaic a proceeding as grinding wheat with the poetry of eloquence. Then Lawton, in his modest way, had to say something, and he made a little speech that was heartily applauded as well as that of Gen. Shields, and the party separated. Carrollton, Mo., Democrat.

POLITICAL NOTES.

The effect "protection" has on the farmers of the United States may be gathered from the fact that wheat sells in Indiana at 75c. per bushel. While the farmer pays "protected" prices for his implements, clothing and household furnishings, he cannot command a higher price for the produce of his farm than the ruling figures in Europe, less the cost of transportation, will allow. This simple fact should be sufficient to show Canadian farmers the folly of expecting that the price of their surplus products would be raised by a protective policy.

That protection destroys commerce, take notice that in one month 45 steamers sailed from the port of New York laden with American produce, all under foreign flags; not one owned by American citizens. Three-fourths of American exports and imports are carried by foreign vessels. The natural result of a protective (?) tariff. This is what the New York journals themselves say. Do we want such protection? By no means Give us a good revenue tariff and we will soon outstrip the world.

Just look at the Tory hybrid: 1st, protection to the manufacturers of Ontario. 2nd, a high tariff on coal and iron to protect the miners of Nova Scotia and New Brunswick, which is, of course, detrimental to the interests of Ontario. 3rd, a tariff on flour and wheat, to protect the farmers of Ontario and which injures the miners of Nova Scotia and New Brunswick. 4th, a

PETERBOROUGH, AUGUST 15, 1878.

THE COMING ELECTIONS.

It has been announced that the general elections will take place on or about the 19th day of next month. We are sure this will be gratifying news to all our readers, Reform and Conservative; for it places a definite limit to those party discussions which if long continued become both wearying and aggravating. The issue before the electors is a plain one enough, in spite of the clouds which are attempted to be thrown about it. Two parties appeal to the people for their confidence, and for the privilege of executing the public affairs of the Dominion. Each [illegible] of their triumph at the polls, to exercise the duties and influence the course of public administration. As is always the case, these men have attained their marked position in the ranks of their respective parties by years of service, and hence the electors can well judge of the character and ability of each and all of them. We need not look for absolute perfection in any of them, and we may fairly assume ability in those who have attained such prominence in the politics of the country. Merely intellectual gifts may therefore be freely ascribed to the leading men of both parties; and the comparison to be instituted may therefore be narrowed down to that of a steady exercise of good sense and conscientious conviction, as displayed in the acts of the men who are to come under our consideration in our capacity as electors. First and most important stand out for comparison the Reform and Conservative leaders; and the primary duty of every elector is to honestly study and form his estimate of the life and character of Hon. Alexander Mackenzie, in contradistinction to that of Sir John Alexander Macdonald. We think it need be no difficult matter to determine which of the men can better be entrusted with the destinies of the Dominion for the next Parliamentary term, or even for a month or a day. On the leaders to a very considerable extent will depend the kind of men they will choose as colleagues; and these in turn should be subjected to electoral investigation as to their acts and apparent motives. Compare for instance a Jones or a Smith with a Tupper, a Cartwright with a Gibbs, a Laurier with a Plumb, a Blake with a Tilley, or a Glass with a Macdougall, and see what manner of men the parties are composed of. Contrast too the public acts of the two parties; consider the long course of errors that led the Macdonald Ministry, too weak in moral weight to withstand the growing temptations, to commit a series of wrongs against their country disgraceful to themselves and to Canadians, all culminating in the gigantic crime which was the immediate cause of the downfall of that ministry and the shattering of the party that gave it support; think of the careful administration that has since replaced the country in the confidence of Britain and the world; remember that those who wrought the wrong now ask to displace those who rectified and averted its consequences; and then decide which party shall receive your vote.

There is another matter to which through the efforts of the Opposition, attention is likely to be drawn. We are very loth to believe that Protection by means of the tariff can ever become a question of primary import to Canadians; and we cannot think that persons professing Conservatism, and reliance on the traditions and policy of the British Empire can seriously propose a policy antagonistic to their avowed principles and subversive of the bonds that unite the colony to the mother-land. We are the more convinced of the insincerity of Protectionist professions in the ranks of Canadian Conservatism, when we see the various changes of base that have been made, and the eager attempts to catch every breeze for party effect, no matter from what direction blowing. We are the more disposed to consider this head [illegible] about Protection as a means whereby the leaders of the Tory party hope to draw popular attention from the main points at issue, as they are compelled by the records of the two parties and the acts, addresses and explanations of their leading men. If the party professing Protectionist doctrines had been honest in their desire for a readjustment of the tariff, they would long before now have made plain the direction in which they sought to change the import duties under our 17½ per cent. tariff. That they have so long avoided anything like an explicit proposition is a plain proof that either they have mistaken their duties to the country while in Parliament, or that they are false to the whole people in making vain and vague professions of zeal for the good of the Dominion. Another proof of insincerity is given in the want of unanimity displayed by the various party exponents in what they profess to consider a paramount principle. No two seem to be agreed as to the plan, purpose, scope, or even the direction of protective legislation. They would shut out competition, yet not enhance prices; they would in some way benefit manufacturers without either giving them more for their wares or allowing them to obtain their labour or material at less cost; they would enrich each man by giving him a little more for what he had to sell, and yet have him sell for less for the benefit of all others; they would shut out by a prohibitive tariff one class of our present imports or allow or wipe out the duty on all others, and yet collect a revenue from customs; they would keep Canada for the Canadians, and yet carry on a foreign trade. In short they would do all sorts of incongruous things, if we are to believe them, did they only get into power again. But as Canadians are a very considerate people, and not anxious to have even such great sinners as those who sold the Pacific Railway Charter punished by attempts to do impossible things, they are not likely to let the aspirants try their hocus-pocus. It is not legislative legerdemain the people of the Dominion want; they desire plain common-sense law making, in conformity with the natural progress of the people.

NO INCREASE EVER PROPOSED.

On the 2nd of August the Review had the following :—

"The assertion that Sir John Macdonald or the advocates of a national policy for Canada wish to increase taxation is simply a deliberate and wilful falsehood."

On the 31st of August 1877 the same paper complained of.

"The policy of those so-called 'Reformers' who are trying to shove dones of Free Trade down the throat of a country starving for want of Protection."

and who

"Have allowed themselves to be carried away with Free Trade clap-trap."

Yet you are asked to believe that this allusion to a 17½ per cent tariff as Free Trade meant no increase!

On the 2nd of last November the Review had this comparison :—

"The present Government has distinctly declared that it will go no further than a 17½ per cent tariff . . . on the other hand the Opposition is just as strongly pledged to a policy of increased protection to Canadian Industries."

Yet now this paper has the hardihood to say Sir John Macdonald and his followers proposed no increase of taxation, and the audacity to accuse others of deliberate and wilful falsehood!

On the 1st of February the Review said :—

"It is now a "plank in the party platform that a national policy shall give due protection to every industry in the Country.

Did not this mean increased duties all round? Yet the Review now flatly "goes back" on its own utterance!

On the same date it published the letter of a correspondant. "N. B. C." advocating [illegible] called "national policy," in which the writer says.

"But how will it act on the agricultural interest will act as a deterrent measure."

Again he says ;—

"Experience has taught communities when they are comparatively small that a high tariff is necessary."

But now the Review denies that the advocates of a national policy proposed any higher than a 17½ per cent tariff!

On the 15th February the Review complained that "the Government is wedded to a system of Free Trade," but now it never proposed more than 17½ per cent!

On the 8th March the Review had an article in which it advocated the levying of high duties to protect agriculture, mining and manufacturing, and particularly proposed increased duties on woollens, cottons, furniture, stoves, machinery, grain, cattle, and refined sugar. It then would impose "such duties on American produce as will secure Canada for the Canadians," and said we should "so increase our duties as to secure our own markets for our own manufacturers)"

Yet now it says those who accuse it of advocating an increase are deliberate and wilful falsifiers. The description rather applies to itself.

On March 22nd the Review advocated imposing a duty of at least 50 cents per ton on coal, a duty on flour, and on wool. In the same issue it published a table of articles on which high duties are imposed in the United States, but which are admitted free or at very low duties into Canada, and pointed to this as an injustice to Canada. Yet now it is fit to call any one a liar who says it ever proposed any increase.

On April 26th the Review declared :—

"The tariff ought to be framed in the interests not of any one class, or of any particular section, but of the whole Dominion."

All round protection again, and in opposition to a revenue tariff. It would protect by duties every class and every section; and yet now it says it would not increase taxation, and anyone who says it ever proposed such an increase lies!

On the 3rd of May the Review had the following :—

"The Port Hope Guide tries to frighten the Electors of East Durham against voting for Col. Williams, because (it says) he is pledged to support a party, who are in turn pledged to vote for an increased duty on silks of from 20 to 30 per cent! Well, if he is, we think that is just what nine-tenths of the people want. Those who can afford to wear silks can or ought to be able to pay for them."

But now the Taxationists say they would put silks on the free list to balance increased duties on something else, and the Review declares that neither it, nor any of its friends ever proposed increased taxation!

On the 24th of May the Review said :—

"Our opponents in the Protective controversy not unfrequently claim that the only result of increased duties on articles which could be manufactured within the country, would be to enhance the price to the general consumer, for the benefit of a few manufacturers. We dispute this."

Yet now it says it never advocated an increase of tariff!

On the 5th of July the Review thought a country ought "to tax itself to encourage a certain class of persons to commence business in the country." This it is true does not chime in well with its remarks of the 1st February and of the 26th April; but that's nothing to the paper that now can declare it never proposed any increase of the tariff. In the same issue it advocated a duty on iron, and often spoke of "the bonus given by the tariff." But now it says it never proposed increased taxation. It forgets itself, poor thing!

On July 26th the Review said :—

"[illegible] of a "national policy" [illegible] for the "[illegible] [illegible] a tariff of [illegible] [illegible] [illegible]

LOCAL NEWS.

I. O. O. F.—The Grand Lodge I.O.O.F. met in the city of Toronto yesterday. Messrs. L. Fisher and R. Elder are representing Peterborough Lodge.

Fresh Arrivals.—Mr. John Elder has this week received a fresh stock of cloths, tweeds, gents' furnishings, &c., which will be sold at extremely low prices for cash. Look out for his advertisement next week.

St. Andrews' S. S. Pic-Nic.—An Excursion in connection with the St. Andrews' Church Sunday School took place last Thursday down the river, on the steamer Wildle-Wing. It passed off very successfully.

Police Court.—Business in this circle has been quiet during the past week, hard being no arrests made. The only case that came up for disposal was an assault case from Ennismore, in which the plaintiff was fined $10.00.

Town Clock.—Our town officials would do well to have the dials of the town clock repaired at as early a day as possible. If let remain as they now are, the works cannot but receive injury from exposure to the weather.

Young Canadians Pic-Nic.—The annual pic-nic and excursion in connection with the "Young Canadians" L. O. L. No. 1316 will probably take place during the last week of August, arrangements being now in progress.

R. C. S. S. Excursion.—We are requested to state that the Roman Catholic Separate School Board of Trustees are making arrangements to run an excursion to Idyl Wild on the steamer Golden-Eye, on Thursday next, 22nd instant.

Firemen's Excursion.—The members of the Peterborough Fire Brigade having accepted the invitation from the Cobourg Firemen to visit them to-day, the Brigade and their friends were to have left this morning by steamer Arlington.

A Million Dollar Show.—W. W. Cole's circus, menagerie, museum and congress of living wonders will visit this town on Thursday, September 5th. Capt. Bates and wife, the tallest man and woman on earth, are among the attractions of this mammoth show.

Giving up Business.—Mr. P. D. Doran having decided to give up the commission business announces in another column his determination to dispose of his whole stock at a great sacrifice. The stock consists of dry goods, ready made clothing, boots, shoes and groceries.

Fresh Fruit, &c.—Mr. L. Lipsett has just received a lot of choice pears, peaches, plums, tomatoes, melons, oranges, lemons, apples, and a great variety of fresh confectionery, pastry, &c., at his new store and lunch rooms on Hunter street, next door to Dr. Taylor's.

Scott Temperance Act.—We learn that the petitions for the submission of the "Scott Temperance Act" are being numerously signed by the electors of the town and county and that as soon as possible after the parliamentary elections a by-law will be submitted for the approval of the ratepayers.

Good Templars, Excursion.—The first picnic and excursion of Peterborough Lodge, I. O. G. T., is announced for Tuesday next by steamer Arlington to Gores' Landing. A scow will be attached to the boat and every precaution taken for the comfort and pleasure of those joining the excursion.

Intermediate Examinations.—The following is a list of the successful candidates at the Intermediate Examinations lately held here:—

Mr. Jos. Gilmour,	Miss F. Allingham.
" B. Scott,	" C. Smith.
" J. P. Eastwood.	" J. Kelly.
" J. Junkin.	" A. Graham.
" A. B. Ventress.	" K. Forrend.
" F. Moore.	" A. Turnbull.
" J. Rempe.	" E. Jenkins.
Miss E. Hetherington.	" C. Fair.

Duck Shooting.—For the information of sportsmen and others we will state that the close season for duck shooting extends now to the first of September and not the fifteenth of August as formerly, as the Act in reference thereto was changed at last session of Parliament. Those interested should bear the above in mind, as the members of the Fish and Game Protective Societies of the town and county are determined to enforce the Act to the strict letter of the law.

Mowry & Forsyth's Threshers.—Messrs. Mowry & Forsyth are this season already doing an extensive business in threshing machines, having during the past few days shipped four one to Messrs. Drope and Johnston, Allandale; one to Messrs. Curtain and O'Rielly, Ennismore; one to Messrs. Parker and Greer, Cavan; and one to Mr. A. T. Fife, South Hampton. The reputation of these machines are so well established among the farmers of this section that they need no commendation from us to introduce them to the favorable notice of those interested.

Missionary Meetings.—The missionary meetings in connection with the Bible Christian Church in the Peterborough district are appointed to be held as follows:

PETERBOROUGH & ASHBURNHAM CIRCUIT.—Peterborough, Oct. 1st; Ashburnham, Oct. 2nd; Deputation, J. Kenner, Bethel, Oct. 3rd; Selem, Oct. 4th; Deputation, R. T. Cownton.

LAKEFIELD CIRCUIT.—Lakefield, Sept. 29th; Deputation, J. Kenner, R. T. Cownton. English Line, Oct. 1st; Douro, Oct. 2nd; Deputation, R. T. Cownton. Ennismore, Sept. 8th; Northey's, Sept. 10th; Deputation, E. Roberts, and J. W. Cansom.

Ontario College of Pharmacy.—At the semi-annual meeting of the Ontario College of Pharmacy, held in the city of Toronto last week, out of forty-five candidates, twenty-six were admitted as registered students and obtained the diploma of the College. Among the names of the successful candidates we notice that of A. H. Cobb, of this town, formerly with Messrs. J. D. Tully & Co. The subjects for examination were a knowledge of chemistry, pharmacy, materia medica, botany, and the practical dispensation of drugs.

Excursion to Delaware.—Arrangements are being made for an excursion from Peterborough to Dover, Capital of Delaware, U. S., on August 28th, 1878, by the Northern Central Railway. The excursion given some time ago from Port Hope to the same place was so largely attended, and all passed off so well, and everyone was so pleased with the trip, it has been resolved to repeat it. The scenery on the line is magnificent, and experienced railway men will go with the excursion to see to the comfort, safety, and pleasure of the party. Tickets there and return are only $14.25, and can be procured from Mr. Thos. Hamilton.

Sudden Caption.—On Monday three hopefuls under the influence of the ardent, more or less, hired a rig at the livery stables at Mr. Robinson, and after driving through the town for some time captured on Charlotte street corner, leaving their impression on the street. One of them on being picked up was pronounced dead, but on placing him near the fence on the south side of the street he recovered. The other two were out pretty severely on the face and head, but not sufficient to prevent them from using the most blasphemous language. As yet they have not figured in the Police Record, and Peterborough is supposed to have two Constables.

Canada Under Lord Dufferin.—It is not generally known, perhaps, that during the stay of our esteemed Governor-General in Canada, he has given to the various Societies, Religious Institutions and Educational Establishments of the country upwards of five hundred beautiful medals in gold, silver and bronze. We have much pleasure in announcing that Mr. George Stewart Jr.'s great work "Canada under the Administration of Lord Dufferin," will contain a complete list of these medals with the names of the parties who have received them, the object for which they were given, and the various dates of issue. This will add largely to the interest of Mr. Stewart's book, which we learn is being eagerly subscribed for.

Raising Cattle for Export.—We read in one of our exchanges that "a number of gentlemen prominently interested in the promotion of the cattle export trade, will meet representatives from the several counties of the Province during the present month, with a view of concerting measures favorable to the growth of stock raising, after which consultation the Government will be asked to aid the several municipalities of the Province to procure good breeding cattle, for the purpose of improving the various classes." We trust Peterborough County will be represented at this gathering, for the subject to receive consideration is one of great importance, and one to which our farmers should devote particular attention.

Installation of Officers.—The following are the officers of Cornwell Lodge No. 411, I.O.G.T., installed at their regular meeting, held on the 1st of August:—

Bro. J. H. Cobb	W.C.T.
Bro. J. J. Esmond, M.D.	P.W.C.T.
Bro. J. Brooks	W. Chap.
Sister Glass	W.V.
Bro. A. W. Brooks	W.S.
Bro. J. King	W.T.
Bro. J. Strain	W.F.S.
Bro. Jos. Batton	W.M.
Sister White	W.D.M.
Sister Lemay	W.R.G.
Sister Hewitt	W.R.H.S.
Sister Hartman	W.L.H.S.
Bro. Johnston	W.O.G.

To Wool Growers.—We have been requested to publish the following circular for the benefit of those of our readers who are interested in the wool trade:

PHILADELPHIA, August 8th, 1878.

DEAR SIR.—The Canada wool growers would advance their own interests by improving their flocks by crossing them with cross bred bucks—say bucks that are half Leicester and half Merino.

The demand now is for goods made of a finer wool than the Canada flocks produce, the latter are too coarse for the worsted yarns that are now required.

The improvement in the demand for Canada wool noticed in our last, has died out, and it is now rejected as being too coarse for the present demands, &c., is an outside price and is hard to obtain for any but the finer fleeces, the extreme coarse finds no sale at 18c.

Yours truly,
JUSTICE, BATEMAN & Co.
Wool Commission Merchants.

Another 96 Settler Removed.—We have this week to chronicle the decease of Robert Weir, Esq., of Otonabee, at the advanced age of 91 years and eleven days. He was a native of Fermanagh, Ireland, and came to Canada in 1823, remaining at Cobourg about one year. In 1825 he removed to Otonabee and settled on the farm where he resided until his decease. His wife died about 5 years ago. They had 12 children, but only seven survive them, four sons and three daughters, ten of the family arriving at maturity, seven dying in their youth. He was a hale and hearty man, never being known to have one day's sickness in his life, dying literally of old age. He was said to be at the time of his decease the oldest person in the township in which he resided. His remains were followed to their last resting place, on Tuesday, by a large concourse of people.

Personals.—We had the pleasure of a call on Tuesday from Mr. Wilson, of the Port Hope Guide. He is looking well and is doing good work for the Reform party in his district in exposing the fallacies of the National Policy.

Messrs. J. R. Ormond, J. Elder, and their ladies returned from Burleigh Falls on Monday last, where they had been spending an enjoyable time for the past few weeks.—Rev. Father Cicolari with a number of clerical brethren have been spending a few days with Father Stafford, while on their way to the back lakes.

.....Ex. Comp. Henry Rush Z. of Corinthian Chapter—left on Tuesday morning, the 13th instant, to attend the annual convocation of Grand Chapter of Royal Arch Masons, which met at Hamilton on Wednesday (yesterday).....We are glad to observe that James Edwards, Esq., Town Treasurer, has returned from his holidays improved in health and appearance.

Entertainment in Drill Shed.—The entertainment in the Drill Shed on Friday evening last, in aid of the band uniform fund, was very successful, although not quite so largely attended as it should have been, considering the object for which it was instituted. The selections by the Band and the overture by the Musical Society were well rendered. Mr. H. C. Winch's performing horse "Lisle Tommy" although at first somewhat stubborn, owing to his not being accustomed to performing in public, did exceedingly well in the several acts, and was the subject of much wonderment. The statute clog, banjo solo and song by the Clarke Bros., and "Brown the Tragedian" by Mr. McNeil, were each well rendered and received with applause. The performance concluded by a grand acrobatic scene in which a number of our young amateurs showed off to advantage, their tumbling being pronounced equal to that of many travelling professionals—one act being the tumbling of a summersault over five horses. We believe it is the intention to give another entertainment at an early day, with an entire change of programme.

Historic Primer of Canada.—We have received a copy of an Historic Primer of Canada by J. F. Jeffers, M. A., Principal of the Peterborough Collegiate Institute. It consists of 112 pages of closely printed matter, published by James Campbell & Sons, Toronto. The style of the work is attractive, and the arrangement calculated to lead the student by easy steps into a synopsis of the history of the Dominion, from its earliest settlement to the present day. The attention of the young learner is arrested at the important events of our history, by dark letter print that cannot fail to be of value in directing the young mind to these events, men and epochs, that are considered as bringing forward the most important times and facts in Canadian history. Head notes to each chapter are also prepared for the purpose of affording a key to the events of that chapter. These will also aid the memory of the pupil in retaining the heads of these leading events, so as to make practical use of whatever knowledge he may attain. The author has shown himself not only versed in the history of his country, but also an adept in imparting that knowledge, and we feel confident that a work so well adapted for use in our schools cannot fail to be introduced into them very soon. The book is for sale at J. L. Davidson's bookstore, Peterborough.

THE CIVIL HOLIDAY.

How the day was spent in Peterborough Excursions, Races, &c.

Monday last being set aside by the Mayor as a Civic Holiday the most of our townspeople observed it as such, and business was generally suspended for the day throughout the town, the greater part of the citizens availing themselves of the numerous excursions and pic-nics to spend the day in amusement and recreation.

THE TORONTO AND BARRIE EXCURSIONS.

The cheap excursions to Toronto, Barrie, and Niagara Falls were very liberally patronized—about five hundred availing themselves of the opportunity to visit the Metropolis of Ontario and other points of interest. The members of Victoria Lodge of Orange Young Britons and the Band of the Fire Brigade accompanied the excursionists, being on their way to take part in the demonstration which was held that day in Toronto in commemoration of the relief of Derry. The party arrived in Toronto about half past eleven. The O. Y. Bs. were met at the Union Station by a deputation of their brethern, and after forming into procession marched to the Green Bush Hotel on Yonge street for dinner. After dinner they reformed and joined the main body of the procession which was then marching. After proceeding through several of the principal streets they at the Rink on Adelaide street, where speeches were delivered by Mr. D. Ghent, County Master of Montreal, and other brethern composing a deputation from the Orangemen of that city. Over two thousand took part in the procession which was very interesting. The next appearance of the Peterborough Lodge and the Band in their new uniform will be much prolong, both from the spectators and the press—the Leader having the following:

"When all looked so well, it would be almost invidious to mention any [illegible] but we may be pardoned for saying that the Band of Peterborough [illegible] they were very attentive to business."

The Globe and Mail also made special mention of the handsome appearance of the Band and their excellent playing. After a number of spirited addresses appropriate to the occasion, the meeting separated. In the evening a promenade concert and hop was given at the Rink and was largely attended. A large portion of the musical programme had been drafted and speeches were delivered by His Honor Medcalf, Mr. J. R. McWilliams, Peterborough, Mr. David Grant, and others, which were well received by the large audience present. After which dancing was began and kept up until an early hour. But few of the excursionists returned on the evening train, which arrived in Peterborough at 11.30 p.m., the greater part staying over in the city. The Band took part both at the entertainment on Monday evening and the banquet given to the Montreal brethern on Tuesday evening. On Tuesday they visited the Island for the purpose of serenading Hanlan. The champion oarsman, however, had not come home from Barrie, and after playing some tunes and partaking of refreshments they returned to the city. They visited the Walker House, the Queen's Hotel, and the Rossin House, at each of which places they discovered some excellent music. They also serenaded Mr. Marvin Knowlton, at the "Queens." The greater part of the excursionists and the Band returned home on the noon train yesterday well pleased with their trip.

THE ODDFELLOWS EXCURSION.

The excursion under the auspices of Peterborough Lodge, I. O. O. F., to Idyl Wild by Steamer Golden-Eye was very largely attended. Dancing and other amusements were participated in, the party returning home in the evening about ten o'clock.

THE YOUNG IRISHMEN'S PIC-NIC

at Wallis' Grove was also a centre of attraction—about 600 attending. A match game of base ball took place during the afternoon between the "Pine Groves" and "Evergreens" resulting in favor of the former by a score of 13 to 4. The following are the other games competed for, with a list of the successful competitors and the prizes awarded:—

POTATO RACE.—Six entries. Wm. Lundy, 1st, 50 cents; Wm. DeFlaney, 2nd, 25 cents.

HALF MILE RACE.—Four entries. James McNamara, 1st, $1.00; Thomas Billington, 2nd, 50 cents.

RACE FOR BOYS UNDER 15.—Twelve entries. James Sheehy, 1st, 50 cents; Charles Murty, 2nd, 25 cents.

RACE FOR GIRLS UNDER 15.—Eight entries. Louisa Brault, 1st, Album.

MOLASSES AND BUNS.—Eight entries. Thos. Mack, 1st, 50 cents; John Collins, 2nd, 25 cents.

100 YARD RACE.—Four entries. Hugh Martin, 1st, $1.50

RUNNING LONG JUMP.—Henry Dunn, 1st, $1.50. 15 feet 9 inches; Joseph Howorth, 2nd, 50 cents, 15 feet.

RUNNING HOP STEP AND JUMP.—Five entries, James Kearns, 1st, $3.00, 40 feet 4½ inches; Henry Dunn, 2nd, 50 cents, 39 feet 7 inches.

Martin's Quadrille Band was present and furnished music for those participating in the dancing, which was vigorously kept up during the afternoon.

OTHER EXCURSIONS.

Besides the above a number of private excursions and pic-nics were held, some down the river and others to Chemong Lake. Altogether the day was a very pleasant one, and was apparently enjoyed by a large majority of our citizens.

THE DUNKIN ACT.

Mr. R. King Dodds on the Appeal—First Meeting of the Campaign—A Large and Orderly Meeting in the Opera House—Statements for Consideration.

In accordance with announcement by posters Mr. R. King Dodds delivered an address on the repeal of the Dunkin Bill on Thursday evening last in the Opera House. The hall was well filled and the audience very orderly, although at times rather restless owing to the oppressive heat. Shortly after eight o'clock the chair was taken by W. Mills, Esq., Ashburnham, who in a few remarks explained the object of the meeting and called upon the speaker of the evening.

Mr. DODDS on rising said he was gratified at seeing so large and intelligent an audience before him, although the bills calling the meeting had been issued but one day. He was confident in his own mind that the remarks made by him during the campaign last fall would not now be regarded so extreme as his opponents at that time wished them to be believed. The petition for the would at once be circulated for signatures among the electors, and as a certain process had to be gone through with, it would be the month of October before the vote would be taken. They would then have had six months experience of the workings of this law and would be prepared to vote intelligently upon it. He sincerely hoped no bitterness of feeling would be imported into the campaign, and that if they could not all agree upon the question they could at least agree to disagree. Other municipalities had tried the Dunkin Act—got tired of it and voted it away. He did not come here to demoralize the people. He came to deal with

FACTS AND FIGURES

and to prove that Dunkin was a failure, and if so he asked them to vote it down. He felt it his duty to-night to give evidence presented from other parts of the Province as to the evils of the Temperance Act of 1864. If there were any places more than others which his opponents delighted to quote during the campaign last year where this law was working satisfactorily, it was the townships of Richmond and Ernestown. He said his friends had come into these strongholds and worked for the repeal and by an overwhelming majority the electors had stamped it out. He would now revert to the promises made by his opponents last year as to

WHAT THE DUNKIN ACT WOULD DO.

It was to have decreased drunkenness and the consumption of alcholic liquors; and also to have raised the morality of the citizens. Had it done so? He ventured to assert it had not from what he had seen and heard of its workings in this town. He then referred to the working of the Dunkin Act in Napanee, where, he said, after one year's trial it had been repealed by a large majority. In that town he found that under the Dunkin law many who previous to its passage had not been engaged in the sale of liquors at once embarked in it; numerous shebeen shops were started in the back streets of the town, and a state of society inaugurated that was far worse for the morality of the people, than if a hotel was on every corner of the square and on every concession line in the county. This, he it remembered, was in Napanee, the headquarters of the officers of the Grand Lodge of the World, and where the people were educated under the protected wing of the Grand Lodge officers. They had also brought to their rescue, Col. Hickman, of Kentucky, who, for nine weeks advocated their cause without avail. There was but one wholesale shop in the town, but from statements received from the proprietor he learned that in six months one hundred barrels than in the same period under the license law. Besides, the stages from Kingston were constantly bringing ten, fifteen, twenty and one gallon jars of whiskey. Blacksmiths found it more lucrative to deal in whiskey than to work at their trade, and it had been proved that farmers came to the shop with their jars in the morning, left their money on the anvil and came again in the evening and took them away filled with whiskey. Boys had even been brought up for selling liquor from flasks on the back streets. He was informed by Mr. Snipe, the wholesale merchant referred to, that on the day before Christmas he had sold eighty-two five gallon kegs of whiskey. That where those who formerly bought a quart or two on occasion, they then bought five gallons. The committals for drunkenness also increased. For the six months ending 31st of December, 1876 under the license law there were 48 committals, while for the same period under the Dunkin regime there were no less than 61. The result of its workings had been that many whiskey hells had been sold and torn down and wines. The Dunkin Act invariably stamps out also and wines and increases the consumption of alcoholic liquors.

MORE WHISKEY HAD BEEN SOLD

THE TOWN OF PETERBOROUGH.

He next alluded to the town of Peterborough, and said that from figures furnished him by the Collector of Inland Revenue, nearly 2000 more gallons of whiskey had been brought to the town in bond during the months of May, June and July of this present year than in the same months of last year. In 1877, during the month of May, he found there had been delivered here 2,332 gallons, in June 1541 gallons and in July 1650 gallons or in all 5,523 gallons of whiskey during these three months. In 1878 during the month of May the quantity delivered was 3,428 gallons; in June 3,999 gallons and in July 2,660 gallons or altogether 9,987 gallons, an increase of 4,464 gallons in three months with the town temporarily deprived of the benefits of the Dunkin Act. Under the Dunkin Act there was to have been an increased morality and less drunkenness. Strong, clear and substantiated is the proof. Besides this, one dealer who does not buy in bond, two or three weeks before the present law came into force, received 2,500 gallons of whiskey and but a few weeks ago received a fresh supply of 2,000 gallons.

A PAIR ARRIVED

to address from this was that if so much more liquor was consumed now, there must also be a corresponding increase in the number of drunkards; and this was borne out from the Police Court records. He found that for the months of June, July, and up to the 3rd of August in 1877, the convictions for drunkenness had been 9, while for the same period in 1878 the number had [illegible] just as many more as when under the reign of the Dunkin Act. In the County of Brant and City of Brantford where the law had been in force the people repeated the [illegible] by 1,200 majority. In the County of Grey where there was free trade in liquor from one end of the county to the other: a [illegible] was now before the people and [illegible] it would be carried. In the County of York [illegible] was taken out of the treasury through the loss of licenses money, and local lawyers were now coming before the Court of Revision and asking for reductions in their assessments—their property not being as valuable now as when their buildings were used as hotels. He then proceeded to review the benefits of the Crooks' Act over the Dunkin Act and stated that under the former 2200 licenses had been swept away. In these municipalities where the Temperance Act of 1864 was in force the number of places where liquor was sold was largely increasing. In the United States these prohibitory liquor measures were a failure, and parties could get all the liquor they wanted if the temperance people wished to succeed they would have to change their system and educate the people. Let them raise the price and duty of alcoholic liquors and lower that of ales and light wines. The experience of many liquor dealers in Toronto was that they now do not sell 5 gallons of strong ale when they used to sell 20. The reason of this was that lager beer with only 4 to 4½ per cent of spirits was taking the place of the strongest ales. He wished to see light wines as cheap here as in France, where there was not near the amount of drunkenness that was in either England, Ireland or Scotland. He was not here to espouse the cause of temperance—God forbid that he should use one word against it—but if so honest men they found the Dunkin Act had not worked satisfactorily let them go to the polls in October and without hesitation or fear of being accused of inconsistency, record their votes against the law that is unsuited to the requirements of this time. The speaker took his seat with much applause.

PETERBOROUGH MARKET.

Corrected Weekly by Mr. W. H. Wrighton, Grain and Produce Dealer.

In wheat there is nothing doing—prices nominal in the absence of receipt. Spring wheat will bring one dollar per bushel. English markets firmer. Western markets advancing. Saturday's market was a fair one—vegetables were in abundance—sold fairly; potatoes were lower, 70c. to 80c. per bushel being obtained; apples are plentiful and improving in quality—selling from 60c. to 65c. per bushel; good butter in demand at 15c. to 16c.—the supply is small; eggs are very plentiful and slow sale except at shipping prices—can be bought from 7c. to 8c. Lamb is plentiful, and slow at 6c. to 8c. In coarse grains there is nothing doing—same offering. Oats are wanted.

Wednesday's market—potatoes sold down to 60c. per bag and were in no great demand. Farmers are selling potatoes by the bag, calling them one bushel and a half, or what a bushel and a half ought to be—80 pounds. The purchaser in most cases got 75 to 80 pounds. This is a fraud and Inspector Beavis ought to look after it and let us know what a bag of potatoes measure.

My Old Love.

I saw a face in the streets to-night,
That brought up the buried years—
The form of the woman I might have wed—
And it filled my heart with tears,
For she loved me well, and I loved her, too,
But a shadow fell o'er our way;
And I flushed my fate with some one else,
And she is my wife to-day.

Long years have passed, and but few regrets
Have lingered around my heart,
For the wife I have wed is good and true,
And acts a womanly part,
I dare not think I had happier been
With the sweet first-love of my youth,
For she I have wed is a treasure of price,
And beg served me with love and truth.

But the face that I saw in the streets to-night
In my soul such dreams have stirred,
That I shrink before my wife's kind gaze,
And am sinner by each tender word;
And the children who troop around my knee
And deem me so good and wise,
Little rock of the thoughts that trouble me,
Or the tears that bedim my eyes.

Were my old love wed, well then, perhaps,
All these thoughts I could soon dissipate,
And yet, had her fate so designed it, I fear,
The man she had wed I should hate.
Can her heart have been true to the past,
While mine has fresh anchorages sought?
I must not think that, least a breath
In the peace of my home should be wrought.

How would it have been had we wed?
Should I happier be, or would she?
God knows; but this truth I am bound to confess,
My wife is a dear and a true wife to me,
'Tis not from what might have been but from what is
That we now have to gather delight.
And yet, my old love, not the wife of my heart,
Will be first in my dreams to night.

TALLEST MAN AND WOMAN LIVING.

Interesting Facts Concerning the Intelligent Couple—Descriptive Details—The Giant's Castle—Their Furniture—The Clothes They Wear—Eighty Yards of Silk in one Dress—Their Theory about Giants—A Devout Church Member—Their Bridal Tour—Before Queen Victoria.

(From the St. Paul Pioneer-Press.)

For some time past the public mind has been excited by the wonderful stories which the newspapers of the country have published about a remarkable couple, said to be the tallest and largest people in the world. So extraordinary were the accounts of these giants that, as it was learned th t Capt. M. V. Bates and lady were making a tour of the West, a reporter of the Press was dispatched to interview the gigantic couple and ascertain the truth in regard to them for the benefit of our readers. It was no small job, and it must be acknowledged that in all his reportorial experience the writer had never before been detailed to tackle any such weighty subject.

From the reports, it was expected to find two very fleshy people of large stature, so many of whom are advertised as wonders, but who are, in fact, monstrosities, their immense development being the result of disease. No more fallacious idea could be formed, however, and when the reporter, after having sent in his card, was politely ushered into the presence of Captain and Mrs. Bates, he found himself confronted by two as perfectly formed gentlefolks as he had ever seen. The first impression was one of awe, and it occurred to the interviewer's mind that half the truth had not been told. A feeling of insignificance over came him, and he appeared to sink to the Lilliputian dimensions of that historical personage so dear to the juvenile mind. Having recovered from his astonishment, the polite and courteous greetings were acknowledged. Captain Bates remarked as he extended his hand, that "he was an admirer of the press," and he fully demonstrated his affections for it when he allowed his one hundred square inches of palm to envelope the insignificant member of its representative. Mrs. Bates, with a stately, courtly bend of the body, learned probably in the halls of royalty, and it is feared the reporter awkardly recoiled, as her towering form yielded, from an unconscious fear that something was about to fall on and crush him.

But a brief description of these remarkable people must be given in order that some idea may be gained of how they differ from ordinary mortals. Captain Martin Van Buren Bates was born in Whitesburg, Letcher County, Kentucky, November 9, 1846. He is seven feet eleven and one-half inches in height and weighs 478 pounds. His father was about six feet tall and his mother was a lady of ordinary stature. He was the youngest of twelve children, seven boys and five girls, and the tallest of his family, except himself, was a brother killed at Vicksburg during the war, and who was six feet and two inches in height. No cases of extraordinary size have ever been known in any of his ancestors and his extraordinary development must be viewed simply as a freak of nature, as it cannot be accounted for on any scientific grounds.

Nature, as usual, did not propose to do things by halves, and in 1849 Miss Anna H. Swan was born in Colchester county, Nova Scotia. As the sequel shows, she was intended as a COMPANION FOR THE BIG BOY.

Her parents were rather small sized people, her father being but five feet and four inches in height and one hundred and forty-five pounds, while the mother was five feet and two inches, and weighed one hundred and ten pounds when in robust health. She had three brothers and five sisters, all of ordinary size, and no other case of remarkable growth has ever been known among her progenitors. Mrs. Bates was as tall as her mother when six years of age, but she continued to shoot upward until to-day she is exactly the same height as her husband, seven feet eleven ones half inches, her weight being four hundred and thirteen pounds.

Both the lady and gentleman are perfectly proportioned, every member corresponding and aiding to produce a symmetrical but colossal figure. When the reporter called, Mrs. Bates, who is an exceedingly fine looking lady was dressed in a handsome blue silk, cut in the most fashionable style, with bands of delicate white lace at the throat and wrists. She wore a quantity of very elegant jewelry, and her hair was dressed high, thus making her appear taller than her stately lord. Captain Bates is and quite a Chesterfield in manners. He has a frank, pleasant face, giving clear indications of the massive heart within him. His garments are all of the latest style, and fit perfectly. He affects only a neatly waxed mustache, his broad cheeks giving evidence of a close intimacy with a keen razor.

A TALK WITH THE GIANTS.

Capt. and Mrs. Bates are people of more than average intelligence, and show that they have improved the opportunities they have had for acquiring information of people and places during their extended travels.

Do you think you have stopped growing, Captain? asked the reporter.

Capt.—Well, I hope I have. I have reached the height of my ambition, and have got things pretty well fixed to enjoy life as I am now.

Rep.—Were you brought up to any business?

Capt.—I am a thorough granger; I was brought up on a farm, and now I own one myself at Seville, Medina County, Ohio. I have one hundred and sixty-two acres in fine shape, and take a great pride in it.

Rep.—You have

A GIANT'S CASTLE

on it?

Capt.—Yes, we have a pretty good house: the lower story is twelve and one-half feet in height, and the upper one twelve feet. Our doorways are eight and one-half feet high, while ordinarily they are seldom over six and one-half.

Rep.—Of course your furniture compares with the building?

Capt.—In every room we have chairs for my wife and myself, but of course we have ordinary furnishings for friends and servants. Our own furniture was made especially for us by Herndon, of Cleveland. The bedstead is eight feet and four inches long, and five feet six inches in width. The chairs, bureau, wash stands, and, in fact, everything corresponds. We experience a great deal of inconvenience when traveling on account of the diminutive size of the ordinary furniture. I took a fancy to a spring bed, and had one made at Hartford. It is a big thing.

Rep.—Where have you been since you left the farm?

Capt.—I served in the Fifth Kentucky infantry during the war. Confederate, you know, but it was one of the bravest brigades the world ever saw. Since then I have been amusing myself mostly traveling about looking at little men and women.

Rep.—The ready-made goods stores are but of little use to you, Captain.

Capt.—Not a bit. There is not a single garment or article I use but what has to be made especially for me. My boots are about No. 17, and one made for me by a man in Seville. My hats are nearly a size, my collars twenty-five inches, and I guess if my glasses were ranged side by side would run up to at least fourteen. I have the most trouble with my clothes—my trousers, in fact. You see the cloth is made narrow, and while it is all right for men of ordinary size, a pair of pants for me consumes an immense quantity, unless the cap runs both ways. My wife says it takes just about for my clothes as for men of the usual size.

THREE TIMES AS MUCH CLOTH

Rep.—Captain, does your strength correspond with your size?

Capt.—I think it would if I developed it.

Rep.—Did you ever hear of any person so large as yourself?

Capt.—No, sir. I am satisfied that I am

THE BIGGEST MAN IN THE WORLD, and probably as large as ever was born. I have devoted much time to studying the subject, and I am satisfied that there never existed a race of giants, as is claimed. There is actually nothing to corroborate the theory. They claim that men of gigantic stature are vouched for by the Bible. I claim that we know nothing of their base of measurement, and that the standard has increased since those times, so that a cubit might have been a very small measure of length.

Rep.—Mrs. Bates, I presume your large family enjoys good health?

Mrs. B.—Excellent.

Rep.—I presume that you are the tallest lady in the world?

Mrs B.—while we were abroad the most eminent physicians and scientists assured me that there was never before a lady within eighteen inches of my height.

Rep.—Excuse my inquisitiveness, but how many yards of silk are there in the dress you wear?

Mrs. B.—Well, this is rather scant, there are only sixty-five yards in it. My full evening reception dresses require EIGHTY YARDS OF MATERIAL.

The reporter did not become too inquisitive, being exceedingly modest; hence he left many questions that suggested themselves for the ladies to ask when they attend the reception in St. Paul. However he saw the tiny top of a dress boot peeping from under her skirt, and mentally decided that Ranney would call it a narrow twelve.

Rep.—I suppose that you have your special pew in church.

Capt.—Yes, indeed. We have a nice new Baptist church at home, and have had seats constructed for us. My wife is a member of the church, and a very devout Baptist.

Rep.—I beg pardon, Madame, but did they baptise you in the river?

Mrs. B.—No, indeed, sir. I was immersed in the baptistry.

THEIR WEDDING AND PRESENTATION TO THE QUEEN.

Of these events the gentleman and lady gave a very interesting account. The wedding took place on June 17, at St. Martin's Church, Trafalgar Square, London. As a bridal tour they visited the Star and Garter Hotel, a few miles from the city and passed two days in that fashionable and expensive retreat.

It is a fine place, said the captain. Our bill was over seventeen pounds and it was as long as my arm, every incidental being put down. I have it framed at home.

On returning to London they found an order from the Queen awaiting them, requiring them to present themselves at Buckingham Palace at 1 o'clock on the 21st. They had previously appeared before the Prince of Wales and the members of the Masonic Lodge of which he is a member, and it is probable that he had aroused his mother's curiosity by his description of them.

At the appointed time they were graciously received, there being present the Princesses Louise and Beatrice, and Princes Arthur and Leopold, besides lords and ladies. The Queen was somewhat reserved, but asked them how they liked the country and government compared to those of America. She made them both bridal gifts. The captain received a massive gold striking watch, the case weighing nine ounces, and the entire watch over a pound, while with the immense neck chain the whole weighed over three pounds. The bride was presented with a splendid diamond cluster ring, containing seven white jewels.

Rep.—How did you enjoy the interview, captain?

Capt.—I was thinking all of the time how I was to get out, as I had been told that I must back out bowing. But we were much relieved when the Queen arose and passed out of a side door with a gracious nod. We were invited twice afterwards, when the Queen evidently desired to exhibit us to some of her relations, and she was then very cordial.

The reporter suggested that everything would have to move on a grander scale in the world if there was to be a race of giants such as they.

Yes, responded the captain, if I bet—

The interview was intensely interesting, and we are glad that the community at large will have an opportunity to see and converse with these immense and highly intelligent members of the human family, on September 5th, when they will visit Peterborough, with W. W. Cole's great Circus and Menagerie, holding their levees afternoon and night.

OUR CALIFORNIA LETTER.

ARIMEIN, LOS ANGELA CO.,
California, July 29th, 1878.

To the Editor of the Examiner.

DEAR SIR,—When I last wrote you we were entering on our rainy season. Well the winter rains this year were spread over every month from December till May, and the rain fall was greater than any year I have lived here (being 17 inches). We had none of those scorching winds this year, which dry up the face of the ground and does much harm, so that the ground had the advantage of all the rain which fell then. Since the rains ceased the weather has been cloudy and foggy in the mornings, the sky often threatening rain, which undoubtedly would have fallen in any country save this; this climate is curious in that way, oftentimes a person apprehends that rain is going to fall, the sky wears such a threatening appearance, a little while again all is bright and sunshine. At night the sky is hovering and all the stars are hid from the gaze, soon all passes off again the stars appear and the blue sky is stretched out before you beautiful to behold; in this latitude the stars appear bright and shining and often remind us of a hard frosty night in Canada. During the day for a portion of the time the sun is warm, then about eleven o'clock the ocean breeze begins to sweep, along which is cool and refreshing. The cool winds or commonly called "Trade winds," have not been steady this summer to usual, they have veered about towards the west and northwest this year, something unusual as they generally come from the south west in a steady breeze.

The crops have not so far met the expectations formed at the commencement of the season. The barley crop looked very badly and did not fill, and as is very light in weight and poor in quality and small in quantity. Wheat, a good deal of this was sowed this year experimenting. The most of it rusted, although one species, the Odessa or Black Sea wheat did stand pretty well and a fair return will be had. Much of this failure of the grain crops is supposed to be due to foggy and cloudy mornings. The corn crop is only looking medium, as it is not filling well at least so far, but the result may prove better than anticipated. We have irrigating this season nothing except Alfalfa clover, which are watered once, and now we cannot get water, it all as sunk in the sand when it enters the plains. Some time since I mentioned that we were constructing a large ditch to take the water from the river when it enters the plains, and convey it along the valley for irrigating purposes. This is a very expensive operation from the nature of the ground upon the side of the valley, and much fluming has to be done across winter rivulets rushing from the hills with great velocity. Up to the present time there must have been spent about $200,000 or more, and a good deal more is yet needed to complete the enterprise. About 10 miles will be finished this week, and the whole in about two months. We have no fund in the Government hands in this country to assist such an enterprise or even quarrel about. All has to be done by private enterprise, and this amongst other goods; it is a heavy undertaking. But it is death or life in the sense of the word, as each year only tells us in language not to be misunderstood, that we cannot live here without water, and cannot depend on the elements for supply. On the lower level of the valley this is not the case; water can be got by sinking Artesian wells; yet in dry seasons many of these give out. The land in those sections are generally inferior, being much impregnated with Alkali, which the water brings to the surface, and after repeated irrigation, will not sprout any grain or other crops, in spots, unless the land is drained or the Alkali run off with the water. Some are trying gypsum to kill the alkali. I have been told with good success. There is plenty of this material near here, so that the cost will not be great should perfect success be obtained.

We are now fast becoming a mining people in this part, silver mines of great richness (supposed to be) are being fast developed about 30 miles from here on the mountains; and many are trying luck at this. But I think, as far as I have been able to learn, the present occupants are more speculative than operative. And again lower down in the mountains and nearer here, some 15 miles several coal shafts are working with prospects of success. The coal is not of the first quality, yet it burns well, and many are preparing to use it in their houses. Although not much fuel is required, very little wood grows in th's part, therefore coal will be a blessing to all, and is offered at $3 per ton at the pit.

I forgot to say that the fruit crop is very light, in fact, almost a total failure, except grapes, which although not up to former years, will be a fair crop. The general depression still prevails, very little land selling or changing hands. I heard of a sale lately of an orange orchard, at $345 per acre, this of course, was improved; wild land is held far to high. This place is quite healthy, and many who are sick, come here to recruit. I came here to rid myself of rheumatism which I did until I became acclimatized and now I feel again my former troubles, but with less severity. The Presbyterian Church here is much in need of a regular minister, since I came we have always had a supply, sometimes one person for a whole year, this form is much practiced here, no call is given, the services continuing during the pleasure of those concerned. I think the people would call a minister permanently if a suitable one came along. Someway, I think the ministers who come are about as true a type of the great American Nation as can be found. I believe history has or will endorse these sentiments, that they are an adventurous people, and more, it seems to me strange, scarcely one of them can go through a sermon without introducing Washington into it. The church here would pay a liberal salary to a good man. His talents need not be of the highest order still a good speaker would be prefered. Yours, &c.,

J. HUNTER.

THE HOUSEHOLD.

INCRUSTATIONS IN KETTLES.—The deposit the crust in kettles may be prevented by placing an oyster shell in the kettle The particles of lime will adhere to the shell.

TO CLEAR SMOKY MARBLE.—Brush a paste of chloride of lime and water over the entire surface; grease spots can be removed from marble by applying a paste of crue potash and whiting in this manner.

BAKED SUET PUDDING.—One-half pound beef suet, chopped fine; one pint milk, three eggs; salt to taste, flour enough to make thin batter. Bake half an hour and serve hot. Sauce: One and a half cups powdered sugar; tablespoonful butter, white of one egg, one teaspoonful vanilla.

DEODORIZERS.—A pail of clear water in a newly-painted room will remove the sickening odour of paint. Coffee pounded in a mortar and roasted on an iron plate, sugar burned on hot coals, and vinegar burned with myrrh and sprinkled on the floor and furniture of a sick room are excellent deodorizers.

HOW TO TREAT HYACINTHS.—As soon as the hyacinth is done flowering in water you may transplant it to a pot of earth, and so leave it to dry off, when you will lay it away till autumn. Offshoots should be removed as soon as they appear, and be put in small pots where they will soon make roots, and begin to form flowering bulbs.

YANKEE CAKE.—One and one-half cup of sugar; one egg; bit butter the size of an egg; one cup of sweet milk, one teaspoonful of soda and two of cream-of-tartar; one pint of flour, flavor to taste. This cake should be baked in a four-quart can.

ENGLISH BREAD SAUCE.—Cut some light bread in small pieces; boil sufficient milk with a good sized onion in it to thoroughly soak it; mix and let stand awhile, then boil and add butter, pepper, and salt and a few black pepper-corns; take out the onion before serving.

STUFFED EGGS.Boil them hard, cut them in two, remove the yolks, and beat them up with a little grated ham, parsley, pepper and salt to your taste; replace this mixture within the whites, cut the underpart a little so as to make them stand well on the dish, and serve them with white sauce.

EGG TOAST.—Beat four eggs, yolks and whites together thoroughly; put two tablespoonfuls of butter into a sauce pan and melt slowly, then pour in the eggs and heat without boiling over a slow fire, stirring constantly, add a little salt and when hot spread on slices of nicely-browned toast and serve at once.

SCALLOPED CHICKEN.—Mince cold chicken and a little lean ham quite fine, season with pepper and a little salt if needed, stir all together, add some sweet cream, enough to make quite moist, cover with crumbs, put into scallop shells or a flat dish, put a little butter on top, and brown before the fire or in front of a range.

CLEANING FLUE.—For washing alpaca, camel's hair, and other woolen goods, and for removing marks on furniture, carpets, rugs etc.: Four ounces ammonia, four ounces Castile soap, two ounces alcohol, two ounces glycerine, two conversation. Cut the soap fine dissolve in one quart of water over the fire, and add four quarts water. When nearly cold, add the other ingredients. This will make nearly eight quarts, and will cost about Big Shooting.

Ascut the extraordinary rifle shooting of Dr. Carver, some fellows in the N.Y. Sun have been lying,—we take that back as unparliamentary,—have been making sad havoc with the truth. One states that the doctor went out to shoot one day when a heavy rain storm was falling, and he immediately began to shoot at the drops, and within five minutes had cleared a dry space of a hundred yards. Another is about filling a barrel with rifle bullets by shooting them through the bung-hole as a barrel rolled down the hill. Here are a couple of the last:—

"Last week you gave space to a correspondent who styled himself Munchausen, Jr., and to another entitled Leo. The former's article was about Dr. Carver's wonderful shooting in a shower, and the latter was about some wonderful shooting at a bangbein in a barrel as it rolled down hill. Now, I think I can eclipse these yarns about rifle shooting. During our late war I was attached to a corps of sharpshooters in the Confederate army. I happened to be in Vicksburg during the siege, when twenty of us sharpshooters were detached to prevent the explosion of Federal bombshells at the caves. We formed into four squares, stationed at different points. When a shell would be seen in the air one of us would shoot out the fuse from the shell, while the remaining four, by constantly peppering at the shell as it descended, would be sufficient to break the force of it when it fell to the ground. If we let any shell explode which came in our range we were to be shot without martial. Every one of our twenty is alive today, which tells for itself whether our shooting is not the best so far."

Mr. Carchner's shooting extraordinary in to-day's Sun at bumbshell fuses is nothing compared to a day's sport two friends and myself had last week on Sheepshead bay meadows. The sand flies and mosquitoe were so thick that we could not see to shoot birds. We concluded to clear the meadows of the bloodthirsty insects. We began shooting at them after we had eaten our luncheon, and are the crepuscular light cast its shadows upon the waters, we had cleared the meadows of flies, mosquitoe and birds. They were piled up in some places as high as the sand hills of Coney Island. We had not been bitten once during the day. If Mr. Carchner will bring his mortar and bombs to this place I will show him what extraordinary shooting is. I will agree not only to cut the fuse from the shell, but will put seven rifle balls inside each shell through the touch-hole before it reaches the ground."

JOY AMONG THE CHILDREN.

COPELAND'S SWEET CASTOR OIL, equally suitable for children and adults. Endorsed by over 600 doctors in Canada. The difficulty of administering nauseous medicines and the desirability of having them pleasant to the taste, induced T. Copeland to undertake researches, which resulted in the discovery of a Sweet Castor Oil, perfectly palatable, of the same strength and medical qualities as the ordinary Castor Oil; and while equally safe and harmless yet acting with more certainty, and producing neither nausea nor griping. Some children say it is honey: others call it syrup—they all say they like it. One parent says—My children drink it like water;" another—"We had to hide the bottle or they would have finished it right off;" another—"My little girl has taken it twice without any trouble, and does not know what it is, though she hates the ordinary Castor Oil, and we never could get her to take it without a fight;" yet another—"I wish you success of your SWEET CASTOR OIL; it is a splendid thing—sure to take the place of all common oil."

The extraordinary demand for this improvement of a staple household medicine has brought fraudulent imitations into the market, but the public can guard themselves against substitutes (which unprincipled parties are attempting to sell on the reputation of this article) by seeing that the name, COPELAND'S SWEET CASTOR OIL, is on both wrapper and direction label.

The undersigned having purchased Messrs. T. Copeland & Co's interest in the above preparation, are now manufactering it from the original recipe.

PTITT'S SALVE.

An Infallible Remedy for all Diseases of the Eye (acute or chronic), Granulation of the Lids, Ulceration of the Lachrym Canals, Film, and Weakness of the Vision from any cause.

THE AMERICAN EYE-SALVE is presented the public with the assurance of its efficacy as a curative of the most diseases of the eye acute or chronic inflamation, whether induced by scrofulous origin or otherwise, weakness or defect of vision, diminished tone of the optic nerve, or a diseased state of the tissues constituting that organ. Also for all persons whose vocation requires an incessant action of the eyes, the Salve will act as a charm in restoring a uniform healthy action, where weakness, pain, and misery may have long threatened a fatal termination. It is the most simple, safe, and effective remedy ever discovered. The materials of which it is made are pure, perfect, and costly, compounded with elaborate care and exactness safe in its application, being used externally, and, of course, lessening the pain and danger which necessarily attends the introduction of minerals and eye-washes. Pimpworm and OLD ORNONG SORES, of scrofulous origin, or resulting from whatever cause, yield to the AMERICAN EYE-SALVE. It is used successfully for Piles. Its soothing effect is immediate, permanent cure requires but a few applications. The proprietors of "Dr. J. PTITT'S AMERICAN EYE-SALVE," while making new and improved machinery for making a more perfect box for the Eye-Salve, have changed the Trade Mark on the cover so as to correspond with the Cut on the Wrapper, Circulars, Advertisements, etc. We call attention to this, as it might otherwise be regarded as counterfeiting.

The Great Shoshonees Remedy.

The Great Shoshonees Remedy is an Indian vegetable compound composed of the juices of a variety of remarkable medicinal plants and herbs; the various properties of these different ingredients, when combined, is so constituted as to act simultaneously upon the Blood, Lungs, Liver, Kidneys, Digestive, Organs, Nerves, Muscles, etc., restoring their functions to healthy action, and being purely vegetable, is as harmless as nature's own beverage. This medicine has decided benefit in all, and a permanent cure in a large majority of diseases of the blood, such as Scrofula, Erysipelas, Salt Rheum, Canker Plagues, &c. In prescribing this medicine we do not claim that it always performs cures; but this we do say, that it purifies and enriches the blood, permanently curing a large majority of cases entrusted to its influence. It stands far ahead and unequalled among the hundreds of competing medicines of the day. It has stood the test of ten years, and is to day more popular than ever. As a consumer restorative it stands unrivaled; it enables the system to throw off against the constant drain to which it is subjected by a high temperature. Persons who are subject to Bilious Colic, Dysentery, Indigestion, &c., should take the Shoshonees Remedy. Price of the Remedy in pint bottles $1; Pills, 25 cts. a box. Sold by all medicine dealers.

IN MEMORIAM.

Of Wm. Neilson, Esq., Otonabee, who died April 21st, 1878, aged 77 years. He was one of the early settlers in Otonabee, who came out to Canada in the year 1822. Of these that came then, there's few left.

He's gone also, no more for ever
Shall we meet him here below:
Death that family ties doth sever
Hath cut life's thread and laid him low.

He Scotland left, when young in years;
And came out here to Canada;
Was among the early pioneers
That settled in Otonabee.

The hardships sustain these past thro'
Were great! and oftentimes severe;
Comforts of life, so very few,
What e'er they got, they bought it dear.

Yet, strange, the early pioneers,
Who in youth did such trials sustain:
Their age at death, number more years
Than many mean now to attain.

Our friend for the Reform cause
Was a staunch advocate, and few
More zealous, to have stringent laws
The drinking customs to undo.

He was a man of faith and love;
A member of the church of God;
The peace that cometh from above
Sustained him o'er life's thorny road.

May friends he's left, example take,
Mind his last wish, to them given;
God's holy word: not to forsake:
That they all may meet in heaven.
A. GRAHAM.

THE FINANCIAL ARGUMENT.

Reform and Tory Management Contrasted—Complete Refutation of Reckless Tory Charges.

From the Montreal Herald.

A great deal has been made of the alleged extravagance of the Mackenzie Government. Let us compare its dealings with the Dominion Treasury with that of the Government of Sir John Macdonald which preceded it for it is only by such comparisons that we can arrive at a sound judgment on this head. The Government in its present form was commenced in 1867. The financial years end on the 30th June in each year, so that each twelve-months, embrace six months of two years. Below are the augmentations, year by year, which took place under Sir John Macdonald's Government, embracing, of course, the year 1873-4, for which his Finance Minister, Mr. Tilley, prepared the estimates and incurred the obligations. An attempt has been made to saddle the responsibility of the increase of this year, or at least of nine months of it, upon the Mackenzie Ministry because they were in power from the beginning of November. But every one understands that Ministries can not use money that is not first voted by Parliament. MR. MACKENZIE'S MINISTRY, THEREFORE, COULD NOT SPEND MORE IN THE YEAR 1873-4 THAN SIR JOHN A. MACDONALD'S MINISTRY HAD PROPOSED TO SPEND, AND HAD AUTHORITY TO SPEND, OF COURSE BECAUSE THEY THOUGHT IT NECESSARY TO SPEND IT. With this brief explanation are submitted the following figures;

Years.	Expenditures.
In 1867-8.....	$ 13,466,668
1868-9.....	12,663,333
1869-70.....	14,292,599
1870-1.....	15,522,021
1871-2.....	19,231,821
1872-3.....	19,174,647
1873-4.....	22,336,236

It will be seen that in six years the MACDONALD MINISTRY augmented the charges of the Government by $10,000,000 in round numbers. That is an augmentation of $1,666,666 in every year.

Now, compare that with the result of the three years, 1874-5, 1875-6, and 1876-7, of Mr. Mackenzie's administration, coming down to the last year to be found in the public accounts, and what do we see?

Expenditure for the year 1873-4.....	$22,336,236
THE LAST ESTIMATES WERE PREPARED BY SIR JOHN.A. By Mr. Mackenzie, 1876-7.....	$22,519,301
Augmentation in three years.....	$202,965

INSTEAD OF A YEARLY AUGMENTATION OF EXPENDITURE OF $1,666,666, WE FIND ONLY THE PALTRY ANNUAL INCREASE OF $66,328, a fleabite in such an account as that of the Dominion.

Is it possible to imagine any more bare-faced audacity than for a Ministry which yearly augmented its charges by nearly A MILLION AND THREE-QUARTERS OF DOLLARS to charge their successors with extravagance for an AUGMENTATION OF ONLY $66,000 PER ANNUM?

But this mendacious impudence—for no gentler term is adequate to the occasion—becomes more emphasized if we remember how much more money was required from the Mackenzie than from the Macdonald Ministry.

WHILE THE CHARGES OF THE GOVERNMENT WERE RAISED DURING THESE THREE YEARS, ONLY BY $202,985, THE INCREASE OF THE INTEREST OF THE DEBT ALONE WAS RAISED, IN CONSEQUENCE OF LEGACIES FROM THEIR PREDECESSORS, FROM $5,724,436 TO $6,797,227, OR NO LESS THAN $1,072,791. No one can imagine that the Mackenzie Ministry is responsible for this increase in the interest on the debt. It is the inevitable consequence of the various enormous undertakings, to which the country was committed, rightly or wrongly, by the Macdonald Administration, in such a way as to make it impossible for any Government to escape from them. The most ruinous of these enterprises indeed—the western part of the Pacific railway—Mr. Mackenzie has been able to defer, because, owing to the failure of Sir John Macdonald's arrangements with Sir H. Allen's company, and the termination of the agreement, no Parliamentary votes or other engagements existed in the autumn of 1873.

Here are a few facts, however, which demonstrate this in the most irrefragable manner. Leaving the Pacific railway for the moment out of the question, the incoming Ministry had to provide money for the subjoined undertakings. It will be seen that by far the major part of these were either pledged to the several sections of the country by the Act of Confederation, or were a necessary incident of that arrangement. The estimated total cost of each work is set against it; but, of course, all of the money was not required at once, and the amounts are given, not to fix any exact sum, but to show generally how large were the commitments. The Macdonald Government had not only pledged the country to almost all these works, but had actually begun to contract for most of them—at that stage, possible to abandon! But to these must be added the great outlays for the surveys and construction of the Pacific railway, which have, in fact, amounted to about $10,000,000 in actual outlay, some $2,000,000 having been laid out merely for the surveys rendered necessary, chiefly in the mountainous region which embraces almost all of British Columbia.

We have said that the amounts set against the several works which had been undertaken before the advent of the Mackenzie Government were not intended to represent anything with strict accuracy. But here is something very definite, which shows exactly who is responsible for this AUGMENTATION IN THE ITEM OF INTEREST, WITHOUT WHICH INSTEAD OF AN UTTERLY INSIGNIFICANT INCREASE, THERE WOULD HAVE BEEN A DECREASE OF CHARGES UNDER MR. MACKENZIE OF MORE THAN A MILLION PER ANNUM.

The increase in this item during the three first years of Mr. Mackenzie's term has been shown to be $1,072,791. That represents the augmentation of the debt, less the amounts saved by a conversion of the old debt at lower rates of interest by Mr. Cartwright. But the actual amount added to the loans in this period was $24,883,735. This money was, of course, spent in public works, over and above other expenditures for the same purposes taken out of revenue. Now FOR HOW MUCH OF THIS WILL IT BE SUPPOSED THAT THE MACDONALD GOVERNMENT HAD ACTUALLY TAKEN VOTES? FOR NO LESS THAN $24,361,920.

What Mr. Mackenzie, therefore, undertook during these years, in the way of public works, beyond what Sir John Macdonald's Government had actually asked votes for, amounted TO ONLY SOME $500,000, CREATING AN ADDITIONAL INTEREST OF LESS THAN $25,000 OUT OF $1,700,000.

In order that there may be no mistake, we give the works for which the Mackenzie Government had to provide under votes taken by Sir John, all, it will be observed, chargeable to capital.

"The evil that men do lives after them," says Shakespeare; and so it is that the charges incurred by one set of Ministers remain as a legacy, not only to plague their successors, but actually to be cast up against them as their own sins by those who created the charges.

PETERBOROUGH, AUGUST 22, 1878

THE GENERAL ELECTIONS.

Saturday's Gazette contained notice of the dissolution of Parliament, and the issue of the writs for the general election, which have been received by the Returning Officers respectively for the East and West Ridings of this county. The nominations throughout the Dominion are fixed for the 10th of September and the day of polling is fixed for the 17th of the same month, with the exception of Manitoba, where the nominations will take place on the 19th of September, and the day of polling a week later. The news of the selection of so early a date for the elections has been received by the friends of the Government with unbounded satisfaction. In this town the feeling is that they cannot come too soon, and we believe the same sentiment prevails throughout the country. Confidence in a sweeping victory at the polls was never so great in the Liberal ranks as at the present time; at the same time there is a determination to leave nothing to chance in order to secure the triumph which they feel awaits them. We urge our friends in the town, as well as those in the country to devote their spare time during this brief period to good solid work in the interest of the Government candidates. Prosecute the canvass earnestly and systematically from now till polling day, and there is no fear as to the result.

EAST PETERBOROUGH.

We are glad to learn that Mr. Buck is meeting with extraordinary encouragement in his canvass of the East Riding, and have great confidence in not only his acceptability, but also his acceptance in that electoral division as its representative in the House of Commons. With his usual energy and perseverance he has thrown himself into the contest; and the first burst of popular gladness evoked by the announcement of his candidature is fixed and increased by the whole—souled earnestness with which he accepts the honour conferred upon him. His action proves that he considers the duty to the people involved in the candidature to which he has been called; and is an earnest of faithful work and conscientious discharge of duty after his election and as a member of the House. In the preliminary work of the next few weeks prior to the polling it is necessary that Mr. Buck's personal efforts shall be more than ever supplemented by the hearty and vigorous co-operation of his friends. As he has made their nomination of him a personal responsibility laid upon him, they too, must consider his acceptance of such responsibility as laying a like one on their shoulders individually and collectively. Thus by each being faithful to the other they will be faithful to their party and their country. Indeed, such balancing of interest and effort is imperative, if only to prevent an opening for a stroke from the enemy. If the canvass be too much left to the candidate himself, the charge of merely personal ambition will be brought against him; and on the other hand were he to leave it principally to his friends, an accusation of carelessness, if not reluctance and fear would be thrown at him. For such reasons every effort of the candidate must be supplemented fully and symmetrically by corresponding efforts on the part of his political supporters, one and all. He is their man, just as they are his, and mutual trust and mutual aid must win the victory for them and him. Concerted action such as that to which we refer can only be brought about by pre-concerted plans; and these will easily spring from mutual understanding among the supporters of the candidate; he with them and they with him. To this end organization of forces and division of the work is necessary, in order that effort may be economised and made to tell wherever, and in whatever direction put forth. As there is work only the candidate can do; so there is work he cannot, and should not be expected to do. Supporters can tell him where his presence is required, and there he can place the full power of that presence if unwearied and unweakened by efforts that should have been saved him. For the next month or so he will have enough to do in attending meetings, expressing and explaining his views, and combatting adverse principles, without devoting more than a modicum of time to the canvass proper. That will devolve on the central and local Reform Committees; and it will be the easier that Mr. Buck has laid for them an excellent and intelligent foundation on which to build a castle of victory. If they do not lay the coping-stone of that building in the midst of friendly rejoicings and the discomfiture of political foes, it will be their own fault. The Reform votes to elect Mr. Beck are in the Riding; therefore only imperfection in the machinery for bringing these votes to the poll can defeat the Reform Candidate. General concentration of power, and perfection of details leading up to the day of polling is the more necessary among Mr. Buck's friends, because of the energy, not to say desperation shown by the Opposition to elect their candidate, who is also himself active and zealous. The Reformers of the Riding have the advantage, and by good work with and for Mr. Buck, they can without doubt keep it. We are confident too that they will.

A TYPICAL PAIR OF TRAMPS.

Readers of an advertisement in last week's Review would easily infer that the Tories hereabout have actually become so honestly indignant at the way in which their leaders are trying to twist them as to repudiate the party. A meeting in Bradburn's Hall to-night is heralded by the sentiment "Country before Party." It has a good sound, and repentant withal, coming from the ranks of those who sold their country only five years ago for party ends. But the sound is all the good there is in it; and that is used for deceptive party ends, and for a purpose injurious to the country. So is it ever with your loud-mouthed and publicly prominent claimant of pure disinterestedness. He assumes the very virtue he has not, to try if possible to hide the fact of its absence. The men who are to address this meeting to-night it will be plainly seen come at the invitation of Tories, and will be taken under the wing of prominent Tory politicians; while they are here; the meeting will be under the direction of Tory wire-pullers, and there will be a Tory Chairman. The probabilities are that the Hall will be packed by Tories of the noisy sort, ready, to howl down any Reform speaker. The whole thing, and the two things imported—against their own pretended reverence for home industries and the encouragement of home talent—are Tory from beginning to end, and belong body and bones to the Tory party. Yet the manipulators insult the public intelligence by pretending to consider "country before party." It is country before party in the style of the estables before the eater who seeks to gormandize thereon. The pudding must be made ready before the glutton can devour it. The foreign importations who are to declaim against foreign importations are said to be of the "National League." This name sounds ominously like one that will produce an echo of Canadian independence in the shape of separation from Britain. It will, however, be explained at the meeting that the "National League" is composed of manufacturers who ask for a protective tariff to build up their fortunes. It will not be stated, though, that these Leaguers are men who are so poor that they cannot live without government befriends them. It may even be said they are rich and influential already, and that they only seek greater riches and influence for the good they may do with enhanced fortunes. Let anyone ask the representatives of the "League" why men already rich and influential cannot use their riches and influence in the commercial extensions they talk about, without prating about a readjustment of the tariff, he may be told, perhaps, that they are anything but rich, being ruined by the tariff of the present government. If then the speakers are referred to as the agents of manufacturers who lack capital, the business capacity and perseverance to do other than fail, they will likely assume the virtuously indignant role, or grow pert and turn the argument by some personal allusion to the questioner, or by some story entirely foreign to the point. This is Mr. Wright's especial forte, as with studied wit, oft-repeated and stale, he tries to tickle the ears of the groundlings. If questioned closely for instance he will ask a counter question of how many potato-skins it will take to shingle a barn, and remark with an air of pride at his own cleverness that if the barn be empty, like the head of his questioner, it need'nt be shingled at all. Another favorite "argument" of his is telling of the saving that might have been effected by importing some particular person, instead of growing him in the country. We presume that Wright and Fraser are both cheap importations; and however cheap the country has not made much of them. They are of the genius tramp—fellows too lazy to work, and who are willing to talk for a consideration, like any cheap John on the market-place. One is an entire nondescript, who since being refused a Commissionership to the Australian Exhibition, has been "sour" on the Mackenzie Government. He will take money, and even other things from whoever is foolish enough to give it to him; and that's all. The other is a pseudo-editor, who has managed to turn every paper with which he has been connected into a hissing, and a by-word expression of nastiness. Were he a good editor, he could find enough to do in that line, without perambulating the country as the agent of a ring of hungry log-rollers, who are trying to use the Tory party for their purposes, while the Tory leaders are in the meantime bleeding the "ring" for their purposes. It is simply another case of bargain and sale, in which Sir John Macdonald and his comrades for election money furnished by foolish manufacturers, agrees to give them increased protection at the expense of other classes of citizens, and Mr. Fraser and Mr. Wright are just the men to engage themselves to both parties to this bargain, taking pay from both, if they can get it. Tramps they are, preying upon credulous victims of their pretensions, wherever such victims are to be found.

The request to Messrs. Bertram, Hilliard, Beck, and Burnham, to be present, is quite too thin, considering that the Tory candidates knew of the arrangements for the meeting before it was made public The idea of course is to pretend that Wright and Fraser are sent by the "National League," without any Tory invitation from here. It may be as well to state here that we learn that Sir John Macdonald attended a meeting of the League held some days ago at the Rossin House, Toronto; and he and the other wire-pullers, the two tramps among the rest, fully understood each other. Whether local Tories invited these fellows, or who ever they be sent by a higher Tory authority, they have to be paid; for neither of them is the man to work for nothing, pay railway fares, and talk for pleasure, chartered though they may be by their own eloquence. No matter what protectionist sends them, it is an interference with the home production of protectionist doctrine. If a Protectionist editor had to be paid to speak, why not pay him of the Review to elucidate the mysteries of a "scientific and artistic tariff?" This would have been a consistent Protectionist doctrine; (if such thing exist) and certainly this matter of importing talent, (no better than the home article either, if so good) must be discouraging to our local aspirants to fame on the back of the Protectionist donkey. This making a "slaughter market" of Peterborough for the surplus gas of a Wright and a Fraser, tends directly to crush out the infant enterprise in the same line of a Carnegie and a Smith, not to name many other incipient-mouthers of Protectionist fallacies.

The Manufacturing Madness.

The Review last week gave a long list of articles imported from the United States during the year ending June, 1877, with the values of each imports. In looking over the list we cannot see that it includes our Canadian industries or trade that is in a depressed state through such importations. True, if these importations were shut out the manufacturers then might in the first stage of protection charge more for their output, but this would come out of the buyers—a mere robbing of Peter to pay Paul. Farmers and laborers would be the victims of such a policy; for while labor cannot be protected, the tools, the clothing and the prepared food of the labourer would be taxed. The next stage would be over-competition in the protected market, a consequent cutting of prices, a lowering of wages to workmen, the use of inferior materials, and imperfection of make and finish. This would soon bring the third stage, that of bankrupt manufacturers, ruined homes, men out of work, general commercial insecurity, financial panic, starvation. From this chaos only the strongest manufacturing firms could rise, and these would certainly combine to keep prices up and wages down; and again would the manufacturers live at the expense of the rest of the community, while the country would be strewn with ruins of those hot-house enterprises in which money formerly productive was sunk and utterly wasted. This has been the experience in the United States, which country is just now in the transition state between the second and third periods into which we have divided the Protectionist era. The third will come into full growth, just so sure as the Protective tariff is kept up in that country. Already we see its advent in some branches, wherein combinations have been effected; and its approach in others in which unsuccessful attempts at combinations are being made. It is the farmers and workmen of the United States—the real labour-power of the land—that are suffering under a fiscal system sustained only in the interests of politicians and public plunderers. Over production in all commodities other than food products has brought about the closing of most of the blast furnaces, coal and iron mines, cotton and woollen mills, machine shops, and manufactories of all kinds, the lowering of wages to starvation rates, the disbanding of operatives, the ruin of the market for everything, the raiding of tramps on the agricultural districts, thefts and robberies, the rise of communism, and the utter demoralization of the whole country. And this is the foolish course Mr. Hilliard or Mr. Burnham, if sent to Parliament, would try and induce Canadians to take. While our farmers are comfortable and our labouring and artizan classes above actual want they will scarcely exchange their condition for entry upon a path that has no turning but a downward one toward degradation and want.

Imposing Higher Import Duties.

As the local Tory journal likely speaks the sentiments of Messrs. Hilliard and Burnham, we take it for granted that these gentlemen would impose higher import duties on horses, cattle, sheep, hogs, wheat, flour, corn, trees, plants and shrubs, potatoes and other vegetables, apples, pears and grapes. Such a duty would or would not raise the price of these commodities. The inference is that it would; else what use would an increased tariff be to the producers. Any selfish gain in this respect to them would only be just so much loss to the buyers, who, to make up would certainly charge more for what they sold to the farmer. Prices would have to be equalized all round, or an injustice would be done; and that should be the one thing particularly shunned by Parliament. But did the importation of certain numbers and amounts of the animals and products mentioned injure farmers? We think not; for our agriculturists exported far greater quantities than were imported, so that they could not suffer from the very limited competition from the neighbouring Republic. If the United States people because of their oppressive tariff could buy less from us, we only sold more elsewhere, or used more of our animals for packed meats, and more of our grains and fruits for house manufactures. As for the Review's comparison of 1869 with 1877, it would be strange, indeed, if our interchange of products with our neighbors did not in that time increase with increasing population alone, to say nothing of progress in breeding, fruit and grain-growing and milling. The classing of wheat and flour together is somewhat of a fraud indulged in by writers in fiscal matters. The seller of wheat and the seller of flour, so far from being similarly interested, are directly antagonistic. The miller naturally desires to get his wheat as cheaply as he can, and the farmer wants the best price possible for it. Wheat is a raw material to the miller, while to the farmer, as to others, flour is a purchasable commodity, whether he buys it for ready cash or by toll charges at the custom mill. Dear flour means loss to him, as much as dear wheat is a charge on the miller. But your thorough-paced Tory would try to reconcile the plainest possible incongruities, if he only thought it would help him to a fat contract or a government office.

When Mr. W. H. Fraser was in Brantford to tell them how much they needed protection, one of them, a manufacturer of agricultural implements, rose up and said, 'I don't want protection, I have made $100,000 without it [in ten years.' Mr. Buck, a manufacturer of stoves, also rose up and said, 'I don't need protection I have made $150,000 without it in the past twelve years.' There was only one single manufacturer among all those who went to that meeting who rose up and said he wanted protection, and he was a double dyed Tory.

EDITORIAL NOTES.

Fraser is no speaker, Wright is a talker, and nothing else.

We wonder if Mr. Hilliard and Mr. Burnham will appear on the platform this evening with Wright and Fraser? For their own sakes we hope not.

A fundamental Protectionist fallacy is that if we buy a thing we lose the full price we pay for it; but if we sell we "do" the purchaser out of the price.

There will be great enjoyment among the Tories at Bradburn's hall to-night in hearing the well-dressed tramp, Wright, pitch into the Editor of the EXAMINER. Guess we can stand it if Wright can, and if the Tories can stand him.

Mr. HILLIARD at his meeting on Monday night, in Smith, said :—"That the Government was not responsible for the hard times." He is coming to his senses at last, we knew that "that card" did not express Mr. Hilliard's "opinions." A dictator somewhere. Eh?

Again the Review is wrong. The Cobourg Woolen and Cotton Mills have not shut down, nor are they about shutting down for want of a protective tariff. Nor have the Dundas Screw Works closed because of importations, but because they have turned out produce enough to supply the market for some time to come.

Mr. HILLIARD said at Young's Point: "That there were two families in Peterborough who had lived during the past winter on turnips and canaille—was it not uncharitable of him not to mix a little flour with it? But the fun of it is, he held the Government responsible for it. Now how can he?

Opposition journals labour to keep up a declaration of loyalty, while all the time they are advocating a disloyal trade proposition in the shape of a "National Policy," and are continually praising the United States to the detriment of Canada and Great Britain, which colony and fatherland they assail with detraction. Queer loyalty!

The farmers of this country are at present giving one bushel out of every six or seven of the grain which they produce as protection to manufacturers, and it is a piece of unmitigated presumption to ask them to give still further in this direction, and that too under the plea that the farmer is to be benefitted thereby. Truly it would seem like casting bread upon very uncertain waters.

The Review re-asserts that Canada during five years has exported 1,342,258 bushels more wheat than it exported perhaps. But even so that proves nothing, unless the whole trade in agricultural products be taken into account. Would the Review, Mr. Burnham and Mr. Hilliard shut out these "268,451 bushels more than we grow" each year in order to raise the price of native wheat, of flour, and of bread? Is that the policy?

The Pacific Scandal.—Every little while the Tory organs drag themselves up to say, in a painful manner, that the Pacific Railway Scandal is a dead issue. Is it? We are greatly encouraged to find that from all quarters there is more demand for the terrible particulars of that unprecedented piece of villany than even at the time it took place. The electors of Nova Scotia are taking in the situation as regards the Tory National (Pacific Railway Charter Sale) Policy.—Halifax Recorder.

The Review raises a silly and childish cry for "a protective tariff for Canada which would secure the small revenue we require." That's just exactly the kind of a tariff we have now. If not, why not? It is protective, and it secures the revenue required, what more do the carping faultfinders want? Where would they have changes made? Where were their propositions for re-adjustment of duties during the last Parliament? What do they want anyway, other than a return to the offices they dishonoured? The country they disgraced will see that they do not go back to power.

The Tory candidate for West Peterborough is becoming rather funny in some of his sayings, in making a personal canvass: One of his latest productions is that if Sir John A. Macdonald had been in power the Toronto and Ottawa Railway would have been commenced and the working men of Peterborough would all have employment with good wages," Mr. Scott, will have to take his protege in charge. He must be becoming unruly. Will the president rise and explain? How is this thus?

Mr. HILLIARD at Young's Point meeting on Monday night, said :—"That he agreed with any man that the Pacific Scandal was an unfortunate thing, and that Sir John A. Macdonald was turned out of power righteously." Yet the same Mr. Hilliard had the boldness to stand up before the same audience and ask them to vote for him, to send him to Parliament to make this same Sir John A. Macdonald, Premier of Canada, the man who wilfully and deliberately lied and called on the deity to witness that the charges made by Hon. Mr. Huntingdon were false—What next?

Mr. Hilliard at Young's Point on Monday evening said, "that he would have much preferred that his party had chosen some other person than Sir John, to be at its head." Well, we should rather think so. And "that it was a pretty hard thing for the electors to place Sir John at the head of the Dominion again, and that there was no use denying the fact that Sir John had not done what was right." Then how in the name of common decency after these utterances can Mr. Hilliard ask the electors of the West Riding of this county to vote for him to re-place this same unrighteous being Premier of Canada.

In Galt and vicinity where Sir John personally asked each manufacturer if he would not be better of with a "little more protection," we constantly notice signs of prosperity among the mill owners. Messrs. Hardie & Gilchrist are fitting up a new mill with the latest and most improved machinery, and the Preston mills, which have been in the hands of the Bank of Commerce, are to be re-opened shortly by Mr. R. G Chapman, who purchased them for $12,000. If Tory politicians would leave well enough alone and quit crying out ruin and distress, to the great detriment of business all over the country, there would not be half the fear of hard times that at present exists in some quarters.

In the course of that famous speech in the Toronto Amphitheatre, where Sir John was compelled to descend from vague generalities, he said :

"Protect the manufacturers, and they and their employees will be able to import more silk and drink more brandy, and on these articles we will raise the revenue."

Upon this, the Pembroke Observer pithily discourses the following :

"Now, as the workingman does not indulge much in silk, he would have to pay his share of the revenue by getting drunk regularly on brandy, thus carrying out the National policy. It is a very brilliant idea, but, to say nothing of the moral aspect of the thing, we are afraid it would not work nor the workmen either if they had to drink enough brandy to pay the revenue."

Brandy is a swell drink, but some of the inhabitants might take rye whiskey, and how would Sir John A. or Mr. Hilliard make up the deficiency then? Alas! for the "Nashilly" Policy.

The Tory Protectionists have not yet been able to inform us how it comes that it can possibly be to the interests of American Farmers to uphold protection, when they are forced to sacrifice their grain in Canada at such low prices as the same Tory Protectionists say they do. Why are these Americans such fools as to undersell Canadian farmers in their own market, if, as is said, Protection benefits them? The long and short of it is, that no tariff, however framed can increase the price of farm products, of which a surplus is grown in the country; but restriction of trade by a high tariff, will, by confining the whole quantity within the home market, produce a local glut and a consequent fall in prices. Then if the producer has figured on the false expectations raised by Protectionist foolishness he finds himself far from reimbursed for his outlays, and consequently bankrupt, and an assistance toward the bankruptcy of others.

The Review doesn't think "it would pay" to seek the EXAMINER's columns for inconsistency on the tariff question. We are sure it wouldn't pay the Review; but we struck a bonanza when we looked back to former utterances of the Review in plain denial of its late declaration that neither it nor its political friends ever proposed an increase of the tariff. It does not even try to defend itself, but gently insinuates that extracts should be taken in connection with the point sought to be established. That, in an ordinary Review article, may be almost anything. We made our extracts from the Review carefully, so as not to mar their evident declaration; and we found plenty, plainly favouring an increased tariff, without trying to divide sentences or suppose any meaning other than the one expressed in the quotations made. Can the Review show where we quoted unfairly. It evidently thinks we would do what itself would be guilty of, and jumped at the conclusion of misquotation.

According to the Review, what the Tory Protectionists ask is :—

"That those articles which can be either produced or manufactured in the country should have such a duty placed upon them as will afford a reasonable guarantee to those who invest their money in their production or manufacture, that they will not be swamped by the rival producers or manufacturers of a foreign country in our own market; that such duties as will produce the largest amount of revenue from them be placed on such luxuries as cannot be produced in the country; and that only such a duty as is absolutely necessary to enable us to meet our engagements shall be imposed on raw material and necessaries of life coming into the country."

Now the present tariff contains all the essentials of the Review's desire. The manufacturer of articles that can within reason be produced in Canada now have the guarantee asked. The large duties on luxuries that cannot be produced here is not in conformity with Sir John Macdonald's plan of admitting such things free; and a duty on raw material and necessaries of life does not quite conform with protection to those who use raw material in manufactures, or with farmers to those who have only their labour and raw material to exchange for the necessaries of life.

COBOURG.

THE FIREMEN'S PIC-NIC.—Our Firemen had made arrangements on quite a large scale to carry out their demonstration, the Union Fair Grounds having been selected as the place in which it was to take place. The visiting Firemen from Peterboro' arrived in town at 12.30 and were escorted by a portion of our Brigade from the C. & P.R. depot, headed by the Fountain Hose Band, to the quarters prepared for them in several hotels where refreshments were served for them. The visitors consisted of thirty-five firemen, among whom were Geo. Mitchell, Esq., Chief Engineer; Capt. Hall, Lieut. Hamilton, Sec. McNeil and Treas. Bellington, of No. 1 Hose; Capt. Roberts and Lieut. Harrington of the Hook & Ladder Co.; and Capt. Rutherford and Lieut. McCullagh of No. 3 Company. The Peterborough Firemen's Band, consisted of seventeen musicians, which is certainly a credit to our sister town, for the quality of music which they appear to be so proficient in performing, as well as the generous manner in which they gave it to the delight of our townspeople. This fine band is under the leadership of Mr. F. W. Miller, bandmaster. J. Fraser is Secretary and E. McCabe, Treasurer of the Band.

The procession was formed at a little after two o'clock, and after passing through the principal streets of the town, proceeded to the Agricultural grounds, where preparations had been made for the Pic-Nic. These beautiful grounds are all that could be desired for pleasure and amusement, save the want of shade trees.—Sentinel.

PETERBOROUGH MARKET.

No oats offering; nothing doing in peas.

Saturday's market was a large one for the season of the year. Cheese for England.—Last week Mr. James Elliott, of Smith, shipped direct to Liverpool nearly half a million pounds of cheese made in the factories under his management.

Fire Brigade Excursion.—The Fire Brigade and Band returned home from Cobourg on Friday evening last, having spent a very pleasant time. They speak in the highest terms of the hospitality extended to them by the Cobourg people.

Cheap Excursion Tickets.—We learn as we go to press, that Mr. Thomas Menzies will issue return tickets from Peterborough to Toronto to-day and to-morrow good till the 26th of August, for $2.70, and from Peterborough to Niagara Falls and return, $5.70.

Single Fares.—The Toronto Board of Trade have obtained single fare rates for return tickets to Toronto for country merchants going there to make fall purchases. The plan commenced last Tuesday. The Midland Railway has agreed to this arrangement.

Garden Social.—One of these very popular and pleasant entertainments will be held at the residence of Dr. H. C. Burritt, Ashburnham, on Tuesday evening next, the 27th instant. Tickets 25 cents. Proceeds in aid of St. Luke's Church. The public are cordially invited.

Personal.—Mr. John Craig, of the Fergus News Record, and formerly of Peterborough, has been in town during the past week. We had the pleasure of a call from him. He informs us that the prospects in his Riding for the defeat of the Conservative candidates are good.

The Writs Received.—Sheriff Hall and Col. MacLaren, Returning Officers for the West and East Ridings respectively, received the writs for the Dominion election, on Monday morning last. As our readers are no doubt aware, the nomination is fixed for the 10th and the polling for the 17th of September.

Band Entertainment.—The concert which was to have taken place this week in the Drill Shed, has been postponed till Friday, 30th of August, when one of the most attractive programmes will be presented. As this is an object which all our citizens should join, namely, the paying for the Band's new uniform—we bespeak for them another full house.

The Churches.—Rev. Mr. Torrance having returned home last week from his visit to the seaside, occupied his own pulpit last Sunday morning and evening. The Rev. J. J. Roy, B. A., Church of England Missionary to the French Canadians in the Province of Quebec, preached last Sunday morning in St. John's Church, and in the evening in St. Luke's Church.

Big Day at Idyl-Wild.—On Tuesday last Idyl-Wild was visited by 2500 excursionists, from Cobourg, Peterborough, Norwood and Hastings. The Congregational Bands of Cobourg, the Presbyterian Sunday Schools of Harwood, and Hastings, and the members and friends of Peterborough Lodge of Good Templars, each having excursions to this favorite pic-nic resort on that day.

Threshing.—Farmers are now busily engaged in threshing out their crops of barley to make room for other grain. As a consequence accidents resulting in most cases through carelessness in going about or managing these machines are frequently reported. Too much care cannot be exercised by those who are engaged in this work, as the slightest inattention sometimes results in very serious consequences.

O'Donovan Rossa.—The New York Times says:—"O'Donovan Rossa, the Fenian agitator is a patient at St. Peter's Hospital, Brooklyn. He is insensible from paralysis of the lung, occasioned by a fall received while jumping from a railway train near Toronto some months ago to escape an attack by the Young Britons. Rossa was on his way to deliver a lecture in Toronto, when he learned a few miles outside of the city of the contemplated attack."

Game Law.—For the benefit of the readers of the Cobourg Sentinel in general, and the Editor in particular, the following is copied from the Revised Game Act of 1878:

"Woodcock, known as marsh snipe, grey duck, black duck, wood or summer duck, and teal, shall not be hunted, taken or killed between the 1st of January and 1st September. Other ducks shall not be hunted, taken, or killed between 1st of May and 1st September.

Will the Sentinel man please correct next issue.

Vote of Thanks.—At the last regular meeting of the Peterborough Fire Brigade Band it was moved by Mr. A. W. Haynes, seconded by Mr. E. McCabe, "That the thanks of the Band be and are hereby, tendered to Mr. H. C. Burritt, Ashburnham, in showing his trick horse "Little Tommy" on the evening of Friday, the 9th instant, adding the Band greatly in their entertainment; and that the thanks of the Band are also tendered to the other gentlemen who took part in the entertainment.—Carried.

Court Presentation.—The following card to the Mail is a sign of the times:—"Court Presentation to her Royal Highness the Princess Louise will be taught by Prof. Fanning on his return, September 1st, also the system of Calisthenics taught to the Royal Family. (No clubs or gymnastics.) Every motion with a view to elegance. Twenty of the very first teachers of London have taken lessons in the Rockaway, and are delighted with it. The elaborate courtesy with which Prof. Fanning has been treated in all quarters is beyond description."

Young Canadian's Pic-Nic.—We have been requested to announce that the "Young Canadians" will hold their annual pic-nic and ... sion on Thursday, 29th inst., ... Gilchrist's Bay to Mud Lake. The success which has attended former pic-nics under the patronage of the members of this Lodge, and the pleasure and enjoyment attendant thereat, have caused this pic-nic now to be looked forward to with interest by a large portion of the community, and we have no doubt but that it will be liberally patronized. Full particulars in posters to be issued in a few days.

A Good Example.—A well-to-do and wealthy farmer of Oxford County thrashed his wheat as soon as he had drawn it in, immediately took it to the market and got the cash for it; he next went through the town of Woodstock and paid every bill he owed. He says he is now free of debt and feels easy, as the hardest man, with whom he had been compelled to run accounts during the "hard times," have their own. If every man in the country would go and do likewise we would hear less grumbling in the towns and an impetus would be given to trade such as it has not received for years. Even printers would make money if every one would pay up.

Obituary.—We regret to learn that Mr. Samuel J. Duff, son of the late Mr. Duff, of Smith, died on Sunday morning at the age of 32 years. Mr. Duff had just completed his university course, having graduated in May last, at the University of Toronto. He was a close student for several years, having learnt during the time of his preparation for matriculation, and as a teacher was highly esteemed. His decease may afford a useful lesson to others not to sacrifice health to a too strong love of study, but rather to use all diligence to preserve health, while laboring to attain an honorable literary position. His relatives have our warmest sympathies in their sad bereavement.

Bengough's "Political points and pencillings" has been received and will be quite an acquisition to the political literature of the present contest. It consists of selections from various addresses delivered by Hon. Mr. Mackenzie and profusely illustrated with neat and telling sketches by Bengough, Canada's own cartoonist, and will not be without effect, as they are true to the life. The idea of illustrating the strong points against the Opposition is a novel one, at once attractive and effective, and the wide distribution of this brochure is calculated to do good service to the Liberal cause. Copies of the pamphlet may be obtained from George Bengough, Box 2022, Toronto, at the rate of $2 per hundred.

Harper's Magazine.—Harper's Magazine for September, with the two serial stories by Miss. Black and Hardy; three short stories by Mrs. E. W. Latimer, Rebecca Harding Davis, and Rose Terry Cooke; a dramatic sketch by T. B. Aldrich, with three admirable illustrations by Abbey; a humorous sketch by Ca'ein D. Deshler, entitled "Ah'm: A Glimpse of Modern Dixie," illustrated by Fyte; an illustrated poem of pathetic interest, "The Foreclosure of the Mortgage," by Mrs. E. T. Corbett; other poems by Ruth Dana and Harriet Preston Spofford; several illustrated articles, covering a variety of subjects; timely articles of great and immediate interest to all readers, and the five admirably sustained editorial departments, make it an exceedingly rich and entertaining number.

Six Months in Gaol.—We clip the following from the Port Hope Times of the 21st. The party referred to is well known in this town.

"A scamp by the name of Clemens Waterford, a piano-tuner, who has been around here off and on for many times, was brought before the Police Magistrate on Thursday last for drunk and disorderly conduct, and, instead of to six months imprisonment on one of more serious charge against him, which may yet be preferred, that of enticing little girls into a buggy and driving, and accompanying to abuse them. On two occasions the same day, once in the afternoon, and once in the evening, two little girls were taken from him, one about six, and the other about seven years of age, whose ories had brought assistance at deliverance. If he had been caught by the enraged parents and their friends on Wednesday night, we fear he would have been treated to a suit made by other hands than a tailor's, if he suffered nothing more serious. If he gets out after his six months imprisonment, he had better give Port Hope a wide berth.

Rumors for the Present Time.—Oh, for a lodge in a garden of cucumbers! Oh, for an iceberg or two at control! Oh, for a vale which at midday the sun cannot burn! Oh, for a pleasure trip up to the pole! Oh, for a little one-story thermometer, with nothing but mercex all ranged in a row; Oh, for a big double barrelled impression, to immerse this moisture that rolls from my brow! Oh, that this cold world were twenty times colder, (that's irony, red hot, it seemeth to me). Oh, for a turn of its dreaded cold shoulder. Oh, what a comfort an ague would be! Oh, for a grotto in wintry heaven. Scooped in the rock under eternal rest. Oh, for a winter of discontent even. Oh, for wet blankets judiciously cast! Oh, for a soda-fount spouting up boldly from every hot lamp-post against the hot sky; Oh, for a proud maiden to look at me coldly, freezing my soul with a glance of her eye.

The Height of Impudence is reached by the Lakefield News in charging the Post with disloyalty in reprinting from what is styled "that notorious Yankee annexationist journal" the New York Nation, an article on "Beaconsfield's Brag and Blundering" while the News itself is a Yankee "patent outside," printed in the States and sent over to flood the county of Peterborough as "slaughter prices." The News of course, will howl about protecting "our mineral industries" and demand "Protection" for the Canadian artizan regardless of the fact that itself is a Yankee production, underselling the printers of Peterborough, and on its own arguments every person who takes it is unpatriotic and unwise. We need say nothing about the Nation; but we may state that some years ago Sir John Macdonald in his place in the Commons spoke in very high terms of its ability and fairness.—Lindsay Post.

Counterfeit.—We are in receipt of the current number of Peterson's Counterfeit Detector a publication that is taken, preserved, and consulted by bankers, brokers, manufacturers, merchants, and storekeepers. The Detector is, as is well known, a safeguard against loss from counterfeit money, of which there are large quantities now in circulation. All bogus bills and coins are immediately described in the Detector as soon as they make their appearance. In its pages are also given valuable news concerning money, stocks, bonds, national and State banks, and other information of great value to business men, &c., and is, in short, a very valuable publication. The rate of subscription for the monthly issue is only $1.50 a year; semi-monthly, $3.00 a year. Subscriptions may commence with any month, and are payable in advance. Address all communications to the publishers, T. B. Peterson & Brothers, No. 306 Chestnut street, Philadelphia, Pa., for specimen copy and advertising rates.

Ontario Business College.—We publish to-day an advertisement from S. G. Beatty & Co., proprietors of the Ontario Business College, Belleville, Ont., which is acknowledged to be the most thorough Business College in Canada, as well as the most largely patronized, students being in attendance from all but the most distant Provinces of the Dominion, as well as from the United States. All young men should have a knowledge of the subjects which it teaches—book-keeping, penmanship, arithmetic, business correspondence, grammar and spelling, banking, how to deal with notes, drafts, and all kinds of business papers. In short the whole ground of fitting young men to successfully conduct business for themselves or others. Farmers, mechanics, and professional men need such knowledge as well as the business man; and to all classes we have pleasure in recommending the Ontario Business College, which during the ten years of its existance has trained hundreds of young men for business, who are now, through the possession of the knowledge therein acquired, filling good positions in the country. The College circular giving full information will be sent free on application. See the advertisement in another column.

Loretto Academy, Lindsay.—It will be observed that the next term of this institution commences on 2nd September next. It will reopen, we believe, with an increased attendance, and with all parties encouraged by the successful past to go in cheerfully and heartily with their work. Arrangements are now in progress that will add greatly to the health, and to the training facilities enjoyed by the pupils, and to the attractiveness of the Academy. The new feature comprises the changing of Hutton's Grove from an ordinary farm bush into a fine park, with broad avenues for riding and driving, arbours and cosy seats for rest and recreation, croquet grounds and broad green swards for exercise and amusement. The Grove comprises about twenty-five acres of fine maple and beech, with a considerable number of evergreens, affording shade everywhere and natural arbours wherever wanted. There are a number of splendid beeches and maples, and two or three giant elms. A winding carriage-drive is being made near the outer part of the Grove, and is almost entirely in the shade. It is proposed to have the young ladies go to the Grove twice a week, and, while a couple are detailed to cook dinner, the receiving useful instruction in that necessary acquirement, the others may peruse their studies, or walk or play, or take a gallop around the park, for which purpose there will be horses. A neat frame kitchen has been built in the ground, and is supplied with all the necessary utensils. The house is a capital one, and will be heartily seconded, we hope by all of the young ladies themselves. The work of clearing out the forest has been considerable, ... two or three weeks, it will take another month before it will be completed. We may add that the cheapness of the honour (under $100 a year) has been by Father Stafford himself, who evidently finds as much enjoyment in the exercise as Mr. Gladstone does. We should in fact be almost inclined to pit him against the "People's William," though in our opinion Father Stafford chops a cut a little too ...—Post.

Young Men's Reform Association.

Inaugural Meeting—Election of Officers

We have much pleasure in announcing that the advice formerly given through the columns of the EXAMINER in regard to the organization of a Young Men's Reform Association in this town, has been tangibly acted upon, and that on Tuesday evening last the first meeting of the society was held in their new rooms over Messrs. Stone & Bailey's fruit store. The greatest enthusiasm was manifested by those present and during the evening one hundred and nine names were enrolled. Owing to the delay in fitting up the rooms which are in every way desirable and convenient, the organization was deferred till this week, but the energy displayed at the inaugural meeting bids fair for the future success of the Association.

After addresses by Mr. Ulbyte, President of the West Riding Reform Association, and Mr. J. Bertram, the following officers were elected for the ensuing year:

President.—R. E. Wood.
1st Vice President.—W. W. Johnston.
2nd Vice President.—R. Elder.
Recording Secretary.—Dr. R. W. Ball.
Corresponding Secretary.—J. C. Loy.
Treasurer.—C. Leonard.

1st Ward Committee.—R. D. Hamilton, T. Corkery, G. B. Sproule, J. Swanston, J. Beamish, H. Tierney.

2nd Ward Committee.—Maxwell Hall, J. Thomson, J. Little, T. Sullivan, T. W. Robinson, and A. Mathes.

3rd Ward Committee.—W. J. Carter, John King, H. Cummings, R. Chown, A. Wilson, T. Rutherford.

4th Ward Committee.—D. Carlisle, R. Bingham, J. Hartley, J. Lee, W. H. Anthony, and H. Smith.

It is a healthy sign to see so many of our young men coming boldly forward to the front in advocacy of good, wise and liberal government, and the influences which they will thus bring to bear on the issue of the present contest will be such as to place Mr. Bertram again as representative of the West Riding—a position which he has filled honorably to himself and creditably to his constituency during the past five years.

As the time for canvassing and work is short, we hope that not alone our young men, but the elderly ones will enter into the contest heartily and without delay, and we feel confident they will be able to give a good account of themselves on the 17th.

THE CONTEST.

Mr. Hilliard's Meeting at Young's Point.

The first meeting of the campaign was held on Monday night at Young's Point. It was Mr. Hilliard's meeting. He was accompanied by Mr. W. H. Scott, under whose care he is placed. Mr. J. Kearney was called to the chair. Mr. Hilliard opened the meeting with an address of about thirty minutes. He commenced by an apology for being a candidate in support of Sir John A. Macdonald, whose acts he admitted, he as an honest man could not approve—particularly his Pacific Scandal matter, which he denounced as very wrong. Sir John, he said, had stained grievously in that matter, and the conduct of the people in ejecting him from his position as premier was a "righteous judgment." Yet, while he condemned Sir John, he was a supporter of his, because the country was not prosperous—Peterborough was not in as prosperous a condition as it might be. He knew of his own knowledge of some persons who last winter lived on cannalile and turnips, he looked around him and he could not discover any cause for these things but the fiscal policy of the government. He thought the tariff should be changed so as to protect our manufactures. He admitted that lumber did not need any protection, and he knew Mr. Stinson, the lumberman needed no protection, but there were industries that did need it. Canada was not today so prosperous as the Western States, though it was as prosperous as the Eastern States, where a great many men employed in the factories were out of work.

The manufacturing energy of the world made too many goods, so that we were flooded, and our people bought too much and thus were made poor.

Then another evil was that we had no stable market for wheat or coarse grains, because the American grain and corn came into this country and caused the price to fluctuate. As an agricultural people, all we wanted was a little protection. We should have just enough duty to give us protection. He did not charge the government with the hard times; that would be foolish. But when Sir John was in office times were good, and now they are not. During the last six years lumbermen have not got back their own money. Since the reciprocity treaty was abrogated, I have myself paid $50.00 in duty on my lumber, though it was no hardship once having reciprocity during the last five years. We need protection, see how many men have left this country and gone to the States.

A voice,—"yes, and they were glad to come back."

Let us have Canada for the Canadians. Let us do our own spinning. He knew Sir John's conduct was indefensible, and he was rightly turned out, but the present government is not honest. It bribed S. C. Wood, Turcotte, and R. W. Scott, and I cannot support it; though I would like it if some other man was at the head for the Conservative party. At this Mr. Scott grew restless and Mr. Hilliard sat down.

Mr. Bertram occupied an hour in an able defence of the Administration, since which Mr. Scott replied in his usual manner. There was a lack of electricity in his remarks, which was peculiarly noticed. His attempt to create an effect by misreading from newspaper articles—the deception being apparent was exceedingly damaging to him.

The meeting broke up about eleven, with cheers for the Queen.

The Dunkin By-law and its Results.

To the Editor of the Examiner:

DEAR SIR,—Mr. E. King Dodds has visited Peterborough in the interest of the Licensed Victuallers. He has spoken at their expense and in their behalf, and through your kindness I will give your readers the other side of the picture, and the less selfish side of it. Mr. E. King Dodds begins by asserting "that here as in other places," where the law is in force "the operation of the law has had the effect of greatly increasing the evil of excessive drinking," and hence, I suppose, his appearance in Peterborough to check the evil by getting the By-law repealed.

Now, Sir, as Mr. Dodds has not been in this town since the Dunkin Campaign, till his arrival last week, he must have his information from those with whom he associated here during his stay, and as he was contiguously in the society of whiskey sellers, I will let your readers draw their own conclusion as to the force of his unsupported assertion. I may ask, however, the evil of excessive drinking in on the increase, why do the tavern keepers bring Mr. Dodds here to destroy their business by repealing the law? It is a well known fact sir, that the tavern trade is ruined; that the treating system has received a death blow; that in this town there is not one-tenth part of the "drinking" done now that was formerly, and what is done, is done in secret, by stealth, and of liquors under assumed names. The truth is, there is no open drinking, and on "whiskey" trials the tavern keepers do willingly swear that they are not selling intoxicating liquors. Now, with these plain facts before us how could E. King Dodds assert that the evil is on the increase? I have asked the opinion of about one hundred persons in our town or visiting it as to the use of intoxicating liquors in Peterborough, and the almost unanimous answer has been: "Not one-tenth of what I have been hereto[fore]." His next assertion, viz., "that the consumption of whisky had increased while that of beer had diminished," does not contain a single word of truth in it. And I am prepared to prove to the satisfaction of E. K. Dodds or any one else, that the facts are the other way, taking the county and town together. I want to the trouble last week to get a statement of all parcels or quantities of liquors that entered this town during the first 7½ months of 1877 and of the corresponding 7½ months of 1878, with the following results:

7½ months of 1877, imports.....$1,776 gallons
7½ months of 1878, imports.....14,170 gallons

That is 7,620 gallons more in 1877 than in the same period of 1878. That surely is no increase. If any one doubts these figures I will give him the names of each importer, and the figures are from the most reliable sources.

The By-law has lessened the use of strong drink in this town to one-tenth of what it formerly was, or any one passing the tavern every day testify, and indeed to be charged for the most sanguine hopes of temperance people.

E. King Dodds further asserted that the re-enactment the Police Court about indicated drunkenness under the Dunkin By-law. This I also declare not correct, as I have been in the police court, and I think, in fact I know, I was present when every case was called, and there were only two cases of drunkenness, however, we are going to be more liberal, and say there were three, and these three were not convicted under the Dunkin By-law, but under the old law—cases of persons who were in the habit of getting drunk, and who attended the police court regularly every week.

The Police Court records do not account for one-tenth of the cases of drunkenness in any town. [illegible] Police Court, yearly, and yet there do not appear more than once or twice in court in a year. Hence the statement of persons to [illegible] that if we could not get rid [illegible] of Dunkin WE WOULD HAVE [illegible] BY TAXES."

CANADA FOR THE CANADIANS.

At Hagersville, October 18, 1877, Sir John A. Macdonald said:

"The thing, burning question of the day was that of protection; whether we should be lowers of wood and drawers of water for the Americans, or whether we should keep Canada for the Canadians. He went in for Canada for the Canadians."

PROTECTION FOR EVERY INTEREST.

At Hamilton, October 11, 1877, Sir John A. Macdonald said:

"We will have a sufficient protection for every interest. We will give a sufficient protection for every interest, and we will be governed by evidence which we will carefully collect and gather regarding every manufacture and every trade. WE WILL MAKE EVERY MANUFACTURE, EVERY INDUSTRY, PRODUCE THE EVIDENCE OF WHAT IS NECESSARY FOR THE PURPOSE OF PROTECTING THEM IN THEIR PRESENT STRUGGLE INTO MATURITY; AND, GENTLEMEN, THAT PROTECTION WILL BE GIVEN THEM."

RAUCH FOR THE GOOSE, RAUCH FOR THE GANDER.

In his tariff speech last session in the House of Commons, Sir John A. Macdonald said:

"If we have a protective system in this country * * we could, by giving our manufacturers a reasonable hold on our home trade, attain a high position among the nations. * * Our people believe what is sauce for the goose is sauce for the gander, and that you cannot have a reciprocity in trade, without a reciprocity in tariffs.

"There is no wrong in a reciprocity of tariff if it is in our interest, but I am confident that one great object in having something like a retaliatory policy will be that if you are to have reciprocity in trade, you will only get it in that way. You have tried the policy of conciliation and humiliation long enough."

FOLLOW THE AMERICAN EXAMPLE.

At Brantford, May 24, 1878, Sir John A. Macdonald said:

"The battle of the national policy must be fought out at next elections. If they did not then succeed in securing for it a triumph, it would then be too late. Five years hence every manufactory would be closed, and the grass would grow in the streets of the city. He asked them to elect men WHO WOULD SUPPORT THE NATIONAL POLICY AND A RECIPROCITY OF TARIFFS. It was said that imitation was the sincerest kind of flattery, and their neighbors on the other side of the line could not be offended at what they followed the American example of protection as the wisest policy."

THE NATIONAL POLICY.

At Yorkville, May 28, 1878, Sir John A. Macdonald said:

"What he contended for was a reciprocity of trade, OR A RECIPROCITY OF TARIFFS, BETWEEN CANADA AND AMERICA. He asked the support of the people of Canada for the National Policy, which his party were prepared to carry out."

PAUL TO BE BORNED TO PAY PETER.

At Parkhill recently, Sir John A. Macdonald said:

"In 1870 the manufacturers did not want to support protection to the farmers because they said it would raise the price of the agricultural products they got from the United States and injure the manufacturing business. BUT THEY WERE TOLD THAT THEY DID NOT SUPPOSE THE FARMERS WERE GOING TO TAX THEMSELVES TO MAKE THE MANUFACTURERS RICH IF THE MANUFACTURERS DID NOT DO SOMETHING FOR THEM. And the farmers were now advised, if you want to get protection for your products you must get the manufacturers, the artizans, and the laborers to agree on one policy for the mutual benefit of all."

A NEW TARIFF PROMISED THE MANUFACTURERS.

At the same meeting Sir John A. Macdonald said:

"If the Conservatives gained a majority there would be a return of confidence at once, AND EVEN BEFORE A NEW TARIFF COULD BE INTRODUCED THE MANUFACTURERS WOULD HAVE SUCH HOPES FOR THE FUTURE THAT THEY WOULD BE EMPLOYING MORE MEN, CIRCULATING MONEY, AND INCREASING THEIR BUSINESS, all of which would reflect beneficially on the farming community * * *

The moment a policy THE EFFECT OF WHICH WAS TO KEEP CANADIAN MARKETS FOR CANADIANS, was introduced, confidence, prosperity would return—(applause)—and the country would be in a state similar to that indicated in the protection he (Sir John) had read from the speech delivered by him in 1872."

Now, there is no mistaking these utterances of Sir John. He who runs may read. If ever a man was pledged, most solemnly, by his word of honor as a public man, to increased duties upon manufactured and agricultural products, Sir John Macdonald is here pledged. He has promised a "substantial tariff," and a "reciprocity of tariffs;" he has asserted distinctly that more taxes were to be imposed; that the American policy was to be adopted, and he has in two of the speeches from which we have given quotations, acknowledged the effect of that policy on the consumer. He tells the manufacturers that they must not "expect the farmers to tax themselves, (which is what protection means) to make the manufacturers rich, if the manufacturers did not do something for them,"—i.e., tax themselves for the benefit of the farmers in a similar way. Again he tells the farmers they "must not grumble if they have to pay a few cents more" as a consequence of the "protection" promised to manufacturers; and he distinctly stated at Cobourg that "PEOPLE WOULD PAY ADDITIONAL PRICES FOR THEIR MANUFACTURED GOODS. Sir John has, moreover, voted explicitly for a tax of 75 cents per ton on coal imported into Ontario, and he voted, too, during last session for a duty on tobacco, for one on coarse grains, and for one also on wheat and flour. To these votes he stands pledged, and his promise of increased protection to the manufacturer could not, therefore, be obtained in any readjustment of the tariff, taking duties off any of these interests, in order to increase the tariff on manufactures.

And yet in the face of all these pledges, these solemn promises to the manufacturers and the agriculturists of Ontario and Quebec, Sir John telegraphs to the people of St. John, where he knows his "protection" or "taxation" policy is unpopular: "I NEVER PROPOSED AN INCREASE, BUT ONLY A READJUSTMENT, OF TARIFF!" Could hypocrisy and deceit be any more unblushingly attempted to be practised upon an intelligent people? Or could such hypocrisy be more effectually exposed than by this telegram, which his political interests—far superior in his estimation to the welfare, interest, or honor of the country—caused him to send to the people of the Maritime Provinces? Can any one, after this, believe for a moment, that Sir John was sincere in promising to "make the manufacturers rich," as he said at Parkhill, by increased duties? or if they do, can they trust his pledges in the face of his solemn avowal as leader of his party to the people of the Maritime Provinces, that he "NEVER PROPOSED AN INCREASE OF TARIFF?" The fact is, like the "national policy" of 1871, the "national policy" of 1878 is a humbug and a sham, a delusion and a snare, to which, happily, Sir John Macdonald himself, by his telegram to the people of St. John, has been compelled to open the eyes of his people. From this time out he may talk Protection at Hamilton and Free Trade at St. John, to the empty air. The deceit cannot be successfully practised upon an intelligent people thoroughly cognisant of his duplicity and deceit.

I Do Not Like to Hear Him Pray.

I do not like to hear him pray
Who leans at twenty-five per cent.
For then I think the landlord may
Be pressed to pay for food and rent:
And in the book we all should read
Which says the lender should be blamed,
As sure as I have eyes to read,
It does not say take interest.

I do not like to hear him pray.
On bended knee about an hour,
For grace to speed aright the day,
Who knows his neighbor has no flour.
I'd rather see him go to mill
And buy the luckless brother bread,
And see the children eat their fill,
And laugh beneath their shed.

I do not like to hear him pray.
"Let blessings on the widow be,"
Who never seeks her home to say,
"If want o'ertakes you, come to me."
I hate the prayer, so loud-en long,
That's uttered for the orphan's wail
By him who sees him crushed by wrong,
And does not for his sufferings feel.

I do not like to hear her pray,
With jeweled ear and silken dress,
Whose washerwoman toils all day,
And then is asked to work for less.
Such pious sheerers I despise.
With folded hands and face demure,
They lift to heaven their angel eyes,
And steal the earnings of the poor.

I do not like such soulless prayers:
If wrong, I hope to be forgiven,
No angel's wings them upward bears;
They're lost a million miles from heaven.
I cannot hear long prayers to hear,
And studied from the lips depart.
Our Father lends a willing ear;
Let words be few; He hears the heart.

The Canada Pacific Railway.

A Succinct History of the Vast Undertaking.

(From Mr. D. Glass' Great Speech in London.)

In my intercourse with men it is frequently said: If Sir John had remained in power the Pacific railway would have been built, labor abundant and money plenty. Let us consider whether this proposition is true or untrue. Governments, like individuals, can only accomplish purposes within their means, and according to popular tradition it is the especial province of the Conservatives to see that those in power do not embark in wild speculations, nor, indeed, in any way compromise the country's honor, the country's credit. In '73 a bill was passed enabling Sir John Macdonald's Government to grant a charter to a company thereafter to be formed for building the Pacific railway. The Act provided that the Government might give a very large bonus with the charter for the construction of the road. It provided that as high as $30,000,000 in money and 50,000,000 acres of land might be given. Therefore, it was supposed that whoever would get this charter from Sir John would thereby secure a colossal fortune. Sir Hugh Allan was the man who did secure the charter. It gave to him $30,000,000 in money and 50,000,000 acres of land. And when the road should be finished that he should be the absolute owner of it. I will not detain you, dwelling upon the means by which the charter was obtained. Sir Hugh, upon oath before the Royal commission, stated that it cost him $360,000, very much of it paid into the hands of Ministers, but none of it being placed to the public credit. For this Sir John was put out of office, some 30 of his own followers, in a body, going against him—I being one of them. For this act my friends flew from me as if I had committed some crime; I found myself surrounded by a few patriotic men who had been former supporters, and by the whole body of my former opponents. Was I to turn my back on them, or was I to thank them for their confidence and friendship? I did thank them, and do now, for supporting me in the cause of right and bear of trial—but I must not refer to personal matters, and will continue my remarks on the railway question. The land named in the charter was to be in alternate blocks, 20 miles deep, along the whole 3,000 miles of the railway, the most fertile and accessible land in the Dominion. In February, 1873, Sir Hugh, with charter in pocket, went to England to float a company with capital sufficient to build the railway. He returned to this country in June of the same year, having failed in the enterprise, and at once surrendered the charter back to the Government. After that, viz., on the 5th of November, Sir John was defeated, so that the charter project had failed long before the late Government went out of power; therefore if the road would have been built by him it must have been by some other means than that of Sir Hugh Allan. Sir John was over about 800 miles long. We are now the owners of it. Yes, we are; but it does not earn enough to pay working expense. To keep it open and running costs us $500,000 a year over all earnings. Now, if it took six years to build 800 miles of intercolonial here at home, close to the seaboard, in good times, when the exchequer was flowing over with money, how many years would it take to build 3,000 miles of railway away up in the north, over 2,000 miles from the seaboard, in a period of acknowledged commercial depression in Canada, and indeed all over the world? In answering this you will at once see how reckless the statement is that if the Government had not been put out they would have had the road built in the last four years (Applause.) If a young man starting out in life goes in debt for fine clothes, jewellery and fast living, ten to one he will always remain in debt and be harassed with duns and dishonor. But if he lives a frugal, honest sober life, he will find his lines cast in pleasant places and around his pathway the beaming sunshine of success and the cheering voices of numerous friends. Debt is an awful load, a most dreary companion, seeming even to shrink our manhood, making us less than ourselves, less than nature intended. It is unnatural, and no man should struggle under the load of it. If he has property he should sell it and free himself. If he has none, he should settle with his creditors and free himself, so that his manly faculties may not be cursed by it. The man who has one hundred dollars more than he requires has a most stable prop to lean upon. It represents freedom from debt and the power to pay cash for all he wants; so that the hoarded capital of the workingman is cumulative at every turn. To him it soon becomes wealth. Wealth is not capital. Wealth is a settled permanent source of revenue, whereas capital is a motive power brought to bear for the accomplishment of certain fixed purposes, and there must be sufficient power to effect the purpose or the force employed is lost. If it requires one thousand dollars to sink an oil well, and you expend nine hundred dollars on it and cannot get the other hundred, the motive power is not sufficient, and the nine hundred are lost. Now, like the young man to whom I have referred,

SIX YEARS BUILDING THE INTERCOLONIAL RAILWAY,

THIS IS A YOUNG COUNTRY, and upon the treatment of it depends its future greatness. It is only able to bear a reasonable amount of burden. With reason and perseverance to guide us we must adopt the motto of hastening slowly, and not wading into such deep water as to overwhelm us. In '73, Sir Hugh failed in his railway project; that was the beginning of the end; that was the period of the American South Sea bubble. The Central Pacific railroad had been for some years in operation, and was a splendid achievement for the American people; but it was only a drop in the great sea of enterprise which in '73 and '73 animated the whole nation. In those years many thousands of miles of railway, north, south, east and west, swallowed up millions of capital. Amongst others they were building the Northern Pacific railway from Duluth, on Lake Superior, to the Pacific Ocean. The Government of the United States gave to this road a bonus of 50 million acres of land (but no money). At the head of that enterprise were some of the finest financiers in the world, with reserve of large capitalists. About 400 miles of the road were built when the whole company failed. Jay Cooke, at its head, and all concerned, were totally ruined. The road was placed in the hands of trustees, who have operated the finished portion up to the present time. Now, if the Americans, with forty millions of people, were unable to build this road a little over 2,000 miles long, 500 miles south of our railway, much more easy of access and through a country comparatively well settled, could we with 4,000,000 accomplish a much more gigantic work through a country with no settlers at all? If it costs us $500,000 per annum to keep the intercolonial railway running through a fairly populous country, what would it cost to keep a road running four times as long through an uninhabited country? It would cost at least three million dollars per annum for the next 20 years. If the $30,000,000 had been advanced to Sir Hugh it would only have been the launching of capital, which would have to be supplemented by sufficient motive force to complete the operation, or the 30 millions would have been lost. This would have entailed the expenditure of another hundred millions, which would mean utter ruin or prompt repudiation to this country. (Hear, hear.) Therefore every sensible man will agree that there is no ground for stating that if Sir John had been in power the railway would have been built, with labor abundant and money plenty. At a Buffalo Sunday school the boys were told to be very good and they would be rewarded by the good Master above, as He could do everything, when a boy jumped up and said, "No, He can't; He can't make a two-year old skunk in a minute." (Laughter.) But the supporters of Sir John pretend to think that he can do this or any other imaginable thing. If Sir John were to tell you that an elephant was flying in the air, that he saw the sun break forth at midnight, or that he could run a boat up Niagara Falls, some people would pretend to believe him. But what has been done

BY THE HON. ALEXANDER MACKENZIE?

He has acted the part of a wise steward, not grasping selfishly at the support of members by gratifying their local prejudices at the sacrifice of the public interests; but rather has been willing to lose their support than to retain it at the expense of the general good. (Cheers.) In British Columbia, if he had fixed the western terminus of the Pacific railway at Bute Inlet the road would have been much longer and would have cost many millions of dollars more. Yet if he had fixed it there he would have secured the support of the whole British Columbia members. Mr. Mackenzie resisted their influence and placed the terminus at Burrard Inlet, thereby retaining only the support of two members from that Province. (Cheers.) So again in Manitoba, he straightened up the line between Rat Portage and Fort Pelly, leaving the city of Winnipeg twenty-three miles to the south. This act caused a saving of hundreds of thousands of dollars and shortened the main line over twenty miles, but procured him the loss of all his support from that Province except, I think, one member. (Cheers.) Referring to the extent of the work. Even to go ten miles through an unknown forest, or partly forest country, is quite an undertaking, but when you think of 3,000 miles you see what a stupendous task it is. Well, Mr. Mackenzie has managed to judiciously locate the whole line and has got well up to 400 miles of it under contract. Hundreds of men are now engaged upon the line between the head of Lake Superior and the Red River of the north, a distance of something over four hundred miles. When this is finished the whole country will be opened. This piece of road forms the key to the North-west, and when built the great lone land will be unlocked. Where the line strikes Red River, at Selkirk, the banks are high, with the river broad and deep enough to float vessels of almost any size. It falls with a gentle, even current into Lake Winnipeg, seven miles to the north. This together with the great Saskatchewan and other rivers, will give water communication away up to the base of the Rocky Mountains, through an extent of country sufficient to form twenty new provinces like the present Province of Manitoba with a fertile, rich soil, well watered, having sufficient timber for fencing, and millions of acres of coal for fuel cropping up to the surface of the earth. A climate so mild that cattle can live and thrive outside during the winter season. To that extensive country the building of this road will give access through our own water to our own ships, over our own lands, upon our own railways. The road is in a distant part, difficult of access and expensive to construct, but when complete the cost will be less than $24,000 per mile, whereas the building of the intercolonial cost upwards of $48,000 per mile. When the road is built it will belong to the Canadians, and we will have the whole of these magnificent lands to offer free to the settlers, instead of their being locked up and controlled by an external railway corporation.—Advertiser report.

NO INCREASE, BUT ONLY A READJUSTMENT.

(From the St. Thomas Journal.)

The Chieftain denies that he has ever proposed an increase of the tariff, "but only a readjustment." In elaborating his scheme at Toronto the other evening he proposed to place tea, coffee, sugar, tobacco, silk and satin on the free list, and transfer the tariff now collected on these articles to woollen and cotton goods and manufactures of wood, leather and iron. The customs duties on the former class of goods for the financial year 1876-7 amounted to $3,067,172.24, and on the latter to $3,858,780.56. But in addition to the customs duties on tobacco imported from the United States and elsewhere, there was collected in the same year upon tobacco manufactured in the Dominion an excise duty of $1,612,086.34. This also must be thrown off, as otherwise the Americans would be given an immense advantage over the home manufacturer—no excise duty being charged on articles of export. Adding together, then these three sums, we have a total of $8,538,039.04 to be imposed as customs duties on woollen and cotton goods and manufactures of wood, leather and iron, or an average duty of thirty-nine and one-half per cent! This will be the practical effect of Sir John Macdonald's policy of "readjustment" without "an increase" of the tariff; and since its second practical effect would be the shutting out of all these articles of foreign manufacture the question arises, "How is Sir John to provide for the $8,338,039 deficiency in the revenue without increasing the tariff?" Is he going to resort to direct taxation? It must be either the one or the other—or else a tremendous annual deficit. If the revenue is to be maintained then the people must provide this $8,338,039 in some way; and though it is true that under Sir John's policy of exclusion the cotton and woollen goods and the manufactures of wood, leather and iron would be produced at home, it is also true that the consumers would be charged an indirect tax by the manufacturers, equal to the amount of the protection afforded—or another $8,338,039! This is a pretty large sum for the people of Canada to pay, simply that thirty or forty men may have the chance to become millionaires, and that the rich may dress more cheaply in silks and satins. Think of it farmers and workingmen: An addition of twenty-two per cent. to the tariff as proposed by Sir John's "readjustment" scheme means that for every yard of cotton and woollen goods, for every suit of harness and pair of boots, and for every plough, shovel, reaping machine and article of furniture you buy, you will pay an extra twenty-two cents on the dollar! The shirt that now costs $3 will then cost $3.44, the blanket that now costs $4 will then cost $4.88; the suit of clothes that now costs $30 will then cost $34.40 and every other article in the list in the same proportion. And what are you to get in return? Nothing! Nothing, but the gratification of seeing one man among five-hundred of your fellow citizens piling up a fortune at your expense, and the absolute certainty that in less than ten years this false stimulus to industry will lead to over-production, to shrinkage of prices, and to general collapse. Everybody but the capitalist is certain to suffer from the outset, and the capitalist himself will be overtaken with ruin in the end unless he has withenough to retire when his fortune is made.

THE PACIFIC SLOPE.

California and British Columbia—The Countries Contrasted—What a Canadian Thinks of Them.

A gentleman residing in the County recently received a letter from his son, who is now in British Columbia, which contains some information regarding that country as well as of California, the publication of which may prove of interest to our readers, some of whom may be casting their eyes towards the Golden State or the Pacific Province in view of finding a home in one or the other of them.

CALIFORNIA

is a land of promise but not a suitable country for immigrants. Speculators and rich companies have secured control of about all the available farming land, and a man with small capital has no chance to do anything for himself. It is only along the Sacramento, the San Jan Joaquim and other rivers that the soil is of a character to be utilized for growing cereals without artificial aid. In other sections it is necessary to carry on irrigation, which make the raising of crops rather expensive The water companies who run ditches along past farms from some lake or river in the mountains, charge twenty cents a day—twelve hours—for an inch stream, and, as a person would require about fifteen streams a day for crops on a small sized farm it would be rather costly. There is scarcely any rain during the summer season, and the sun is so hot that everything gets burned up. The thermometer walrises along at about 120 degrees in the shade during the heated term. Of winters they have none—rain-fall makes the spring and fall. The roads in are very rough. It takes from ten to a dozen yoke of oxen to get a small steam boiler through. In going down hill with it, all the oxen have to be hitched to the tail end of the waggon, to keep it from running too fast, one yoke being left in front to steer the rig. Quartz mining is the principal method employed in securing gold. The miners use water from the irrigating ditches where sluice mining is carried on. There is a great deal of speculation carried on in mining stock. The labor market is over stocked, and it is very difficult for mechanics to get work. The Chinese are very numerous, and these work for very low wages, and the question has arisen, "What is an honest laborer to do?" This is the problem which the people of California are now trying to solve, while the "Hoodlums" have commenced a work of extermination.

THE MINING REGION

BRITISH COLUMBIA.

The distance from San Francisco to Victoria, Vancouver Island, is 800 miles. It generally takes the steamer six days to run the trip. The weather in British Columbia is about the same all the year round, with no winter, rain only falling. In the summer time the thermometer averages eighty degrees in the shade. It is a fine country. There is a good deal of splendid farming land in the valleys, a good deal of which has already been taken up. The city of Victoria, the capital of the Province, is beautifully situated and growing rapidly. It has a population of some ten thousand. The roads in the city and country are excellent, a gang of convicts being kept constantly at work macadamising them. The chain gang are guarded by a number of riflemen. The people in the Pacific Province are mostly Canadians and old country people. Fruit grows abundantly. Indians are very plentiful. They are different from those of the States, being very peaceable and quiet, but, like all other red men, fond of whiskey. Wages here are very good: Carpenters get from three to four dollars a day; and laborers from $2.25 to $2.75. Successful mining is carried on in the interior.

GOVERNMENT WORKS.

The construction of the dry dock at Esquimault has been begun by the Government, and gives employment to a good many laborers. New Westminster, on the mainland, and eighty miles from Victoria, has been selected as the terminus for the Canada Pacific Railway, which will be a good thing for it. The city is located near the mouth of Fraser River.

THE SHAH AFTER PIRATES.

The gunboat Shah has just returned from a cruise in Chilian waters, being drawn thither for the purpose of interviewing a piratical craft which recently plundered a British merchant ship. The pirates were interviewed, but before the Shah succeeded in bringing them to time, by sinking their vessel, she was pretty badly battered, receiving a considerable amount of damage. She is now undergoing repairs. The pirates will not pursue their business in this world any more, as those taken were all summarily dealt with.

DRUNK, I DECLARE.

There was a well-known physician, in a large city who had allowed himself to get into the habit of drinking too much. Now, of all men in the world, next to ministers, doctors should be most careful to keep sober. One day this doctor had been drinking pretty freely. When he went home at noon, he found on his slate a request for him to come and see Mrs. B——, one of his patients, a rich and fashionable lady. He took his dinner, and drank some more liquor, and then went to see the lady. She was in bed. He sat down by the bedside, took out his watch, and putting the finger of his right hand on the lady's wrist, he began to count her pulse. "One—two—three;" then he got confused, and began again. "One—two—three—four;" confused, and began again; "One—two—three—four—five;" but he could not go on. So he put up his watch and said to himself, in a whisper, which he did not intend the lady to hear, "Drunk, I declare!" Then he told the lady to keep in bed, and take some hot lemonade, to throw her in a perspiration, and he would see her again in the morning. In the evening he received a few lines from the lady, written as follows:

"Dear Doctor,—I am dreadfully mortified to think you should have found me in such a state when you called this afternoon. Please accept the inclosed fee for your trouble (a twenty pound note), and pray do not, for the world, say a word to any one about my condition." That lady had been drinking, and when the doctor whispered, "Drunk I declare"—meaning himself—she thought he was saying it of her. The doctor was too drunk to see what was the matter with his patient; and the patient was too drunk to see that the doctor was in the same state.

What Salary Does a Farmer Receive?

He receives the equivalent of a larger salary than ninety-nine out of a hundred of them are willing to admit. They underestimate their own profits, and overestimate the profits of men living on a salary.

There is a great difference among those who live by farming. A great many work the soil because they do not know what else to do, or because they cannot live by anything else. Many of this class hardly deserve to be classed as farmers. They lower the standing of farming as a business. I believe there is no business by which a man can live so well with so much neglect, as agriculture. Still, nothing better repays good care and ability. It is rather slow to yield brilliant returns at the outset; so is any business. The farmer's profits are concealed in the rise of land—in improvements by ditching, clearing, new buildings, more teams, or better stock. Most farmers have no idea how much it costs them to live. They forget to figure in the pork, poultry, mutton, butter, flour, vegetables, etc., etc. The salary man lives entirely by his individual efforts. In estimating a salary, we must do so by looking at the privileges enjoyed, the hard work of brain and muscles, and the gain in property and improvements.—Rural New Yorker.

Minnie Warren's Funeral.

The despatches to the Sun contains the following respecting the funeral of the diminutive Mrs. Newell (Minnie Warren):

At two o'clock the family assembled in the parlor, around the casket. This was of black walnut, covered with blue silk velvet, and was lined with white satin. It was the casket of a child of ten years, but as the friends looked within, they saw the little mother with one arm embracing the girl baby, whose face lay nestled close to the mother's bosom. The mother's head was turned to the baby, and the two seemed quietly sleeping. The baby's face was a sweet one, a little dimple remaining in the chin that even death had not taken away. No one looked upon the little mother and her child without weeping. Gen. Tom Thumb sat near the head of the casket, and by him sat his wife, Lavina Warren. On the other side sat Major Newell, and he made no effort to control his feelings. He wept bitterly, as he has almost without cessation since his wife died. Besides these, Minnie's father and mother and her brothers and sisters, all large men and women, were in the room. They remember Minnie as a daughter and a sister, who shared her wealth with them, rather than a famous little woman. Mrs. P. T. Barnum and Mr. Bleeker and his wife, who have traveled with the Tom Thumb party for fifteen years, were also among the chief mourners.

Cinders in the Eye.

Persons travelling by railway are subject to continued annoyance from the flying cinders. On getting into the eyes they are not only painful for the moment, but are often the cause of long suffering, that ends in a total loss of sight. A very simple and effective cure is within the reach of every one, and would prevent much suffering and expense were it more generally known. It is simply one or two grains of hazseed. They may be placed in the eye without injury or pain to that delicate organ, and shortly they begin to swell and dissolve a glutinous substance that covers the ball of the eye, enveloping any foreign substance that may be in it. The irritation or cutting of the membrane is thus prevented and the annoyance may soon be washed out. A dozen of these grains stowed away in the vest pocket may prove, in an emergency, worth their number in gold dollars.

JOY AMONG THE CHILDREN.

COPELAND'S SWEET CASTOR OIL, equally suitable for children and adults. Endorsed by over 600 doctors in Canada. The difficulty of administering nauseous medicines and the desirability of having them pleasant to the taste, induced T. Copeland to undertake researches, which resulted in the discovery of a Sweet Castor Oil, perfectly palatable, of the same strength and medical qualities as the ordinary Castor Oil; and while equally safe and harmless yet acting with more certainty, and producing neither nausea nor griping. Some children say it is honey; others call it syrup—they all say they like it. One parent says—My children drink it like water;" another—"We had to hide the bottle or they would have finished it right off;" another—"My little girl has taken it twice without any trouble, and does not know what it is, though she hates the ordinary Castor Oil, and we never could get her to take it without a fight;" yet another—"I wish you success of your SWEET CASTOR OIL; it is a splendid thing—sure to take the place of all common oil."

The extraordinary demand for this improvement of a staple household medicine has brought fraudulent imitations into the market, but the public can guard themselves against subtleties (which unprincipled parties are attempting to sell on the reputation of this article) by seeing that the name, COPELAND'S SWEET CASTOR OIL, is on both wrapper and direction label.

The undersigned having purchased Messrs. T. Copeland & Co's interest in the above preparation, are now manufacturing it from the original recipe.

NOTE—Eclectric—Selected and Electrized

Mitchell's Belladonna Improved India Rubber Porous Plaster.

There never has been a time when the healing of so many different diseases has been treated by outward application as the present. It is an undisputed fact that over half of the entire population of the globe resort to the use of ordinary plasters.

The principal ingredients used in making these Plasters are Gum Olibanum—or better known as the Frankincense of the Bible—Rubber, and Burgundy Pitch; which, when scientifically compounded, is full of electricity, and when combined with the pure medicinal gums, is found to be one greatest healing medicines ever brought before the human race.

They are acknowledged by all who have used them to act quicker than any other Plasters they ever before tried, and that one of these Plasters will do more real service than a hundred of the ordinary kind. All other Plasters are slow of action, and require to be worn continually to effect a cure; but with these it is entirely different; the instant one is applied the patient will feel its effect.

They possess all the soothing, warming, supporting and strengthening qualities of all other Plasters. Many who have been relieved of RHEUMATISM, TIODOLOREUM, and various other pains in the KIDNEYS, BREAST or SIDE, and believe it is solely done by the electrical qualities which the Porous Plasters contain, and which is imparted to the system, thus restoring them to a healthy condition.

They are very soft and pliable, still very adhesive; and a sure cure for WEAK BACKS PAINS IN THE SIDE AND BREAST, and are invaluable to those who have a COLD of long standing, and often prevents CONSUMPTION. Some even tell us they believe they were entirely cured by the use of them of a long seated Consumption.

THE PACIFIC SCANDAL.

A Retrospect of Sir John Macdonald's Great Crime.

FACTS FOR THE ELECTORS TO REMEMBER.

It is now about six years since the Pacific Scandal was perpetrated by the Macdonald Administration. Five years ago the details of that crime against the Canadian people were given to the public, and the effect of the exposure of the means by which Sir John A. Macdonald maintained himself in power was his expulsion from office in disgrace. He is now about to appeal again to the electors to reinstate him. He fancies that time has blunted the memories of the people as to his past crimes; that the new issue which he has raised in the trade question will divert attention from his past sins, and that by an appeal to the avaricious and ignoble side of human nature he may once again grasp the reins of power. The electoral body to-day comprises thousands to whom the Pacific Scandal is but imperfectly understood. For the enlightenment of that class we will briefly reproduce the salient points of that memorable historical event:

By the effluxion of time Parliament was dissolved at the end of 1872, and a general election followed. Prior to the close of the session of 1872, a scheme for the construction of a Canadian Pacific Railway was adopted, and between that time and the general elections, the Government of which Sir John Macdonald was Premier was busy endeavouring to reconcile the conflicting claims of rival companies for the construction and ownership of the line. One of these companies was led by Senator Macpherson, the other by Sir Hugh Allan. The sequel shows that Sir John played the knight against the Senator with such skill that he wrung from the former no less than $350,000 for use as a bribery fund during the preceding elections, before consenting to give him the Pacific Charter, and that he utilized the Senator in working up testimonial funds for his (Sir John's) own personal benefit before he finally gave him to understand that the railway charter had been given to his rival. After the elections in which Sir John managed to secure a very slight majority in the whole House, the secret of the sale of the Pacific Railway charter to Sir Hugh Allan leaked out, and shortly after the opening of the session of 1873, Mr. Huntington charged Sir John and his colleagues with the crime in the House, and moved for a Select Committee of Investigation. The resolution was voted down, but subsequently Sir John Macdonald moved for a committee, which was agreed to. This committee, was afterwards dissolved on the advice of Sir John Macdonald and a Royal Commission appointed to inquire into the charges, thus taking the matter out of the hands of Parliament and placing it in the hands of three judges selected by Sir John Macdonald, the chief culprit. Mr. Huntington refused to recognize this commission, or submit his evidence to it, and its finding, which was merely a report of the evidence it saw fit to take, was practically a dead letter. When the charges were first made by Mr. Huntington, Sir John Macdonald from his place in the House called God to witness his innocence.

A few weeks afterward sufficient documentary evidence was made public to prove that a bargain had been made with Sir Hugh Allan through the instrumentality of Sir Geo. E. Cartier, one of Sir John's colleagues and co-leader of the Government, by which Sir Hugh was to get the Pacific Railway on certain monetary conditions.

Sir John met this by an official declaration through the Ministerial press that any arrangement which Sir George Cartier might have made with Sir Hugh Allan was personal to himself, and unknown to Sir John or the other members of the Government, and repudiating the insinuation that he had ever received any money from Sir Hugh Allan. Between the time of the elections and this stage of the Pacific Scandal disclosures Sir George Cartier had died. Further proof of Sir John's personal guilt having been afterwards produced the deepest indignation and disgust was produced by Sir John's cowardly attempt to throw the onus of the Charter Selling Scandal upon his dead colleague. Public indignation was intense, and despite the efforts of the party organs to defend the Ministry the force of public opinion was sufficiently powerful to influence the more independent and honorable members of the Government party in Parliament to join with the opposition in condemning the act and compelling Sir John and his colleagues to resign.

The following, selected from the mass of documentary evidence made public in regard to the affair, will show how complete were the proofs of Sir John Macdonald's guilt; how blasphemous was his appeal to his Maker to witness his innocence, and how scandalous was his cowardly attempt to saddle the guilt, when it was shown that there was guilt, upon his dead colleague, Sir George E. Cartier.

Extract from letter of Sir Hugh Allan to Mr. G. W. McMullen, dated August 6th, 1872:

"Yesterday we entered into an agreement by which the Government bound itself to form a company of Canadians, according to my wishes; this company will make me President, and that I and my friends will get a majority of the stock, and that the contract for the building of the road will be given to this company. In terms of the act of Parliament Americans are to be carefully excluded, through fear that they will sell it to the Northern Pacific. But I fancy we can get over that some way or other. This position has not been obtained without large payment of money. I have already paid over $300,000, and I will have at least $100,000 more to pay. I must now know what our New York friends are going to do."

(Private and Confidential.)

"Montreal, 30th July, 1871.

"Dear Sir Hugh.—The friends of the Government will expect to be assisted with funds in the pending elections, and any amounts which YOU OR YOUR COMPANY shall advance for that purpose SHALL BE RECOUPED TO YOU. A memorandum for immediate requirements below.

"Very truly yours,

"(Signed) G. E. CARTIER."

Hon. Mr. Langevin (ad'l)	10,000
Sir Geo. E. Cartier (ad'l)	30,000

Receipts for the payment of these sums were duly given, and there was no disputing the fact that the money went into the hands of the parties named in the memorandum. The next appeals were as follows:

Montreal, Aug. 21, 1872.

"Dear Mr. Abbott.—In the absence of Sir Hugh Allan, I shall be obliged by your supplying the Central Committee with a further sum of twenty thousand dollars upon the same conditions as the amount written by me at the foot of my letter to Sir Hugh Allan, of the 30th ultimo.

Five days afterwards Sir John Macdonald telegraphs for "another ten thousand," as follows:

"To the Hon. J. J. C. Abbott, St. Anne's:

"Immediate, private.

"I must have another ten thousand dollars—will be the last time of calling. Do not fail me. Answer to-day.

The above comprise the chief payments of which evidence could be obtained. Sir Hugh says, however, that in all he gave over $300,000 to the Government,

PETERBOROUGH, AUGUST 29, 1878

EAST and WEST PETERBORO'.

The contest is now fairly inaugurated and before us are lying the claims of the two candidates for Peterborough upon the suffrages of the electors of these ridings. We lately dealt with the address of Mr. Hilliard at some length, and we propose to examine the certificates the Ministerial candidates place before us. Mr. Bertram is the older public man of the two and his address is, as might be expected from one who has so unmistakeably made himself known by his actions on the floor of Parliament, somewhat the shorter. The member for the West Riding has so thoroughly familiarized us with all his opinions upon the great public questions of the day ; the course he will take if elected is so undoubted and his claims upon every Liberal elector in his constituency so pressing, that we may without injustice to him turn our attention for the present to his colleague in this battle for Reform principles, who is perhaps not so well known, but whose pretensions to a seat at Ottawa are none the less worthy and the assurance of whose victory by every legitimate effort is none the less important. It is always a pleasure to read an address be it that of friend or foe in which there is no equivocation. In this respect, Mr. Buck's utterances are all that can be desired. In the very beginning he places himself firmly and unmistakeably on the side of the present administration. "The Government is" he tells us "the best the country has ever had and one which is entitled to the support of all classes of the people." It needs but a cursory examination of the Public Accounts to go far to substantiate Mr. Buck's statement, for the last fifteen years at least. With difficulties such as none other had to encounter, engagements amounting to $96,000,000 to meet, all of which had been entered into by Sir John A. Macdonald and his clan, with debentures to the amount of $35,000,000 maturing at an early date ; with the country loaded down with an annual expenditure which the same administration had increased 10½ millions in 10 years, with discontent in British Columbia, and after imbecility and incapacity (judging from Mr. McDougall) had been rampant in every department, surely to assume the reins of power under these circumstances was a difficult task. And the fact that the Government has tided with credit through the storm, has placed the Dominion on a sound financial footing, has borrowed money at lower interest, has decreased the ordinary expenditure, and has abolished the pernicious system of contract-, so prevalent with the late administration, is strong proof in favour of the truth of what Mr. Buck asserts in the opening words of his appeal to the Electors of East Peterborough.

Mr. Buck is quite as well entitled to the position he takes on the Temperance Act. The fact that Mr. Mackenzie's Government was the first to grapple in a practicable way with the monster evil of intemperance, and have passed decidedly the best Temperance Act yet found on the statute books, should entitle them to the earnest support of every temperance man in the country."

On the tariff Mr. Buck announces himself a most pronounced sceptic of Sir John's sincerity. As a protectionist, and for the best of all reasons, twenty five years of inactivity by that redoubtable knight while in power. In supporting a revenue tariff Mr. Buck takes the sound commercial view which is beginning to generally prevail among the more intelligent of his class, and one which cannot but recommend itself to the electors of the East Riding. And lastly, Mr. Buck's claims as a farmer cannot be ignored. That class is too small in Parliament, and wherever such men as he can be moved to represent it, they should always meet with a warm support.

THE NATIONALISTS ON THE ROSTRUM.

The great event is past. The wanderers of whom we heard so much, whose advent the goodly ones of the blue persuasion so anxiously expected, have come and gone and people very naturally find themselves asking, "To what did all this amount?" We confess we did not share to any great extent the joys of favourable anticipation. We had heard of these heroes before. We were familiar with their goings to and fro ; we knew nearly all Mr. Wright's stories by heart, and the studied mis-representations of Mr. Fraser were somewhat stale. We had, however in better moments ventured to hope we might be favoured this time with something new. We tried to gently indicate as much last week. We thought by telling a few of Mr. Wright's tales and foreshadowing Mr. Fraser's course we might relieve the people of Peterborough of some of the ennui they would otherwise be called upon to endure. And then we were foolish enough at odd times to suppose that when men decisive for the amusement and the entertainment of the audience, and for a "consideration you know" common decency would lead them to occasionally vary the subject or the illustrations at least. Alas ! Alas, for all our hopes. The Wright's stories and retorts were much after the old style, so thoroughly got by heart, apparently that it was impossible to vary them to any great extent. Mr. Fraser's distortions were none the less gives, and his facts quite as distorted as ever. It is true we may lay claim to having brought about a little variety. The stirring epithets lavished on the EXAMINER and its editor, was the only really original part of the play. It seems to afford these gentlemen considerable satisfaction to imagine the editor of this paper is unknown. Ah well, poor fellows they needed some consolation, and that fancy seemed to please them greatly and was perhaps quite as near the truth as any of their other statements in which they indulged.

We did suppose, we confess, that having been brought up among the people of this town and having some friends here, there could not be any grevious mistake as to our personal identity. Messrs. Fraser and Wright, however, knew us not and of course in that case we are constrained to give up any claim to existence whatever. Be it so. All unknown as we are, we prefer our lot to the notoriety which the restless feet of our visitors have procured for them. Better lie buried in obscurity forever, than flourish forth as the trumpet-tongued but wandering and paid advocates of a policy which common sense no less than stern facts and figures condemn. The only point attempted to be made by the speakers was that in reference to the Galt manufactories. It does not seem to have struck these worthies that go where you will you are sure to find some business institutions which will go down, no matter how good trade may be or how those around them may be flourishing. What these champions of the "Patent Policy" did not and cannot prove, is that the manufactories of this country are not generally prosperous and have felt the depression less than those of other countries. That is the point gentlemen, and until you can do that your visits may amuse and entertain us at intervals, but you will not succeed in deducting one vote from Mr. Bertram's well deserved majority, when the electors find a voice at the polls.

VERACITY.

We were last week charged by the Peterborough Review with making a false report of Mr. Hilliard's speech at Young's Point. Mr. Hilliard in the clearest and most emphatic manner, denounced Sir John's conduct in reference to the Pacific Railway, and alleged that his conduct was indefensible, and that the people rightly turned him out of office. The statement was no doubt unpalatable to the thick and thin supporters of the man of "clean hands," but that is no reason why a newspaper should suppress the truth, and then with coolness peculiar to that sheet, turn around and charge us with misrepresentation. The words were heard by scores of people who can vouch for the correctness of our report. We are not in the habit of making false statements as we think in the end it does not pay, so say nothing of a higher motive which even Editors may be governedby.

THE "NATIONAL POLICY."

Mr. Bertram's Reply to Messrs. Fraser and Wright.

A Large and Influential Meeting in Bradburns Hall.

As the Tory "National Policy" advocates—Messrs Fraser and Wright—refused to allow Mr. Bertram sufficient time to reply to their mis-statements and arguments on Thursday night last, that gentleman called a meeting of the electors on Saturday evening in Bradburn's Hall, to reply to the advocacy of the so-called "National Policy" as laid down by the two gentlemen above named. The Hall was well filled in fact crowded—something very unusual for a Saturday night meeting, and the speaker in an address of over three hours showed up, clearly and forcibly the fallacies of Sir John Macdonald's latest card in election dodges. The chair was occupied by Geo. A. Cox, Esq , who appropriately introduced the speaker.

Mr. BERTRAM was heartily cheered on stepping forward. He apologized to those present for calling the meeting on Saturday evening, but he was advertised to speak every night next week throughout the riding and he desired to take the earliest opportunity of placing his views before the citizens of Peterborough on the great question that is now being discussed throughout the Dominion of Canada. He was very glad to see so many of the electors present, and he only regretted that so many Conservatives who were here the other night were not now present. On that occasion the two apostles of the new propaganda of a political fiscal policy which they are advocating throughout the country came here under false colors (applause) They came here as gentlemen who placed their country before their party to discuss, not from a political standpoint, but from the trade stand point questions now before the people of the Dominion, and one of them at least showed the cloven hoof before he left this platform (laughter and applause). He (Mr. Bertram) was ready at all times to take part in a political or trade discussion, or a discussion of any kind that had to do with this election, but he desired to take part in such discussion that it should be a fair discussion ; and if the other night Messrs. Fraser and Wright had assented to his proposition to have half hour and half hour alternately (cheers) it would have given him very great pleasure to have come here and given his views, considering as he did that the views those gentlemen held were of a very fallacious kind (cheers.) He had frequently heard the cheap protected much more strongly than by those gentlemen. The question itself had been brought into prominence only within the last year or two, since the leader of the Opposition had taken it up. In 1874 he remembered the deputy leader of the Opposition, Dr. Tupper, denounced the extra 2½ per cent. added to the tariff as the "thin end of the wedge of protection" which was an abomination to the people of this country (cheers.) Since that time those gentlemen have seen new light; for some reason best known to themselves a happy conversion has taken place, and they one and all now turn around and recommend as a remedy for everything, what they call the "National Policy" (laughter.) He was personally aware that there were many gentlemen in the House of Commons, who had during the last two years, sunk their desired free trade principles and voted for the resolutions proposed by their leader Sir John A. Macdonald, to that this question had arrived at the position that it was actually in the political arena, and the two parties must stand or fall by the decision given on it by the country. Before commencing on the question itself, he might here state why it is that we have what is called a fiscal policy at all. He was desirous at this early stage of placing his views before the electors, in order that there might be no misapprehension whatever. We require a certain amount of money in Canada for the purpose of carrying on the public affairs of the country—for the ordinary expenditure, for the charges on revenue account, to pay the interest on our indebtedness and to pay the indemnity to the several provinces —for all these we require a sum approaching twenty-four millions of dollars in round figures. The question is : How are we to get that money. Are we, as is done in the case of the municipalities, to put our hands directly into the pocket's of the people and withdraw the money ? That would be direct taxation. Or are we to adopt the system now in force, of placing an import duty on goods coming into the country, and further obtaining revenue by charges, known as internal revenue, such as those collected upon whiskey and beer. The latter is the policy we have chosen, but the Canadian policy is somewhat different from that of England. In England they set out with this theory That they will tax as few products as they possibly can.—some five or six articles are all that are taxed on entering England, and every thing else from every quarter of the world goes in free ; and when this was considered, with the enormous revenue England raised they would probably agree with him that as a system of taxation for revenue purposes it was probably the best that could be devised for England. (Cheers.) In addition to taxation on such articles as tea and sugar, we in Canada have adopted the further policy of taxing certain manufactures coming into the country, such as all the cloths we wear, and all the hardware we use, and in round figures they are taxed by a 17½ per cent. tariff. Now, the question is : How far can we go in the taxation of these articles without prohibiting their importation. If we examine the United States system we find one opposed almost diametrically to the system in England, and to the system now in existence in Canada. We in Canada have held to the proposition that we will tax only for revenue purposes and as was said by Sir A. T. Galt and others of his school, that taxation is so framed as to afford incidental protection to those goods manufactured in this country. The American system in the very opposite. It sets out with the proposition that any article that can be manufactured in the United states should have such a tax levied upon it, as will actually prohibit the importation of the article into the United States, but it had been found impossible in the United States to carry out this policy to its logical result. The question for us now was : Which of those two systems would be approved of by, and would be the most beneficial to the great bulk of the community and the greatest number of the consumers of this country. He thought that during the long regime of the Conservative party and the short regime of the Reform party in this country, they had done wisely in not going beyond the general system which the example of England had laid down for their guidance, in governing their trade relations with other countries (cheers.) In this controversy between the two political parties in Canada of ours we are asked to change this policy of ours—for what ? That was what he had been trying to find out. They call it the "National Policy" (Laughter.) This is the name with which they are endeavoring to christen the bantling which they have brought forth within the last year or two (laughter.) What is it ? Our present policy may be truly known as the Canadian National Policy. What do these gentlemen want ? They either want to reduce the general taxation on manufactured goods by moving in direction of free trade or to increase the taxation by going in the direction of protection. He (Mr. Bertram) desired to be absolutely fair in the statements of his propositons so far as he knew how ; and believing that these gentlemen advocated a policy of protection it was on that ground that he now desired to address the audience present. In regard to manufactured goods they must bear in mind what manufactured goods and what raw products really were. A piece of cloth, for instance was a manufactured product, of which wool was the raw material ; but wool was the finished product of the farmer. In regard to goods they must bear the proposition that they would admit raw products free and tax all manufactured goods, for the raw products of one man might be the manufactured article of another and vice versa (applause.) He could only describe the Protectionist as a man who in his particular calling desired to obtain some particular advantage over the rest of the community ; and if he is given an extra five per cent. that must be regarded logically as to his advantage and necessarily in some sense to the disadvantage of the rest of the community. If it is added to any manufactured goods it must necessarily raise the price of the goods to parties who buy them ; if it does not raise the price he might just as well leave the tariff in the position where it was because it would be of no use to him whatever, whether the tariff was 17½ or 50 per cent. (applause.) There were two great classes—the producers and the consumers ; and it was to the interest of the producer to have an article dear and it was to the interest of the consumer to have an article cheap. It was to the interests of the handicraftsman to have the articles he consumed cheap and not dear. There was therefore this important point to keep in mind ; are we especially and particularly to consider only the producers of an article without at the same time considering those who are the consumers (applause.) Now, what is a consumer ? You consume everything that adds to your personal comfort, to your personal well-being, and it must therefore be your desire to have those things as cheap and as plentiful as possible. There are certain classes of goods that can be protected ; and there are certain classes that cannot be protected. For example, we import large quantities of plain cottons,—an article that is used largely in every family in this country. There is no doubt you can protect the manufacture of cottons in this country because we do not manufacture enough here to supply our people. That is, we are not in a position to raise the manufacture of cotton so as to have a surplus of the product to be protected. But if we have a surplus of agricultural produce, such as barley and wheat, we have to put that surplus into the national currency on the market of the world and withdraw from the market the surplus of the world will give us—no more and no less. Therefore he considered it was impossible to protect that class of goods. The thing which you have to consider is whether taxation considered by itself is a desirable thing, altogether aside from the difficulties thrown about it by what they call the fiscal or rather "National Policy." We put into the federal treasury money the same as into the municipal treasury : the taxes are paid by you whether directly or indirectly, and the question now is : —Is it a desirable thing in itself, apart from other considerations, to have the taxes raised ! If so it would be most difficult to understand what individuals want it. We never desire to pay more for an article than we can possibly purchase it for, nor do we desire to put our hands into our pockets and pay more taxes than we are obliged. (Applause.) The policy of Sir John A. Macdonald is a policy to protect every body for the benefit everybody else. (Laughter and applause.) With reference to the different classes of goods the question is how much you can protect and how it can be done. Sir John says he will protect the farmer and the miner and everybody else. That is a national round-about ; to tax everybody that we may all get rich (laughter) ; and it was one of the most absurd utterances that he had ever heard. (Applause.) He (Mr. Bertram) considered it the statesman's duty to collect the revenue with as little friction as possible, and to maintain a tariff as steadily and with as little variation as possible. If we had a tariff jumping from 10 to 20 and 30 per cent. and upwards—instead of an ordinary and steady tariff of 17½ or 20 per cent.—how could manufacturers engaged in business carry on operations, especially those which required length of time to complete, for unless they could never tell what the policy of the Government would be, or what the tariff would be on different goods coming into the country. Unsteadiness of this kind would be most unsatisfactory. We must have some well-defined policy laid down to adhere to, perhaps not altogether in all its details, but certainly in its principles. That would be much better than to put on some particular lines five or ten per cent. for a short time, and then take it off again—a principle which was to his mind one of the most vicious that could be advocated. (Cheers.) Why was it that as individuals and nations we exchanged commodities at all ? Why does one man exchange his labour for the labour of another man ? Simply because he can obtain cheaper from another man what he can do himself. You have this division of labour simply because you can obtain more comfort for yourself and your family than you can give by your labour. It is the foundation of a national and individual trading that they desire and give a consideration which they can give advantageously for something which somebody has ; and if this is so, we may fairly leave it to the ordinary individual to find out what it is he wants, and what he pays in an exchange of that kind. Our people have individually sufficient intelligence and are sharp and shrewd enough to know what may be advantageously exchanged or traded with another country ; and if this is the case with individuals, we can safely leave to the aggregate intelligence of the people the work of trading to advantage with other people. He considered we paid far too dearly for our whistle when we enabled a part of our people to go into unremunerative employment by taking another part to keep them at work. He contended that labour of this kind—labour without result—was simply misapplied power ; it was power thrown away. (Applause.(To give an evidence of this he alluded to the efforts to put a duty of 75 cents a ton on coal to "protect" Nova Scotia coal. In the first place we would get no revenue, for the 75 cents a ton would not be placed there for revenue but simply to prohibit the importation of coal. The consumer in Ontario would have to pay the sailors and shipmasters 75c. a ton for bringing the Nova Scotia coal here or in other words to overcome the natural obstruction in distance and trading against Nova Scotia coal coming to this province we would have 75c. per ton ; and that duty would simply be thrown away with the exception of the small margin of profit left the Nova Scotia miner. This was again illustrated by the case of a man of large inherited wealth who did nothing but expend his income in luxuries, but who could not thereby add as much to the wealth of the community as if he had employed his men and his means in a factory. He was simply a consumer of the products of other people and in place of adding to the wealth of the country he was taking from it. (Applause.) Then again the tendency of protection was to keep us to the old methods and to maintain the old prices, and was opposed to competition and progress in invention. If protection did not enhance the price of an article, why have it? We have the vicious circle in these protected industries continually travelling. Give an industry of any kind protection enough to keep out the foreign article and what happened The manufacturer of that particular article enjoyed enormous profits, then new mills and furnaces are built and new factories started, there is a race for wealth until the day of reckoning comes, and the whole fabric goes to smash down tumble mill after mill and factory after factory, the men are thrown out of work and starve and down of course go the prices of the goods. The next thing that happens is that these protected manufacturers have to sell their goods as they are now doing in the United States for less than they are worth, and man after man is forced out of the business by direct logical events only the smaller number able to bear the brunt of battle remain in it. When good times come again up go the prices, and the same vicious circle sets in, to the detriment of the best interests of the country. (Applause). He then proceeded to describe some Canadian industries to which he considered the 17½ per cent tariff afforded sufficient protection. We have first of all a class of men in the country who are great producers and who cannot be protected—a

LOCAL NEWS.

Gone.—That the Lakefield News is about to change hands.

Proclamations.—The proclamations concerning the approaching Dominion elections have been posted up throughout the town and county by the Returning Officers.

New Drug Store.—Dr. Esmond & Co., will shortly open out a new drug store in their shop, one door south of Stone & Bailey's fruit store. The premises are at present being fitted up.

Personal.—At a recent concert in Paris, Mr. Sandford Fleming, C. E., chief of the Canada Pacific Railway survey, had the honor to be invited by the Prince of Wales to a seat in his box.

Law Examinations.—Among the names of the successful candidates at the late law examinations in Toronto, we find that of Mr. G. W. Hatton, of this town, as passing the second intermediate.

Carrwell Temple Excursion.—Read the advertisement in another column of the pic-nic, excursion, concert, and moonlight excursion under the auspices of Carrwell Temple, on Friday, September 13th.

Auburn Church Opening.—The new church at Auburn, will be formally opened on Friday evening, 6th of September, when tea will be served at six o'clock, after which addresses will be delivered by resident Ministers and laymen of the town.

Handsome Photos.—Mr. T. Fitzgerald carriage builder, has this week turned out a very handsome double photos for H. H. Burnham, Esq., of Cobourg. It is in material and workmanship equal to anything manufactured in the cities.

Pic-Nic to Stoney Lake.—A pic-nic to Stoney Lake, in aid of the funds of the George Street Methodist Church will be held on Tuesday next, 3rd of September. The train leaves Peterborough station at 9 a.m. Tickets 75 cents each. See posters for further particulars.

Street Musicians.—Itinerant musicians have of late been quite frequent visitors to this town, and although the hard times are as well advertised here as elsewhere, they have generally succeeded in securing a fair share of the superfluous small change of the musically inclined.

Regent Hall.—The premises formerly occupied by Messrs. Thompson Bros., on George street has been refitted for Mr. J. C. Hurst, who has opened out a new stock of fancy and staple dry goods and house furniture. The establishment will be known by the name of Regent Hall.

Ontario Rifle Association.—The annual prize meeting of the Ontario Rifle Association commenced on Monday last in Toronto. In the "Maiden Stakes" match Sergt. E. Sanderson, Peterboro' Cavalry, made 39 points and Corp. W. Ball, of the same Company made 38—the highest score being 39 points.

S. S. Pic-Nic.—The pic-nic last Thursday under the auspices of the Board of Separate School Trustees was the largest that ever went down the river—there being over 800 present—requiring both the Golden-Eye and Whistle-Wing to convey them to Campbellstown, where a very pleasant day was spent.

Sunset of the Shadows.—We understand that Mr. Youman's will again visit this town in a short time for the purpose of giving another costume concert of the "Songs of the Nations." The date is not finally fixed, but will be announced in due time, Mr. J. H. Friend is arranging for the forming of the class.

School Board.—A special meeting of the School Board was held last Monday evening to receive the report of the Committee on heating school buildings by steam. The Committee reported favorably and after some discussion the report was received, and the Committee instructed to ask for tenders for the work.

Band Entertainment.—We again request our readers to remember the entertainment in the Drill Shed to-morrow evening, to assist in the payment of the Band's new uniform. The object is a very laudable one and our citizens should patronize it liberally. For particulars see the very varied and attractive programme.

Garden Social.—The garden social at Dr. H. C. Burritt's, St. Leonards, Ashburnham, on Tuesday evening was very successful, a large number being present. The grounds were nicely illuminated by chinese lanterns. The Band of the Fire Brigade was present and added much to the entertainment of the evening.

Father Stafford.—The Hearth, a Montreal publication, has a portrait of Rev. Father Stafford, of Lindsay, together with a lengthy sketch of his public and ministerial career. The notice is very complimentary. It concludes thus:—"Take him altogether, Father Stafford is a giant in intellect, a giant in energy, and he is a giant in Body."

Canoes for England.—Mr. William English this week shipped five canoes to Messrs. Ward & Co., of London, England, being the first instalment of an order of fifteen lately received by our enterprising townsman. "English's Canoes" have now an almost world-wide reputation, and are to be found in nearly every quarter of the globe.

Killing Insectivorous Birds.—Parties handling guns should be careful in observing the law respecting the killing of birds as useful in destroying insects injurious to agriculture. The law is very plain and very strict on this matter, any person violating it being subject to a fine of from one to twenty dollars, or imprisonment from two to twenty days. The law provides against killing all birds, except eagles, falcons, hawks, owls, wild pigeons, king-fishers, jays, crows and ravens, and the birds especially mentioned in the "Act for the Protection of Game."

A Big Fish.—While Messrs. R. Green and W. J. Burris, in company with Mr. J. Turner, of Chicago, were fishing in Love Shirt Lake a few days ago, they caught a muskinonge measuring 4 feet 2 inches in length and weighing 32½ pounds. The three parties being in the canoe at the time making the usual exciting features, they were unable to take it into the canoe but hauling it alongside Mr. Burris shot it through the head with a revolver. This we believe is the largest fish of the season, and Mr. Turner takes its head to Chicago as a pretty success of his fishing in our back lakes.

Rowing Club Regatta.—We would remind our readers that the Peterborough Rowing Club hold their annual regatta next Tuesday on the river. The finish of every race will be at Crawford's Grove. As there are already a number of entries for the several races—there being four for the four-oared race, five for the double sculls and six for the single sculls, besides three or four for the paddling races—some good exciting sport may be looked for. We believe the Club are about to ask the town for a half holiday on that day, and we certainly think our townsfolk should encourage as much as possible all such athletic sports.

Another Cheap Excursion.—We are informed by Mr. Thos. Menzies that another cheap excursion to Toronto and Niagara Falls has been arranged for the 23rd of September, at the same rates as the one on the 12th of August, namely: $1.50 to Toronto and return, and $2.50 to Niagara Falls and return. The steamer which attended the last excursion has no doubt induced the Midland and Grand Trunk Railway Companies to give another, and we believe our citizens will not be averse in their appreciation of the benefits of cheap travel which these excursions afford. Much credit is due Mr. Menzies, Grand Trunk and Midland ticket agent, for the part he has taken in bringing them about.

The "National Policy" Meeting.—As per announcement the travelling "Orators" of the National League—Messrs. Fraser and Wright—held a meeting on Thursday evening last in the Opera House, and afforded a good evening's entertainment to those present. As the principle points in their harangues were commented upon, and their hollowness shown up in an editorial last week, it is unnecessary to further allude to them here, especially as their protection fallacies were ably dealt with by Mr. Bertram on Saturday evening, a full report of which will be found in another column. Wright, to use an expression of Artemus Ward—one of his favorite authors—is an "amoosing little cuss"—nothing more.

Hensley's Guide to Elegant Writing.—The above work, an advertisement of which appears in another column, is the production of Mr. S. G. Beatty of the Ontario Business College, Belleville, Ont., where it is published. The fact that Mr. Beatty is its author is a sufficient guarantee that it is valuable, as his works on book-keeping and writing have become national, being sanctioned for use in public schools by the Minister of Education for Ontario. It is a self-instructor in the art of penmanship, by the use of which any young man or woman may become a good writer, without the aid of a teacher. Evenings cannot be more profitably employed than in practising with its aid. See the advertisement and send for it.

New Carriage Works.—Messrs. George Fitzgerald and John Stanger have th's week opened out a new carriage factory and repairing shop, in the large and commodious premises lately occupied by Mr. T. E. Fitzgerald, on Brock street, at the foot of the Court House Hill. Both being practical young men and having had a large amount of experience in their business—we can recommend them to favorable consideration from the public, believing their patrons will be fairly and liberally dealt with. They have secured the services of Mr. Jos. H. Cobb—a gentleman well and favorably known to the farmers—as a first class horse shoer and carriage ironer, and as the work in each department will be done under their supervision and by competent workmen, they promise a superior article at very low prices for cash. The firm will be known by the name of Fitzgerald & Stanger. Give them a call.

Beauties of Protection Again.—Here is the evidence of one skilled artizan who is satisfied as to the benefits the mechanic receives under a Protective Policy. An intelligent and skilful painter for a number of years employed at good wages in the Hamilton Carriage Works in this town a couple of months ago left for the Western States for the purpose of "bettering his condition." He went; and after a short sojourn returned and reports that he visited numerous towns and cities and in each place found the "hard times" infinitely worse there than the devotedest Tory has claimed for Canada. There were thousands of first-class painters out of employment while the wages paid those who had work were less than were paid in Canada. Having satisfied himself as to which country was the best he has accepted work in Cannington. Notwithstanding that cases of this kind occur every day such adventurers as Fraser and Wright have the "cheek" to ask Canadian mechanics to support the same policy that has brought ruin upon the United States artizans.—Lindsay Post.

Town Council.—A full meeting of the Town Council was held last Monday evening, but owing to the large amount of space taken up this week by new advertisements and other pressing matter we are unable to give our usual extended report. A large number of petitions in reference to remission of taxes, errors in assessment, and street improvements, were received and referred to the committees, to which they belonged. A petition signed by over 300 ratepayers asking for the submission of a by-law for the repeal of the Dunkin Act By-law, was received and referred to the Town Solicitor for advice, and a notice of motion given, requesting the same gentleman to prepare a By-law for the repeal if the same can now be voted upon. At a late stage of the meeting a special committee was appointed to consult with the temperance executive Committee as to the advisability of allowing the Dunkin By-law to be quashed with a view of allowing the corporation to collect the licenses for the remainder of the year. A statement was received from Messrs. Pearse and Eastland of the special audit of the Police Court accounts, for the year 1877 and following years to the 13th of march, 1877, showing the amount of $612.36 to be accounted for by the Court to the Town Treasurer. The usual squabbling over expenditure on sidewalks occupied the principal portion of the time till a late hour, when the Council adjourned till Thursday, 19th of September.

Cole's Great Circus.—Amusement seekers will be glad to learn that the proprietors of W. W. Cole's New York and New Orleans circus, museum, hippo drome, menagerie and congress of living wonders, have announced their intention of exhibiting here. It is hardly necessary to say much about an entertainment which for variety and magnificence has no equal on the continent. On this occasion, however, the attraction will be enhanced by a very important addition. Mr. Cole, with his accustomed enterprise, has secured for exhibition two of the greatest curiosities of the day—the largest man and woman in the world. Mr. Bates, the male giant, is eight feet high, lacking 1 inch, and his better half who appears along with him, boasts exactly the same number of feet of womanhood. The couple have appeared before Her Majesty, who was so much impressed by their appearance that she presented his giantship with a magnificent gold watch valued at $1,000. This gift it need hardly be said, is cherished by Mr. Bates as his most valued possession. Half a ton represents the joint weight of this remarkable pair. But the giants, wonderful as they are and well spik to exhibit as a separate show, are only an item of the entertainment. There is the circus, for which the services of the most daring bare-backed riders and funniest clowns in America have been secured. There is the menagerie, comprising thirty-five cages, where most magnificent specimens of wild animals from all parts of the world are to be seen. And there is the museum filled with curiosities and monstrosities of every description. The whole establishment, which, it may be mentioned, always travels by rail, is conducted on a gigantic scale; no less than three hundred horses and some two hundred men being engaged. From first to last the performance is pure, healthy and entertaining. We learn the canvass will be pitched on the green south of the curling and skating rink, Ashburnham.

EAST PETERBOROUGH.

Political Meeting at Norwood—The Conservative Candidate on the War Path.

On Saturday evening last, Mr. Burnham held a meeting in the Town Hall, Norwood, which was comfortably filled. Mr. Joseph Pearce, Reeve of Norwood, was voted into the chair.

Mr. Burnham then came forward to tell his little story. He commenced by stating that he had received the nomination of the Conservative Convention, and was contesting the Riding in their interests. He did not profess to be a public speaker, but would give the electors a few reasons why they should vote for him. He then gave the usual figures given by Tory "amateur stretchers" endeavouring to make the Mackenzie Government responsible for the present depression in trade. He drew a gloomy picture of the great depression through which we were passing, and said that the present Government were to blame for it; if they would only protect our manufacturing industries it would not be felt. He charged the Government with going back on the principles they advocated while in opposition. The first thing they did when they got into power was to form a coalition government, taking in Cartwright, Burpee, Bass, Smith and others, altogether six in number. How did they carry out the independence of Parliament? by giving Mr. Anglin, the Speaker of the House, a contract for $30,000 for printing. He touched the matter with a mass of figures in connection with the Inhabitants and resources of the country, and summed up the whole by saying that during the last three years the expenditure exceeded the revenue by $2,000,000. He would like to know if that was economy? He declared that all his figures were taken from the Blue Books and could not be disputed. In dealing with the endeavors he charged the Government of the day with increasing the cost per capita. He pronounced the Middle of the country as a humbug, and recommended the Government with the doing away entirely with them. He said that Mr. Mackenzie made an error in judgment in buying the steel rails, but he (Mr. B.) did detest this thing of imputing bad motives to Mr. Mackenzie, whom he believed to be an honorable man, and had not been proved guilty of any corruption in his official capacity. "Protection" was another great question of the day, and he contended that there should be some changes made in the fiscal policy, as it did not afford that protection to our industries that he desired to see, and re-hashed several of the stories given in the Opera House by the "trumpet Wright," which he thought was sufficiently clear to show them that protection was needed.

Mr. Dunkle then addressed the meeting, and was received with hearty applause. He said that he would not go deeply into figures but would give them some plain facts that they all could readily understand. Mr. Burnham had charged the Government with depression, but he was sure he could not prove it from the Blue Books, but he might find it in the Tory campaign pamphlets. Mr. Dunkle went on to show that Canada was not the only country suffering from depression. What is the state of things on the other side of the lines? Nearly every tramp they met came from there. The masses in the large cities across the lines were paupers and starving for bread. The manufacturers were languishing and a large number had shut down, and surely they had sufficient protection. He next referred to the effects of excessive protection on the iron trade in the Dominion. The protective tariff had led to the investment of millions in furnaces that might just as well have been thrown into the Otonabee or the Atlantic. We had a fine fancy sketch from Mr. Wright of the joyful feeling caused by the hum of machinery, but why did he not predict for our dilletantes the horrors of the thousands of honest artizans whose children are to-day begging for their bread. (Applause.) It is a fact undeniable that there are in the States a very large number of men out of employment because they cannot get work in the employment to which they have been brought up, and they are obliged now to carry them away to the West where there is more room in agriculture, while many are coming to Canada and to our western provinces. (Applause.) He then proceeded to point out the unfairness of comparison between Canada and the United States without making due allowance for the different circumstances of the two countries, and showed the great advantage Canada now had in that while the States had in settlement nearly filled up their western territory, we reached the borders of the great desert, Canada had now the magnificent North West to open up and settle, which would give room for a population of at least twenty millions of people. (Applause.) The United States had reached the culminating point of their career of increase from immigration, and henceforward he believed Canada stood ready to cultivate and develop those immense fields of the North-west that would go on and direct the stream of immigration from the old country. (Applause). Here was a grand field for Canadian enterprise. It was attracting thousands of men from the United States; but at the very time we are going in there to build up a nation these "National Policy" gentlemen come here and ask us to change our whole fiscal policy and to put a heavy charge on all the goods those settlers will consume. He would illustrate what would happen these settlers if we were to adopt the tariff they advocate. We imported last year into Ontario as was well-known seven sheep (laughter) from the States; but several thousands had been imported into British Columbia. In that province there were what was known as the Chilcotten plains where a good many Canadians had gone into sheep farming, for which the district was admirably adopted. If we were to adopt the National policy tariff where would they buy their sheep? They would have to buy them in Ontario and convey them over the Rocky Mountains (laughter), whereas at present it was needless to say they could buy them at greater advantage in the United States and make the business of sheep farming a profitable one. (Applause). Mr. Bertram then proceeded briefly to consider the question, "Who pays the duty." He held that unless we took into consideration the ultimate working out of this question in the general community we would arrive at a wrong conclusion, and he would state the proposition as to who pays the duty in a very different way from the gentleman who had recently occupied the platform. It was admitted that the consumer paid the duty on tea but not in the case of the States on barley, though he did not see why one duty was not as good as the other. Take, for instance, the article of cattle. The Americans either raised sufficient cattle for their own use or they did not. If they raised sufficient for their own use they did not want ours, except as in the case of our people in British Columbia who would rather buy in Oregon than take their stock from us by the Pacific Railway. And if the Americans have not sufficient cattle for their own use they require to go to the general fund of cattle in the world and withdraw from that fund what cattle they want, paying the regular price any other nation has to pay. (Applause). Take the case of any article you like to name. If we had a surplus of that article we must place that surplus in the general treasury of the world. On barley we have a surplus which we send largely to the United States, but the Americans do not compel us to accept the prices they may please to give. Say we have eight million bushels more barley than we require, we can either send that barley to Great Britain or the United States or Germany. It is quite competent for the United States to raise enough barley for themselves, but as a matter of fact they prefer to come to the general fund into which we have thrown our surplus and withdraw from that fund their requirements—particularly of our fine bright barley, which they prefer—paying exactly the same price other purchasers pay for it. (Applause.) These National Policy gentlemen had charged that if the present Government had been paid for it they could not have legislated more in favor of the United States than they have. That charge was manufactured out of whole cloth (cheers), and he defied them to name a fiscal regulation that would bear it out. Our tariff of 20, 15 and 17½ per cent. had been practically on the same general basis for many years, and for any man now to state that the Reform Government had legislated in their tariff policy in favour of the United States was simply to state what was utterly incorrect. (Cheers) Then they say it is unwise for us to import goods; but the man who holds that does not know the first A B C in political economy. Why did Great Britain, the richest nation in the world, import more goods than any other nation in proportion to her exports? He went on to deal with the Protectionists' theory of the balance of trade and contended that it was utter folly to hold that we were getting poorer each year by the amount of the apparent balance against us. He shewed how the prices of our exports were enhanced in value by delivery in England, and how the official returns did not show the profit on the trade which went to make up the apparent balance against us. He alluded to the American exports and imports in this connection; and while referring to taxation in that country shewed that New York city paid in taxes for municipal purposes alone some thirty-one millions of dollars, a sum that he believed exceeded our federal and municipal taxation together. He next pointed out the injurious effect Protection would have on the poor men—on the labouring man—in that it would increase the cost of all he consumed and would yet afford him not the least protection from competition. (Applause.) The question before the country was not between Protection and free trade pure and simple; but between Protection or as they called their bantling the "National Policy" and a grown-up revenue tariff that has been found on the whole to work well and that affords us sufficient protection already. He showed the great improvement that free trade had effected in the condition of the farm labourers in England, while the farmers themselves were much better off than under the protection they had foolishly wished to maintain. An instance had been mentioned of mills at Weston that had not succeeded but the facts were that the machinery was inferior and second-hand; and in another case of industry in Galt, making forged nuts, getting into a depressed condition, it was simply caused by a more enterprising man making them cheaper and better at a neighboring town. (Cheers) After dealing with some minor matters Mr Bertram referred to the iron and shipbuilding industries and concluded by expressing the firm conviction that the people of Canada would not commit the great blunder of giving their approval to the "national policy." (Cheers.)

A vote of thanks to the chairman and cheers for the Queen and the candidate brough the proceedings to a close.

Mr. Hilliard's Speech at Young's Point.

To the Editor of the Examiner:

SIR,—I was greatly surprised on reading last week's Review to observe that in reporting Mr. Hilliard's address at Young's Point, that paper wholly omitted Mr. Hilliard's denunciations of Sir John A. Macdonald in connection with the Pacific Railway, but the cool effrontery with which that sheet in another part of the paper alleged that the Toronto Globe and the EXAMINER were at their old trick of putting words in a speakers mouth astonished me After that, I was not surprised to learn that Mr. Carnegie and South Monaghan, denied the use of the words by Mr. Hilliard.

Sir, I and dozens of others heard Mr. Hilliard use these words:

"I do not uphold all Sir John's doings.
"I admit that his conduct in reference "to the Pacific Scandal is indefensible.
"He was turned out right."

Yours truly,
CONSERVATIVE.

OLD AND YOUNG.

They soon grow old who grope for gold
In marts where all is bought and sold:
Who live for self and on same shelf
In darkened vaults hoard up their pelf,
Cankered and crusted o'er with mould,
For them their youth itself is old.

They ne'er grow old who neither gold
Where Spring awakes and flowers unfold;
Where suns arise to joyous skies,
And fill the soul within their eyes,
For them the immortal birds have sung:
For them old age itself is young!

—Bertoner.

Don't Wait.

Don't wait until to-morrow. Remember in all things that, if you do not begin, you will never come to an end. The first weed pulled up in the garden, the first seed in the ground, the first shilling put in the savings-bank, and the first mile travelled on a journey, are all important things; they make a beginning, and thereby a hope, a promise, a pledge, an assurance that you are in earnest in what you have undertaken. How many a poor, idle, hesitating outcast is now creeping and crawling on his way through the world who might have held up his head and prospered if instead of putting off his resolutions of industry and amendment, he had only made a beginning.

Make Home Happy.

Endeavor always to talk your best before your children. They hunger perpetually for new ideas. They will learn with pleasure from the lips of parents what they will deem it drudgery to study in books; and even if they have the misfortune to be deprived of many educational advantages they will grow up intelligent if they enjoy in childhood the privilege of listening daily to the conversation of intelligent people. We sometimes see parents who are the life of every company which they enter, dull, silent and uninteresting at home among their children. If they have not mental activity and mental stores sufficient for both, let them first one what they have for their own households. A silent house is a dull place for young people, a place from which they will escape if they can. How much useful information, on the other hand, is often given in pleasant family conversation, and what unconscious but excellent mental training is lively social argument. Cultivate to the utmost the graces of conversation.

Life is Short.

Life is short, and you have much work to do. Work for others as well as yourself. You will not pretend you are never selfish. You are more or less so every day of your existence. In the very face of conviction, you play the part of contracted littleness. How often do you forget the interest of others, in eager desire for yourself; and how readily you silence the whispers of reason, by calling in for precedents respectable example. Yet you know the value of disinterested virtue—and how that avarice, or any selfish passion, can never acquire your felicity—but the appearance of the moment persuade you otherwise, and hence the cause of error and crime. Study, therefore, not only to be convinced of truth, but to establish it firmly on your mind, beyond the reach of doubt. Then, not till then, your character will be uniform, and your principle strong enough to carry you through the trials and temptations of life. No one can be happy long, unless he is governed by virtue; and to be regulated by this sublime principle, he must early learn to make any sacrifice, even life and all that renders it sweet in the eyes of mankind.

A New Disinfectant.

A new disinfectant recommended in the British Medical Journal for use in hospitals, and to destroy the poison germs of small-pox, scarlet fever, and other infectious diseases, is composed of one part of rectified oil of turpentine and seven parts of benzine, with the addition of five drops of oil of verbena to each ounce. Its purifying and disinfecting properties are due to the power which is possessed by each of its ingredients of absorbing atmospheric oxygen, and converting it into peroxide of hydrogen—a highly active oxidizing agent, and very similar in its nature to ozone. Articles of clothing, furniture, wall-paper, carpeting, books, newspapers, letters, etc, may be perfectly saturated with it without receiving the slightest injury; and when it has been once freely applied to any rough or porous surface, its action will be persistent for an almost indefinite period.

Anti Fat and the National Policy.

The Toronto National advertises extensively in its columns a patent medicine called "anti fat" the great remedy for corpulence. It is warranted to reduce the weight of a corpulent person from two to five pounds a week, and is advertised as the great panacea for "how to get lean." Strange to relate, the National also devotes the greater part of its editorial columns to advertising a patent medicine prepared and manufactured by one of the cheekiest quacks extant, and labelled National Policy. It is advertised as a sure cure for bad crops, hard winters and depression in trade, the only panacea known for all the "ills that flesh is heir to." The anti fat and National Policy ought to be done up in one box, for what the former is advertised to do for the individual the latter will do for the nation sure. The National ought to open a dispensary."

Be Mindful.

It needs no guilt to break a husband's heart. The absence of content, the mutterings of spleen; the untidy dress and cheerless home, the forbidding scowl and deserted hearth—these, and other nameless neglects, without a crime among them, have harrowed to the quick the heart's core of many a man, and planted there, beyond the reach of cure, the germ of dark despair. Oh, may woman, before that sight arrives, dwell on the recollections of her youth, and cherishing the dear idea of that tuneful time, awaken and keep alive the promise she so kindly gave. And though she may be the injured, not the injuring one—the forgotten, and not the forgetting wife—a happy allusion to the hour of peaceful love—a kindly welcome to a comfortable home—a smile of love to banish hostile words—a kiss of peace to pardon all the past, and the hardest heart that ever locked itself within the breast of selfish man will soften to her charms, and bid her live, as she had hoped her years of matchless bliss, loved, loving and content—the source of comfort and the spring of joy.

Humboldt's Description of an Earthquake.

This great traveller gives an interesting account of the first earthquake he witnessed. It was at Cumana, in South America. The first shock came after a strange stillness. It caused an earthquake in his mind, for it over threw in a moment all his lifelong notions about the safety of the earth. He could no longer trust the soil which up to that day had felt so firm under his feet. He had only one thought—universal boundless destruction. Even the crocodiles ran from the river Cronoco howling into the woods; the dogs and pigs were powerless with fear. The whole city seemed "the hearth of destruction." The heaven could not shelter, for they were falling in ruins. He turned to the trees, but they were overthrown. His next thought was to run to the mountains, but they were reeling like drunken men. He then looked towards the sea. Lo! it had fled; and the ships, which a few minutes before were in deep water, were reeling on the bare sand. He tells us that, being then at his wit's end, he looked up, and observed that heaven alone was perfectly calm and unshaken.

A Railway Round the World.

The following outline of a colossal railroad scheme is advanced by a Mississippi correspondent of the Louisville Courier-Journal:

"There is a great railroad, which, if it can be built, will eclipse all other enterprises in that line, and will be the grandest railroad in the world, connecting the old and new world, and thus avoiding all the dangers of the Atlantic ocean. My road will connect the American continent with Asia and Europe. Just think of it! A railroad from Washington city to St. Petersburg, with only forty miles of water between these great cities of the new and old world.

"My plan is for the United States, Great Britain and Russia, or the capitalists of these great countries, to construct this road. Let the road be built to some point on the line between Washington Territory and the British Possessions; say, where the Columbia River runs into Washington Territory. Then let England, or English capitalists, build the road through New Georgia to the point where the Toocean river runs into Alaska; and then through Alaska to Cape Prince of Wales on Behring Strait; then let Russia, or the company, composed of the great capitalists of the old and new world, construct the road from East Cape, or Behring Strait, to St. Petersburg. Passengers and freight can be carried from Cape Prince of Wales, America, to East Cape, Asia, directly opposite and only forty miles apart, in splendid steamers, built and put there for that purpose, and owned by this great company. Would not this be grand? Just imagine a trip from America to Asia and Europe, seated in splendid cars, with land under you and visible all the way, except forty miles—about as far as from Dover to Calais.

"If this great road could be built the danger of the stormy Atlantic would be avoided, and hundreds and thousands of noble men, women and children would be almost annually saved, as well as millions of treasure."

Glossing Shirts.

Get the best starch you can procure, and use one good teaspoonful to each shirt, in only just sufficient water to nicely wet the bosom and wristbands. Roll up and lay aside for about an hour, then, having your ironing board and blankets free from wrinkles, your bolder whole and clean, and irons without rust or smoke, and neither too hot nor too cold, you are ready to commence. To make assurance doubly sure that your iron is perfectly smooth and clean put a bit of beeswax on a square of brown paper, and rub your hot iron over it a few times, then rub well after on another square of paper or piece of old soft cloth. First, iron the forepart of the body, next the back and sleeves and the band around the neck; then slip in the bosom board, pull the bosom smooth and straight, rub over lightly with a soft cloth and iron. Large plaits like these I like raised, and before the bosom is entirely dried by the iron I pass a knife under and lift them carefully, then pass the iron again over the bosom, still upon the bosom board, this time very firmly, bearing considerable weight upon it. This leaves a nice gloss, and the plaits will not iron fast a second time. For muslins, light prints, white shirts, and the like, I always boil my starch adding a little salt, which prevents the iron from sticking. Starch on Monday and dry, then sprinkle and roll up.—Country Gentleman.

The Secret Out.

A very imprudent physician has done his brethren a great injury by thoughtlessly divulging one of the most valuable secrets of the profession, while riding up to Union Square in the Fourth Avenue cars the other day. "How is practice now? you must be making a great deal of money, for every third person seems to be ailing?" "True: there is much serious sickness, but I get no practice. The panic has made the times so hard, that people cure themselves by eating nothing." For this reason every good, hearty laugh in which a person indulges tends to lengthen his life, one varying as it does, new and distinct stimulus to the vital forces. Doubtless the time will come when physicians, conceding more importance than they now do to the influence of the mind upon the vital forces of the body, will make their prescriptions more with reference to the mind, and less to drugs for the body; and will, in so doing, find the best and most effective method of producing the required effect upon the patient.

There are a few bodily ailments which are aggravated, and in some cases rendered incurable by insufficient diet; but with the exception of diphtheria and a few others, nine out of ten ordinary ailments are controlled are arrested, are permanently cured by a wise diminution of the amount of food eaten. This is particularly the case when their is no decid ed ailment, but a general feeling of discomfort or unwellness. In all actively inflammatory maladies, when there is acute pain anywhere, total abstinence from all substantial food, from everything liquid or solid, except hot teas, is the sheet-anchor of safety, when not extended beyond thirty-six hours.—Hall's Journal of Health.

Home Piety.

It is in the family life that a man's piety gets tested. Let the husband be cross and surly, giving a slap here and a cuff there, and see how out of sorts everything gets! The wife grows cold and unamiable, too. Both are tuned on one key. They vibrate in unison giving tone for tone, rising in harmony or in discord together. The children grow up saucy and as savage as young bears. The father becomes callous, peevish, hard—a kind of two-legged brute with clothes on. The wife bristles in self-defence. They develop an unnatural growth and sharpness of teeth, and the house is haunted by ugliness and domestic brawls. Is that what God meant the family to be—He who made it a place for Love to build her nest in, and where kindness and sweet courtesy might come to their finest manifestations? The divine can be realized. There is sunshine enough in the world to warm all. Why will not men come out of their caves to enjoy it? Some men make it a point to treat every other man's family well but their own—have smiles for all but their kindred. Strange, pitiable picture of human weakness, when those we love best are treated worst; when courtesy is shown to all save our friends! If one must be rude to any, let it be some one he does not love—not to wife, sister, brother or parent. Let one of our loved ones be taken away, and memory recalls a thousand sayings to regret. Death quickens recollection painfully. The grave cannot hide the white faces of those who sleep. The cedis and the green grassed urs cruel magnates. They draw us further than we would go. They force us to remember. A man never sees so far into human life as when he looks over a wife's or mother's grave. His eyes get wonderous clear then, and he sees as never before what it is to love and be loved; what it is to injure the feelings of the loved."

How to Act in Case of Fire.

In case of fire, it is well to know beforehand what to do, as many a conflagration can be checked by quick and intelligent action. If there is any time in which a person should be cool and calm, in perfect command of himself, it is when he discovers a fire that threatens the destruction of life and property. The first thing to do is to learn precisely where it is; the second, to consider the chances of extinguishing it. Of course in cities an alarm should at once be sent out, but at the same time a vigorous effort should be made to put out the fire with the means at hand, before the fire-engine arrives on the scene. First, then, do not be alarmed on account of smoke. Frequently there is a great deal of smoke before the fire has made much progress. Remember that one can pass through smoke by keeping his head near the floor or by enveloping it in a wet woollen cloth. On entering a room to fight a fire single handed, keep the door closed behind if possible. A pail of water and a tin dipper in the hands of a resolute person can accomplish to work a miracle at the beginning. If the fire has progressed too far to admit of this course and it is necessary to depend entirely on outside help, then use to it that every door and window is closed. By this means it may be possible to confine the fire to one room. Every person who stops at a hotel should take special pains before retiring to note the location of the stairways, so that in case of an alarm he can find his way out, even though the halls are filled with smoke. Never leave a room where there is an alarm of fire without first securing a wet towel, or, if possible, a wet sponge or piece of woollen cloth through which to breathe. If escape by the stairs is cut off seek an outside window and stay there till help comes. Above all things be cool and have your wits about you. Your presence of mind gone, all is lost.

SCIENTIFIC AND USEFUL.

POOR MAN'S CAKE.—One cup of sugar, one teaspoonful cream tartar, the same of soda, two eggs, one cup sweet milk, half cup shortening, three cups and a half sifted flour.

TO DRESS TOMATOES.—Plunge ripe, raw tomato into hot water so as to make the skin come off easily; put the plump skinned fruit on ice; do not cut it until the sauce is on, and you will not wonder why, years ago tomato was called the "love apple."

POP-CORN BALLS.—For six quarts of popcorn boil one pint of molasses about fifteen minutes, then put the corn into a larger pan and pour the molasses over it, stirring briskly until thoroughly mixed; then, with clean hands make into balls of the desired size.

COCOANUT CANDY.—I use the same as for chocolate creams. Two cups of white sugar, one-fourth cup of water; boil five minutes; put the pan into a larger pan of water and stir until cool, when it begins to get stiff stir in the grated cocoanut, and when cold cut into cakes. We consider it good.

RHUBARB PIES.—Oatmeal in water, in the proportion of a quarter of a pound of oatmeal to three quarts of water, is recommended as a refreshing drink. The meal should be well boiled, the mixture cooled, and water added to keep up the proportion. With a bit of ice this is said not only to quench the thirst, but to keep up strength. Without ice, when ice cannot be had, it is still palatable if entirely cool. It is said that it is used in many iron foundries and manufactories in England. The meal should be well shaken through the water before drinking.

ALCOHOL AS A MENTAL STIMULANT.—A writer in the Lancet says: The brain must be fed and nourished by special design. An adequate supply of oxygen is the preliminary requirement. Then comes the question of food; and whatever else may feed the brain, workers with this organ should be assured that alcohol will not sustain it. Alcoholization and oxygenation are directly antagonistic processes, and even if alcohol be food for the brain, the organ cannot feed when the nutrient fluid circulating in its vessels is disabled from the task of conveying oxygen, which happens whenever spirit is present in more than very moderate proportions in the blood. The relief afforded by alcohol from the sense of depression produced by a lack of oxygen, is, therefore, illusory. It is procured by over-stimulating an organ which is both exhausted and impaired.

JOY AMONG THE CHILDREN.

COPELAND'S SWEET CASTOR OIL, equally suitable for children and adults. Endorsed by over 600 doctors in Canada. The difficulty of administering nauseous medicines and the desirability of having them pleasant to the taste, induced T. Copeland to undertake researches, which resulted in the discovery of a Sweet Castor Oil, perfectly palatable, of the same strength and medical qualities as the ordinary Castor Oil; and while equally safe and harmless yet acting with more certainty, and producing neither nausea nor griping. Some children say it is honey: others call it syrup—they all say they like it. One parent says—My children drink it like water;" another—"We had to hide the bottle or they would have finished it right off;" another—"My little girl has taken it twice without any trouble, and does not know what it is, though she hates the ordinary Castor Oil, and we never could get her to take it without a fight;" yet another—"I wish you success of your SWEET CASTOR OIL; it is a splendid thing—sure to take the place of all common oil."

The extraordinary demand for this improvement of a staple household medicine has brought fraudulent imitations into the market, but the public can guard themselves against substitutes (which unprincipled parties are attempting to sell on the reputation of this article) by seeing that the name, COPELAND'S SWEET CASTOR OIL, is on both wrapper and direction label.

The undersigned having purchased Messrs T. Copeland & Co's interest in the above preparation, are now manufacturing it from the original recipe.

The Great Shoshonees Remedy.

The Great Shoshonees Remedy is an Indian vegetable compound composed of the juices of a variety of remarkable medicinal plants and herbs; the various properties of these different ingredients, when combined, is so constituted as to act simultaneously upon the Blood, Lungs, Liver, Kidneys, Digestive, Organs, Nervous System, &c., restoring their functions to healthy action, and being purely vegetable, is as harmless as nature's own beverage. This medicine is a decided benefit in all, and a permanent cure in a large majority of diseases of the blood, such as Scrofula, Erysipelas, Salt Rheum, Canker Pimples, &c. in prescribing this medicine we do not claim that it always performs cures; but this we do say, that it purifies and enriches the blood, permanently curing a large majority of diseases arising from its impurities. It stands far ahead and unequalled among the hundreds of competing medicines of the day. It has stood the test of ten years, and is to day more popular than ever. As a summer restorative it stands unrivaled; it enables the system to bear up against the constant drain to which it is subjected by a high temperature. Persons who are subject to bilious Colic, Dysentery, Indigestion, &c., should take the Shoshonees Remedy. Price of the Remedy in pint bottles $1; Pills, 25 cts. a box. Sold by all medicine dealers.

PTITT'S SALVE.

An Infallible Remedy for all Diseases of the Eye (acute or chronic), Granulation of the Lids, Ulceration of the Lachrymal Canal, Film, and Weakness of the Vision from any cause.

THE AMERICAN EYE-SALVE is presented the public with the assurance of its efficiency as a curative of the most diseases of the eye acute or chronic inflamation, whether induced by constitutional origin or otherwise, weakness or darkness of vision, diminished tone of the optic nerve, or a disease deep seated in the tissues constituting that organ. Also for all persons whose vocation requires an incessant action of the eyes, the Salve will act as a charm in restoring a uniform healthy action, where weakness, pain, and misery may have long threatened a fatal termination. It is the most simple, safe, and effective remedy ever discovered. The materials of which it is made are pure, perfect, and costly, compounded with elaborate care and exactness. Safe in its application, being used externally, and, of course, lessening the pain and danger which necessarily attends the introduction of miserals and eye-washes. Rheumatic and Old Chronic Sores, of scrofulous origin, or resulting from whatever cause, yield to the AMERICAN EYE-SALVE. It is used successfully for "Piles." Its soothing effect is immediate, permanent cure requires but a few applications. The proprietors of "Dr. J. Ferrit's AMERICAN EYE-SALVE," while making new and improved machinery for making a more perfect box for the Eye-Salve, have changed the Trade Mark on the cover so as to correspond with the Out on the Wrapper, Circulars, Advertisements, etc. We call attention to this, as it might otherwise be regarded as counterfeiting.

This improvement consists of a light and elastic woven wood cover mattress, resting on 32 Excelsior Steel Springs, giving a smooth and even bearing to the bedding at all times. The whole arrangement is light and portable, the cover weighing only between seven and eight pounds, and the springs can be packed in a very small space in case of moving. There is no heavy wood frame a child can adjust and remove it with ease. We challenge a comparison with all other Spring Bottoms. Call and examine.

WM. TOOLE, Sen., and JAMES BATHGATE having purchased the above patent for the County of Peterborough, have engaged extensively in the manufacture, and have them on sale at the Furniture Ware Rooms of George Tanner, Hunter Street, and the manufactory of Wm. Toole, Murray Street, Peterborough. Their Agents will solicit orders at once.

We hereby caution parties against infringing on this patent, as they will be prosecuted against as the law directs.

N.B.—We the undersigned certify that we have used the Bostwick Spring Bed, and can confidently recommend them to the public as being an excellent article.

WILLIAM BAETLAND,
C. A. POST.

As in connection with the above I beg to announce to dealers in the above Spring Bed Bottom that I am prepared to fill all orders wholesale for Eastern and Middle Ontario at Peterborough prices.

The Sugar Refining Industry.

Extract from the Hon Mr. Scott's speech at Alexandria on Thursday last.

With regard to the sugar duties, he said ten or twelve years ago a tariff was framed under which sugar-refining could be a profitable industry in Canada, and Mr. Redpath, of Montreal, invested a considerable amount in that business. The tariff was partially revised in 1868, and the only alteration made in it since was a reduction by the present Government of the duty on raw sugar brought into Montreal, with the hope of keeping that sugar industry alive. (Hear, hear.) Mr. Redpath was reputed to have made a considerable profit out of the sugar refining industry in Montreal; but when he has to compete with capitalists in other countries who are satisfied with three or four per cent. his profits diminished, so that in 1870, three years before the change of Government, Mr. Redpath gave up the refining of sugar, although the refining of brown sugar was continued for a time. After the change of Government the sugar interest in Montreal sought a change in the tariff; but the Government felt that the same principle should apply to the sugar as to the less—that the people should be allowed to buy sugar where they could get it cheapest, whether on the Clyde or in Montreal. It should be remembered that this was the only refinery in Canada, and when it was in full blast it employed less than 400 people, most of whom were not, perhaps, employed in the actual process of refining, and the Government did not think it quite proper that the remaining 3,000,000 people in Canada should pay to keep employed that number in the city of Montreal. It was argued that under the bounty system of the United States their manufacturers were sending in sugars below cost, and the Government were asked to stop that. They did not see the force of that suggestion however, for if the people of Canada could buy sugar at a cent or one-half cent per pound less than cost at the expense of the Americans they should be allowed to do so. (Hear, hear.) One would suppose that Montreal, with this refinery, made sugar for the whole of Canada; but such was not the case. In 1870 the gross imports of sugar were 76,000,000, and last year 97,000,000. In 1870 Great Britain furnished us with 36,000,000: she now furnishes us with 50,000,000. In 1870 we got from the United States 11,000,000; now we get 31,000,000. If the Americans gave a draw-back larger than the amount of duty paid on the raw material, our people got the benefit of cheap sugar, and under those circumstances the sugar refinery was unable to stand. But even if the men employed therein were thrown out of employment they could be employed profitable in other ways. But he asked, how did it become the present Opposition to critise the policy of the Government in regard to that sugar interest? During the years that it was under the nurture of Sir Francis Hincks, Sir John Rose, or Sir Alexander Galt, not one of those gentlemen saw it in his way to increase the duties for the sake of this refinery. The interest of Canada was the interest of the agriculturist, the fisherman, and the lumberman, and those were the interests that the present Government intended to serve, because they represented a large majority of the people and the wealth of this country. The total export of Canada last year was $75,000,000. Of that the produce of the farm represented $19,200,000, and the sales of animals $15,200,000, being a total of $34,500,000, or just one-half of the whole export of the Dominion. These were industries which were growing rapidly in the country, and which it would be to our interest to develop. The people engaged in farming pursuits were all interested in having cheap food. It was not the duty of the Government to pay a premium to any special trade, yet that was what the protection principle meant. Instancing the manufacture of starch, he said we had five manufactories of that in Canada, which last year employed seventy-two hands, including women and children. The duty on starch was two cents per pound, and notwithstanding that high duty we imported into Canada in 1876, 81,682 pounds of starch, for which we collected a duty of $27,590. The wages paid to these 72 people was exactly $27,100, which proved that if the people of Canada had said to these people, "You remain idle and we will pay your wages," They would have saved $500; and the fact was that every woman who used a pound of starch paid two cents to the wages of these people. It was a fortunate thing that five years ago we had not many manufactories in this country, because they would have by this time become bankrupt. What did the protection cry mean? In Nova Scotia it meant a tax on coal; it meant differently in Ontario. In Goderich it meant a tax on salt; in Nova Scotia it meant free trade in salt. (Hear, hear, and laughter.) Whose people must join it right down trade in this article, but whose people produced iron it meant protection. In the former it meant that if he went to the Mediterranean for salt, he must bring it in his own vessel, but if he went to Liverpool for salt, he could bring it in any vessel he would have to pay 30 cents per ton. They had to pay around. (Hear, hear, and cheers.) The Administration that introduced this national policy would be a very short lived one, for it was not to the interest of the great mass of the people that it should be galvanized into life. (Loud cheers.)

MACPHERSON'S FIGURES.

An Ex-Finance Minister Shows the Absurdity.

Sir Francis Hincks, through the columns of the Montreal Journal of Commerce, thus exposes the blindness committed by Senator Macpherson in his pamphlet compilation on the Dominion finances, which forms the text for the Tory stump orators and candidates who figure neither the ability nor industry to take the official accounts and manage the figures for themselves. We quote from the Journal of Commerce:

"THE QUESTION OF THE HOUR."

We have, perfixed to a notice of the speeches "on the public expenditure and national policy" by the Hon. D. L. Macpherson, during his recent visit to the county of Bruce, this heading attached to the concluding paragraph of his speech at the banquet at Walkerton. Whatever opinions may be formed as to the correctness of Senator Macpherson's views on the various subjects which he has handled, it cannot be denied that he has been more industrious in compiling his statements. A mass of figures are tabulated, with the object of convicting the Dominion Government of very gross extravagance. We shall advert very briefly to this portion of the pamphlet before us, although it occupies about two-thirds of the entire space. The figures are obviously arranged in the spirit of party, and the errors, which are doubtless sufficiently numerous, must be exposed by the party organs. To deal with them satisfactorily would involve an immense amount of labor, which, most assuredly could be much more profitably employed. As a sample of the mode in which Senator Macpherson handles this branch of his subject, we may notice the specific charge under the head of "Salaries of Cabinet Ministers" during a period of five years. It is said doubtless truly, that under the Mackenzie Administration, the salaries of Ministers in five years have amounted to $525,000, and under that of Sir John Macdonald to $764,000, showing an increase of $161,000 in five years, or 32,000 a year, being five cents a bushel, on 644,000 bushels of wheat or five per cent on $644,000. Under any circumstances such a statement would fall under the category of what is termed clap-trap; but when it is borne in mind that the increased salaries were proposed and carried through Parliament by Sir John Macdonald himself, Senator Macpherson must have had a very poor opinion of the intelligence of the people of Bruce when he ventured on such a representation. Senator Macpherson, of course, cannot deny that the responsibility for the increased rates on Sir John Macdonald's Government, although he labors hard to connect with the salaries of the Civil Service generally, with which it had nothing really to do. We believe that Sir John Macdonald's Government were perfectly justified in proposing the increased salaries; and we maintain that these salaries are not excessive. But Senator Macpherson is of opinion that the new Administration ought to have done one or two things—either not "draw the full legal amount," or reduced it by Act of Parliament. The reason assigned for the propriety of their taking one of these courses is that there is a state of depression in the country. We are not aware that there is greater depression in Canada than there has been in the United States, and in Europe generally, during the last few years, but we do not believe that it has been suggested that the salaries of ministers in any other country should be reduced in consequence of such depression. We feel assured, moreover, that Senator Macpherson does not believe that the members of any other Government would have refused to draw their salaries. We confess that in our opinion, the injustice of this charge is calculated to damage materially the whole case of Senator Macpherson. What reliance can be place on charges of which the one we have just cited may be considered not an unfair sample?

Readjustment of the Tariff.

(From the St. John Freeman.)

Not one of the Tory leaders from Sir John A. Macdonald to Hon. Mr. Tilley, who was the last of the leaders to speak on this subject, has had the honesty and manliess to tell the people what they mean by re-adjustment of the tariff, about which they all talk so glibly. They contradict one another on many points because they find it necessary to say something which will allay the apprehensions of those they happen to address; but take what they have all said at different times, and there is left no room to doubt that

A readjustment of the tariff, such as the Tory chiefs contemplate means

A tax upon wheat and flour.
A tax upon corn and meal.
A tax upon live animals and meat,
A tax upon coal of all kinds.
A tax upon salt.
Increased duties upon agricultural implements, such as ploughs, harrows, winnowing machines, mowing machines, reapers, rakes, &c.
Increased duties upon furniture.
Increased duties upon woollen and cotton cloths, and clothing of every description.
Increased duties on boots and shoes and leather goods.
Increased duties upon all articles manufactured to any extent in the Dominion.
Increased duties on cordage, and the articles used in the building of ships, which can be procured or manufactured in Canada, and especially
A heavy duty on iron and steel, which are now produced at the Londonderry mines in Nova Scotia, where practically, the production is limited only by the demand.

TO WORKINGMEN.

A number of the workingmen of Peterborough having requested Mr. Jury, of Toronto—one of themselves—to address them on the question of Protection, we are pleased to learn that he has consented, and will speak in Bradburn's Hall on Monday evening next, at 8 o'clock. We hope to see a full attendance of the workingmen of the town, and those interested in this question now before the country.

THE PROGRESS OF THE CANDIDATES.

In every section where the Reform Candidates have met the electors of the East and West Ridings, they have received promises of the most ardent support. In the East, Mr. Buck has held meetings in nearly all the front townships, and has met with the strongest assurance of success. His opponents are not at all scrupulous as to the tactics they are using, but they may as well be quiet and calm, for they will be beaten, and they afterwards will feel happier if they have nothing to repent of. In the West the outlook is cheering. At their meetings Mr. Bertram and his friends have been enthusiastically received. We regret that Mr. Bertram has been confined to his room for several days through illness, but he is again convalescent, and will be able to attend his meetings. The national hypocrisy scheme is not making any headway, and not an independent, honest man will be caught in the trap which was intended as Sir John's last resort. Our friends should every where be active, so that our confidence may not lessen their majority. It only requires about ten days work to ensure one of the greatest Reform victories ever achieved in Canada.

ENGLAND AND PROTECTION.

The Review of last week endeavours to make capital for its party out of the example of England in reference to trade policy. Nothing is more popular with Opposition orators and journalists at the present time than to dwell on the advantages which protection afforded to the early manufactories of England. Utterly unable to controvert the fact that that nation, with a free trade system, stands to-day at the head of the commercial world, that her looms are in motion not for her own people alone, but to supply the wants of every land, that her Marine outnumbers the combined fleets of Europe, that her people are the wealthiest of the world, and that she by means of the prosperity she has attained by a judicious system of trade, has made herself virtually the dictator of Europe, unable to controvert this, they seek to explain it away, or even to make it do service in their cause. They contend that it was only after protection had built up the struggling industries of the Old Country, that free trade was introduced. But the fact is, there never was a time when a prohibitory tariff was not an injury to the manufacturers of Britain. Whatever prosperity they made was in spite of it, and not as a result of its establishment. Everybody knows it was not restraints on foreign importations which gave the first impulse to the British industries. It was the removal to England of some of the best workmen of the other countries of Europe. When the French people were so foolish as to forget in their religious strife the true interests of their nation, the foundation was laid for that prosperity which the factories of England have since enjoyed. Several measures took place in that country in the 16th century, and the workmen were glad to escape to a land where they could live in peace and carry on their trades without molestation. Many Flemings, too, driven from their own borders by the same cause, sought an Asylum in England. From these emigrants sprang the manufacture of woollens and many fabrics. The other countries had depopulated their stores of skilled labourers; in England these same labourers found raw material much cheaper than at home and having very little opposition from the remainder of Europe, became the best workmen had left. They soon supplied the world with the products of their toil. So it was that the British Mercantile Marine was called into existence. The trade caused by this influx was very great; the builders of Lubeck, Hamburg, Genoa, and Venice could no longer supply the English demand for vessels, and so these latter began building for themselves. It was because England could produce cheaper than the rest of Europe that she caused such a world wide market, and because the trade arising from that circumstance begot a hundred other industries, and especially shipbuilding, that she saw her fleet increase till its sails almost whitened every sea, and her flag was found under every sky in the universe. Protective measures always harassed her manufactures and fettered their progress. In fact, to such an extremity did protection at last reduce the farmer, that nothing but the removal of the heavy tariffs could save their owners from actual ruin. Every historical authority concurs in drawing the same dismal picture of the misery and distress of that period immediately preceding the removal of the corn laws. Miss Mattineau in her admirable history of England from 1816 to 1854, gives some idea of the state of affairs, when Sir Robert Peel came into office in 1841. She tells us there seemed to be no class that was not threatened with ruin. In Carlisle, $\frac{3}{4}$ths fourth of the population was in a state bordering on starvation. In the woollen districts of Wiltshire the allowance to the independent and labourer was not two-thirds of the minimum of the allowance in the workhouse. In Stockport more than half the master spinners had failed before the close of 1842. In the same town dwelling houses to the number of 3,000 were shut up, and 5,000 people were out of employment and idle on the streets. The Manchester provision dealers were subject to the wolfish incursions of a man prowling for food for his children, or from a half-frantic woman with a dying baby at her breast. Respectable customers of twenty years standing bought scraps formerly thrown away, in pennyworths to moisten their potatoes. At Leeds the pauper stone heap amounted to 180,000 tons, and the guardians offered six shillings per week for doing nothing rather than 7s. 6d. for stone breaking while the mill wrights and other trades were offering a premium on emigration to induce the others to go away. At Hivekley, one-third of the population were paupers, and more than one-fifth of the houses stood empty.

This, then, was the benefit that protection, according to an impartial historian conferred on England, this is the example to which we are pointed to by the Tory organs as illustrating its beauties, and which we are enjoined to follow.

Nor can it be pleaded justly, as is sometimes attempted, that the removal of the corn laws was a relief to English manufactories, and that the prosperity which followed was the result of a protective and not of a free trade measure. The agricultural industries which it was the avowed object of these corn laws to protect were in no better condition than the rest. Mr. Noble tells us that "every interest was alike depressed. Agricultural labourers were eking out a miserable existence upon starvation wages and parochial relief; the country was brought to the verge of national and universal bankruptcy."

Such, then, was the condition to which England was reduced by protection. We in Canada may well take a lesson from her misfortune. We have a revenue tariff sufficient to give our manufacturers fair protection and under which the great majority of them,—those who are prudent and endowed with business tact, and none other can ever succeed in manufacturing—are prospering. We venture to think it will be long before our people will consent to substitute for their present system a scheme which puts a premium on incompetency and extravagance, which benefits the few at the expense of the many, and which, while professing to benefit all, really benefits none, and makes everybody pay more for all the commodities of life.

The Oxford Tribune, a Tory organ published in Ingersoll, is repeating the Mail story denying the existence of the Buffalo Herald! That is good old Tory tactics. Start a lie in the interests of the party, and then stick to it in spite of all proofs of its falsity.

The New York Journal of Commerce of the 7th inst says: "There is no use mincing matters in regard to the woollen goods market, and those who can stop can make more money by shutting down than by running." As proof of this state of things the Journal gives a list of seventy mills—47 of which are shut down entirely, one is running on five sights time, 7 on three-fourths, 4 on two-thirds, and 11 on one-half. In Canada, so far as we know, adds the St. Thomas Journal, there is not one idle mill; yet the woollen manufacturers of the United States enjoy a protection tariff ranging from 66 to 85 per cent.

This is how the Hamilton Times cleverly does up the "National Policy" in rhyme:

The Tories now are feeling sad.
There pleasure is annoyed:
Sir John has done the "dirty work."
By telegraphing Boyd.

The Tory journals gleeful were,
But now they are annoyed:
The "tariff increase" John A. spotted,
By telegraphing Boyd.

And so to try and "readjust."
Their forces are deployed:
Intent to counteract or "bust,"
That telegram to Boyd.

MORAL.

'Tis always best to speak the truth.
No matter who's annoyed;
'Twill save the trouble of a lie
By telegraph to Boyd.

London Advertiser: "It is just as well for the electors to bear in mind when Tory stump orators point to the increase of expenditure as a proof of extravagance on the part of the Mackenzie Government, that just before Sir John and his colleagues resigned their portfolios, they made no fewer than 629 new appointments to the offices in the Departments, with salaries of $332,943 per annum. They also made additions to the salaries of 1,381 employees in the same Departments amounting to $152,350 per annum. The annual burden involved in these 2,010 transactions amounted to the enormous sum of $475,230 per annum, or the annual interest on more than ten millions of dollars."

A Western exchange states that when the creditors of the Moorhead Manufacturing Company, London, Ontario, met recently, a report of the special accountant, Mr. McAdams, was submitted, "showing that the books were regularly kept for the purpose of misleading. Mr. Gibbons, solicitor for the creditors, characterized the business arrangements as a fraud and humbug. Three offers were made for the stock, but neither accepted." This is one of the "ruined industries" which the National Policy Tories have been holding up to the country as needing more protection. That is, the people are to be taxed fifteen or twenty per cent. to benefit incapable, rash or dishonest combinations like this one.

Messrs. Hutchison & Green have received their stock of tweeds for the fall and winter trade. They were selected with great care and are very attractive. Every effort will be made to give those who favor them with orders entire satisfaction. They will make their prices very low for the quality of work they produce, and is prepared to do work for as cheaply as any house in the trade. Mr. Hutchison has had many years experience in the business, and is a practical cutter. Mr. Green is also a practical man, and will attend to the business part of the establishment. Their motto is "Small profits and quick returns." Give them a call.

GRAND REFORM DEMONSTRATION AT HILLSBOROUGH.

An Enormous Gathering to do Honor to the Premier—Almost 5,000 Persons Present.

Although the news that Hon. Mr. Mackenzie was to address the electors of East Durham at Millbrook, on Monday, had only been received on the Thursday previous, one of the largest gatherings that ever took place in the Riding met to do him honor, and listen to explanations of political affairs during his control of the public affairs of the Dominion.

The Village Committee deserve the greatest praise for the manner in which they succeeded in decorating the village with arches, evergreens and mottoes, and the citizens outvied each other in the profusion of banners and drapery. The day was very auspicious although the morning looked rather cloudy and suspicious of rain. At a very early hour the place was actively alive in making arrangements for the reception. Carriages and other vehicles were numerous to join in the procession. Farmers' Sons on horseback numbering about one hundred were there to do honor to the leader of the party which gave them a voice in the selection of representatives to our Legislature.

About eleven o'clock trains arrived from Port Hope, Lindsay and Peterborough with large numbers of electors anxious to join the people of Durham in doing honor to Canada's greatest Statesman. Hon. Mr. Mackenzie accompanied by Lewis Ross, Esq., the Reform Candidate and a large number of prominent gentlemen from Port Hope and Hope, and Wm. Kerr, Esq., of Cobourg arrived on the Port Hope train, when after a very warm welcome to the distinguished Statesman, a procession was formed headed by the Port Hope Band, and proceeded to the beautiful grounds of Mr. Madd, close to the village, where P. B. Randall, Esq., Secretary of the East Durham Reform Association read an address to the Honorable the Premier.

In reply he expressed the great pleasure he had in being present to witness such a grand display of enthusiasm. He was confident that where there was so much earnestness the result could not be doubtful on the day of polling. He alluded to the difficulties with which his government was beset on assuming office, the responsibilities they had to meet, the diversity of creeds, and interests to be reconciled. But he expressed his firm confidence that there was honesty and intelligence enough in the great body of electors to place their confidence in a party which had tried their best to reconcile those diversities and secure harmony and unity. He regretted the unavoidable absence of Hon. Mr. Cartwright, and concluded by stating his firm conviction that his government would lose nothing in this great contest.

The party then adjourned for Luncheon and repaired to the Town Hall were about 200 sat down to a substantial repast provided by the committee.

About one o'clock the proceedings were commenced by the chairman, W. W. Renwick, Esq., President of the Reform Association of East Durham, introducing Mr. Kerr, who delivered a very pleasing and able address, in which he exposed the weakness of the Opposition tactics, the folly and hollowness of protection as a remedy for imaginary ills, and defended the policy of the present Reform Government, and made an earnest appeal to the electors present to support Mr. Ross, whose principles were known and could always be found, instead of Mr. Williams whose cast-iron pledge prevented him doing what his better judgment in past had always led him to carry out. He advised the electors to look at the signs of prosperity that everywhere prevailed in the Riding, told them to look for greater prosperity from their own industry and intelligence, and not foolishly imagine that they could be made rich by an Act of Parliament, and that too by increasing their taxation, which was absolute folly.

Hon. Mr. Mackenzie was received with continued cheers. His address was clear, straightforward and convincing and listened to for over two hours in rapt attention. He very clearly exposed the fallacies of the so-called "national policy," shewed that Canadians could expect nothing from it. That a system that had almost brought ruin on the United States must eventually bring depression ultimate ruin on Canada if introduced. He argued that it was safer to follow England and English legislation than American or Chinese isolation. England under a protective system he shewed had her paupers by the tens of thousands, who were half fed, worse clothed and poorly paid. That in England now under a nearly free trade policy the labourers were better paid, used more of the rich necessaries of life, such as meat, tea, sugar &c., than formerly, and that now, while in the United States, protection was driving the workingman almost to communism, in England, no such things were dreaded. He confuted the charges of the Opposition, and in the most scathing manner exposed the extravagance of the Conservatives while in power, and their readiness to sell the country for a few thousand dollars to assist them back to power. He showed that at the time the government was paying $54 per ton for steel rails purchased by himself, they were paying $85 per ton for rails purchased by John A. Macdonald's government. He shewed that while John A. Macdonald let contracts to about 17 per cent. of the lowest tenders, his (Mr. Mackenzie's) government had let contracts to 73 per cent of the lowest tenders, and he concluded a most able and convincing address by condemning the policy of charter selling, of taking Northern Railway money for selfish purposes, and to publish their pourtraits in illustrated newspapers, and asking all who condemned these things to vote to sustain a government that tried honestly to manage the affairs of the Dominion economically and justly, with a due regard to public interests.

Three rousing cheers were given for Mr. Mackenzie, and three for the Queen, after which the procession re-formed and escorted the visitors to the station.

At Port Hope, on his way back to Toronto, the Premier was the recipient of a grand ovation on leaving the residence of Mr. Ross, where, in company with some friends, he partook of tea. His carriage was suddenly made part of an immense procession, which, flanked by about 300 young men—members of the Young Men's Reform Association—bearing torches, and headed by the Port Hope Battalion band, proceeded to the Grand Trunk station. All along the line of march large crowds had congregated to witness the scene, and the appearance of Mr. Mackenzie was the signal for continual and hearty bursts of cheering. At the station every inch of standing room for a considerable distance back was occupied by a crowd who numbered many thousands, and who greeted the Premier and Mr. Ross with round after round of cheers that must have been heard for miles. The Young Men's Reform Association—who managed this magnificent ovation—was anxious that Mr. Mackenzie should deliver to them at least a brief speech before his departure, but as the train was waiting, this was impossible, and the will had to be taken for the deed. Mr. Mackenzie was escorted into the train, and received a farewell burst of applause which was the heartiest heard in Port Hope for many a long day. To say that this demonstration was a success is scarcely to do it justice; it was simply an ovation, and one of which Mr. Mackenzie has good reason to feel proud.

Mr. Ross' election in East Durham by a handsome majority is beyond a doubt if his friends only do their duty by being out to a man on the 17th inst. Many Conservatives have expressed their determination to vote for him in preference to a politician of the non descript order like Col. Williams.

That Unfortunate Illness Again.

Was it Sherry and Water this time.

Port Hope August 30.—A torchlight procession formed by the rising generation of Conservatives, headed by the G. T. R. band, paraded the town last night, and marched to the Grand Trunk Railway station to meet Sir John Macdonald, who was on his way east. A deputation met the Chieftain at Newcastle informing him of the demonstration, but he was unwell. J. Burr Plumb appeared for Sir John and received the names intended for his leader. It was well known what was the reason of his inability to address the procession. The Tories are disgusted. Reay' election is sure.

HON. GEO. BROWN AT OAKWOOD.

A Large and Enthusiastic Demonstration.

On the invitation of the Reformers of South Victoria, the Hon. George Brown addressed a number of the electors of that Riding at Oakwood, on Monday last. The meeting was a very large and influential one. The unanimity and enthusiasm of the Reformers showed that all classes are determined to sink all party feelings in their common interest and to unite in returning the Reform candidate with a large majority.

On Mr. Brown's arrival at Lindsay he was met by Hon. S. C. Wood, Mr. T. Paxton M. P. P., Mr. J. Connolly, the Reform candidate for South Victoria, and a large number of other gentlemen. Remaining there for a couple of hours, Mr. Brown was entertained at lunch by some of the leading Reformers of the town, after which a carriage drive of about an hour through a fertile country brought the party to Oakwood, a large procession having been formed on the way. The band of the 45th Batallion from Lindsay accompanied it. The villagers had decorated the principal streets with banting.

The meeting took place in the Town Hall which was filled to repletion and on the platform were a large number of influential gentlemen. After the Hon. gentleman had been presented with an address by Mr. A. Cameron, President of the Mariposa Reform Association, Mr. Brown returned thanks very cordially, observing that such marks of kindly remembrance and recognition were the best reward a politician could have for any services he might have rendered to his country. Mr. Brown proceeded to address the meeting.

His speech consisted of a review of the first conflicts of the Reform party in Canada on behalf of the rights of the people and against the domination of a Tory oligarchy. It occupied over three hours in delivery, and kept the rapt attention of the audience, who were loud and frequent in their applause. Mr. Brown began by pointing out that an almost constant change in the electoral body was one of the difficulties which prevented the people of Canada from looking back to the past history of their country, and arriving by the lessons it affords, at a knowledge of their duty in the present. If the people could only have a panoramic view of that history they would have little difficulty in judging of the respective merits of Toryism and Reform. He then briefly sketched the first settlement of Canada, from 1500 to 1759, under French rule, and then having divided its subsequent history into four constitutional epochs—from the surrender to Wolfe up to the Constitutional Act of 1791, from that time to the union of Upper and Lower Canada in 1841, from that date to the confederation of the Provinces in 1847, and from Confederation to the present time—he considered each in detail. Passing lightly over the first epoch under British military rule, Mr. Brown explained the Constitutional Act of 1791, dwelling upon the oligarchical system which grew up under it, and the formation of a Family Compact of a most intolerable character. He pointed out the many evils suffered by the people under this system, the establishment of the Church of England as the dominant Church over the whole Province under the plea that the clergy of that Church alone were entitled to the clergy reserves the tenure of immense quantities of the finest lands in the country by that Church, the control of the University, and its other excessive privileges. He recounted the events connected with the struggle to have the clergy reserves divided among the different denominations, showing that great discontent was abroad, and the material progress of the country was retarded by the existing monopoly, and pointing out that the Reform party from the beginning had demanded as the only just and distinct severance of Church from State and a British parliamentary system of responsible government. The long continued oppression ultimately drew a few misguided men into a foolish rebellion, which, however, had the effect of inducing the Imperial Government to send Lord Durham to Canada to enquire into the state of affairs. In his report he denounced the Family Compact, and recommended the very reforms to be granted which the Liberal party had been contending for. The administration of affairs under Lord Sydenham and Sir Charles Bagot was briefly sketched, and the legislation of the Baldwin-Lafontaine Reform Government under the latter Governor the first who really placed the responsible government in the hands of the people of Canada, was eulogised as being of the most splendid character and as the very basis of our system of government. Sir Charles Bagot's early decease was followed by the appointment of Lord Metcalf, who endavored to re-establish the old oligarchical system by making appointments without consulting his Council. The disagreement between him and his Governments the consequent resignation of the latter, the difficulty of forming a Government from the Tory minority, and Lord Metcalf's futile attempt to force an unpopular Government during the ensuing ten months were commented upon. Sir John A. Macdonald, who was just at this time entering public life, showed himself to be a strong Tory partisan by presenting an address from certain portions of the people to Lord Metcalf congratulating him on his arbitrary and unconstitutional abuse of the people's rights. Mr. Brown described the thrilling events of the next few years, when the struggle was for representation by population, showing that the feeling among the people was so strong in its favour that the Macdonald-Draper Government of 1847 was overwhelmingly defeated at the polls, obtaining only 11 of the 56 seats in Upper Canada. That great principle was then thoroughly established and Messrs. Baldwin and Lafontaine formed an Administration to conduct the country out of the deep distress into which the previous years of Tory misrule had brought it. He went on to describe the treasonable and violent tactics of Tories which followed this event, the Rebellion Losses Bill quibble, the stoning and egging of Lord Elgin, the burning of the Parliament Buildings at Montreal, and the Tory manifesto in favour of annexation, remarking that the most violent man in these events, with one exception, was that gentlemanly leader of the gentleman's party, John A. Macdonald. Mr. Brown explained at some length the divisions that subsequently arose between the Liberals of the two Provinces, the French Canadian section fearing that the secularization of the clergy reserves in Upper Canada might lead to the alienation of the Roman Catholic lands in Lower Canada. The result was that the Liberals of Upper Canada were thrown into Opposition until the whole Liberal party was reformed on a new and solid ground. By united and persistent action the Liberals of Upper Canada succeeded ultimately in overthrowing French domination, in establishing for ever representation by population, in separating Church from State, in secularising the clergy reserves, in abolishing the rectories and money grants, and in providing secular education for all the people. Running rapidly over succeeding events to confederation, he showed that the Government of Sir John A. Macdonald, who claimed credit for that great consummation, had opposed it in the face of a vote of want of confidence although they had long before opposed it, thus making their principles for the sake of office. Mr. Brown next reviewed the administration of affairs since the late Government left office, showing how the country had prospered under Reform rule, and strongly repudiating Sir John A. Macdonald's characteristic slander that Canada was going to ruin. After pointing out the utter fallacy, of the protection theory, especially in its effects upon the farmer, he remarked that no man who loved his country could vote for the Government that was guilty of the Intercolonial Railway transaction, the outrageous terms with British Columbia, and of the Pacific Railway charter. Reminding of the duty of Protestant Reformers to the Catholic population, Mr. Brown pointed out that whatever ground they might formerly have had there was now no fear of Catholic encroachment. Protestants were entirely governing, and it was the character of the people of Upper Canada themselves, especially, of Reformers and those who believed in the separation of Church and State, and that everybody should worship his maker according to his conscience, that they should show that justice and kind feeling towards the Catholics to which they are entitled. He referred to Mr. Connolly as one of those Catholics who had always stood by the Liberal party through good and evil report, an intelligent and respectable farmer who had held positions of responsibility among his fellows. He urged all not only to vote for Mr. Connolly, but to give their influence in his favour. Mr. Brown concluded by thanking the audience for listening to him so patiently, and resumed his seat amid loud and continued applause.

The meeting broke up at about half-past six with the usual cheers.

What the Late Government Did, and What it Failed to do.

But in addition to the late Government's blundering, maladministration, dishonesty and corruption, with respect to the loanies, the building and the management of the intercolonial Railway; with respect to the acquisition of the North-West, and the treatment of the Riel difficulty; with respect to the admission of British Columbia, and the monstrously absurd proposal to build the Pacific Railway in ten years; with respect to the Washington Treaty, by which Canadian interests were shamefully sacrificed in the giving up of our fisheries, the navigation of the St. Lawrence, and the abandonment of the Fenian Claims—in addition to its grossly extravagant financial administration, and the enormity of the offence of the Pacific Scandal, of the Northern, Railway, the Secret Service, and Moylan revelations—in addition to all these we have evidences of that Government's incapacity and utter disregard of the rights and liberties of the people, in its failure, although thrice attempted, to carry an election law; in its attempt and failure to carry a Supreme Court Act; in its opposition to the trial of controverted elections by the Courts, in its opposition to simultaneous election; in its opposition to vote by ballot; in its gerrymandering of the constituencies, and in its opposition to the appointment of permanent officials as returning officers, instead of irresponsible partisans, who could if political necessity required it—as had been done on one occasion—act as the mere puppets of the Government of the day, and refuse to return those candidates whom the people had elected at the polls.

THE ILLUSTRATED HISTORY OF CANADA.

The first volume of this magnificent work is now published. The following letter from Mr. Tuttle will be of interest:

THE HISTORY OF CANADA.

MR. EDITOR: Will you allow me space in your columns to communicate to your readers a few statements regarding the Illustrated History of the Dominion of Canada of which I am the editor. The work, which was half completed last year, will be finished according to the original plan, in two grand quarto volumes, in a few weeks. The first volume has been corrected and revised, and is now perfect and ready for subscribers. The second volume is actually in press, and will be in all respects equal to the first. It will contain full page portraits of His Excellency the Marquis of Lorne, and H. R. H. Princess Louise; also beautiful engravings of all the principal towns and cities of the seven Provinces, with over one hundred portraits, scenes, etc. The plates for the whole work will have cost over twenty thousand dollars.

Canvassing agents, whether previously engaged on the work, or desirous of securing territory, are requested to address the firm of Tuttle & Co., to London or Toronto, Ont., or Montreal, P.Q., or C. S. Phinney & Co., Laurencestown, Nova Scotia, according to their location.

I think it no presumption to caution the public against being deceived by cheap works, now being pushed on the market, most of which have been hurriedly compiled, and illustrated with second-hand engravings. Do not subscribe until you have seen my book. You will find it, in your own judgement, by far the most complete. I have prepared a cheap volume, which agents will exhibit, for those whose means will not permit them to buy the more comprehensive work. I have the earnings of eight years in this enterprise, and the honest labor of five years, and, on these grounds, request that my book shall receive an examination before others are purchased.

Yours, Respectfully,
CHAS. R. TUTTLE.

DEPARTMENT OF PUBLIC WORKS,

TO THE ELECTORS

OF THE

EAST RIDING

OF THE

County of Peterboro.'

GENTLEMEN,—

Having received the unanimous nomination of the recent Reform Convention in this Riding, I solicit your support in the approaching Dominion Elections.

I appeal to you with much confidence, as I feel that the Government which has been in power during the last five years is the best the country has ever had, and one which is entitled to the support of all classes of the people.

The present Government has given us the best Temperance Act Canada has ever passed; and I believe that from it alone we may hope for progressive temperance measures, such as I shall at all times deem it my pleasing duty to support.

I am convinced that inasmuch as our Dominion passed through the crisis of commercial depression, which has rested on Europe and America during the last few years, with less distress than any other country, that the demand of the Conservative party for a Protective Policy as a panacea for all evils, is an insincere election cry, which will find no response from the intelligent electors of East Peterborough.

Had Sir John A. Macdonald been elected, he would, in the twenty years of his political life, have given effect to his views, and not have left it to the present government to impose a higher tariff than they found when they took office.

I shall support a revenue tariff, no higher than the expenses of government require, that the people may not be taxed to build up a few manufacturers, who in turn with wealth taken from the people will, as in the United States, aim to control the legislation of the country for their own selfish purposes.

I will deem it my duty at all times to support good measures, by whomsoever proposed.

Any measures affecting the Riding and the people amongst whom I have spent my life will get my earnest attention.

Being but a plain man, and a farmer, whose life has been more devoted to toil than to public speaking, I shall, by a personal canvass, endeavour to explain more f

POLICE COURT AUDIT.

The following is the report handed into the Town Council at their last meeting by Messrs. Pearce and Eastland, appointed some months ago to make a special audit of the Police Court books. Owing to want of space last week the report was crowded out:

To the Mayor and Town Council of the Town of Peterborough:

GENTLEMEN,—In compliance with your instructions we have made a careful audit of the books, papers and records submitted to us relating to the Police Court proceedings for the years 1876, 1877 and 1878 to the 31st day of March, 1877, and find so far as we can ascertain that during that period the Court has taken cognizance of 745 cases, viz: In the year 1876, 141 cases, in the year 1876, 152 cases, in the year 1874, 193 cases, in the year 1875, 149 cases, in the year 1876, 80 cases, and the year 1877, to 30th March, 29 cases.

2. We have prepared statements for the several years exhibiting in detail the number of each case, names of parties, nature of charge, date, cause, total costs, fines, total fine and costs, sums paid into Court, amounts credited to Court in your Treasurers' books, difference between payments into Court and payments into Town Treasurer, sums apparently due by sundries and fines, &c., and on appealed cases of the final disposal of which we found no record.

3 We have also prepared an abstract of the above mentioned details.

4. The Police books, entries, documents, and records, submitted to us were not in all cases sufficiently explicit to enable us to state positively the actual amount of fees collected by the Court; but in a number of cases we have ascertained that the charges made were in terms of the tariff used by the Police Magistrate.

5. In some cases we have entered the total fine and costs in the column headed apparently due by sundries, [illegible] whether payment had or had not been made.

6. In other cases we have simply recommended the amount which was, or in terms of the tariff used by the Court apparently showed, to have been charged, but for lack of information have been unable to complete the entries relating to the cases.

7. From such entries as the following appearing on the minutes of the court:—"Paid Constable $1.00"; "Paid Constable for fees"; "Paid Johnston, etc.," we infer that the Court has made certain payments to Constables, but the entries relating to these payments not being in all cases sufficiently explicit to enable us to ascertain and report on the amounts so paid, we have not been able to make a summary of these payments, but have made a note opposite the several cases in our detailed statement. These items of disbursements have not been audited by us from the amount reported on as apparently due by the court.

8. In other cases we find no record of costs nor could we arrive at the amount so as to make an entry of the same, notably in case No. 247, January 1, 1878, Humphrey O'Dowd against James Murphy and eight others case withdrawn on payment of costs.

9. The following parties appear to have paid fines and costs after committal to jail:—Case No. 168, 1st December, 1873, Charles Hern paid $20.60; case No. 288, September 1st, 1876, Henry Read paid $20.60. So far as we can ascertain these sums do not appear to have been placed to the credit of the Town in the Treasurer's Books.

All of which is respectfully submitted.

Signed } WILLIAM EASTLAND.
EDG. PEARCE.

In the recapitulation of the accounts we find that the total fines and fees exclusive of drunk and vagrants committed, was $8,118.15, of this sum there was paid into Court $6,544.35, and of this amount there was paid to the Town Treasurer $1, 726.80, leaving a balance due the Town by the Court of $817.35, to which is to be added the sum of $33.50 duplicate payments in sundry cases, leaving a balance due the town by the Police Court of $850.85.

LITERARY NOTES.

THROUGH THE DARK CONTINENT, by Henry M. Stanley, Toronto. The Canadian publisher is to be congratulated on the appearance and style of this latest book of travel. It is supplied with a complete stock of maps necessary to an intelligent understanding of the country written about by the explorer, and the incidents and scenery are made visible to the eye by a large number of excellent engravings. Those who have not read Stanley's book, should purchase this Canadian edition, which embraces all the literary matter and plates of the English and American editions at a much lower cost. Published by J. B. Magurn, Toronto, and sold only by subscription.

DR. CHASE'S RECEIPTS.—This useful book is being placed before the Canadian public very largely. It contains information on almost all the subjects of every-day life, with useful hints and recipes of value for every family, respecting cooking, dyeing, home treatment of accidents, the affairs of the human family, confectionery, &c. Also a farriers', painters', tinners', and tobacco department, and health rules which may prove of more value than large doctors' bills. Agents are soliciting subscribers in this county, and we feel satisfied the book will prove a valuable addition to a family library.

ROSE-BELFORD'S CANADIAN MONTHLY AND NATIONAL REVIEW for September has a varied and spirited collection of literature. "A Visit to the Doukhobor" is handsomely illustrated. Among the contents are "Women's Work," by Fidelis; and an able paper by D. Clark, M.D., on "An educated majority and its medical relations." Continued interest is noted —in which serve, if the the tone of the papers in the last number is to be taken as a sample of established ideas.

THE CANADIAN FARMER.—We have received the first number of the Canadian Farmer and Grange Journal, published at Whitby, Ont., by Mr. H. B. Cowman. It is printed in the interest of the Dominion Grange, and claims to be the only weekly agricultural and grange paper printed in Canada.

Wants of All Sizes can be had from 25c to $5.00 upwards at L. Robinson & Co's. tf

ENNISMORE.

POLITICAL MEETING.—On Tuesday of last week, Mr. Hilliard addressed a meeting of electors in the Town Hall, about one third of them being friends of Mr. Bertram. Mr. John D. Hallmark, teacher S. S. No. 4 ably filled the chair. Mr. Hilliard in opening the meeting briefly alluded to the cause of his present visit amongst us. In alluding to the National Policy or tariff question now before the electors, he said it was a question of vast importance for the electors to carefully and impartially weigh before casting their vote. A large part of his time was taken up by reading extracts and prohibitions from different authors in the United States, showing as he said to what extent they were benefitted by protection. He would give no limit of duty, but gave the meeting to distinctly understand that he wanted a readjustment of the tariff for revenue purposes only, so as to meet the legitimate wants of the country, what the readjustment means he did not explain, giving us no basis of duty on any article. He also said the duty on lumber in the States was $2 per thousand feet, and it took all his energy to keep things in order; but how is he going to run his establishment after the National Policy party raise the duty to 25 per cent. on flour, wheat, peas, corn, oats, and pork, without a proportionate raise on lumber or reduction of the American tariff? He finished a speech of about one hour which actually amounted to nothing being one of those kind of harangues which does little good and little harm. Mr. Dumble being called for, said he did not intend making any remarks, he came there for information, not for speechifying; in fact there was nothing to call for a reply. Mr. Scott, the Armstrong gun of the evening, next addressed the meeting, setting forth in his eloquent strain, the benefits Ontario farmers would derive from a protective duty. Dr. Kinsid being loudly called for, received a heartier reception than either the Candidate or Mr. Scott. After three cheers for the Queen, Mr. Hilliard and Mr. Dumble, the meeting quietly dispersed.—Com.

SIR JOHN'S PATENT TARIFF.

To the Editor of the Examiner:

SIR,—No one can be Surprised that the Tory party in these, its evil days, should be driven to extraordinary expedients, With the memory of five long years of opposition behind it, with the onus of the Pacific Scandal still weighing it down, with a desperate contest just before it, it is not strange that the country should be treated to rare exhibitions of its ingenuity in devising schemes to win the day and secure again those glittering seals of office which have been all this time sparkling before, a long way off it is true, but yet not so far as to make their acquisition hopeless to the sanguine Chieftain or out of the question with his newly band. But of all the plans Sir John's ingenuity has yet devised, commend me to the brilliant arrangement for "readjusting" the tariff he recently proposed in the Amphitheatre at Toronto. This new development might be considered as amusing in the highest degree, did not the position of Sir John as the leader of the party now seeking power at the hands of the electorate, and his solemn promise to carry out his ideas if elected, make it a matter for the people of Canada to consider earnestly and intelligently.

Sir John proposes to raise a revenue by encouraging the [illegible] spirits. Divested of all incidentals, that is virtually what his declaration in Toronto implies. "But wave the "Christian," tax silk or cotton, or raw sugar! Put a tax on what the rich man principally uses and what the poor can do without. Perish the thought. I propose to do something better than that. It is true, I would tax woollens and cottons, and all other manufactures which the poor man cannot dispense with in winter or in summer. It is quite true, I have the will to make every farmer pay more for every hat, or coat, or pair of shoes he wears; for his machinery and ploughs and all other instruments he uses in his trade; while I allow the rich merchant and the professional man to have his tea free, and dress his family in silk. But then, if the said merchant or professional man does not spend his money in these, he can buy brandy, and all kinds of liquors. Take the tax off coffee and see the brandy that will be called for, and the revenue that measure will secure. And then, Sir John calculates likewise the workingman will have higher wages when this panacea for all ills is in force. He does not, we confess, make it very clear that more remuneration will follow the use of brandy on his pet scheme. On the other hand he shows reprehensible backwardness in proving that any such remuneration will be received at all, though while distress is so prevalent in the States, the very perfection of protected countries, the proof of this might be, it must be confessed a difficult task for even a more astute politician than Sir John. He imagines, however, or pretends to imagine, that wages will be higher. The increase will be spent, however, not in buying necessaries for the labourers family, not in clothing them more comfortably, not in providing for any wants or comforts of theirs, but in supplying the workman with whiskey and brandy. Shades of our ancestors hover around us and rejoice while beholding the brilliancy of Canada's "greatest statesman." Manufacturers excluded, the luxuries of the rich admitted free and the interest of $131,000,000, together with all the outlay necessary for the vast public works already under contract to be paid by a tax on brandy! Verily Sir John in the transmutations of his career has concocted many a bubble, but in its extent, its originality, its brilliancy and it may be added its impracticability, this excells them all.

Yours truly,

Can the Truth Overtake a Lie?

Investigation discloses the fact that the lady reported in the Associated Press dispatches about Aug. 18th, to have died in Chicago after two week's use of some reputed remedy for consumption, and not named Allen's Anti-Fat, but had used a preparation put up by a regular physician in Lenawee, Pa. Allen's Anti-Fat is manufactured in Buffalo, N.Y., by the undersigned. We have already sold over 100,000 bottles of it. It has therefore been taken by thousands, and we challenge proof that it has ever harmed anybody, when the reduction of flesh was not from 20 to 40 pounds, leaving them healthy and strong. We offer $5,000 for such proof, and, moreover, we hereby offer $5,000 reward for evidence proving that it contained poison or injurious drugs. We also offer $5,000 if we cannot prove that it has reduced numbers of persons as stated above, and always without injury. It is said a lie will outwind the truth any time; but we trust that these newspapers that have inserted the publication of the above falsehood, will behold the lady's death by the use of Anti-Fat (which is only put up by us the term "Anti-Fat" never was heard of) and will express the sorrow that they have conveyed by publishing this refutation.

Deal Gently With the Erring.

Deal gently with the erring.
You know not of the power
With which the dark temptation came
In some unguarded hour:
You may not know how earnestly
They struggled, or how well,
Until the hour of weakness came
And sadly them they fell.

Think gently of the erring.
O, do not then forget,
However darkly stained by sin,
He is thy brother yet.
Heir of the self-same heritage—
Child of the self-same God!
He hath but stumbled in the path
Thou hath in weakness trod.

Speak gently to the erring.
For, it is not enough
That innocence and peace are ours,
Without thy censure rough!
It sure must be a heavy lot
That sin cricshed heart to bear,
And they who shave a happier lot
May well their censure spare.

Speak kindly to the erring.
Thou yet may'st lead them back,
With holy words and tones of love
From misery's thorny track.
Forget not thou hast often sinned,
And sinful yet may be,
Deal gently with the erring one,
As God has dealt with the.

The Farmers and the National Policy.

Extracts from an Able Speech by Mr. Charlton, M. P.

The following, in reference to the National Policy as it affects the farmers, is well worth perusal by those who are inclined to put any faith in the wild promises made by the Opposition. It is part of a speech recently delivered by Mr. John Charlton, the able representative in the House of Commons for North Norfolk, at La Salette:

The National Policy promises many things, as Satan once did when he showed our Saviour the kingdom of the world and promised them all as a reward for the worship of himself. Very few of its promises could be redeemed. A few coal mine owners in Nova Scotia would be benefited by the proposed duty on coal, a few salt makers might be benefitted by a a duty upon salt and the manufacturers might receive a temporary benefit, which, however, would be sure to be followed by over production and serious embarrassment to the entire manufacturing interest. No one had yet had the hardihood to assert that the policy would benefit the lumbermen, the fishermen, or the shipping interest. The coal, salt and manufacturing interest, however, could not carry Sir John into power, and the alliance of special interests for securing advantage at the public expense must be extended, or the movement would fail. As the great mass of the population of Canada are engaged in farming, it was clearly evident that laws must be made for their support. As they were to be the especial sufferers from the policy of the taxation party, it seemed an act of hardihood to attempt this; but the farmer had been roped in by delusive promises in the United States in former years, and our Protectionists commenced a careful study of the horn books and easy lessons for new beginners of the American Protectionists; they were soon able to talk quite learnedly of home markets, living within yourselves, drain of specie and balance of trade; they were not slow in comprehending that the bosh about a home market which had worked so admirably in the United States, would be their best card. The trap is now nicely set, and in addition to the home market bait another stale dodge of the American protectionist is adopted. We are to have

PROTECTION FOR OUR FARMERS.

Grain brought in to Canada is to be subjected to duty and by that means our farmers are to receive higher prices and be compensated for their share of the loss of $15,000,000 annually, which would be sustained by Canada in sacrifice of revenue and increased price of goods in consequence of the proposed protection policy. Now, just at this point he (Mr. C.) wished to state another bottom fact which he wished his hearers to bear in mind. If we consumed all our product of wheat or any other grain, and in addition to this imported of the same grain for home consumption, as England did while the Corn Laws were in force, then a duty would raise the price in our market. If, on the contrary, we fully supplied our own wants and had besides this a surplus to export, then the price received for the surplus exported would govern the price of the entire crop, and a duty upon imports of the same grain or article would not raise the price here. As proof of this statement he (Mr. C.) would adduce one fact. When the American Government abrogated the reciprocity treaty some twelve years ago a duty was imposed upon grain imported. This duty did not raise the price of any grain in the American market of which that country raised a surplus for export, for the simple reason that the price received for the surplus in the English market governed the price of the entire crop in the United States; and as a matter of fact, although the duty was designed to protect the American farmer from the Canadian, our markets are and have been as good as theirs, and will continue to be so just so long as both countries have a surplus to sell to England. To illustrate the extent and character of export and import movements of grain in Canada, he (Mr. C.) would treat of that period of time covered by the first six months of the fiscal year which closed June 30, 1878, viz., from July 1 to December 31, 1877, the entire year would more favorably illustrate the position he would take, but he had not full returns for the last half of it. The customs returns show that our

EXPORT AND IMPORT OF WHEAT,

for the six months in question (reducing flour to wheat at the rate of 4½ bushels to the barrel) were: Imports 6,285,156 bushels; value, $7,486,309; exports, 7,713,891 bushels; value, $10,863 623. Thus it would be seen that our exports exceed our imports 1,388,433 bushels in quantity and $3,366,519 in value, and that we sold the American wheat and flour we handled for $1,500,000 more than we paid, which represented our earnings for freight and profits as middle men in the business. Had this wheat and flour been excluded by a duty we should have exported an actual surplus of 288,433 bushels instead of 7,473,591 bushels and the price received by our farmers would have been no higher, while shippers, millers coopers, merchants and banks would have been deprived of a large and profitable business. If a portion of this American wheat was consumed in Canada it does not alter the case in the least, as we only in that case exported so much more of our own growth. If the bonding system had been introduced it would have proved a vexatious restriction which, while it conferred benefit upon no interest in Canada, would have driven almost the entire amount of this trade to rival American routes. The Canadian farmer then may safely conclude that a duty upon wheat and flour would not have benefitted him, while it would have been disastrous to various Canadian business interests.

THE EXPORT AND IMPORT OF OATS

for the same period, reducing oatmeal to oats at the rate of ten bushels to the barrel, was: Imports, 976,719 bushels; value, $312,345 Exports, 1,676,296 bushels; value, $645,716 ($11,873 of the amount imported, and $364,-262 of the amount exported, was oatmeal). Excess of exports over imports, quantity, 699,-577 bushels; value, $333,371. We sold the American oats we handled for $126,000, in round numbers, more than we paid for them, which represented our profits from freights, milling commissions, etc. If we had imported none, many of our oatmeal mills could not have been operated profitably, but we would still have had a surplus of nearly 600,577 bushels of our own to sell, which would have governed the price for Canada. Our farmers would not have benefitted in the slightest degree by a duty upon Canadian oats, while many important business interests would have been seriously injured.

THE EXPORT AND IMPORT OF BARLEY

for the same period was: Import, 270,727 bushels; value, $123,920; export, 6,713,857 bushels; value, $4,922,527. Average price per bushel of what we bought, 45½ cents; average price received for what we sold, 60 cents. It will be noticed that we sold over twenty thousand less than we bought, and that we sold at a higher price than we paid. The small amount that we bought either enabled us to sell that much more of our own growth than we otherwise would have done, at a profit of 14½ cents per bushel on the exchange or it was bought for the purpose of mixing with our own superior grades, and sold back to the Americans at an advance. In either case we made by the transaction. A duty on barley would do our farmers no good, for we have an enormous surplus for export. It is quite evident that the American consumer pays the duty of fifteen cents, for the average price received by us for barley during the eleven years since the duty was imposed, at the expiration of the Reciprocity Treaty, has been three and a quarter cents higher than the average price received by us during the twelve years the treaty was in force, when there was no duty Even if it were true that the duty does diminish the price we would, otherwise receive, we cannot remedy the matter, for we cannot repeal the American duty and we cannot affect the price by imposing a duty upon the insignificant amount imported into Canada. There can be no doubt, however, that in this case, as in all cases where an article is bought at the current market rates of the world for home consumption, the consumer pays the duty.

REPORTS AND IMPORTS OF PEAS AND RYE

During the period under consideration, we exported 1,720,157 bushels of peas, receiving at the same $1,311, 151; we imported none. Of course, a duty would have had no influence upon the price of peas. Our import of rye of the same period was 92,526 bushels, costing $10,600; our export was 257,963, for which we received $180,125. It will be seen that we received a higher price for what we sold than what we paid for what we bought, and as our exports were nearly three times as great as our imports, a duty could have had no effect upon the price in Canada.

EXPORTS AND IMPORTS OF INDIAN CORN.

There is one grain only in the entire list of cereals which would be increased in price in Canada by the imposition of a duty, The farmers in the corn belt might perhaps consider that a duty on corn would be advantageous to them. They should consider, however, that the duty would be considered an unjust burden by the great mass of the people of the Dominion; that standing upon its own merits it could scarcely command a dozen votes in the House, and that it could only be obtained by joining hands with other taxation schemes which would take from the farmers who raise corn ten times as much as they could hope to gain from the corn duty. He (Mr. C.) would show to their satisfaction that the importation of American corn was highly advantageous to the Dominion at large. Our import of corn from July 1st to Dec. 31st., 1877, was 4,311,152, costing $3,-112,348, on an average of 50 1-6 cents per bushel. Our export for the same period was 2,616,999 bushels, for which we received $1,-638,279, or an average of 76 cents per bushel. Upon the amount exported, which we handled as factors or middlemen we made, as a country, in freights, profits, etc., over 25 cents per bushel, or $468,999 in round number, which was an item of great importance to our shippers and business classes. The amount retained for home consumption was 1,792,133 bushels. If we had not consumed this corn we would have fattened fewer cattle and would have consumed a larger amount of oats, peas and barley. The country loses nothing by converting American corn into beef and mutton if it yields a profit and enriches the soil. Neither does it lose anything by buying corn and selling oats, peas and barley to the same amount, provided these coarse grains bring more that the corn costs. and if they did not do it we would not buy the corn. Taking the Custom House entries as correct, the average price received for oats (including oatmeal ten bushels to barrel) was 45c. per bushel, add for barley 60c. and for peas 84c., and the average cost of corn was 50 1 6. Calculating upon this basis, the exchange of 56 lbs. of corn for 56 lbs. of oats gave Canada a gain of 18c., for 56 lbs. of barley, a gain of 20 cents; and for 56 lbs. of peas, a gain of 35 cents; upon this basis it was fair to estimate the gain to Canada from buying American corn and selling our higher priced coarse grains in place of it, at 20c. per bushel, or a gain to Canada from the purchase of corn for consumption and the increased sale of our higher priced coarse grains to a corresponding amount of $358,-000. Add to this our profits as middlemen in buying and selling American corn during the same period, and we have as the advantage accruing to Canada from the trade in American corn in the last six months of the year 1877 of $813,000. Is it to be supposed that the 190 ridings benefitted by this trade will give up that advantage for the dozen or so where corn is raised? He (Mr. C.) could assure them that they would not, and even in the event of Canada ever endorsing Sir John's National Policy the duty imposed upon Indian corn would be as small as it was possible to make it and save appearances. In 1870, during the few months that Sir John's National Policy was in force it was three cents per bushel. It would not be likely to be higher next time and on the surplus corn crop of Forfolk, that would amount to less than $2,000 a year for the whole country, a big thing to get in exchange for the great burdens of taxation which the duties upon all the farmer had to buy would impose on the country.

WE HAVE PROTECTION ON BUTTER AND CHEESE.

He (Mr. C.) would close his remarks upon protection to farmers, by referring them to the fact that we have a protective duty of 10 per cent. on horses, sheep and cattle, of 4 cents per pound on butter, and of 3 cents on cheese. Our export of all these articles is largely in excess of our imports. Of horses we exported in 1876, 718,206, and imported 1,476. Of cattle the export was 23,655, the import 8,066, of sheep the export was 209,899, the import 11,617. Does any one suppose we received more for what we sold in consequence of the duty of 10 per cent. upon what we bought? Was not the price, on the contrary, governed by the price received in the market to which we exported? Such was certainly the case. In the year 1877 we exported 18,479,500 pounds of butter;and imported 198,581, chiefly into Manitoba and British Columbia, for home consumption. In the same year we exported 37,709,912 pounds of cheese, and imported for consumption 163,-230 pounds. The present quotations of butter and cheese prove that the price is governed by the price in England, which is our market. Common sense will teach any man who is possessed of that quality and will stop to reflect, that an import duty cannot raise the price in our market of any product of the farm of which we export a surplus, and the case of the duties upon butter and cheese furnishes ample proof of the fact.

Extraordinary Sermon in a Church.

A Dingwall correspondent sends the following notes of a sermon delivered on the 20th ult. by the well-known minister of a certain parish in Ross-shire. His text was the Song of Solomon, 3rd chap., 9th verse. Among other remarkable sentences, he uttered the following:—"My dearest friends, King Solomon made himself a chariot of the wood of Lebanon; he was engaged in the business of generality and meanings, therefore he made the pillars thereof of silver, the bottom of gold, the covering of purple, and he paved or engraved in the midst of it with love for the young damsel that was to be united to him as a partner—he made it according to the testimonial concealment which silence and art afforded. It would duty them to make a chariot like that now, for it was paved with love. Go forth, ye daughter of Jerusalem, and behold King Solomon with the crown wherewith his mother, Bathsheba, the grand-daughter of Ahithophel, crowned him on the day of his espousals with Pharaoh's daughter. If that crown were found now a great price would be given for it, great value would be set upon it; but I don't know if it would be worth much after all. That is my opinion of it. My Christian friends, these are terrible alarms of war in these times, and these in power are only seeking their own grandeur; titles and decorates are what they want, mens, constantly poisonous, and one of them pretends to be a great hero; it is my opinion that it is easy to be a hero when all around him are cowards. My christian friends, I have to tell you that there are some designing, cunning meshking villians going about. They go into churches and hall of how few are there, and they criticise sermons. It is my opinion that they should get their skulls cracked on the highway, and they deserve it. I do not intend to take any steps against them. I have God to be their executioner. My Christian friends, although only a few attend on Sabbath (the number of people present on that day was three women, one man, and a boy,) it is the hundreds that one meets through the week that we can do good to, Some go about the country preaching, and great crowds follow them; they run great distances after them and little good they get of it after all. They care nothing about them or their affairs through the week—that is my opinion of it. May God follow with his blessing all that has been said at this time. Amen."

How to Choose a Horse.

An English paper tells us that the purchasers of horses for the French army always endeavor to obtain a first look at the animal when he is in the stable, noting if the animal separts himself equally well off all his legs, and, and if one seems to yield, especially examining it. Attention is then directed to the largeness of the pupil of of the eye, which ought to be more dilated when in the stable than when exposed to light. After the animal has been led out of the stable, the eye ought to again be examined to see if the pupil has been contracted; if not, the sight is feeble. Others to test the power of vision, feign to strike the forehand with the hand. If the hollow over the eyes be profound and the temple grey, old age is to be concluded. Wounds about the temple suggest attacks of staggers; and when the end of the nose pre sents circular scars, it may be concluded the the horse has been twitched with a cord to insure his quietness while being shod or having had to submit to some painful operation.

Winter vs. Spring Wheat Flour.

It is an exploded idea that New Process flour cannot be made from winter wheat, and we quite agree with Mr. Abernathy, who, our readers will observe, states in the present issue that "patent" flour can be made from good grades of winter that is fully equal to spring wheat flour. We are hardly prepared to follow him, however, when he gives the palm of excellence to winter wheat flour. The fact that many bread-makers do not succeed well with flour made from spring wheat is because they do not know how to handle it. They generally knead it the same as they do winter wheat flour, which is unnecessary, since it has a greater percentage of gluten. As ordinary bread-maker will knead a strong spring wheat flour to death; for no matte how strong a flour may be, the elasticity of the gluten can be destroyed by too much kneading. Remember this when your customers complain that they cannot make good bread from your strong flour.—American Miller.

JOY AMONG THE CHILDREN.

COPELAND'S SWEET CASTOR OIL, equally suitable for children and adults. Endorsed by over 600 doctors in Canada. The difficulty of administering nauseous medicines and the desirability of having them pleasant to the taste, induced T. Copeland to undertake researches, which resulted in the discovery of a Sweet Castor Oil, perfectly palatable, of the same warmth and medicinal qualities as the ordinary Castor Oil; and while equally safe and harmless yet acting with more certainty, and producing neither nausea nor griping. Some children say it is honey; others call it syrup—they all say they like it. One parent says—My children drink it like wine;" another—"We had to hide the bottle or they would have finished it right off;" another—"My little girl has taken it twice without any trouble, and does not know what it is, though she hates the ordinary Castor Oil, and we never could get her to take it without a fight;" yet another—"I wish you success of your Sweet Castor Oil; it is a splendid thing—sure to take the place of all common oil."

The extraordinary demand for this improvement of a staple household medicine has brought fraudulent imitations into the market, but the public can guard themselves against substitutes (which unprincipled parties are attempting to sell on the reputation of this article) by seeing that the name, COPELAND'S SWEET CASTOR OIL, is on both wrapper and direction label.

The undersigned having purchased Messrs T. Copeland & Co's interest in the above preparation, are now manufacturing it from the original recipe.

Mitchell's Belladonna Improved India Rubber Porous Plaster.

There never has been a time when the healing of so many different diseases has been treated by outward application as the present. It is an undisputed fact that over half of the entire population of the globe resort to the use of ordinary plasters.

The principal ingredients used in making these Plasters are Gum Olibanum—or better known as the Frankincense of the Bible—Rubber, and Burgundy Pitch; which, when scientifically compounded, is full of electricity, and when combined with the pure medicinal gums, is found to be one greatest healing mediums ever brought before the human race.

They are acknowledged by all who have used them to act quicker than any other Plasters they ever before tried, and that one of these Plasters will do more real service than a hundred of the ordinary kind. All other Plasters are slow of action, and require to be worn continually to effect a cure; but with these it is entirely different; the instant one is applied the patient will feel its effect.

They possess all the soothing, warming, supporting and strengthening qualities of all other Plasters. Many who have been relieved of RHEUMATISM, TICDOLOREUX, and various other pains in the KIDNEYS, BREAST or SIDE, and believe it is solely done by the electrical qualities which the Porous Plasters contain, and which is imparted to the system, then restoring them to a healthy condition.

They are very soft and pliable, still very adhesive; and a sure cure for WEAK BACKS PAINS IN THE SIDE AND BREAST, and are invaluable to those who have a COLD of long standing, and often prevents CONSUMPTION. Some even tell us they believe they were entirely cured by the use of them of a long stand Consumption.

HONEST GOVERNMENT AND REVENUE TARIFF.

Britain's Trade Policy and British Connection.

SUPPORT THE LIBERAL STANDARD BEARERS.

Record Your Votes on the 17th for Mr Bertram and Mr. Buck.

Electors in voting be sure to mark your ballot in the blank space opposite the candidate's name. The following is the new form of ballot paper and directions for voting:

Election for the Electoral District of West Peterborough.

I	BERTRAM. John Bertram, of the Town of Peterborough, Merchant.	X
II	HILLIARD. George Hilliard, of the Town of Peterborough, Lumber Merchant.

Election for the Electoral District of East Peterborough.

I	BUCK. Thomas Buck, of the Township of Asphodel, Yeoman.	X
II	BURNHAM. John Burnham, of the Village of Ashburnham, Barrister at Law.

It will be observed that the cross lines, forming squares opposite the candidates' names have been dispensed with, so that there can be no room for quibbling as to the precise spot for marking the ballot paper. In the above the elector has marked his ballot in favor of Mr. Bertram and Mr. Buck, according to the following instructions:

DIRECTIONS FOR THE GUIDANCE OF ELECTORS IN VOTING.

The voter is to vote only for one candidate unless two members are to be returned for the Electoral District, in which case he may vote for one or for two candidates as he thinks fit.

The voter will go into one of the compartments and with a pencil there provided, place a cross in the division containing the name or names of the candidate or candidates for whom he votes, thus X.

The voter will then fold the ballot, so as to show a portion of the back only, with the number and the initials of the Deputy Returning Officer; he will close it in the usual way and deliver it to the Deputy Returning Officer, who will place it in the ballot box. The voter will then forthwith quit the polling station.

If a voter inadvertently spoils a ballot paper he can return it to the proper officer, who on being satisfied of the fact, will give him another.

If the voter votes for more candidates than he is entitled to vote for, or place any mark on the ballot paper by which he can afterwards be identified, his vote will be void, and will not be counted.

If a voter takes a ballot paper out of the polling station, or fraudulently puts any other paper into the ballot box than the ballot paper given him by the Deputy Returning Officer, he will be subject to be punished by a fine of five hundred dollars, or by imprisonment for a term not exceeding six months, with or without hard labor.

The Decadence of Toryism in Canada.

(From the St. John N. B. News.)

It is a favorite idea of the Tories that but for the Pacific Scandal revelations they could have held power in Canada indefinitely. Nothing could be further from the fact, as I shall endeavor to show. From the date of the First Parliament in 1867, Sir John Macdonald's power in Canada has been steadily on the wane. At that date he had the control of every Province of the Union, excepting Nova Scotia only, within his grasp. He had in the local Governments of Ontario and Quebec close allies for both offensive and defensive purposes. By the wonderful system of Dual Representation he had interlocked the local and federal system so that during the sessions of the Dominion Parliament the three allied Governments held their headquarters in the Public Buildings at Ottawa, cheek by jowl together.

But the first local election in Ontario struck the largest Province from his grasp in 1871; this was "the beginning of the end." In the Dominion elections of 1872, before the Pacific Scandal was made known, two of his Cabinet Ministers, and the two most influential besides himself, were defeated at the polls. I refer to Sir Francis Hincks, his Finance Minister, who was defeated in Renfrew and had to go to Vancouver's Island for a seat, and Sir George E. Cartier who was beaten in Montreal and had to take refuge in Manitoba. Hon. Mr. Chapais, his [illegible] General, had been before [illegible] Kamouraska, and had been hoisted into the Senate. Hon. A. G. Archibald, his Secretary of State had also before been defeated in Colchester, and had to retire from the Government.

Sir John Macdonald lost his right arm in 1873, when Cartier died. Indeed, without the latter he could not have ruled in Canada at all, except for brief periods. In the death of Hilyard Cameron he sustained an irreparable loss in the West. These men, so necessary to him and the continuance of his power, cannot be replaced. Men of such wide spread influence as they, controlling from twenty to forty votes each, are few; they cannot be grown in a day, and Sir John is already an old man. The Tories are moreover especially weak in "coming men" just now.

Then came the Pacific Scandal revelations of 1873 and the downfall of the Macdonald Government. It was only a natural and inevitable result. The three knights, seeing the rapid decadence of their power, made one last desperate struggle, but were overpowered in the conflict.

Still the end was not yet. Quebec, the citadel of Toryism, remained in their hands. But just as Montcalm met Wolfe and was overthrown, so Dr. Bonaventure met defeat on the Plains of Abraham and in a night the overwhelming vote mustered could not Liberal flag flung out from the [illegible] staff of the citadel.

The men must be blind who cannot see in this march of great events, in this capture of Provinces after Provinces, how strong and steady as well as rapid has been the onward march of Liberal principles and how rapid and constant has been the decadence of Toryism in Canada.

Toryism tries to rally again under Sir John, but all its elements of strength are gone. Cartier dead, Hillyard-Cameron dead, Hincks grown old and out of public life, Galt opposed to his old-time leader, and the Pacific scandal hanging like a blight about the few that remain of the great compact of 1867. They have had their day. The country is tired of them, done with them, and no rallying cry that can be raised will suffice to restore them to power.

Sir John in 1876. vs. Sir John in 1878.

Sir John Macdonald has been running to and fro in the west—its wonder's no in the east, you know—and howling himself hoarse for a duty on all kinds of grain and flour that are grown or ground in the United States. He says the farmers are being ruined, though he cannot cite a case or quote a figure in support of his new-found interest in behalf of the agriculturists—an interest which is wonderfully striking at election times. Now let us see what he said in a lucid interval during his speech in support of his first resolution in favor of protection, which he moved on the 10th of March, 1876. On the 570th page of Hansard he is thus officially reported:

"I should like to say a few words about the agriculturists, because the previous discussions were principally on the manufacturing interests. I shall not assert on their part that they come here (to Parliament) in formâ pauperis, or that they are suffering from distress or pecuniary difficulty. I am not going to say anything of the kind; no man could truthfully say that the farmers cannot live in COMFORT AND HAPPINESS UNDER THE PRESENT TARIFF."

These words were uttered in a speech wherein Sir John blamed Mr. Mackenzie, a moment before, for not coming forward at this moment to the relief of the country in its exigency and need."

Does it not follow that if the farmers could live in "comfort and happiness" under a 17½ per cent. tariff in 1876, a truly disastrous year, they can live under the same tariff with more "comfort and happiness" in 1878, when we are emerging from the period of depression and when good prices and good markets will this fall be offered them? Most assuredly. Then is not dastardly for Sir John to try and delude the farmers into consenting to a system of heavy taxation which will not enrich them at all, but which, on the contrary, will make them poorer, inasmuch as everything they purchase for their own use will cost them as much more than it now does, as there will be increased duties to pay? We think so. If the farmers will only read Sir John's speeches they will find in them an antidote for the political and fiscal poison he is trying to make them swallow in order to catch their votes and help him back to power.—Hamilton Times.

The Most Prosperous Country in the World.

It is the practice of Tory politicians just now—and notably so of Messrs. Hilliard and Burnham—to refer to the United States as "the most prosperous country in the world." This is said in the face of facts which ought to strike even the most rabid national policy Tory dumb with amazement.

Is it a sign of prosperity to see in the manufacturing State of Massachusetts forty-seven of the largest woollen factories idle, and nearly thirty others running on half time or less?

Is it a sign of prosperity to find in that State thirty thousand people idle for want of work, and begging bread from door to door to keep themselves and their little ones from starvation?

Is it a sign of prosperity to find in the great manufacturing city of Philadelphia 15,000 empty houses—their occupants gone forth as tramps into every corner of the Union?

Is it a sign of prosperity to find in the State of Pennsylvania, out of 714 completed iron furnaces, 478 out of blast—their proprietors bankrupt and their employees out of work?

Is it a sign of prosperity to find in factories of Ohio, Indiana, Illinois, Missouri, Iowa, Minnesota and Wisconsin standing guard over their reapers and mowers in the harvest field, shot gun in hand, to protect them against destruction by tramps in search of honest employment?

Is it a sign of prosperity to find that for the year ending 30th June American railways valued at $300,000,000 were either places in the hands of receivers or sold as bankrupt property?

Finally, is it a sign of prosperity to find in the city of New York 1,622 bankrupts within the past eight

ELECTORS TO THE POLLS.

The time for argument has passed; the time for action is at hand. No energy must flag from this day till Mr. Bertram and Mr. Buck are placed at the head of the poll next Tuesday by a majority which shall not leave it doubtful as to where old Peterborough is to be found. Mr. Mackenzie has been traduced and reviled as only Tories can traduce and revile. Let Peterborough make it manifest that no policy of slander will prevail with her sturdy sons.

The man who five years ago was driven from power, who dared not meet the verdict of the people's representatives on the floor of Parliament again asks for that confidence he so shamefully abused. To the polls electors, and convince him we will not endure a crime, the blackest which has yet stained the page of our national history.

The hero of the National Policy, the founder of a system which would tax everybody more and make no greater return to anybody, asks these constituencies to aid him in riding to office on his demagogic cry. Will the electors of Peterborough help him? Then to the polls on Tuesday and be the first to cast a ballot against this national humbug fallacy. The time is short. Were we asked for advice it would be still work! work! WORK! WORK! Only let this be done and amid the shouts of victory that will rise on the 17th from many a riding, there will be none longer or louder, as there will be no more sincere than those which ascend from the Peterboroughs.

Electors of Peterborough, do you want honest Government for the next five years? Then Vote on Tuesday next for Messrs Bertram and Buck.

TO THE ELECTORS.

There are only four days more until the last vote shall be polled in this contest. These four days should be spent in honest earnest work. Let your committees have their share of the work fixed that every man will know his place, and let the right men be apportioned to do the work, a Reform victory is certain; but let it be such a victory as every one will be proud of. And see to it that every friend of the liberal cause does record his vote. The Tories have had a long, full, and fair trial in Canada. Sir John Macdonald held office for about twenty years, and it is doubtful if any other public man on the Continent of America has left a worse record behind him. Politically and personally, his conduct cannot be defended, and what he has done in the past he would do in the future. The liberal government in the course of the past five years, has made a record of which any country might be proud. But in addition to the late Government's blundering, maladministration, dishonesty and corruption, with respect to the location, the building and the management of the Intercolonial Railway; with respect to the acquisition of the North-West, and the treatment of the Riel difficulty; with respect to the extension of British Columbia, and the monstrously absurd proposal to build the Pacific Railway in ten years; with respect to the Washington Treaty, by which Canadian interests were shamefully sacrificed in the giving up of our fisheries, the navigation of the St. Lawrence, and the abandonment of the Fenian Claims—in addition to its grossly extravagant financial administration, and the enormity of the offence of the Pacific Scandal, of the Northern Railway, the Secret Service, and Moyian revelations—in addition to all these we have evidences of that Government's incapacity and utter disregard of the rights and liberties of the people, in its failure, although thrice attempted, to carry an election law, in its attempt and failure to carry a Supreme Court Act; in its opposition to the trial of controverted elections by the Courts, in its opposition to simultaneous elections; in its opposition to vote by ballot; in its gerrymandering of the constituencies, and in its opposition to the appointment of permanent officials as returning officers, instead of irresponsible partizans, who could if political necessity required it—as had been done on one occasion in this Riding—act as the mere puppets of the Government of the day, and refuse to return those candidates whom the people had elected at the polls. And hence, all should show their detestation of those scandals by going early to the polls and voting for Mr. Bertram and Mr. Buck. Is there any comparison between the ability of the two candidates now seeking the suffrages of the electors of West Peterborough? Any elector who heard Mr. Hilliard speak in the Opera House on Monday evening, must have come to the conclusion that any "two year old school boy" could have handled his subject with more effect. It was simply painful to listen to him misquoting extracts from newspapers to mislead, and endeavouring to put in his time. But Canada expects every man to do his duty. The evil which threatens this country at the present time is as serious in its nature as the tyranny of a Bonaparte which threatened the British Empire when the words "England expects every man to do his duty" were repeated by Lord Nelson. We are threatened to have thrust upon us as our rulers a host of politicians who, by their wanton acts of corruption, have again and again brought disgrace to the doors of Canadians, and made this country a reproach and a by-word among the nations of the Earth. Let every Canadian do his duty; and let him do it with a single eye to the welfare of his country and in no better way can he do this than by going early to the polls on Tuesday next, and record his vote for the Reform candidates and honest government.

"Tax the Farmer and enrich the manufacturer" is the motto of Messrs Burnham and Hilliard.

THE COARSE GRAIN HUMBUG.

One of the staple grievances, which at the present moment is doing service on a score of plat forms is the admission, free of duty, of coarse grains from the United States. Stump orators almost get beside themselves in their enthusiasm, and journals of the ultra blue stripe, glow with eloquence when depicting the blessings Canada must inevitably fall heir to in case those imbeciles at Ottawa would rise to the dignity of their position and impose a tax on these products. The chief complaints are in reference to oats barley and corn. Let us examine each in succession. It is true, we believe that the trade returns show a greater importation than exportation of oats. But the less oats we grow, the more land lies ready for barley and peas, for both of which we find a ready and remunerative market. If our people can get oats for a less figure than that at which they can grow them, and can sell instead, barley and peas amounting to twice as much from the same space of ground. Who shall say then nay! And besides this, it is by means of these importations that the lumbering business alone at present can be carried on. This trade is in a very depressed condition, and were not the capitalists who invest in it allowed to draw large supplies from the States at a time when they could not be got at home their operations would come to a standstill and the country be materially injured. Another circumstance which must be borne in mind, is that the oats imported from abroad, give employment to a large number of mills which grind them into oatmeal. No less than 33,717 barrels of this was exported to various places in 1877. So that a large portion of imported oats are brought here merely to furnish employment and profit to Canadians. And after all, when was there a time at which oats in Canada were cheaper than they are and have been in that paradise of protectionists, the United States of America.

With respect to barley, of which we import little, it need merely be asked of what possible benefit a tax on this could be. It is surely unnecessary to provide against importing that of which we receive none, unless prevention be the principle of the schoolmaster who contended that it was useless to whip boys after a mischief was done, and that the punishment should always come first. But we can export our barley and buy corn. Corn saves peas and other cereals in use on the farm. Its fattening properties are greater than either peas or barley. One bushel of it will go farther than one bushel of either of these others. Last year we exported about 6,000,000 bushels of barley, brought over 8,000,000 bushels of corn, and made $197,000 on the transaction. And yet the taxationists in their zeal for the farmer would deprive him of this privilege. They would prevent his importing corn and compel him to use barley and peas and other products for which, had he the power to supply the place, he could get a good price elsewhere. Verily, but the friend of the farmer is kind.

Among the cries raised by the present Opposition, that of protection to farmers is the most insane and absurd, as we have shown time and again, and we have not the least hesitation in saying that the honest yeomanry of this country and this county in particular, will record their votes on Tuesday next in favor of a Revenue Tariff and Honest Government, and against Messrs. Hilliard and Burnham, the taxationists candidates for East and West Peterborough.

MR. SCOTT AND HIS "N. P." OATS.

At the Keene meeting on Friday evening last, Mr. W. H. Scott stated that Americans were now offering to deliver oats in Peterborough at 25 cents per bushel, and called on the electors to support the National Policy to prevent this. The electors of this county are so conversant with Mr. Scott, that they do not require to be warned against accepting a single statement made by that gentleman, until they have proved the truth of it. In this case he is again handling the truth very carelessly. Americans are not offering oats at 25 cents per bushel in Peterborough; but if they are Mr. James Miller, Reeve of Otonabee, authorizes us to state that he will take from 20,000 to 30,000 bushels of good oats at that money. If Mr. Scott has any authority for his statement here is an excellent opportunity for him to make it good.

TORY PROTECTIONISTS.

The Tory party in Canada has assumed many poses in the course of its existence. It has been blown by almost as many names as the chameleon has colors. Once it was plain Tory, then Conservative, then Liberal Conservative, then Union and Progress, then Liberal Conservative again. Its opinions and its principles were quite as changeable and unstable as its names. There is scarcely anything Sir John Macdonald bitterly opposed, that he did not afterwards as strenuously advocate. Were it not for this, one might be surprised at the assumption of the protectionists' garb by the present opposition. It is not astonishing, however, as it is. A period of commercial depression has just passed over the world, Canada has shared to some extent in the common calamity. Hard times are upon us, and these patriots, these worshippers of "Home Industry," are at once willing as of old, to turn the prevailing dissatisfaction to account, and try to ride into office again by means of this hobby. This pretence of the country's good is however, altogether too thin. It is merely an election cry, and nothing more. Anyone who wants to know how much the Tories are protectionists at heart, had better turn to some of their sayings in the past. We take the liberty of reproducing a few.—In 1873 after that panacea for all ills—a tax on flour had been tried, and failed, and when Sir John's Government had been forced to strangle their own bantling, the Knight of Kingston in a parliamentary speech said :—

"The flour tax had been imposed as an assertion of the independence of the country against American exclusive legislation. It had been maintained in this view until it had been found to work oppressively on certain sections of the community, and so now it was repealed as a step in the right direction.

And yet forsooth, this same man is now holding up this very policy as the sum and substance of all that is good and beneficial!

But Sir John is not alone in testifying to the evils of protection. In 1874 Dr. Tupper said, when opposing the increase of the tariff for pure revenue purposes :—

I fear that the Hon. Minister is seeking to introduce the thin end of the protective wedge which will eventually work ruin and desolation to the Maritime Provinces.

Let the Hon. Minister look at the neighboring Republic, and he would find that the policy of that country had swept their flag off the seas and given to others the carrying trade of the world.

So said the "Great Stretcher" in 1874. But in 1873 when the spoils of office glitters before him, he suddenly changes his mind and asks Nova Scotia to sanction that very policy which he knows will "work ruin and desolation" to her shores.

Nor was the Tory press behind in vigorously attacking any tendency to protection, which might be shown. The Toronto Leader, that bluest of the blue, for instance said :—

We must therefore express our unfeigned satisfaction that the sense of the House has been so unmistakably pronounced in favor of the abolition of duties, and that the exploded theory of protection receives such little favor in the High Court of Parliament.

And the "Great Thunderer" of Montreal, the immaculate Thomas White, himself nodded approbation in the following words :—

Let our wise men run the Dominionship as nearly as possible on free trade plans and we shall have no fears for her safety.

And they are the men who have the presumption to come before the electorate of Canada, and claim to be protectionists. It was not until the meeting of manufacturers dissatisfied, and discontented with the hard times had passed some foolish resolutions that these wise, and patriotic sages ever dreamt of uttering one word in favor of the protectionist scheme. The evils of protection are quite sufficient in themselves to deter hundreds from voting for any men who sanction in any way its fallacies. But let those who are sincerely attached to that theory ponder some of the utterances of its present advocates, and decide if they can, that those who spoke to them, are the men to carry out their wishes. The protection cry is like many other sorry pretensions. It is an election hoax pure and simple, as such it will be regarded by the people of this Dominion, and as such it will meet on the 17th of September with a fitting condemnation.

Who sold the Pacific railway charter? Who took the Northern railway funds? Who stole the secret service money? Who wasted eight millions on the Intercolonia railway? Sir John Macdonald—Messrs. Hilliard and Burnham are pledged to return him to power. Electors of Peterboro', see to it that they haven't the chance.

RATHER INCONSISTENT.

Some Temperance men are going about canvassing for Mr. Hilliard on the grounds that he is the Temperance Candidate. How they can afford to act so disingenuously puzzles us, since the Review (which is considered authority by a few Tories,) distinctly stated that Mr. Hilliard never was declared to be the Temperance Candidate. Indeed the man who claims to be a temperance man and will give his vote to return John A. Macdonald to power has a stronger sense of political than of temperance principles, no matter how loud his professions may be.

NO PROTECTION FOR LABOR.

Let the workingmen of Peterborough ask themselves what would be the result of protection for them? Would it increase their wages? Will Sir John protect them from the competition of workingmen in the United States, who come here seeking for work? Let them remember that the National Policy offers no protection to them, while it does promise to increase the cost of living, and remembering this, let them vote for Mr. Bertram and Mr. Buck.

THE PORK QUESTION.

Conservative orators every where are stating that American pork is being slaughtered in Canadian markets to the great injury of Canadian farmers. At present, American pork pays nearly 33 per cent. only. But if it were free, and had to be sacrificed to get rid of it, surely protection is not doing much for American farmers. The Canadian farmers desire protection to force them to sacrifice their pork in Great Britain, or some other market. The United States is the best protected country in the world, and yet we are told they have to slaughter their pork in our market to get rid of it.

Electors of Peterborough County, Vote for Messrs Bertram and Buck on Tuesday, next, and against direct Taxation.

At the outset of the campaign the Tories in East and West Peterborough, counted their majorities in the hundreds but at latest accounts they have come down to 16 in West and 120 in the East, with a large number of doubtful ones at that. They will probably take another tumble during the next week when they will find the majorities turned the other way.

EDITORIAL NOTES.

Mr. Buck held a very successful series of meetings during the past week. Large numbers of electors came out, and great enthusiasm was manifested.

Mr. Thos. Weeks, the much beaten editor of the Montreal Gazette has accepted the Conservative nomination for Cardwell, which is considered safe for any Tory.

In Chicago on Saturday, 375 petitions in bankruptcy were filed; in New York on the same day there were 304 petitions, and in Cincinnati over 100 petitions. In all parts of the United States they were filed last week by the hundreds, and yet men like Mr. Hilliard and Mr. Burnham point us to the United States as the most prosperous country on the face of the Globe.

When in St. John, New Brunswick, the other week, Mr. Mackenzie made a charge, of which the St. John Freeman says :—"Mr. Tilley did not deny that $1,200 was paid to the Illustrated News for publishing the portraits of himself and his colleagues and the accompanying biographical notices, but he wishes the public to believe that this was a useful expenditure in the immigration service." Great as have been the developments of the past five years, it is quite evident that all the rascalities of the John A. Macdonald regime have not yet been fully ventilated. $1,200 for cabinet pictures of the illustrious baker's dozen! Did they mean to lay the foundation of a rogues' gallery!

Sir John Macdonald acknowledged in a late speech that his character is not any better than it should be. In fact he as good as acknowledged that some of the charges which his organs have been for years denying are true. But then, said Sir John, we strike a high average among us. There is Tilley—he drinks nothing but cold water; and there is Gibbs—he is pious. Sir John's idea is that though he is very bad some of his colleagues make up for his deficiencies. Perhaps Mr. Hilliard's idea in aspiring to a seat in Parliament is that he may raise the average tone of morality in the Tory ranks. Possibly he might if elected, but that is not exactly the thing that the electors of West Peterboro' send a member to the House of Commons for.

The reports from the south as to the progress of the yellow fever are simply heartrending, and are almost beyond belief. The dread disease is still on the increase, and is fairly decimating the population. In Grenada, Memphis and Vicksburg, it has been most fatal, but every day adds to the number of places where it has broken out. In New Orleans the fever is epidemic, but is not nearly so bad as elsewhere. Fearful destitution and suffering prevail, and contributions of money and food are pouring in from all quarters. It is expected that the climax of the fever will be reached about the 15th instant, when the number of cases will probably grow less every day until the frost kills the disease altogether.

At Selwyn on Monday night at a meeting of Mr. Hilliards, Mr. Bertram repeated the statement made by (Mr. H.) at his Young's Point meeting 'that Sir John A. Macdonald was righteously driven from office." Messrs. Hilliard and Scott were both present, and dare not publicly deny it, as there were several at the meeting who heard him make the statement at Young's Point. And yet their mouth piece, the Review, has the audacity to deny it for them. However the Electors of this Riding know how to value any statement made by the Editor of that paper since the election at which he was a candidate. Mr. Hilliard has even since during his personal canvass, to more than one of the electors admitted that Sir John was rightly turned out of office, and that he could not defend his actions. Yet he asks the electors to send him to Ottawa to support such a man. O, Consistency!

The Tory-Liberal-Conservative-Union and Progress party are naturally anxious all memory of the Pacific Scandal should be blotted from the mind of the country. These "gentlemen you know" are very indignant that anyone should revive that unpleasant episode in Sir John's career. It may be sound Tory ethics to pass over a national crime. Any one worthy the title of "honorable" would resign when he felt that his country had lost confidence in him. The man who would deliberately set himself to corrupting the electors, of his land, by bargaining away a great public work to a contractor is worthy of and must receive the detestation of every lover of his country and of ever honest man. The Conservatives might have made some amends by rejecting this leader. In electing him again to his old position, they have condoned his action, they have made themselves criminal as well as he. The consequences therefore are as much the lot of Messrs. Hilliard and Burnham, as if Sir John Macdonald himself, and we trust the electors of Peterborough will make it apparent.

PROTECTION TO THE WORKINGMEN.

To the Editor of the Examiner:

Sir,—Kindly permit me to occupy a space in your valuable issue, in the interest of us workingmen. The time is fast approaching when the electors will be called upon to exercise their franchise in returning representatives to the Commons of our Dominion. The present sectional aspects of the political controversy as promulgated by the Conservative orators and press, has called forth this dissertation, from one whose views are being greatly disturbed; and who wishes to place before his fellow-workman in your town, and of the Dominion—many of whom he is personally acquainted with—a few paragraphs, which they may be permitted to classify, weigh, and digest at their leisure, placing them in conjunction with their immediate and probable experiences, and I have no doubt, will thereby render a verdict beneficial to their own interests, and the welfare of their families.

They will have noticed that one of the largest planks in the Tory platform, and possibly the only one on which they hope to reverse public opinion in that of "protection to native industries." Sir John Macdonald, in addressing an audience in our city at the Amphitheatre on its opening night, advocated a revision of the tariff, by its increase on coal, flour meat, wearing apparel, furniture and machinery. We will place these probabilities in actual operation, arrange them so as to exemplify the far reaching views of the most obdurate of protectionists. What would be our situation as workingmen? How would we be placed financially, provincially, or even politically. Our fair Dominion, one of the most flourishing countries in the world, is in its infancy, with only four millions of inhabitants; beside us in close proximity in fact, very closely allied in certain branches of trade and commerce, is place of a country with a population of forty millions, working for past years beneath this favored protection policy, with a result which we now find has culminated in wide-spread bankruptcy to manufacturers and merchants, and universal misery to our brethren, the workingmen. Even the worst is not yet, present appearances portend more astounding, and heartrending results, consequent on keeping the country to themselves. These forty millions have been supplied with their home manufactures, until their requirements are more than satisfied; the cost of raw material and labor was so increased in value, that they virtually shut themselves in from all foreign markets; hence, the stagnation in trade and the exporting of surplus stocks to our Dominion at prices far below their actual cost. What's the result? Loss of home trade, their foreign trade at sell. The greater proportion of their manufactories and mills closed; tens of thousands of workingmen unemployed and thrown on the cold charities of a protective policy, with no means of obtaining those necessaries, which increased prices have placed further beyond their reach. Therein disaffection and murmuring arise, misery reigns and crime runs rampant o'er the length and breadth of that highly favoured land.

Our Dominion, with Sir John's National Policy adopted, with factories, mills and refineries in full blast and work for all, we should find rushing into our country, to participate in the apparent success, tens of thousands of those workingmen from over the border—that favoured land of protectionists, where we find them wandering from town to city, city to village and village to hamlet in search of employment; the competition in labor would then be so great that as a consequence wages would be reduced and the cheapest hands would get the employment that we expect to get under the new regime. All those things necessary for our subsistance increased in value; the manufacturers reaping the rich harvest anticipated by all; while we, the poor deluded workingmen, standing aghast resting on cheap labor and dear living.

Workingmen of Canada, pause, consider, calculate, and demonstrate by a reply to this what advantage such a state of things would be to us!

With our foreign trade at a minimum; our consumers only one-tenth of the neighbouring Republic, in a few years, at most, manufacturers and mill-owners would have the satisfaction (!) of finding their home trade exhausted, their money investments a dead loss, and their mills and factories standing monuments to a penny wise and pound foolish policy; themselves bankrupt, and the country agitating for a renewal of the present fiscal policy which we would now unwittingly throw away.

Having resided in this city for some time past as a workingman, my habits of observation, coupled with my experience has considerably altered my previous convictions in this particular, being employed in one of the largest wholesale establishments in Canada, a firm whose business relations extend from St. John, New Brunswick to Manitoba, a firm that five years ago imported all its goods from the States and Great Britain, but at present manufactures three-fourths of those goods as excellent in quality and at as cheap a rate as the imported article, in fact, our productions has entirely driven the American manufacturer of these lines from Canada. We want more such energetic firms in this Canada of ours, wherein rest the means for building up the country, and placing us independent of any revision of the tariff; give employment to skilled workmen, of which there are in Canada as good as any on the continent, and thereby allowing merchants and manufacturers to keep goods at a reasonable and world-wide marketable value. Therefore let me prevail on the intelligent workmen to use every means in their power to keep the fiscal policy, which we now enjoy to our advantage and the advantage of the farmers, manufacturers and merchants, consequently to the prosperity of all classes and the good of the country. Exercise your calm judgment which I fully believe will not lead you to involve the country in temporary ruin, and make times far worse than at present, but throw in your vote and influence for your present excellent representative, and assist thereby to keep in the management of our loved Dominion the present able Cabinet Ministers, the leader of whom is one of ourselves, one who has by his untiring energy, honesty of purpose, persevering and pains-taking labor, arisen to the highest emolument in the gift of our country. One who since he has occupied that honorable position has never relaxed that earnestness of purpose, but faithfully carried out those principles of justice and reform which has been the guiding points in an honest career; one whose master mind has adopted the best policy calculated to offer substantial benefit to us workingmen and the country,

A leader whom God has pleased to lift
Above the level of a common gift,
Receives a chieftainship and rules on earth
Though he may boast no complex tree of birth.
Nor even the music of a lofty name,
For power dwells not in trioxs of outward show
But in the inner force; the earnest know
Who, when the slings of Tory force are hurled,
Face round and hold at bay a yelping crowd,
And in his prosperous hours has but this pride:
To be the workman's help and workman's guide.

Apologising for occupying so much space, with your permission I remain,

Truly yours,
A WORKMAN.

NOTICE TO CONTRACTORS.

SEALED TENDERS addressed to the Secretary of Public Works, and endorsed "Tender for Canal and Lock at St. Anne," will be received at this office until the arrival of the Eastern and Western mails on TUESDAY THE 8TH DAY OF OCTOBER next, for the construction of a Lock and the formation of approaches to it on the land ward side of the present lock at St. Anne.

A map of the locality, together with plans and specification of the works to be done, can be seen at this office and at the Resident Engineer's office, St. Anne, on and after TUESDAY, THE 27TH DAY OF SEPTEMBER next, at either of which places printed forms of Tender can be obtained.

Contractors are requested to bear in mind that tenders will not be considered unless made strictly in accordance with the printed forms, and—in the case of firms—except there are attached the actual signatures, the nature of the occupation and residence of each member of the same; and further, an accepted Bank cheque for the sum of $2,500 must accompany the Tender, which sum shall be forfeited if the party tendering declines entering into contract for the works, at the rates and on the terms stated in the offer submitted.

The cheque thus sent in will be returned to the respective parties whose tenders are not accepted.

For the due fulfilment of the contract, satisfactory security will be required by the deposit of money to the amount of five per cent. on the bulk sum of the contract; of which the sum sent in with the Tender will be considered a part.

Ninety per cent. only of the progress estimates will be paid until the completion of the work.

To each Tender must be attached the actual signatures of two responsible and solvent persons, residents of the Dominion, willing to become sureties for the carrying out of these conditions, as well as the due performance of the works embraced in the Contract.

This Department does not, however, bind itself to accept the lowest or any tender.

By order,
F. BRAUN,
Secretary.

PETERBOROUGH, SEPT. 12, 1878.

LOCAL NEWS.

The Ice Cream business is fearfully depressed just now. This is another evidence of the necessity for a Readjust.

New Patterns.—Mrs. McEachern's new stock of patterns for fall and winter season is expected to arrive next Monday.

Excursion to Midland.—A cheap excursion to Midland is announced for Thursday, 26th instant, when the Midland Railway will issue return tickets for one dollar.

Shooting the School.—The contract for the apparatus for heating the central school buildings, Nos. 1 and 2, by steam, has been awarded to Mr. Wm. Hamilton for $1,499.

Groceries.—Mr. C. Young, of Ashburnham, announces by posters a large and choice stock of fresh groceries, wines and liquors, which he is selling at very low prices. Give him a call.

Cattle for England.—Messrs. Geo. Webber and F. Winch left town last week with a cargo of cattle and sheep for England. We hope they may find their enterprise suitably rewarded.

Rochester Excursion.—Remember the cheap excursion on Thursday next 19th instant, to Rochester, leaving here by regular morning train and arriving at Rochester same evening at 4.45. Full particulars can be seen by poster.

Floral Guide.—We have received a copy of Vick's Floral Guide for Autumn, 1878. It is filled as usual with highly interesting matter to gardeners and florists. Copies can be had by applying to James Vick, Rochester, N. Y.

The Lakefield "News."—As rumored a short time ago, the Lakefield News has changed hands. Mr. Gordon sold out to Messrs. Sheridan and Wrightson, who have changed the politics of the paper from Conservative to Independent.

New Firm.—Messrs. W. Hamilton and F. Palmer have purchased the business lately carried on by Messrs. Dobson & Rowe, Ashburnham, and will carry on the manufacture of brooms and whisks in all its branches. We bespeak for the new firm a liberal support.

Personal.—Mr. Mark Greystock and Miss Greystock left for England on Thursday morning last, to spend a short time visiting the scenes of Mr. G's. early days.....Geo. A. Cox, Esq., has been attending the General Conference of the Methodist Church, in Montreal, during the past week.

Sabbath School Anniversary Tea.—The Beaufort Union Sabbath School will hold their twenty-fifth anniversary on Friday, the 20th instant. As the building in which they meet was pronounced last fall, and as there is yet one payment to meet, we think our friends in South Monaghan and vicinity should liberally support such a deserving cause.

Fresh Arrivals.—Mr. John Elder is now receiving his new fall and winter goods, and has now in stock fifty three packages and bales. As he anticipates doing a much larger business this season than formerly, he has bought the stock on the best possible terms and will sell at very low prices for cash. Full particulars in next weeks advertisement.

Vocal Lessons.—As Mr. Stanley, the tenor, will be in town for a couple of weeks or more, he has decided to give a course of lessons in vocal culture. He has studied under some of the best masters and is himself a finished vocalist. This is an opportunity our singers should take advantage of. Mr. Stanley can be addressed care of Wilson & Davis.

Sturgeon Point Regatta.—The regatta at Sturgeon Point, to-morrow and next day, will doubtless attract many from this section to avail themselves of the low fare trip offered by the Midland Railway. $1200 are offered in prizes and as several of the leading oarsmen in America have entered, and are already on the ground, some very interesting races may be looked for. Full particulars to be seen by posters, and advertisement in another column.

Cole's Circus.—Cole's "Million Dollar Show," the coming of which was looked forward to by many, exhibited here on Thursday last, and was greeted with a big crowd, the seating capacity of their spacious canvass being well taken up. The street parade was very good, and the same may be said of the inside show. The sea lion attracted a good deal of attention in the menagerie department and in the museum great interest was manifested in Captain and Mrs Bates. The description given them in these columns a short time ago was fully borne out. Miss Bates is not in good health and was unable to appear in Lindsay. The circus performance was made up of the usual acrobatic feats, &c.

Horticultural Show.—The fall show of the Peterborough Horticultural Society was opened yesterday afternoon in Bradburn's Hall, and is pronounced the best yet held by the Society. The entries this year number 376, exceeding that of last year by about 100. There is a splendid display of fruit and vegetables. Cut flowers and plants. Special prizes are awarded for pumkins—(saving chickens)—and quite a number in each class are exhibited. At the time of our visit the Judges had not made their awards, and consequently we are unable to publish the prize list this week. A concert for last evening was announced, when Mrs. Bowman and Messrs. Stanley and Templeton Brown were expected to take part. The exhibition remains open to-day.

Excursions.—To-morrow seems to be a favored day for excursions—there being no less than four announced to take place from town. Cornwall Lodge of Good Templars has chartered the Arlington and will hold their pic-nic at Pine Tree Island, Rice Lake, giving a concert in Harwood in the evening. Friendship Temple goes to Bonnie Falls, leaving Mudcat Station at 8 a.m., and connecting with the steamer Cruiser at Lakefield. The benefit excursion to Bandmaster Miller will be held on the Golden Eye to Myl Wild, and as an efficient committee have the management, no doubt a pleasant time may be expected. The regatta at Sturgeon Point Hotel will also doubtless attract many excursionists, and arrangements have been made to convey passengers by both boat and train.

Commutation.—There are numbers of supporters of Mr. Bertram in Peterborough anxious to hear whether he will contest the riding, and are working well. But we earnestly recommend them to leave themselves in complete accord with the Committee, in order that their energy may be put to the best advantage. It is necessary to have all the workers thoroughly organized, so that all the vigor put forth may be used in the proper place and to the best advantage. Every man who is willing to work on polling day, or who has a team that he is willing to give, or help of any kind that he can lend, will do Mr. Bertram service by attending the Committee meeting in the rooms of the Young Men's Reform Association on Saturday evening.

Grand Concert.—A grand concert will be given in Bradburn's Hall, on Wednesday evening next, Sept 18th. The Managing Committee have succeeded in engaging Mr. W. H. Stanley, the celebrated English tenor, who sang last season with the famous Abbott Concert Company, and was formerly engaged with the Kellogg Opera Troupe and in Gilmore's Band Concerts. He has a tenor voice of large compass and great strength, yet his tones are pure and he is generally reckoned one of the best tenors in America. He leaves for Europe next month under engagement with one of the leading troupes. Besides Mr. Stanley, we are informed, there will be Mrs. Chambers and Mr. Templeton Brown, our own favorite tenor and other leading singers, also the Peterborough Musical Society, with Mr. Blanchard as accompanist. With such an array of talent the Hall will doubtless be crowded.

Personal to the Ladies.—Wanted, by a middle-aged, competent, good looking, and respectable woman, with means, to correspond with a maiden or widow lady between the ages of 30 and 40, with a view to matrimony; the lady must be of good family and connections, and possess good personal appearance, comely, not foolish pride; gentleman is tall, has brown hair, fair skin, gray eyes, whiskers, with blue and twinkle in his eye; does not smoke, chew, or take snuff; does not swear, play cards, dice, or any other game of chance; does not bet on horse races, or any other system of gambling; is neither poor nor rich, learned nor unlearned, quiet nor lively, hypocrite nor opponent, egotistical nor modest; is blunt in religion; no tyrant in politics; a man of few words; kind, considerate, owns Shropshire; loves peace and quietness; loves home and home comforts; loves plain and neat things out of the track of custom, and in many ways odd and original; shy headed and modest as a woman; politics and matrimony mixed; cause given and required; photo exchanged. Address one week to Box 297, Globe Office, Toronto.

The above appeared in the Globe of Saturday last. Now, Girls!

New Lodge of Trentino Boys.—On Monday evening last W. D. Madden, Esq., of Napanee, Grand Master of the Protestant Association of Trentino Boys of British North America, inaugurated a lodge of that order in this town, and installed the following officers:—

Bro. James Byrne.....W.M.
Bro. James Martin.....D.M.
Bro. S. Jamieson.....Secty
Bro. John Gilbert.....Treas.
Bro. Thos. Kennedy.....Chaplain
Bro. John Lesher.....D. of C.
Bro. D. Gilbert.....Tyler

Committee.—Bro's James McCrundle, J. M. Mowry, Geo. Jay, R. Purser and R. Scott.

After the closing of the Lodge the members entertained Bro. Madden, together with a number of friends to a supper got up by Mr. Purser, of the Commercial House. After justice had been done the good things provided by Mine Host, the usual loyal and patriotic toasts were given and responded to, but which, owing to lack of space, we are compelled to omit. Mr. Madden left for home on Tuesday morning, taking with him the best wishes of all whom he came in contact with.

Bear.—While three or four of our amateur sportsmen were out perforating black squirrels and tame woodchucks with overruled buckshot last Sunday in Mr. Ledgate's woods, a bear ravenous with the thoughts of last year's huckleberries and with a look that would undermine the constitution of even an electioneering parliamentarian, with that horrid stare, peculiar to wild animals in the last stages of consumption, suddenly confronted, our now completely astonished friends. Unwilling to cease his hearship with their buckshot and not liking the thought of tackling him with jack knives, after a hurried, unceremonious consultation, it was resolved, that whilst one of their number left in the pursuit of more men and ammunition, the rest would engage the attention of his lordship, remembering not to throw stones lest the animal might find 'discretion' the better part of valour' and retreat. But alas! for human hopes! Scenting brimstones and small guns in the distance, our thoroughly frightened brain left for parts unknown, impressing upon the minds of the tired hunters the instability of the affairs of the world in general and his bearship in particular.

POLICE COURT.

ASSAULTS.

On Saturday Robert Montgomery was charged with an assault. Case dismissed for want of evidence.

On Monday David Smith was fined $20 and $3.40 for an unprovoked assault on a young gentleman. Indefault he was sent to gaol for two months.

CREATING DISTURBANCE.

On Tuesday afternoon Bill Montgomery was arrested for making a disturbance and fighting. A man named Mackie, from Ottawa, was also arrested on the same charge. They were committed to gaol, the case being adjourned till Monday, bail being refused. On Monday Montgomery was fined $5. On the same morning he was also fined $3 and $3 costs for an assault on George Donnelly on the 29th of August.

DRUNK.

On Wednesday Charles Dolan was fined $3 for being drunk on the streets the previous night.

BREACH OF GAME LAWS.

On Wednesday Lorenzo Hammond, of Rice Lake, was charged by the Peterborough Fish and Game Protective Society with shooting ducks on the Otonabee River during the close season. He admitted the facts but pleaded ignorance of the change of date by recent legislation, and consequently at the wish of the prosecution the lowest fine $5 with costs $3.40 was imposed.

Frank Eno was charged by the Society with shooting a duck on the Little Lake on Saturday, August 17th. He also pleaded ignorance and was fined $5 with cost $3.35.

DRUNK.

The following are the drunks during the week:—Chas. Dolan fined $3; Maurice O'Brien $1; F. Smith, $3; I. Peaiscotte, $3; R. Patrick, $3; John Thornton, $3 and $1 costs; T. Rule, $5 and $3 costs; Geo. Welsh, $3; Ed. Johnston, $3; Robert Treawith, $3.

Political Meeting at Centreville.

In consequence of a challenge given by Mr. Carnegie to Mr. Bertram to discuss the question of protection, a meeting was held at the Town Hall, Centreville, when the two above named gentlemen addressed half hour alternately a large number of the farmers of South Monaghan and Cavan, on the question of a Revenue Tariff vs. Protection.

Mr. Jos. Barnard, Reeve of South Monaghan, presided over the meeting.

Mr. Carnegie occupied the first half hour, during which he vainly endeavored to lay down some broad basis upon which to build his superstructure, but in this he utterly failed, continually flying off at a tangent from the main question.

Mr. Bertram followed, and in the half hour allotted to him completely demolished Mr. Carnegie's arguments and carried the war into Africa, proving to the satisfaction of the audience, as shown by the frequent applause, that the subject of all legislation should be the greatest good to the greatest portions of the common wealth, and that so long as the gross amount of our exports of farm produce exceeds the imports it will be impossible to protect the farmer.

The speakers occupied half hour alternately for three hours, when the Chairman directed that Mr. Carnegie speak for twenty minutes and that Mr. Bertram have ten minutes to reply, and that the meeting close, which arrangement was accordingly carried out. A vote of thanks to the Chairman, cheers for the Queen and the candidates closed one of the most orderly meetings of the campaign.

THE NOMINATIONS.

The nomination of candidates for the representation of the East and West Riding of the County of Peterborough, in the House of Commons, took place on Tuesday,

IN THE WEST RIDING

the proceedings passed off very quietly, there being no public speaking.

IN THE EAST RIDING

after the nomination of candidates, the electors adjourned to the Town Hall, Norwood, where addresses were delivered by Messrs. Burnham, Bank, Dumble and Carnegie. The meeting was keenly in favor of Mr. Bank, and the telling arguments advanced by both Mr. Dumble and Mr. Bank were either left unanswered by their opponents, or side issues brought up to detract attention from them. Every all appearances Mr. Burnham is considerably cast fallen now that the polling day draws nigh. The easily achieved victory of which his party so fondly boasted is now changed to certain defeat, and the expression of the electors at Norwood on Tuesday, proves conclusively, that however they may regard Mr. Burnham personally, they cannot vote for any candidate pledged to support a party with such a record as that of Sir John Macdonald,

The Workingmen's Meeting.

ABLE ADDRESS BY MR A. F. JURY.

A LARGE AND ENTHUSIASTIC AUDIENCE.

No Protection Needed for the Workingmen.

The Government's Policy ably defended.—And the "National Policy" theories Exploded.—A Very Cause not Succeeded.—Reasons why the Workingmen should support Messrs. Bertram and Pratt.

On Monday evening last, the largest meeting of the campaign was held in Bradburn's Hall, when Mr. A. F. Jury of Toronto, delivered an address to the workingmen of the Town of Peterborough.

Arthur Rutherford, Esq., occupied the chair and in opening the meeting said he had been requested by a deputation of the workingmen to accept the position in which he was placed this evening. He had not taken any great interest in this Campaign so far, but as the speaker of the evening was a working man and the meeting a working man's meeting, he as a working man felt it a great honor to preside. He asked for a fair and impartial hearing and if those opposed to Mr. Jury, wished for discussion, an hour would be allowed them.

Mayor Toole, said it was the intention of one of the workmen of the town to reply to Mr. Jury, and as the gentleman had not yet arrived he wished to make the announcement on his behalf.

Mr. Jury, then came forward and was received with cheers. He said it had been stated that he was not a genuine workingman, but he wished his audience to understand he was a journey man mechanic who worked every day of his life—had been working on the bench till last Monday morning and after a few days would be working again. The great question in this Campaign was one particularly interesting to the workingmen of the Country. It was one which was to be either for their advantage or disadvantage (Hear, hear) The National Policy men told the farmer that with protection their products would be enhanced in value and the prices of their implements de reduced. In the same breath also they told the mechanic and workingman that protection was what they needed; that with it the price of labor would be increased while the necessaries of life would be reduced. He would ask any man of common sense how such things could be. If the farmer was to receive a higher price for his products surely the cost of living to the mechanic and laborer would be correspondingly increased, and vice versa (Hear, hear) He then took up the Review containing the report of the speeches delivered by Messrs Wright and Fraser and proceeded to review them. The first point Mr. Fraser endeavored to make was out of the question of "What to hold the duty?" Mr. Fraser says it is the exporter. The speaker wished to differ with him. If Mr. Fraser's theory was true then one Country could make another pay its taxes, and England could make the world pay her taxes. The opinions of Messrs Fraser and Wright, however, he did not think would be taken in preference to those of Gladstone and Disraeli, who were the leading statesmen in the world and whose opinions were borne out by such political economists as J. Stuart Mills, Adams, Smith and others. (Applause) It was absurd to think that one nation could tax another. He repudiated the statement that the Canadian farmer paid the 15 per cent duty on barley going to the United States. He supposed that by their reasoning if a 30 per cent duty were put on they would lose 30c; if a 60 per cent one they would lose 60 cents, and if a $1 duty they would lose a dollar a bushel or in other words give it away. (Applause.) This was an utter absurdity. Then they had a horse story. That the Canadian also lost on the prices of his horses. Look at it in another way. Suppose men of different nations—an American and an Englishman—went into Grant's Auction Room, Toronto, and purchased a horse each, both paying $100 for their horse, could it be said one paid more for his horse than the other, but we would tell the American will have to pay $20 duty to bring his horse home while the Englishman takes his free. But He would ask them to remember that the same horse which was worth $120 in the States was only worth $100 here. Americans were, he believed, a sharper people than to pay Canadians $20 more than the horse was worth. Mr. Fraser had said the reason the Ministry gave for not increasing the tariff was because the present was not the time to deal with it. They however, had increased it 2½ per cent, and when that increase was made Dr. Tupper had strongly opposed, it saying that it was but inserting the thin edge of the protection wedge, that would ruin the country. Was there any consistency in this? Did it look consistent, especially when the Treasury Benches were in sight? (No, no.) Sir John Macdonald had deceived the people of Canada. Even in his speech in Peterborough in 1872, he made promises in regard to the tariff, but he failed to carry them out. The man who once deceives you cannot be again trusted. We are told the Americans are making a slaughter market of Canada for their wares and cabinet ware is picked out as one of those lines that suffers the most. But on referring to government statistics and trade returns he found that instead of the importation of furniture from the United States to Canada increasing, it was largely reduced, as in 1877 we imported $300,000 while in 1877 only $263,000 worth was imported. In cigars during the same period there was a decrease of $50,000. Suppose the Americans sell in Canada an article for 75 cents that costs $1 to manufacture it, we are told they are ruining the country. Arguing on the same hypothesis if they gave the article for nothing the country would be a total wreck. He however, had yet to learn that any sane man believed it would impoverish him to give him an article for nothing. (Applause.) He thought his Conservative friends at least would admit that the Grits lired office. If to continue in office they had only to pass Acts of Parliament, he thought it would be the easiest way to secure a renewed tenure of office. (Laughter.) Protection was a fallacy. It had been tried in the United States and was found wanting. In support of his argument he quoted Professor Sumner, of Yale College, who attributed the cause of the present crisis to over protection. This man was not a politician, but was one from whom a candid, honest expression might be expected. As he (Mr. Jury) was a representative of the Trades Union, he kept posted on the questions affecting labor and the working men. He saw by a report form one of the labouring men's own journals that in one large cotton manufactory in Rhode Island the owner had given notice that wages were to be reduced from 97 cents per day to 84 cents. On the other hand, the Industrial Review, the official organ of the English trades unionists, showed that the cotton operatives there were receiving to-day from 4s 6d to 5s 6d. These facts showed the absurdity of the statement often made by the protectionists, that wages were always high under a high tariff and low under a low tariff. (Hear, hear, and cheers.) They were frequently told that if they did not have protection the wages of the laboring classes would come down to the level of those in Europe. He did not think so. The agricultural interest had no protection against Europe, and yet to day agricultural labour was paid two or three times as much as in England while we could send our cereals there and undersell them in their home markets. We had not the natural advantages here for manufactures which we had for agriculture. Our land was cheap, fertile and abundant, and we could afford to give high wages in that industry. But we had not on this continent those advantages in regard to manufactures and if we could ever compete with Great Britain in the leading branches of manufactures, the disadvantages we labored under would only be overcome by paying wages as low as, or lower than, those paid in Europe. He asked to be pointed to any artizan in Canada who was working for 84 cents per day. Real estate during the past few years had increased in value, although we were told the country was going into bankruptcy. Mr. Fraser he thought made an unfortunate remark in alluding to the Philadelphia Exhibition, for it was well known that Canadian manufacturers had taken many first prizes, and that every one Canadian article was proud of the exhibit. Mr. Wright alluded to the duty on vinegar and its import, and stated there was none imported into the country. He need only turn to the trade and navigation returns to prove the statement false. During the last year we imported of vinegar and meats said 76,916 gallons, on which a duty of $9,231.86 was paid. If there was a grower in the audience he knew that English vinegar in Toronto brought 75 cents a gallon, wine measure, or 85 cents imperial measure. It was well known that a large quantity of French and English vinegar was imported into Canada, and bringing such high prices, he would like to know who paid the duty. If a duty of 17 per cent. were paid on woollen goods coming into the country, he would like to know if the consumer did not pay it. We were told that free trade was ruining England, but let us examine official statistics. In 1840 after eight or nine hundred years of protection, she exported $61,000,000 worth of manufactured goods, and after 36 years of free trade we find her exporting $260,000,000 worth. (Cheers.) He showed how protection in England had crippled her cotton trade, and the same might be said of other industries. The woollen and flax manufacturers fearing the cotton trade was going to ruin them, induced the Government to place a tax of 3d per pound on raw material, and 3½d per yard on the manufactured article. He then referred to the balance of trade arguments of Messrs. Fraser and Wright, and scouted the idea of a comparison between the man who spent $12, while only earning $10, and a nation's imports and exports. He contended that it was competition among the English manufacturers, and not the competition of American goods that lowered the wages of cotton operatives in England. The United States could only undersell England in way and that was by reducing their wages, and we could only successfully compete by following out the same course. The speaker then took his seat amid prolonged cheers.

Mr. Cahill being called on, stated, that he was not going to speak; that Mr. Jury was answering his own arguments, and the best thing to do was to let him go on. As to wages in the States and in Canada, he knew that men were receiving more wages in the States than here. He had friends at the lumbering who were receiving $20 a month, while men in Canada at the same business were only getting $10.

Mr. Clutton asked for ten minutes time to explain his views on the question of Free Trade and Protection. He maintained that in the grain trade the farmer here lost by the duty placed upon grain going into the United States. When he had to pay 10 cents a bushel duty, he was compelled to give less per bushel to the farmer, whereas if there was no duty, the farmer would have got just 10 cents more per bushel. He was a believer in protection, and instanced the manner in which France had paid off the war debt, and attributed her success to protection. The Americans had tried all sorts of policies—direct taxation, and indirect taxation and lastly, protection, and he thought it would take considerable to have them change it. He maintained that the Americans were threatening the English manufacturers—that they were now sending cottons to Manchester and cutlery to Sheffield. If protection makes a country dear to live in how is it that the Americans can manufacture so cheaply?

Mr. Hilliard being called upon proceeded to give his views as to "who pays the duty?" and while admitting that in some cases the consumer did, yet in the majority of cases the producer was the loser. He endeavoured to explain why Sir John Macdonald had not established a retaliatory tariff, by stating that it was owing to his efforts to get reciprocity. He contended that there were $60,000,000 sent out of the country for manufactured articles that if a protective tariff were in force would be expended in this country, and would thus give employment to half a million operatives. He drew attention to the number of workmen that were out of employment, and contended that Canada was more prosperous to-day as the United States. He attributed the number of tramps in the United States to the fact that it was not for lack of work but through resisting the decreased rate of wages. He blamed immigration for over stocking the labor market, and said he would discourage it, except those who were in a position to settle on farms and embark in business themselves. He alluded to the failure of the Moorhead Furniture Manufacturing Company, and said he believed over 200 men had been thrown out of work by this failure alone. He concluded by reading a number of extracts from speeches of protectionists, and misquoting articles from the New York Journal of Commerce and the Iron Age.

Mr. Jury on coming forward again, said although Mr. Cahill thought he said nothing worth answering, yet it took the last speaker a long time to make any kind of a reply to him. In returning to the importation of furs he said that while we imported 1,600,000 bushels of oats we exported over 6,000,000 bushels of barley. If our farmers saw fit to grow barley instead of oats, he thought they were the best judges. He believed they were the gainers by it. They could sell one bushel of barley and with the proceeds buy two bushels of corn to feed their stock, and then sell in the British markets. It was the American consumer and not the Canadian farmer who paid the 15 per cent. duty on barley. Admitting for sake of argument that the Canadian farmer only received 85 cents where the American received $1.00, he would ask if the 85 cents would not purchase more here than the dollar would in the States. By the protective system the Americans kept up the price upon the American consumer, but he thought the workingmen of Canada were not going to vote for a policy that would raise their cost of living. As to the allusion of Bismarck being about to change the policy of Germany from our free trade to protection, he would answer that even if this were so, public events showed that Bismarck was not the working man's friend; he was not popular with them. We were told that protection in the United States increased the wages. Let us see what it did. From 1860 to 1873 wages increased 60 per cent. but during the same period the necessaries of life increased 93 per cent (Hear, hear) the farmer and working man were the parties to whom the protection cry was specially devoted—the farmer was to get cheaper articles and the workingman cheaper living. How was this possible? Wm. Cullen Bryant in speaking of the years in which the American tariff has ranged from 35 to 100 per cent, says "And what years, my friends, were these? Years of languishing enterprise, years of despairing industry, years of strikes, years of contention between the employers and employed; years which showed the spectacle of laborers by hundreds looking in vain for occupation, and hunger-pinched families shivering in the unwarmed garret. All this while the protective system, as it is called, has been in full force. Everything is protected, that is to say, everything imported into the country is taxed as it never was before. If the protective system be the ground of commercial prosperity, the country should now be prosperous beyond the ground of all previous experience. Our mills, now silent, should be in constant employment; not a willing arm should now be idle, nor a spindle should come to hare. Is it not time for a revolution? Are we to go on in this nonsense indefinitely? We have tried the protective system as fully as is possible. We have tested its fruits and they are bitter. Let us now have a season of free exchange (Applause) the official returns from Massachusetts and Ohio show that protection is ruining the ... that in Massachusetts the wages had been reduced 11 per cent. In Ohio one firm that carried on the manufacture of agricultural implements ... now only employ 100. Under free trade we are told wages will be lowered and working men unable to buy the necessaries of life, In Roumania had not been the effect of Free Trade. Wages had increased from 25 to 100 per cent and in the case of labour to 200 per cent. Another evidence of the prosperity—or the reverse—of a country was to be found in the amount it consumed of the ordinary necessaries of life. In 1840, under a protection tariff the quantity of butter consumed per head was 1 5-100 of a pound, and in 1876 it was 3 84-100. Of wheat and wheaten flour the quantity consumed in 1840 was, per head, 42 47-100, while in 1876 it had reached 167 80-100. Another test was the deposits in the savings banks, and while these had gone on steadily increasing in England during the depression—though of course the withdrawals had also increased—in the United States the reverse was the case, and a depositor was fortunate if he got his money out before the bank "went up" Looking at how Protection would affect the workingmen the speaker went on to show that while the Government could put on a duty to prevent the manufactured article from coming that could not prevent the mechanics of other countries, coming in here and by competition lowering the price of labor. It would be the manufacturer who would be protected and not the workingman. In conclusion he asked the workingmen to look at the policy of both parties; to ponder over the acts given by the Reformers for their special benefit, while he challenged any one to point to a simple measure passed by Conservatives that was to the advantage of the workingmen. The workingmen should not over look the advantages they had obtained under Reform rule, and he considered it would be suicidal to their best interests to vote for the Conservative party—a party who would tax every thing they needed. Support the man who by honesty and perseverance had risen from the hammer and chisel to the proud position of Premier of the Dominion, (Loud and prolonged cheers)

Mr Robert Weir, then moved a vote of thanks to the speaker of the evening which was seconded by Mr. Wood, after which the meeting dispersed by giving cheers for the Queen, and Messrs Bertram, Jury and Hilliard.

THE MAYOR'S DICTATION.

To the Editor of the Examiner:

Sir,—It is surprising to me to see how meekly the Councillors of this town submit to the interference and dictation of the Mayor. I had always supposed that the Mayor's duty consisted, like that of any presiding officer, in maintaining order and voting when he had a right to do so, and that the management of town offices properly devolved upon the Councillors. But it seems this must be a mistake, for it is a very common thing to see the Mayor mark out what the Councillors shall do, and dictate to them in matters with which he, as Mayor, has no right to interfere. And I have often felt mortified at seeing the very humble manner with which the Councillors submit to this dictation. I should think that our Councillors are, or ought to be, quite capable of attending to their own business, but if they be not, then the best thing one can do is to have no Councillors and have the Mayor to govern as he likes. I don't suppose this would be very acceptable to the electors, and I hope, when another election comes round, the people will take care to elect representatives who have courage and manliness enough to do their own business.

PROTECTION NOTES.

Protection and Free Trade in England.

During the twenty-five years of protection—so-called—preceding the abolition of the Corn Laws, British imports had only increased £34,000, while under the twenty-five succeeding years of free trade the increase was £127,000,000, or by 5,000 times; and the total increase of foreign trade was nearly £250,000,000.

Protection and Working Men.

Horace White, former editor of the Chicago Tribune, in his examination before the Labor committee, is thus reported: "He had discovered no method by which these financial crises and the consequent depression could be stopped, nor could he make any suggestions about the matter. As for a Protective tariff, he did not think it would raise the wages of the working people; it might raise the price of some of the commodities to be bought.

Another Reciprocity Treaty.

The London Times intimates that the Americans are desirous to negotiate a new Reciprocity Treaty, and to have it considered in relation to the payment to England of the $5,500,000 awarded by the Halifax Fishery Commission. If the indications should prove well founded, and the Canadians can meet the Americans advantageously, the Tory party and the now much vaunted "National Policy" will receive a terrible blow—the latter will be kicked to the four winds of the earth.

Who Pays the Duty?

A Michigan farmer came over to Ridgetown the other day and bought a horse for $160. He took him to Detroit, and after paying the duty was accosted by one of his friends, who said "Well, Sam, that's a fine horse; what might you pay for him?" "Wa'al," was Sam's answer, "I paid $160 for him at Ridgetown, but you know I had to make oath and get a consular certificate and pay $30 duty on him." But, said his friend, there are members of Parliament and newspaper men over there who say that the farmer who sold him to you pays the duty. Wa'al, laughed Sam, we have fools enough in the States, but not so big as that; and he trudged on.—St. Thomas Home Journal.

Questions for Opposition Orators.

There are one or two questions every elector should put to the Opposition orators when they proclaim the glories and beauties of a National Policy.

1st. What does it mean? Is it protection for everybody, and higher duties on everything?—or is it increased duties for the benefit of particular classes?—or is it only the same tariff we have now, tinkered to suit particular persons? 2nd. What interests require higher duties? 3rd. What particular class of people would higher duties benefit? 4th. What class could be benefited by higher duties without some other class being injured? Let the Opposition orators be required to come down to definite facts and particulars, and not wander off into the cloud-land of cap positions and vague prophecies and indefinite assertions.—London Advertiser.

Protect Picking by Act of Parliament.

I follow that it is possible by Act of Parliament to remove money from the pockets of one part of the community and to place it in the pockets of another class. (Cheers.) I know that we can benefit one class, under the name of Protection, at the expense of other classes. But the class that will receive the benefit will be apt to be the most powerful and the most wealthy, while the class that will suffer the loss will be those who are the poorest and who have no other influence to use against those who would place burdens upon them, but their votes. (Cheers.) Our opponents talk of a National Policy. No policy can be called national that protects one class and leaves other classes unprotected. No policy is national which will build up a few great firms, and make them millionaires at the expense of the country, which for every dollar it puts into their pockets will take two dollars out of the pockets of the workingmen, who earn their bread by the sweat of their brow. (Cheers.)—Mr. Mackenzie at St. John.

The Tory Policy on Protection.

Adverting to the question of Protection, he remarked, that it was a very strange thing that Sir John and Dr. Tupper had not during the long years they were in power attempted at least a trial of their principle of making people rich and prosperous by Act of Parliament. The English people had outgrown the system of protection; they had discovered it to be false in fact and in principle; and since 1843 they had generally had a free trade system; Sir John Macdonald and his friends had once been professed admirers of the English fiscal system; they had once spoken of the superior wisdom, the great experience, and the sound, economic views of English statesmen and political economists. But now they were asking the people of Canada to look to Washington for sound principles of political economy, and to believe that the statesmen of England were a set of politico-economic charlatans. He for one would not subscribe to that view—(hear, hear, and cheers)—and say that the Careys, and the Ben Butlers, and the Horace Greelays of the United States were safer guides than the Cobdens, the Peels, the Brights, the Gladstones, or the Beaconsfields of England. (Hear, hear, and loud cheers.)—Mr. Mills at Mount Elgin.

Another Illustration of Who Pays the Duty.

Supposing that a merchant from Detroit and another from Ingersoll went to Leeds, England, to purchase a certain kind of cloth, there being say a 60 per cent. duty in the United States and 17½ per cent. in Canada, he would like to know if the merchant or the manufacturer there would ask the man to whom he sold the goods where he came from or what was the duty in his country? (Hear, hear.) Would he not know what price to charge for the cloth without enquiring whence the buyer came? But if the theory of the protectionists was true that the producer paid the duty, if the cloth went into a country in which there was a duty of 100 per cent., the seller would have to give the cloth for nothing. (Hear, hear, and laughter.) Supposing that the man from Detroit and the man from Ingersoll each bought $1,000 worth of the cloth, that the Canadian paid $100 freight and $175 for the duty. This would make the total cost to him $1,275. The American paying, say a duty of 60 per cent., and freight $100, the cost of the goods to him when he reached home would be $1,700. Would these two men sell the cloth to their customers at the same price per yard? ("No.") Certainly not; for each would calculate his percentage of the profit, not on the original $1,000, but on the amount the goods cost him when he reached home. (Hear, hear, and cheers.)—Mr. Mills at Mount Elgin.

The Question of Corn.

Then again we imported a considerable quantity of corn from the United States; a portion of it was transshipped to England at a profit to us; another portion we manufactured into whiskey, on which we realized a large revenue; and though he did not believe in encouraging the use of whiskey, still if people would consume it, it was an article on which they might very properly collect a large tax. The remaining portion of the corn we imported was used by our farmers for the purpose of fatting their stock. Some considered that this was a misfortune, but he did not, for he believed the farmer himself was the best judge of whether it paid him to buy this or any other article, and that he could manage his own business best without the Government interfering with it. (Hear, hear.) The farmers all knew that corn and peas were interchangeable articles for the purpose of feeding, and that if they had not bought the corn, instead of selling 16,000,000 bushels of peas they would have sold not more than 2,000,000 bushels. How much did they gain by the interchange? The price of corn in Canada had averaged 55 cents for the last five years, that of peas 56 cents. The difference was 31 cents, and if they would allow five cents for the difference in freight, they would still have a profit of 26 cents on every bushel of peas they exchanged for a bushel of corn. (Hear, hear and cheers.) Why should they interfere and prejudice further with substituting a cheap article for a dear one?—Mr. Mills at Mount Elgin.

A Home versus a Foreign Market.

We have a conundrum for the "National Policyites," who declare we want a home market only, and who deride the idea of a foreign market and say their motto is "Canada for the Canadians." They assert their policy is to stop all trade, cripple the railways, and shatter the milling interests, so we must live together as exclusively as the Chinese do and sell everybody else out. They tell us we want a home market and nothing else. Mr. James Hunter, M.P.P. for South Grey, informs us that this last spring at his factory in Townsend he sold all the butter he could make and deliver in Edinburgh, Scotland, for 23 cents per pound in cash—not—that is clear of all expenses of making, packing, &c. And yet the farmers of the county of Grey who at the same time were selling their butter on the home market of and to the storekeepers in Townsend had to be content with from eight to ten cents in trade. Here are the benefits of a foreign market contrasted with the benefits of a purely home market, and yet Sir John and the "N. P's" wish to stop Mr. Hunter from exporting his butter, on which he clears twenty-three cents, and confine the sale of his and the farmers' butter to their home market, where over-competition will first pull down the prices even lower than they are are and then kill off every butter maker, as sufficient Canadian consumers for their dairy produce cannot be found. Pretty policy this, of a purely home market, is it not?—Hamilton Times.

W. C. Bryant upon Protection.

The late William Cullen Bryant, whose death was deplored by every American, in speaking of recent years in which the American Tariff has ranged from 35 to 100 per cent. says:—

"And what years, my friends, were these? Years of languishing enterprise, years of despairing industry, years of strikes, years of contention between the employers and employed, years which showed the spectacle of laborers by hundreds looking in vain for occupation, and hunger-pinched families shivering in the unwarmed garrets. All this while the protective system, as it is called, has been in full force. Everything is protected, that is to say, everything imported into the country is taxed as it never was before. If the protective system be the ground of commercial prosperity, the country should now be prosperous beyond the ground of all previous experience. Our mills, now silent, should be in constant employment; not a willing arm should now be idle, nor a spindle stand cease to hum. Is it not time for a re-action? Are we to go on in this manner indefinitely? We have tried the protective system as fully as is possible. We have taxed its fruits and they are bitter. Let us now have a season of free exchange. I have no doubt for my own part, that liberal system of revenue laws, especially combined with a return to specie payments, would make an instantaneous and most fortunate change in the condition of the country. Yes my friends, the time for a re-action has arrived, and we are determined it shall have a fair field. Free trade has slept while its enemies have been performing their unhappy experiments upon the public welfare, and now we look to see it rise invigorated by its long slumber * * * * "Let me say that I am in favor of protection, but of a protection of a kind very different from that which for many years past has dealt so cruelly with the interests of the country. I am for protecting the consumers, the class whose members are counted by millions. I am for protecting this class in its natural and proper right to exchange what it produces in whatever market it can exchange it to most advantage. I am for rescuing it from the hands into which it has fallen, and which plunder it with as little remorse as the rovers of the Barbary States, in the early part of this century, pillaged the merchant ships that entered their seas."

FIGURES WON'T LIE.

In order that those of our readers who have not access to the Blue Books may have the official figures before them, we will publish from time to time certain statements of the financial condition of the Dominion; which any one can read and form their own conclusions. It is always unfair to comment on figures. No remarks can alter or add to their force.

To-day we propose to go over the whole number of departments and show the relative per centage of increase and decrease under the two Governments respectively, always remembering that Sir John's Government was in power seven years and the present one four years:

Summarizing these items we have the following result: "In seven years the old Sir John Macdonald Government increased the expenditure of the country from $3,690,396 to $8,324,076, being an increase of 129 per cent. The present administration in two years reduced this expenditure to $6,835,078 or 17½ per cent.

Let the public read these figures and draw their own conclusions from them. We publish them to the world, and defy a single Tory writer to controvert them if he can. We are prepared to sustain from the public records every single figure here given.—Guide.

OUR BARLEY CROPS.

To the Editor of the Canadian Post:

SIR,—Permit me to call the attention of our farmers to a matter connected with our barley surplus, which has not hitherto had sufficient attention.

Last year a large portion of our barley found a market in Europe. Had it not been for this the American demand would have been inadequate to absorb our surplus. As it is, both on this side as well as the American side, there is still a good deal of last year's crop left on hand.

The great objection European malsters have to barley is that it is not heavy. Now this objection could be greatly overcome if farmers were more particular in dressing and cleaning their grain for market.

I believe this year the barley crop in Great Britain is poor, much below an average both in quality and quantity. If we could prepare this grain so as to meet the requirements of the British consumer, and then bring them in competition with American malsters, you can readily see what a benefit it would be to the farmers.

I would therefore impress upon the farmers this year to be more particular in preparing their grain for market, and will undoubtedly be repaid for their labor. There has been too much badly cleaned grain brought to market. The light seed in barley and wheat will make good cattle feed, and thoroughly cleaned grain will be far more satisfactory to those who have to handle it.

We may take advantage of the poor crops in England by getting our grain successfully on that market and such a good opportunity may not for some time occur.

Death of Rev. Dr. Fyfe.

WORCESTER, Sept. 4.—The Rev. R. A. Fyfe, D.D., Principal of the Canadian Literary Institute, died this morning at his residence in Worcester. Dr. Fyfe has been in failing health for some years past, but up to within a few days had managed to perform them at any time during the last year or two. He had recently returned from a vacation trip, and thought himself somewhat invigorated, and was looking forward hopefully to the re-commencement of his labours in the College; but a few days since he was taken suddenly ill on his return from a short walk. At first his physician thought there was no cause for serious alarm, but after a day or two his strength rapidly failed and alarming symptoms developed themselves, with the sad result above stated. His loss will cast a gloom over the whole community, and will be deeply regretted by a large circle of friends to whom he was deeply endeared by long acquaintance and many noble and generous traits of character. The loss will be especially serious to the Baptist denomination, of which he has been for long years one of the most prominent leaders, and to the theological and literary college which was originated by his foresight and energy, and has been most successfully carried on under his management.

Authorities Against Protection.

Recent Views of Tory Leaders.

"The four tax had been imposed as an assertion of the independence of the country against American exclusive legislation. It had been maintained in this view until it had been found to work oppressively on certain sections of the community and so now is repealed as a step in the right direction."—[Sir John Macdonald in 1873.

"I fear that the Hon. Minister is seeking to introduce the thin edge of the protection wedge which will eventually work ruin and desolation to the Maritime Provinces."—[Dr. Tupper in 1874.

Let the Hon. Minister look at the neighboring Republic, and he would find that the policy of that country has swept their flag off the seas and given to others the carrying trade of the world."—[Dr. Tupper in 1874.

"We must therefore express our unfeigned satisfaction that the sense of the House has been so unmistakably pronounced in favor of the abolition of duties and that the exploded theory of protection receives such little favor in the High Court of Parliament."—[Toronto Leader in 1874.

Protected Prosperity in the States.

(From the London Advertiser.)

The official Bureau of Statistics for Massachusetts has published a report of a census just taken, which contains the following striking sentences: "The immigration in 1875 was 13,000; in 1876, 8,000; and in 1877, 5,765—in all these three years but little more than [27,000 of whom half came in before the census of 1873 was taken. SINCE THAT CENSUS MORE PERSONS HAVE GONE BACK TO EUROPE AND THE BRITISH PROVINCES FROM BOSTON THAN HAVE LANDED HERE, as shown by the figures of our Immigration Bureau." In nineteen cities of Massachusetts two months ago there were unemployed 4,400 skilled artisans, 7,685 unskilled laborers, being a total of starving workingmen of 12,136. In 325 towns of the same State there are of unemployed skilled workmen, 4,120; of unskilled laborers, 5,557, or a total of 9,677. This is protected prosperity in the United States.

JOY AMONG THE CHILDREN.

COPELAND'S SWEET CASTOR OIL, equally suitable for children and adults. Endorsed by over 600 doctors in Canada. The difficulty of administering nauseous medicines and the desirability of having them pleasant to the taste, induced T. Copeland to undertake researches, which resulted in the discovery of a Sweet Castor Oil, perfectly palatable, of the same strength and medical qualities as the ordinary Castor Oil; and while equally safe and harmless yet acting with more certainty, and producing neither nausea nor griping. Some children say it is honey; others call it syrup—they all say they like it. One parent says—"children drink it like water;" another—"I had to take the bottle or they would have finished it right off;" another—"My little girl has taken it twice without any trouble, and does not know what it is, though she hates the ordinary Castor Oil, and we never could get her to take it without a fight;" yet another—"I wish you success of your SWEET CASTOR OIL; it is a splendid thing—sure to take the place of all common oil."

The extraordinary demand for this improvement of a staple household medicine has brought fraudulent imitations into the market, but the public can guard themselves against substitutes (which unprincipled parties are attempting to sell on the reputation of this article) by seeing that the name, COPELAND'S SWEET CASTOR OIL, is on both wrapper and direction label.

The undersigned having purchased Messrs T. Copeland & Co's interest in the above preparation, are now manufacturing it from the original recipe.

The Great Shoshonees Remedy.

The Great Shoshonees Remedy is an Indian vegetable compound composed of the juices of a variety of remarkable medicinal plants and barbs; the various properties of these different ingredients, when combined, is so constituted as to act simultaneously upon the Blood, Lungs, Liver, Kidneys, Digestive, Organs, Nervous System, &c., restoring their functions to healthy action, and being purely vegetable, is as harmless as nature's own beverage. This medicine is a decided benefit in all, and a permanent cure in a large majority of diseases of the blood, such as Scrofula, Erysipelas, Salt Rheum, Canker Pimples, &c. In prescribing this medicine we do not claim that it always performs cures; but this we do say, that it purifies and enriches the blood, permanently relieving a large majority of diseases arising from its impurities. It stands far ahead and unequalled among the hundreds of competing medicines of the day. It has stood the test of ten years, and is to day more popular than ever. As a summer restorative it stands unrivaled; it enables the system to bear up against the constant drain to which it is subjected by a high temperature. Persons who are subject to bilious Colic, Dysentery, Indigestion, &c., should take the Shoshonees Remedy. Price of the Remedy in pint bottles $1; Pills, 25 cts. a box. Sold by all medicine dealers.

PETERBOROUGH, SEPT'R 19, 1878.

THE GENERAL ELECTION.

The reports from all the Provinces show plainly that the elections have gone largely against the Government of Mr. Mackenzie. In Ontario so far as heard from the Opposition have elected 45 members, the Ministerialists 26, with 17 to hear from. In Quebec the Opposition have carried 36, the Government 16, with 17 to hear from. In Nova Scotia the Opposition have 10 Ridings, the Ministerialists 8 and 3 to hear from. In Prince Edward Island the Conservatives hav carried, it is thought, the whole Island, 6 seats. British Columbia and Manitoba will give an Opposition majority. It is therefore useless to hold out any hopes of Mr. Mackenzie being able to carry on the Government with majorities in every Province against him. As a set off, Sir John A. Macdonald has been defeated in Kingston by 146. Mr. Thos. White of the Montreal Gazette, has been elected for Cardwell, but it is generally believed that he will retire to make way for the chieftain. A man less useful in the House will most likely retire so as to ensure the services of Mr. White. Perhaps Mr. Platt, of Toronto, may be ready to sacrifice himself for his party

In West Peterborough the Conservatives have shown themselves more than a match for the Reformers. Mr. Hilliard is elected by a majority of 197 over Mr. Bertram, while in the Town of Peterborough alone, Mr. Hilliard's majority was 203. This is contrary to all expectations on both sides. The Conservatives never claimed more than 75 to 100. It is therefore evident that the Reformers must have lost from 50 to 100 votes, that had been promised them. Mr. Bertram is a gentleman of unquestioned ability, both as a business man, and a public speaker and was considered certain of re-election. Mr. Hilliard is a gentleman of easy, unassuming manners very affiable, a member of the Methodist Church, and deservedly popular. One thing militated against Mr. Bertram. It had been rumored before his acceptance of the candidature, that he did not intend, indeed that he could not, contest the election as his business required his whole attention, carrying on as he was a large woolen manufacturing establishment. Many hearing this were perhaps too ready to promise to support Mr. Hilliard. His friends, too, were to sanguine of success, one of the surest ways to court defeat, and in consequence have received it. We hope it will only nerve them for more determined and united action in the future.

In the East Riding up to going to press the latest returns show a small majority for Mr. Burnham with 4 small polling places to hear from, but it is generally believed that Mr. Burnham is elected with a very narrow majority indeed.

In both Ridings two of the best men in the Opposition ranks were in the field, and two men that are not likely to do any thing willfully that they may consider adverse to the general interests of the country, and since it is our fate to be so signally defeated, we will hope that all the Opposition may prove as good men as those elected in these ridings.

Although defeated, we may congratulate Mr. Beck on the success of his canvass, for success after all it must be considered, and this the more as he is defeated by so few votes. It will take some days to get full and correct returns; but these we do not believe will change the result materially. We must accept the verdict of the electors, and abide our time patiently. In the meantime do our utmost to prevent anything that might tend to the injury of our common country. The following is the state of the Poll in the West Riding.

PERSONALITIES IN POLITICS.

One of the most pleasant features of the political campaign just closed in this County was the comparative freedom from personal abuse and vituperation in both Ridings. This is one effect of both parties putting in the field men of good repute as citizens. If a new candidate has a character for integrity, and for decency and uprightness of deportment, even though he has no public record whatever, it takes a considerable length of time for even inconsistencies of conduct in the new path upon which he has entered to shake public confidence in the honesty of his intentions. It takes more than one or two political sins to raise a complaint against the inner character of a man hitherto known in the community as honest and straightforward. Those who have known him as such will bear a number of shocks to their estimate of him ere they will give up laying even unmistakeable departures from truth and candour to an error of the head rather than the heart. And it is well that it is so, for after all those who judge are only fallable, as is the object of their judgement, and in times of political excitement the estimate of a man's words and acts very considerably depends on the preconceived notions of the persons making the estimate. Men of the opposite party are too ready to condemn him by misrepresenting what may be a perfectly just and honest word or deed, while those of his own party are willing to justify what may have been an evil utterance or a wrong act. So hard it is to tell the springs of either words or deeds, that those who profess to discuss the affairs of a people and a nation's welfare should avoid the paltry peddling of matters merely personal to a few at their greatest, and of which no true estimate can be found by any man or body of men. Of what possible interest, for instance can it be that Smith will not vote for Brown, because Brown, according to Smith's interested view of the case cheated Smith in a private transaction. The fact may be that Brown only refused to let Smith get the better of him. Yet Smith bores his fellow-electors with his version of the affair, and seems to think that Brown's defeat is sure to follow his exertions. Those of the party to whom Brown is opposed readily believe anything against him, and even men who hold some claims to statesmanship do not hesitate to aid in retailing the petty slander This is but one instance of the many accusations brought against candidates by men who should know better, and have more respect for themselves. From merely private basis charges increase on grounds municipal, till they reach the extent of embracing County, Provincial and eventually Dominion affairs. Thus, the further a man emerges from private life the more readily charges multiply against him. This keeps many an otherwise useful man from accepting a nomination to any public position. It is of course wrong that capable men should be so weak as to be deterred by fears of personal charges; yet such is undoubtedly the case.

We do not, of course, wish it to be understood that the character of a public man should never be discussed. Indeed so much depends on the integrity and decency of our public men, that the first duty of party conventions should be to select men of unblemished reputation and unstained life. That such is not done is perhaps one great cause why personalities are so much indulged in on political platforms and in the party press. While those who value their reputation shrink back, others who have no character to lose thrust themselves forward and secure nominations. The record, often private as well as public, of such persons is rightly challenged; and they, having no defence from within, try to cover their disgrace, in a cloud of dust raised by hunting up or making charges against their opponents. As he who wrestles with a sweep must get begrimed, so he who in politics comes out in opposition to a disreputable candidate must expect to be accused of trickery and deception. But sweeps are not put into the ring as wrestlers. Neither should tricksters and men of unclean life be suffered by any party to become candidates for public offices of any kind. It is the fault of the people themselves if they allow it; and it is the fault of the rank and file of a political party in any constituency if they suffer a packed convention to thrust upon them candidates who would disgrace the society of decent boot blacks. It remains then with the people themselves to stamp out to a very great extent the evil of personalities in political discussion; and we are glad to be able to remark that Peterborough has set an example of how it may be done.

SECESSION BLUSTER.

Vancouver Island has for years ruled the Legislature of British Columbia. Indeed the dominance of the Island caused the capital to be changed from New Westminister on the Mainland to Victoria situated on the insular portion of the Province. There has always been a jealousy and a struggle between the Mainland and the Island; and as the Island won once so the Mainland is likely to win in its turn sooner or later. Then unless they are more magnaninous than can be expected of them, the Mainland will probably try to make reprisals for the manner in which they have been treated by the Islanders. So accustomed have the Vancouver faction in the Legislature become to carrying things with a high hand, that they even play the bully toward the Dominion. During the weakness that preceded the dissolution of the Macdonald Government at Ottawa, Vancouver members in the House of Commons were given the opportunity to get the better of the Dominion in the way of terms for the building of the Pacific Railway. The Macdonald Administration was then ready to promise anything and to grant any terms for the votes of those Vancouver rampires. What the terms were and their absurdity all the world knows. When the Mackenzie Government came into power it tried to make reasonable terms with the Pacific Province; and notwithstanding the bluster of the very dear sister on the western ocean succeeded in securing something more like justice to the other Provinces of the Dominion, out of which the meeting of expenses mostly comes. It will be remembered that Lord Dufferin visited British Columbia in his official capacity and looked into the merits of the question between that Province and the Dominion. His tact in avoiding the mischief threatened by the somewhat insane action of an organization known as the Carnarvon Club, brought him the admiration of all, and the way in which he alleged the excitement connected with the difficulty moved him a diplomate of no mean order, though his visit must not be understood as being diplomatic in character. The late announcement of the probable choice of the Fraser River route as the probable location of the Pacific Railway through British Columbia, and an attempt to make capital for the Dominion Opposition on Vancouver Island, led lately to a repetition of the secession bluster indulged in at the time of Lord Dufferin's visit. A Tory Government having secured power at Victoria, one Walkem, of Kingston, and a friend of Sir J. A. Macdonald being Premier, it was thought an accusation against the government of Mr. Mackenzie's injustice, to British Columbia, would rouse the Vancouver prejudice, so as to return supporters of Sir John Macdonald from that Island. Probably the plan has succeeded; but at what a cost in humiliation to respectable Conservatives! Before the adjournment of the Legislature of British Columbia, on the 29th of August, Premier Walkem, Sir John's Kingstonian friend, moved the adoption of a memorial to the British Government asking for separation from the Dominion. This was carried by a vote of 14 to 9, against a couple of amendments by members of the opposition, one asking that the Imperial Government urge in Canada the necessity of fulfilling the agreement and another proposing an arbitration. The majority by which Mr. Walkem's motion was carried was principally composed of Island members, the chief grievance of that portion of the Province being that the Mackenzie Government objects to building a railway on Vancouver Island as a part of the great inter-oceanic iron way.

That the whole thing is so much bluster, may well be believed from the fact that British Columbia would have all to loose and nothing to gain by separation. It is not at all likely that the mainland would follow the Island in such a move, especially after the treatment it has received from the Island majority under Walkem. That the Island should go, Canada need not fear. Indeed the Dominion should be willing, and even anxious to get rid of it, but for its necessity to the completeness of the confederacy. Vancouver has fared well as a part of British Columbia and the Dominion, as an independent colony it could not support itself. Walkem will find that he has sacrificed himself to help Sir John Macdonald, and Sir John will find that Walkem's friendship is not appreciated by Canadians.

EASTERN AFFAIRS.

ROME, Sept. 14.—The Greek memorandum presented to the Prime Minister on Thursday, points out that the Porte, by signing the Treaty of Berlin, solemnly recognised the principle of the cession of territory. The evasive reply of the Porte refusing to appoint delegates to settle the frontier question until the Powers have answered its late note, is calculated to prejudice any understanding between the two Governments. Greece consequently appeals to the Powers to exercise the right of mediation.

It is stated that Minister Layard has informed the British Government that the Porte has shown its good intention to execute the Treaty of Berlin, as evidenced by its willingness to evacuate the fortresses, &c. Hence England's unwillingness to join a collective remonstrance relative to the non-execution of the treaty.

LONDON, Sept. 15.—Trouble is apprehended in Scutari, and the Governor has taken measures to protect the Greek and Austrian Consuls against attacks of the Albanians.

Private advices state that Germany has decided to defer making any definite proposition for joint action in behalf of Greece, in consequence of the opposition of England and the hesitation of Italy.

A Constantinople despatch says it is stated that the Porte will not only accept the English programme of reforms for Asia Minor, but will shortly issue a proclamation extending it to the whole Empire.

LONDON, Sept. 15.—The Times Constantinople special says the difficulty of bringing about the necessary reforms in Asia Minor is increased by the jealousy of the Sultan, who recently made significant remarks in reference to the semi-independent Indian princes. The Sultan still considers Midhat Pasha dangerous and ambitious, but it is possible that Midhat will be made Governor-General of Asia Minor.

A Telegram's Vienna special draws attention to Gesek preparations. Measures are being taken to enable the formation of an expeditionary corps of 100,000.

The News' Pesth despatch says it is firmly believed that a Treaty has been concluded whereby Servia, in consideration of a subsidy of 250,000 roubles a month, undertakes to maintain 40,000 men on the Albanian or any other frontier Russia may appoint.

THE OCCUPATION OF BOSNIA.

BELGRADE, Sept. 15.—News from Bosnia reports that the Austrian reinforcements have commenced offensive operations against the insurgents' intrenchments on the banks of the Save. The fighting was indecisive. The Austrian losses between the 4th and 9th of September were 100 officers and 3,000 men.

LONDON, Sept. 15.—The Romanal, a newspaper of Bucharest, reports that the Russians are reconnoitering the Transylvania frontier, and calls upon the Roumanians to be prepared to make sacrifices in the event of a rupture between Austria and Russia.

The News Vienna correspondent says it is clearly intended to crush resistance in Bosnia by overwhelming masses. It is rumored that half the Austrian army has been employed.

A Vienna special to the Telegraph says Berecka, on the Save, is being bombarded, and it is hoped will surrender and declare for the annexation of Bosnia. Austria, however, adheres to the occupation in accordance with the Treaty of Berlin.

VIENNA, Sept, 16.—It is reported that Lord Salisbury has refused to use his influence to induce the Porte to conclude the convention with Austria, as he considers Turkey is not alone behind hand in fulfilling the Treaty of Berlin.

It is reported that the ambassadors of two Powers have informed the Porte that it is possible another Congress might be proposed to expedite the execution of the Treaty of Berlin. The Porte in consequence of Russian pressure, is intercepting arms for the Rhodope insurgents.

CONSTANTINOPLE, Sept. 16.—It is reported that the British fleet has received orders to remain at Princes Island, as long as possible, and then go to Ismid to remain until the Russian evacuation is complete.

PARIS, Sept. 15.—The Ottoman ambassador has delivered to Midhat Pasha a letter from the Sultan, authorising him to reside in Crete, where he wishes to live with his family. The Pasha will embark at Marseilles during the present week in a Turkish vessel specially ordered to take him. He will be accorded a reception befitting his rank.

RUSTCHUK, Sept. 16.—It is reported that the Third Russian Army corps, which had commenced its homeward march, has been ordered to return to Eastern Roumelia.

High old Time at a Home Rule Gathering.

The Shillelagh Orator Many Greatness—O'Donnell's Chambeau Views on the Eastern Question.

London, September 12.—At a meeting in Belfast, Ireland, last night, where O'Donnell, the Home Rule member for Dungarvon, was to lecture on Home Rule and Tenant Right, and Biggar, Home Rule member for Cavan, was to preside, when they appeared on the platform a scene of wild confusion ensued. Furniture was smashed, and there was fierce fighting in all parts of the hall, and even on the platform, resulting in many broken heads. Finally the audience all went out and Biggar delivered an address. The cause of the riot was the appearance of the Home Rulers, at O'Donnell's supporting the Government on the Eastern Question.

Last year in Massachusetts 12,727 couples were joined in the bond of wedlock. Of these there were 9,975 bachelors who chose maidens to be their wives, and 608 who chose widows; while 1,260 widows married maidens and 536 married widows. From this it appears that 182 more widowers than widows were married again, and that 1,396 maidens, more at widowers, when only 797 bachelors married widows.

THE ORANGE PROSECUTIONS.

Arguments of Counsel on Either Side.

MONTREAL, Sept. 14.—The argument upon the merits of the investigation in the Orange case took place to-day before Mr. M. C. Dunoyers, P.M., in the Grand Jury room.

Mr. BARNARD, Q. C., for the prosecution, reviewed the evidence at length, claiming it was clear that defendants came within the meaning of the statute. Their if aply walking in regalia through the streets would have resulted in a breach of the peace, which of itself would make them amenable to the common law. He claimed also that proof had been adduced of the existence of the Ordar, and of the defendants being members of the Order, not in the admissions of the witnesses, but in their very evasions. He urged that they were liable both under the statute quoted and the common law.

Mr. DOUTRE, Q. C., contended that if Orangemen fell under the statute on which the action was based, temperance societies and other organizations which exacted promises not quite required by law should be included. The Orange Order was formed to uphold the Crown and could not fall under an Act for suppressing secret societies. So far no proof had been adduced to show that a secret and illegal oath was taken by Orangemen. None of the defendants were proved to be Orangemen though there is a strong presumption that Grant is one. Over thirty witnesses had been examined but not one of them except the complainant Murphy had sworn that trouble was expected on the 12th from the Orangemen. He denied that the municipal authorities had such control over the streets as alleged. It had been mentioned that the defence intended to make admissions, but would not do so except compelled in a civil action, if such an action were taken for false arrest.

Mr. CARTER, Q. C., repudiated the authenticity of the Jesuit oath produced during the trial, which was published he said, by an enemy of the Roman Catholic Church. He quoted an opinion given in 1836 by the Solicitor and Attorney-General of Ontario in which it was stated that when Orange processions are the means of provoking a breach of the peace they are illegal and may be surpressed.

The arguments being concluded his Honour said he would reserve his judgment until next week.

THE FEVER SCOURGE.

NEW YORK, Sept. 14.—Specials report that at New Orleans the climax of the fever, it is believed, was reached on Wednesday, which was the fifty-eighth day of the epidemic, thus upholding the theory of periodicity. In 1867 the climax was reached on the fifty-fifth day and in 1858 on the fifty-sixth day.

Great excitement was caused yesterday by the bursting of a hermetically sealed coffin during the services at the grave. The body had been kept twenty-eight hours. On Thursday night a woman gave birth to an infant which within seven hours died of black vomit, although the mother was apparently healthy. The dissatisfaction among the negroes concerning the rations threatened a riot yesterday.

Cardinal McCloskey has written a letter ordering a collection in the churches of his diocese on Sunday, September 22nd for the sufferers by the yellow fever plague.

WASHINGTON, D. C., Sept. 14.—The Post yesterday published an interview with Dr. Ramsey, who went to Memphis in which he stated that he had been informed that white women have to take negro nurses or go without, and that such negroes have taken advantage of their helpless victims. The editor of the Memphis Appeal pronounced this statement utterly untrue and adds, "No man white or black, would be allowed to breathe a second breath after such a crime became known. No such crime has been committed. The negroes of Memphis have acted by us nobly as policemen and as soldiers, as well as nurses. They have responded to every call made upon them in proportion to their numbers quite as promptly as the whites."

MEMPHIS, Tenn., Sept. 14.—The weather has taken a change, it is feared for the worse. The nights are cool, the days warm. The number of new cases may reasonably be expected to continue large. Forty-six deaths were reported to noon, and 91 for the twenty four hours ending at noon. Death is taking many of our best citizens. Col. S. Knowlton, acting postmaster, died this morning.

To-night's reports show an increase in the death rate. One hundred and twenty-seven deaths are reported, of which however, ten should have been reported last evening, leaving to-day's mortality at 117, of which forty were coloured.

CANTON, Miss., Sept. 14.—Total number of cases to date, 353; deaths, 54; new cases for the last twenty-four hours, 34; deaths, 7.

VICKSBURG, Sept. 15.—There was a light frost on Friday morning northward in the Mississippi bottoms. The fever here is abating in new cases, but deaths continue to be very numerous. There were twenty-two deaths on Saturday, including Rev Father Titello.

At Canton, Dr. Lyon reports that he travelled 25 miles about the surrounding country finding the fever in families who had no connection with the town. 20 cases are reported at Reygrove, five miles from Terry, Miss.

The Provincial Exhibition.

The Secretary of the Ontario Agricultural and Arts Association, writes to the Globe as follows:—

For the information of those who will visit the Provincial Exhibition to be held in Toronto from September 23rd to 28th inst., I wish to state that the new buildings are ready for exhibitors, and ample space will be afforded to all who have applied. Two lines of shafting will run in Machinery Hall, one at a speed of 300 and the other 140, revolutions per minute, dressed to 2½ inches. Exhibitors of machinery in motion will have to furnish their own belting and pulleys. During the week of the Exhibition there will be telegraphic and postal communication direct to and from the grounds. All goods addressed "Provincial Exhibition," and sent by the Canadian Express Company, will be delivered. All railways have agreed to single fare for the double journey. Tickets are forwarded as soon as entries are made in the books. Any exhibitors not receiving their tickets prior to Saturday, 21st inst., will find them at the Secretary's office on the grounds. Attention is particularly directed to Rule No. 19, as follows:—

Exhibitors of machinery and other heavy articles are to have them on the grounds during the week preceding the show.

His Excellency Lord Dufferin will formally open the Exhibition on Tuesday, 24th inst., at 3 p.m.

An Amusing Incident.

A most amusing and instructive incident took place at Brampton during the progress of the meeting held after the nomination on Tuesday last. Senator Aikins, who was brought into public life as a Reformer, and by the aid of the Reformers of Peel, indulged at the meeting in a most vituperative tirade against the Reform Premier and his colleagues. Immediately after the conclusion of his harangue, the President of the Reform Association rose and read to the audience the following despatch from Dr. Aikins of this city, a well-known Reformer and the Senator's brother:—

"TORONTO, Sept. 10, 1878.

"To Mr. James Fleming, President Reform Association:—It is important for me to join you to-day which is to me a matter of great thank at this time that every [illegible] every thought and every [illegible] of our [illegible] the Government of [illegible] [illegible] [illegible]

Benevolent Concert.—Next Monday evening, Sept. 23rd, Mr. Youmans will give one of his choicest entertainments in aid of the funds of the St. Andrew's Benevolent Society. As these concerts last winter were so popular, and as Mr. Youmans is adding many new attractions as well as the object for which it is given, we believe a bumper house may be looked for. Full particulars in programmes and posters.

Buying for Cash.—The Monetary Times says:—"A few days ago we had a striking illustration of the difference to farmers in buying for cash or on credit. Those who paid cash got their goods on an average of twenty-five per cent. less than those who paid their bills once a year. And great as this difference is the sellers preferred the cash customer, being the more profitable. Farmers should buy for cash; as a class they do not require credit."

Central Exhibition.—The fourth Central Exhibition of the combined Agricultural and Horticultural Societies of Victoria, Peterboro', Durham, and Northumberland will be held at Cobourg, in the new Agricultural Fair ground, on the 1st, 2nd and 3rd of October. The prizes offered amount to $2,000, and entries should be made in person or by post to Mr. R. Collin, the Secretary at Cobourg, before the 14th of September. The books will not be finally closed till the first of September, but during the last week an extra fee of 25 cents will be charged.

Good Work Tells.—Mr. W. J. Larmour, by liberal and judicious advertising and adhering to what his advertisements state, has built up a business of a constantly increasing nature. Not only in his trade as hand cop, but he is weekly in receipt of orders from all parts of the Province. To-day he finishes shipping an order of nine gunther thirty-five pairs to the employees of Cobb's Circus. He informs us in every case he has given entire satisfaction, his work being pronounced superior to that of any town in Canada, and not surpassed by even city manufacturers.

An Interesting Exchange.—The Victoria Warder publishes the following pertinent remarks:

"THANKS.—The editor of the Peterborough Times will accept our thanks for recent possession of that paper Monk on the inside. It's all the same to us, friend, but don't expect a paper printed on both sides in exchange."

In connection with the above the Lakefield News says:

"We would return thanks also, if we knew who to return them to, for last week we received what purported to be a paper in exchange for the News, which was blank on one side, and the other was so badly printed that we cannot make out what is the name of the paper or the individual who publishes it.

Sabbath School Association of Canada.—The fifteenth Provincial Convention for the Provinces of Ontario and Quebec, will (D. V.) be held in the George street Methodist Church, Peterborough, Ont., on Tuesday, Wednesday and Thursday, 8th, 9th and tenth October, 1878. Every Sabbath School of fifty scholars or under is entitled to send one delegate, and an additional delegate of one for every fifty scholars above that number, but no school need more than four. Sabbath School associations in the other British Provinces and in the United States are invited to send deputations. It is expected that brief verbal reports of their counties will be presented by secretaries of county associations, or others who represent them, and it is requested that the Sabbath School state of every county may thus be furnished.

Postponed.—On account of the illness of Mr. Fred. Burnham of the Peterborough Musical Society, the committee feel compelled to postpone the concert which was to have been given last evening, but will give the concert on Friday evening, September 20th, with several extra attractions. The programme then will include the celebrated "Prison Scene" from the Opera of Il Trovatore, which will be rendered by Mrs. Chambers, Mr. Stanley and a male chorus, also "The Anvil Chorus" with anvil accompaniment, and several other numbers which are entirely new to Peterborough. Mr. Stanley has kindly consented to take charge of drilling the singers, so that our music lovers can anticipate a rich and rare treat. There will also be solos by Mr. Stanley, Mrs. Chambers and other well known singers.

A Prosperous Business.—Among the many merchant tailors in our town none deserve, or indeed receive, more encouragement than our friend H. LeBrun. With an enterprise highly commendable he constantly learns not only in favor of his customers, but himself as well. By watching opportunities for purchases, by studying people's requirements, by at all times placing his goods at the lowest possible prices, he has built up a business of a constantly increasing and lasting nature. With that pluck and determination expected from such a pushing trader, Mr. LeBrun has, in spite of unprecedented commercial depression bought even more largely than usual of fall and winter stock. Most of it is to hand, and comprises every line in the merchant tailoring business, all new and bought under the most favorable conditions, and will be sold cheap for cash.

Melancholy Accident.—On Friday morning last Mr. George Richards, one of the oldest engine drivers on the Midland Railway met with an untimely death. About four miles north of Orillia the train ran into a gap on the road caused by the heavy rains washing the culvert out and leaving the gap so filled with water that the danger was not observed till too late. The engineer was killed instantly, the fireman seriously injured but no one else hurt. The remains of the deceased were taken to his home, Port Hope, and interred on Sunday afternoon with Masonic honors. Special trains left Lakefield and Orillia on Sunday morning for the accommodation of the employees of the Company along the line, the Freemasons and friends of the deceased who wished to attend the funeral. In compliment to the family the train was free, and the station buildings at Port Hope were draped in mourning.

Light Weights in Groceries.—A letter to the Chicago Inter-Ocean complains loudly of the practice of weighing articles in paper, a practice which he says prevails in all grocery houses, large and small. He points out how profitable it is, inasmuch as the paper used to put up goods is made from straw or shavings, inexpensive material. Straw paper costs about 2½ cents per pound. Suppose a grocer uses up 100 pounds of straw paper per day, which costs $2.50, and the average of his sales will run at ten cents per pound, you can very readily see that he not only makes $6.50 on the paper he sells, but makes 100 pounds of grocers' merchandise besides—or, rather, saves it to himself, and for his own use. The actual wholesale value of this 100 pounds saved would probably average $8, or 8 cents per pound, and $16 at retail prices. We will call it, at the wholesale value, $6 profit made on paper, making $15.50 absolute profit, which, in times like these, is quite an item.

Fire.—About eleven o'clock on Wednesday night, of last week, a fire broke out in the old machine shop on Aylmer street, between Murray and McDonel streets, recently purchased by Mr. Yelland from Mr. Malcom. The building was occupied by Mr. D. Minorgan for the manufacture of fanning mills, a number of which, together with all Mr. Minorgan's tools were destroyed. The fire soon communicated to the brick dwelling adjoining the south side, also owned by Mr. Yelland and occupied by Mr. Marks, and before it could be got under way was badly damaged. Owing to the high wind prevailing at the time it was feared that the fire would have attained much more serious proportions, but the heavy rain falling at the time added much in checking its progress. Mr. Minorgan will lose about $300; no insurance. Mr. Marks saved most of his furniture but a good deal of it was badly damaged; no insurance. Mr. Yelland's loss on dwelling is about $300 covered by insurance in the Canada Fire and Marine; loss on shop and machinery $5,00 insured in the Citizens for $300.

LITERARY NOTES.

HARPER'S MAGAZINE.—The October number of Harper's Magazine promises complete satisfaction to all classes of readers. The two serial novels, by those great masters of fiction—Black and Hardy—will take the first place in the minds of the thousands of readers who are following these stories from month to month with intense interest. An equally numerous class of readers, who prefer the marvellous details of actual heroism to even the most masterly creations of the imagination, will turn to John Russell Young's terse and thrilling story of Stanley's journey through "The Dark Continent," one of the Illustrated articles in this number. A novelty in the way of illustration, peculiar to Harper, is another reproduction of an old-time poem, "Ye Ballmas," by Robert Herrick, making a page-picture in Abbey's most characteristic style. The three short stories are worthy to follow the brilliant contributions of this class given in the September number. "Adonais," by Will Wallace Harney, is an illustrated poem worthy of especial notice, not merely for the beautiful pictures of Frederics, but for its high merits as an imaginative poem of the pastoral order, and for its rare melody. Besides the illustrated contributions already mentioned, there are five of a descriptive character, each of which has a special interest. The Editor's Easy Chair treats of some especial timely topics, and the other editorial summaries are, as usual well sustained.

STANLEY'S EXPLORATIONS.—The Ontario Publishing Company of Toronto are publishing the complete life, explorations and adventures in the wilds of Africa of Henry M. Stanley, by Rev. Mr. Headley. In order to save the reader the cost of several books the author presents one comprehensive volume, a complete view of the whole subject of Stanley's life and African explorations. He opens with a short, but deeply interesting biography of Stanley, giving a sketch of his early life—which was a wonderfully romantic one—and traces his remarkable career up to the time when he undertook his memorable and successful expedition in search of Livingstone. He then gives a full and graphic account of this expedition, and of the finding of Livingstone. This is followed by a brief summary of Livingstone's work in Africa, the details of which we presume our readers to be familiar with, and therefore omit. He then gives a concise, but remarkable narrative of the explorations of Cameron and Sir Samuel Baker. With the completion of the narrative of these expeditions the reader is in possession of a complete view of recent explorations, and of the condition and progress of discoveries when Stanley entered upon his last expedition. The author then proceeds to give a complete and detailed history of Stanley's incomparable feat, which has produced such an immense sensation both in this country and in Europe. Mr. Headley possesses the rare quality of putting a marvellous amount of information into a small compass, and still make it intensely interesting to the reader. The author's name is a sufficient guarantee of the rare merit of this book.

Two Noted Grave Robbers.

Our readers will remember the account given in these columns of the robbing of the grave of the Hon. Scott Harrison, in Ohio, last year, the body being found in the dissecting room of the Ohio Medical College. Public indignation justly broke out, and a reward of $500 was offered for the apprehension of the villains who left ruin the grave robbers in the country, so far from being the subject of any sympathy, are universally hooted for their vicious. The case is a sickening one. Within the last few days the dead bodies of our loved ones are not safe from the dissecting knife, there only rob the graves to receive the living human to pay board and lessons. Their success Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery and Pleasant Purgative Pellets are bringing forth fruits the world over. The Golden Medical Discovery cures all diseases, in the early stages, and all forms of scrofulous and humor complaints. Dr. Pierce's Pleasant Purgative Pellets are the most valuable laxative and cathartic.

Two Noted Grave Robbers.

Our readers will remember the account given in these columns of the robbing of the grave of the Hon. Scott Harrison, in Ohio, last year, the body being found in the dissecting room of the Ohio Medical College. Public indignation justly broke out, and a reward of $500 was offered for the apprehension of the villains who left ruin the grave robbers in the country, so far from being the subject of any sympathy, are universally hooted for their vicious. The case is a sickening one. Within the last few days the dead bodies of our loved ones are not safe from the dissecting knife, there only rob the graves to receive the living human to pay board and lessons. Their success Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery and Pleasant Purgative Pellets are bringing forth fruits the world over. The Golden Medical Discovery cures all diseases, in the early stages, and all forms of scrofulous and humor complaints. Dr. Pierce's Pleasant Purgative Pellets are the most valuable laxative and cathartic.

On Friday last, Mr. John Hamblin of Lakefield, caught a muskinonge in the river near the second island, which weighed 22 pounds.

What might have proved a serious accident occurred in the store of Mr. Sawtell a few days since. Mr. S. had been out hunting and returning, put his gun away without drawing the charge; some time after he instructed his clerk, J. Jamieson, to clean it, and upon his using a cap to blow out the nipple, the gun went off, leaving a load of shot in the ceiling. Fortunately the gun was resting on the young man's knee with the muzzle pointing upwards or some serious injury would have been the result.—News.

NEARING THE SHORE.

An old man sits in a worn arm-chair;
White as snow is his thin, soft hair,
Furrowed his cheek by time and care.
And back and forth it sways.
There's a far-away look in his dim, dim eye,
Which tells of thoughts of the long-gone by,
For he sits once more 'neath a cloudless sky
And in childhood merrily plays.

He rests his cheek on the head of his cane,
And happily smiling dreams over again
Of that home, the brook, the meadow, the lane—
Dreams all with a vision clear;
Then childhood yields unto manhood's place,
And he looks once more in his clear, bright face,
And down in the starry eyes he can trace
A love remembered and dear.

Then he wakes and sighs: "It seems but a dream
That comes to me now like a golden gleam
Or the shimmering glow of the sun's last beam
But 'tis pleasant to think it o'er—
The youth was so sweet, but now is past;
Those days of love were too precious to last.
But over yonder their pleasures are cast,
And I am nearing that shore."

He is gliding on in his little boat;
O'er the calm, still water they peacefully float;
But soho! fall off! brings a well-known note
From the land that he has left behind.
But time will row back for him no more,
But he gazes away to that other shore,
And knows, when the voyage of life shall be o'er,
That his dream beyond he will find.

The seeds of youth which in youth now
Adown through the aisles of the future will grow
And shed on age a beautiful glow
As they come in memory's gleams.
Loved faces will come to dimmiest sight,
Sweet words will echo in day-dreams bright,
And circle old age with their halos of light
As they mingle in beautiful dreams.

Mr. Damschotter's Failure.

(THE AMERICAN GROCER.)

BY WILLIAM H. MAHER.

The wholesaler who is doing a live business takes a deal of interest in his mail. There are always great possibilities in the way of orders as well as small possibilities in the way of remittances. I look upon that man as rather cold blooded who can go quietly to sleep without having seen his evening mail, or who can sit and listen to a Sunday sermon without having been to the office for a peep at the orders. One evening in January I sat down before a small pile of letters, and they were all very satisfactory till I reached one of which the following is an exact copy:

Colon, Jan. 12, 1878.

Gentlemen:

Dear Sir—Yower Bill Will be du on 13 of this Month Times ar Very hard at Present and it Will be im Possi bill To Pay yower Bill when du So Whe Act for Thirty days more on the Bill By that time Whe Will be Better Fixed to pay it.

Whe are doing nothing at present to the amount of anything

Yoosrs
DAMSCHOTTER & Co.

I don't copy this letter here to show how badly D & Co. could spell for they are not the worst spellers I know of, by a large margin. We have men here in Toledo who can spell worse than this, but the panic is rapidly cleaning them out of business and sending them back to shoe and harness making, soap boiling and other pursuits that their talents are better fitted for. The spelling of Damschotter's letter did not bother me, but the fact that he wanted longer time on his bill did. I had heard some very faint suspicions concerning his soundness, within the past thirty days, though up to that time Dunn quoted him as being worth from eight to ten thousand dollars, with liabilities at not more than fifteen hundred dollars at the outside. He had always been prompt pay, and was willing to pay fair profits, and we had considered him one of the most desirable customers on our books.

But there was something rong in the town of Colon. Within the year 1877 there had been three failures, and we had lost in each one of them. The three houses that failed compromised and went on again, but there must have been something wrong with the retail trade there to cause so many failures. And now if Damschotter was to go the way of the rest we would feel like shaking the dust off our feet at Colon and letting it severely alone.

The next day I called on my neighbor Burkit, boot and shoe dealer, to enquire about Damschotter.

Oh, yes, said Burkit, we got a letter from the blank cuss; trade is going to the dogs as fast as it can. My men sell goods for nothing, and sell everybody, whether good, bad or indifferent. I expect Damschotter is going like all the Colon fellows, but when we are through with this chap we'll put a period to our going there in the future.

I concluded the safest way would be to write D. & Co. that we were not in a position to carry their bill after it was due, and must insist on their remitting at once. It is very bad policy to be too easy in business. There are plenty of good men who appreciate a little kindness now and then, but if they are petted all the time they accept favors as a matter of course and give no credit for them. I thought my letter would most probably make Damschotter very angry, and in the heat of his anger he would remit, as many men do. It is the only way you can collect some bills; soft words and complimentary statements amount to nothing, but a little of what my friend Burkit calls, religious cussing, brings them to their dander and fetches the fragment.

But my letter did not have the desired effect; instead of the amount due it brought the following letter, which I faithfully copy:

GENTLEMEN:

Kind Friend it is no use to dri Pay 100 Cent for a Dollar no longer times ar goin to be bad and whe must do same as rest whe shall settle on the febrary 1.

DAMSCHOTTER & Co.

Here was one hundred and fifty or two hundred dollars gone where the woodbine twineth, where a good many other hundreds had gone before. I made a mental resolution that I must at once cut down on my church subscription and my annual donation to the Young Men's Christian Association, and then I went out to enquire about Damschotter. I found the other houses who dealt with him had received notice of the failure, and all of them were of the opinion of Burkit, that this thing was getting too monotonous, and it seemede to be the unanimous opinion that we should go up to Colon on the first of February and give D & Co's matter a searching scrutiny. It was getting to be too easy a matter to fail and here was a place where it seamed to be proper to draw a line.

On the day above mentioned, thirteen forlorn-feeling men of us took seats in the cars or Colon. We had head nothing more from Damschotter direct, but the mercantil agency had given notice of his failure—assets and liabilities unknown—and a rumor that he would offer thirty cents on the dollar. When I was asked if I would settle our claim at that, I replied I would do as the rest did, and as near as I could get at the opinion of the rest, they proposed to do the same.

D & Co. did not meet us at the depot, nor did we see any of the firm till we arrived at their store. Our walk up to the street was full of melancholy reflections. Some one pointed out F. 'Bros.' place, and some one also feelingly said, there went a hundred dollars there, and the rest of us echoed a similar groan for larger or smaller amounts. A like experience was gone through when we passed S.-- place and again a D. & D.'s. And all these groans made the more determined that we would not let Damschotter off without getting all the concern could pay.

Mr. D. met us with a happy face and outstretched hand. Bombardier, who was personally acquainted with him, introduced the rest of us with the guess that gentleman is celebrated for. Burkit said, Well, let us get to business, and the same moment Damschotter said:

Shentlemens, will you trink some beer?

And we said yes to both remarks, but took the beer before the business. Then we turned to Damschotter and asked where his partner was.

I ton't got no bartner.

Who is in the company?

I ton't get no gompany.

Then what do you mean by Damschotter & Co?

Oh, dot is all right; may be some day I vill haf a bartner.

Well, we are here now, what have you got to say?

Nodings, put I am pusted.

What's the matter?

Nodings put de hard dimes.

Have you been making bad debts?

My coot*mens*, yes; dere was Jake Snyder owe me fifteen dollar and told me go to hale; dat tame Yankee miller owe me for barrel flour und say I can sue und be tamed. Und dere is Walsh—

Never mind wafel, broke in Mabee; how much have you standing out in all?

Shtandin out?

Yes, how much is there due you all together from your customers?

Oh! well, maype hunder und fifty tollar.

A hundred and fifty dollars! Why, that is nothing.

Nodings! I owe you hundred und fifty teller, you think it nodings? Not mooch! Nodings! Shimisy, nodings!

If you have collected your accounts so that you have but one hundred and fifty dollars standing out, you have no cause for complaint about the times. What are your liabilities?

My vwhich?

How much do you owe?

Well, I ton't know; you shentlemens must know dat.

I took a piece of paper, and as each one told me the amount of his claim I wrote it down, and on footing these found our claims amounted to $1,938. I then asked him who else he owed besides us who were there, and, as well as he could remember the amount, it made a total of less than $3,500 in all. I had suppose the claims would foot up four times this, and I could see by the faces of the others that they were surprised that the amount was not larger.

This is all you owe?

Dat ish all; and he looked as pleased as we did.

Now what are your assets?

Sprechen sie Deutch?

No, we cannot, but we will get another word. What are you worth? What have you got, money, goods, property, everything?

Oh! Well, I got all dings what I ever had.

How much stock have you?

Yaaht what is here.

Haven't you inventoried?

What ish das inven—?

Haven't you taken account of stock—seen how much you had?

I knows what I haf all de time.

Well, how much have you?

Yaaht what is here.

The only way to get an answer to that question was to go through the stock ourselves and estimate it. I tackled the cutlery and light hardware, Burkit went at the boots and shoes as if he wanted to put them in his vest pocket and carry them home, and Bombardier dodged into the notions till he looked like a toy himself; and very soon we had decided that the stock was worth between $2,500 and $3,000. We began to look at one another when this was announced, but Damschotter looked very well pleased and said it was yusht about right.

You own this building, don't you?

Yes.

And what else?

Und my baus.

And what else?

Und my farm in nex township.

Anything else?

Das ish all.

Any mortages on your property?

Not if I knows it.

Well, what do you mean, anyway? Here you claim to be worth property to the amount of eight thousand dollars, and you owe twenty-five hundred; what are you trying to do?

I shall pust, das's what I will do.

Bust! Why you can't pust!

Can't pust! I like to know if I can't pust almost shouted Damschotter, his face red with excitement. I show you I will pust. You spect I go on paying hunder cents for a tollar, and afery oder one pays seventy-five and dirty! I shall settle mit you at dirty cents, and it you don't like him you shall go to places.

Don't be an ass, Damschotter, said Burkit' mildly, you ought to have put your property out of your hands if you wanted to fail. Don't you see that it we sue and get judgments against your property, we can take this property.

No you ton't, said Damschotter, for I am pusted.

Oh, go to thunder; you're drunk.

No, I pe not drunk; I knows what I says. Places, can efery one pust und not I? Dat would be a fine dings pimeby.

You can 'bust' and be hanged, said we, but before we leave town we shall place our claims in the hands of an attorney an tell him to proceed to collect them at once.

Tidn't you settle mit D. at seventy cents?

Yes.

Und all of you fellows?

Yes, all of us who were in that boat had settled at twenty cents.

Tidn't you settled with B. Bros. at dirty cents."

Yes, we all had.

Und tidn't you sign ofer to S. for twenty-two cent?

He had us again.

Und, great shiming! now you will not sign ofer to me for dirty cent! Und I was yust so good as D., or B., or S., eh? I dinks I pays you afery ding pafore now, eh? Shentlemens, it is pooty bard as you will not be so easy mit me as mit dose oder fellows.

But they had lost their money Damschotter. D. owed $6,000 and had $1,800 assets. We took twenty cents because that was more than we could have got by pressing him. It was the same with B. and with S. We took the most we could get. But it is different with you; we can sue you and get our claim in full, and you will have to pay all the costs.

My beafens, can't a man pust when he is worth *seven*dings? Of you don't settle mit me like you settle mit dose oder fellows I shall go ext mit plenties. You shpose I can go on mit one hundred cents und der settle for dirty? Nix; I gan't. You settle mit dose fellows und you cut my throat, and now you you dinks I stand it. I see you all pusted first. I pay mine bills; I have no expense; my Wife she pees a saving womans; I have no pig houses, no coachmans, no swell-head poys; I don't make a John Jacob Vanderbilt of misself, and send my money flying. I yust tries to make a fair profeet and to pay mine bills. Shentlemens, you can do vwat you likes, put it is pooty hard dat you vill do more for some Teufel windbags as you will do for a fellow as tends to pesiness all the time.

It was quite a speech for the man to make and it affected us greatly. It was a sermon delivered under the most favorable circumstances. Settling at twenty to thirty cents on the dollar had been so common in his own town that he had come to believe that it was his right to settle at the same rate. And when he saw that he, the careful dealer, the economical manager, the responsible merchant, could not "pust" at pleasure, as the others had done, it was a terrible blow to him.

We did not have to use for our accounts. Damschotter began to remit as soon as he was satisfied that he could not "pust" and our account was paid up sometime ago. But as we came back in the cars that day there was none of us but admired that we had learned a lesson, and Damschotter's little speech taught us that a good merchant in a town had some rights that ought to be taken into account when settling with a bankrupt. And we asked ourselves the question whether too great readiness to compromise with Tom, Dick and Harry had not made failures rather fashionable and much too easy. I think none of us regretted our trip to Colon.

CHOOSE WELL.

Never marry a man who has only his love for you to recommend him. That is very fascinating, but it does not make the man. If he is not otherwise what he should be, you will never be happy. The most perfect man who did not love you should never be your husband, but though marriage without love is terrible, love only will not do. It this man is dishonorable to other men, or mean or given to any vice, the time will come when you will either loathe him or sink to his level.

It is hard to remember, amidst kisses and praises, that there is anything else in the world to be done or thought of but love making, but the days of life are many, and the husband must be a guide to be trusted—a companion, a friend, as well as a lover.

Many a girl has married a man whom she knew to be anything but good, "because he loved her so." And the flame has died out on the hearth-stone of home before long, and beside it she has seen sitting one that she could never hope would lead her heaven-ward, one who, if she followed him as wife should, would guide her steps to perdition. Marriage is a solemn thing—a choice for life; be careful in the choosing.

GIGANTIC VICTORIAN TREES.

(From the Australian News.)

It has long been supposed that the immense trees discovered in California some years since could not be exceeded either in height or girth by those in any other country, and the palm for size was unanimously awarded to the Wellingtonia gigantea as the specimen was styled. There are, however, specimens of eucalyptus or gum tree that have been met with occasionally that nearly equalled the dimensions of the American giants. Some of these, of the species known as the blue gum, have been found on the slopes of Mount Wellington, and in the Huon district in Tasmania, and others, of a different kind have been noticed in Gippeland. Our illustration gives a fair representation of a tree which is undoubtedly the largest in the world. It is of the kind known as the Eucalyptus Amygdalina, or almond-leaf gum, which is common in the districts of Dandenong, Berwick and parts of Gippsland. It is not found in elevated positions, but prefers level ground, and where met with in groves it is found of immense proportions, and the butts run up to a tremendous height before a branch is thrown out. The specimen represented grew at Ferntshaw, in the Daudenong district, and is 380 feet to the first branches, 430 feet to the top, and has a girth of from fifty to sixty feet at a short distance above the ground.

Advices by steamer Australia state that the news from the gold-seekers who went to New Guinea is not favourable. The miners are very reticint. Fighting between the French and the natives is still going on in New Caledonia. An expedition on a large scale against the rebels is now projected. The total number of victims by the recent outbreak was 118. In Fiji shocking excesses on the part of native provisional governors are reported.

JOY AMONG THE CHILDREN.

COPELAND'S SWEET CASTOR OIL, equally suitable for children and adults. Endorsed by over 600 doctors in Canada. The difficulty of administering nauseous medicines and the desirability of having them pleasant to the taste, induced T. Copeland to undertake researches, which resulted in the discovery of a Sweet Castor Oil, perfectly palatable, of the same strength and medical qualities as the ordinary Castor Oil; and while equally safe and harmless yet acting with more certainty, and producing neither nausea nor griping. Some children say it is honey; others call it syrup—they all say they like it. One parent says—My children drink it like water; another—"We had to hide the bottle or they would have finished it right off;" another—"My little girl has taken it twice without any trouble, and does not know what it is, though she hates the ordinary Castor Oil, and we never could get her to take it without a fight;" yet another—"I wish you success of your SWEET CASTOR OIL; it is a splendid thing—sure to take the place of all common oil."

The extraordinary demand for this improvement of a staple household medicine has brought fraudulent imitations into the market, but the public can guard themselves against substitutes (which unprincipled parties are attempting to sell on the reputation of this article) by seeing that the name, COPELAND'S SWEET CASTOR OIL, is on both wrapper and direction label.

The undersigned having purchased Messrs T. Copeland & Co's interest in the above preparation, are now manufacturing it from the original recipe.

It is the cheapest medicine ever made. One dose cures common sore throat. One bottle has cured Bronchitis. Fifty cents worth has cured an old standing cough. It positively cures catarrh, asthma, and croup. Fifty cents worth has cured crick in the back, and the same quantity lame back of eight years' standing. It cures swelled neck, tumors, rheumatism, neuralgia, contraction, of the muscles, stiff joints, spinal difficulties, and pain and soreness in any part, no matter where it may be, nor from what cause it may arise, it always does you good. Twenty-five cents worth has cured bad cases of chronic and bloody dysentery. One tea-spoonful cures bolic in 15 minutes. It will cure any case of piles that it is possible to cure. Six or eight applications is warranted to cure any case of excoriated nipples or inflamed breast. For bruises, if applied, often and bound up, there is never the slightest discoloration to the skin. It stops the pain of a burn as soon as applied. Cures frosted feet, boils, warts, and corns, and wounds of every description on man or beast.

BEWARE OF IMITATIONS—Ask for Dr. Thomas' Eclectric Oil. See that the signature of S. N. Thomas is on the wrapper, and the names of Northrop & Lyman are blown in the bottle, and take no other. Sold by all medicine dealers. Price, 25 cts, NORTHROP & LYMAN, Toronto, Ont., Proprietors for the Dominion.

Mitchell's Belladonna Improved India Rubber Porous Plaster.

There never has been a time when the healing of so many different diseases has been treated by outward application as the present. It is an undisputed fact that over half of the entire population of the globe resort to the use of ordinary plasters.

The principal ingredients used in making these Plasters are Gum Olibanum—or better known as the Frankincense of the Bible—Rubber, and Burgundy Pitch; which, when scientifically compounded, is full of electricity, and when combined with the pure medicinal gums, is found to be one greatest healing mediums ever brought before the human race.

They are acknowledged by all who have used them to act quicker than any other Plasters they ever before tried, and that one of these Plasters will do more real service than a hundred of the ordinary kind. All other Plasters are slow of action, and require to be worn continually to effect a cure; but with these it is entirely different; the instant one is applied the patient will feel its effect.

They possess all the soothing, warming, supporting and strengthening qualities of all other Plasters. Many who have been relieved of RHEUMATISM, TICDOLOREUX, and various other pains in the KIDNEYS, BREAST or SIDE, and believe it is solely done by the electrical qualities which the Porous Plasters contain, and which is imparted to the system, thus restoring them to a healthy condition.

They are very soft and pliable, still very adhesive; and a sure cure for WEAK BACKS PAINS IN THE SIDE AND BREAST, and are invaluable to those who have a COLD of long standing, and often prevents CONSUMPTION. Remember and tell us they believe they were entirely cured by the use of them of a long seated Consumption.

Ontario Business College S. C. BEATTY & CO., Belleville, Ontario.

THE design of the above Institution, and the work it is most successfully accomplishing, as shown in the great success of its graduates throughout the country, is to prepare boys, and young and middle aged men for Commercial Pursuits by giving them a THOROUGH and PRACTICAL Education in Book-Keeping in all its forms, Penmanship, Arithmetic, Correspondence, Grammar and Spelling, Banking Business; how to deal with notes, drafts, bills of exchange checks, and all kinds of business paper.

GRADUATES OF THE COLLEGE who have finished their four months course and taken their diploma are continually receiving good positions, in which, owing to the completeness of their knowledge, they speedily attain promotion.

Among our students are those who have been through the grammar schools and universities, as well as those whose education in early life has been neglected. The former come to receive a practical education, such as is needed in every day life, the latter to remedy past neglect, and all to secure that knowledge which will help them to success in the world.

ROBBERY OF THE RECEIVER-GENERAL'S OFFICE.

Suit at New York for the Recovery of the Stolen Money.

Sketch of the Life of Tom Bigelow.

The following account of the suit for the recovery of the money stolen from the Receiver-General's office, and sketch of the life and doings of Bigelow, who is supposed to be the thief, is taken from the New York Times of the 11th inst. Bigelow arrived in Toronto in the custody of Detective Skedington on Tuesday night last, and made his appearance in the Police Court on the following morning:—

After the robbery of the Receiver General's office at Toronto, Canada, the Pinkerton Detective Agency in Chicago was telegraphed to, and a detective was sent on to work up the case. The detective soon came to the conclusion that the notorious American professional sneak-thief Tom Bigelow, was one of the gang concerned in the thieft. Subsequently investigation revealed the fact that Bigelow, with his wife, was living in Toronto under an assumed name. Probing the matter further, the detective was grieved to learn that the man whom he was in seach of had disposed of his furniture at private sale, and had sailed for England in one of the Allan line of steamers from Quebec. The detective force at Scotland Yard, London, were communicated with, and informed that Mrs. Bigelow's relatives resided in Manchester, and they were requested to keep a strict watch in case Bigelow eluded them in London. Instead of visiting his wife's relatives, however, as was anticipated, Bigelow made an extended tour of the Continent, but after award, returning to England, was arrested. Mr. Fraser, the Assistant Receiver-General of Toronto, was notified of Bigelow's arrest, but the fact of Jacob D. Otis' arrest about the same time in this city for the same offence, made Mr. Fraser's presence imperative in New York. Consequently the Assistant Receiver General, having to attend to the Otis case here, could not reach London in the specified time —15 days—allowed by English law to hold a prisoner, and on his failing to appear against Bigelow within the required time, the latter was discharged.

After Bigelow's release in England, the Pinkerton Detective Agency in this city telegraphed to the Scotland Yard detectives to keep a carcful watch on Bigelow's movements. On August 25th a cable despatch was received stating that the fugative and his wife had sailed in the Allan Line steamer Circassian for Quebec. The Canadian authorities sent detectives to await the Circassian's arrival. The steamer reached her destination on Sunday morning last, and Bigelow and his wife were taken into custody. The theory advanced for the pair not coming to the United States is that Mrs. Bigelow, who is the notorious London Jordan, feared arrest for her participation in the robbery of the Leohmere Bank, Cambridge, Mass.

Bigelow is 35 years of age, and was brought up in this city, began life as a pickpocket in the Eighth Ward, and was not long in attaining the rank of a burglar. He fell in with "Bob" Scott and "Jim" Dunlop, the Northampton Bank burglars, and the results of his acquaintance with these "cracksmen" was that he ceased to work as a sneak-thief. He was engaged with Scott and Dunlop in the robbery of the Fall City Tobacco Bank, of Louisvill, Ky. Bigelow and his confederates blew upon the safe with dynamite, and secured, in bonds and other securities, in the neighborhood of $230,000. Tom Draper, alias "Shang" Draper, who was recently arrested in Brooklyn; John Leary, alias "Rod" Leary; Billy Connors, and Dave Cumins, alias "Little Dick," were also concerned in this robbery. Bigelow with his "pals," next turned up at the First National Bank, in Quincy, Ill., when $80,000 in currency, besides railroads bonds, county bonds, and other securities were stolen. After the Quincy robbery Bigelow disappeared from view in a most mysterious manner and his whereabouts were not known even to his associates. Some persons who professed to know all about him said he was dead; others that he had gone abroad to enjoy his money, and others that he had purchased a farm in the central part of this State, and had settled down as a farmer. All, however, agreed that he had quit the life of a thief, or, in the language of his brethren, had "squared it." After the lapse of about two years he again appeared in New York in his old role of sneak thief. Remaining here for some time, he went to Chicago, and ingratiated himself into the confidence of Billy O'Brien and Parrott, two well-known professionals. While in Chicago Bigelow made his head-quarters at the house of Barney Aaron, and during the latter's absence from home won his wife's affections. He urged Mrs. Aaron to seek a divorce from her husband and marry him. Barney's wife did as Bigelow advised, and, getting a divorce, married him.

THE PEOPLE AND PROTECTION.

We must confess our utter surprise at the result of the election throughout the Dominion. We had no idea that the people could be deceived by the re-iteration of Protectionist fallacies long since exploded, both by reason and practice. So convinced were we that the intelligence of Canadians would reject the absurdity of regulating our commercial affairs by fiscal impositions that we refused to accept as a principal issue, the question of a Protective tariff as against one having the raising of a revenue for its primary object. We are now forced to acknowledge our error in placing too high an estimate on the knowledge of the electors upon fiscal matters. Honest stupidity on the part of some, and dishonest cupidity on the part of more have won the day, until greater light shows the mistake that has been made. We cannot think that all who voted the Tory ticket did so with the belief that Protection would benefit them at the expense of others; but many, very many, must have cast their ballots with that eminently selfish and dishonest thought in their minds. When these men find, as they will before long, that they have been most egregiously sold, they need not expect sympathy from any quarter. Especially is the Tory laugh turned scornful those Reformers, who, from whatever motive, deserted their party, and forgot its principles, to aid those who have ever striven against popular liberty and the progress and prosperity of the masses. The traditions of the Tory party since the days of the Family Compact and their efforts against the establishment in Canada of responsible Government, have shown them opposed to popular representation and the rights of the people, as against the interests of the capitalist classes, with whom they have always gone hand in glove for purposes of mutual benefit. Such has been the case again in this instance, and their very victims have innocently been their allies. The awakening of the duped to the deceptions practiced upon them will come speedily, and the wave of indignation will soon overwhelm the deceivers.

It is well that the Mackenzie administration stood firmly to its position on the tariff question, and that it did not, as other Governments have been known to do, palter and yield to popular clamor for the purpose of retaining their seats. Canada has at last had a Government that was willing to trust to its record and its policy, and to stand or fall by them. All honor to the men who would not sacrifice their principles to a desire to retain office. True, they did no more than what was right in trusting wholly to their policy and practice; but the comparison of their conduct in so doing, with the shuffling and yielding of their predecessors redounds to their credit. Let us hope it marks a new era in the history of Canadian Ministries.

Each man who voted, fully and plainly understands his estimate of the difference between the Government policy and the demands of the Opposition. The distinction being marred by no concession on the part of the Ministry, and the promises of the Opposition being so extensive, the elector has nothing to expect but the prompt carrying out by the incoming Ministers of the promises that led to his voting in their favor. So important is it that public men should keep strictly to the principles they profess, and to the promises with which they influence the electorate, that it is perhaps fortunate that the Tory majority in the next parliament will be such as to leave no excuse for them, should they fail in attempting to fulfil their promises to the electors. That these promises have been so many, and so conflicting is the fault of those who made them. Each and every elector whose vote has been influenced by a promise, has a right to expect the fulfilment of his expectations by a Ministry with a large majority at its back. That one thing has been promised here and another there, is no fault of the electors, and if the attempted fulfilment of one pledge leads to disappointment and offence in another direction, the punishment must be to those by whom the offence comes. Many of the farmers who voted for Tory candidates, reasonably expect higher prices for their produce. They have been directly promised such increase. If they do not get it they have a right to feel indignant at the deception practised upon them, and if security at home and restriction of imports from abroad should make grain and cattle dear, purchasers of bread and meat cannot fail to be disappointed, and wroth that the good times promised them should prove a passage from bad to worse. When the working man fails to get the promised increase of wages under protection, whom will he blame for deceiving him? But when stationery, or even lower wages are his portion, and with less money, he is forced to pay more money for his food, fuel, furniture, rent and clothing, he will have just cause to denounce and execrate those who induced him to help to rob himself. When the few whose position and money can force the granting of their demands have been appeased, if such be possible, what is to be the feeling of those at whose expense the price has been paid? The manufacturers whose money has gone toward obtaining protection must and will have what their pockets bled for. They expect and will demand a return in the shape of duties for their enrichment. But what is given to those few rich men must be taken from others, and protection to those means simply and solely oppression to the workingmen, artizans, farmers and professional men of the Dominion. When the deceived voters begin to realize this, the lesson will be inculcated by dear experience. The only comfortable reflection is, that it will not have to be learned again.

PARTY ORGANIZATION.

One significant feature of the late political contest is the fact that in those places where the Reformers expected a hard contest, or even defeat, they have won the day, while constituencies that were considered sure for the Government have been lost. There can be no doubt that the day was lost by reason of the more careful canvassing of electors by Conservatives. The Opposition fallacies of Protection were poured into the ears of voters and their minds privately poisoned, while the friends of the Ministry failed in most places to supply the antidote. Wherever the tactics of the Tories were promptly and fully met there they failed. In this we have displayed the great importance of the rule that one should never despise an enemy till he has defeated him, and the necessity for the utmost watchfulness and activity in carrying on a political contest. In no case should the enemy be suffered to steal a march, as has been done in this instance. Enthusiastic utterances will not do without earnest work. Next to personal effort on the part of the candidate,—another requisite that is frequently lost sight of—comes the earnest work of individual canvassers, each appointed with special reference to his fitness for the task assigned him. It should be the care of the whole organization to see that no man in an excess of zeal assumes more work than he is capable of performing in a thorough manner. To allow a person to undertake what he must in whole or in part slight, is as unjust to the canvasser and the party, as the putting of too much of the burden on the shoulders of a member of the party, simply as an expression of confidence in his fidelity. Faithful adherence to the party and long identification with the constituency do not in themselves include the physical and mental qualifications for the performance of all kinds of work, or of such work of any kind. The man who is able to exert a good influence in one quarter may only work mischief in another, while the poor, obscure, and too often overlooked voter is the very best canvasser obtainable in some direction known better to himself than to any other member of the party. For purposes of thorough confidence between canvassers, frequent meetings are a necessity, so that what one finds impossible to effect, or hard to accomplish, may be handed over to another with more time and strength, and hope and confidence in his success in that particular work. We hope that these lessons will be deeply impressed on the minds of Reformers by the late defeat they have suffered. They have an organization now well begun, but far from being complete and perfect in its most necessary parts. Let them therefore close up their ranks, make use of the experience lately gained, enter on and perfect improvements where such are necessary, prepare earnestly and energetically for the coming Provincial elections, determined then to retrieve to the greatest possible extent the defeat lately suffered, chiefly through their own apathy and over-confidence. We do not ask them to be now confident of victory at that time; we rather advise work, that they may enjoy confidence after victory, instead of defeat after confidence.

OUR POSTAL FACILITIES.

It has frequently seemed to us ill-taste to complain of arrangements made by the Post Office Department for the delivery of mails at certain points, because however important any one place may be in the eyes of the residents therein, it is as nothing compared to the vast number of offices, and the great extent of territory to be served by the Department. Nor is the postal carriage to be looked on in the light of a concern that makes money and pays a dividend to its stockholders from the profits of its business. It exists for the popular convenience at the popular expense, and instead of profit from the light charges imposed, every year sees a deficit in the finances of the Department, to be made up by a Parliamentary vote. Therefore no locality should look to special mail advantages at the expense of the whole country. But when mail routes are laid out and arrangements made for regular delivery it is far from unreasonable to claim that such delivery should be prompt and unfailing, barring of course unavoidable delays by accident. For instance the mail to Peterborough from Toronto is carried by way of the Grand Trunk Railway to Port Hope, and from thence by Midland Railway. Postal matter leaving Toronto in the morning should get to Peterborough by the morning train from Port Hope, always provided the said mail train on the Grand Trunk connects with the north-coming train on the Midland road, which connection is nearly always made. When such is not the case there is a good excuse on the part of mail clerks for delay in the Peterborough mails, but where we find, as is frequently the case, that express matter is brought through, and the mails at the same time missed, we are forced to conclude that the fault lies with the officials of the Post Office Department. We are the more readily led to make this complaint because of the unfavorable position of Peterboro' in point of postal accommodation compared with other towns of less size and with a much smaller country depending on them. This is of course owing to our having to rely on but one railway, and that practically a branch of another. But for this very reason we think special efforts should if necessary, be made to accommodate this section of the Province. We trust at least that the Post Office Department, through its inspector for this district, will see that the residents of these back counties do not suffer in the respect of which we speak, because of the laziness or carelessness of any of its employees.

THE CONSERVATIVE LEADERSHIP.

Though the Conservative party has been victorious at the polls, the late election has proved a second condemnation of the Pacific Scandal. The chief offender in that political crime failed of election, as did also three of his colleagues in the Ministry at the time the evil deed was perpetrated, that disgraced Canada in the eyes of Britain and the world. The question at once rose as to whether Sir John Macdonald and the Conservative party would accept the double denunciation thus passed, or brave the popular verdict by seeking to keep up the old relation. Possibly his own private feelings would have induced Sir John to prefer retirement; but the probabilities are that the most unreasonably enthusiastic and reckless of the party insisted on his re-election in some sure constituency and his retention of the position of leader. Such being the determination, we may expect signs of disapprobation from Britain on other grounds than the probable fiscal policy of the incoming Government of the Dominion. The old leader of the Canadian Conservatives had frequently expressed his willingness to advocate the position; Conservatives generally had declared that they had no lack of men for leaders; and certain it is there were numerous aspirants ready to assume the succession. Sir John's inclination, the ambition of one of his lieutenants, and the desire of those of the party who condemn the Pacific Scandal could all have been satisfied by the choice of a new leader for the Conservative party. The difficulty was to fix on one from among the many who would step into the post, and it is not surprising that the confusion arising from this cause occasioned the necessity of the Tories still retaining the incubus of the hero of the greatest political crime ever perpetrated in Canada, with the consequent shame to the party and to the country under the rule of that party.

Passing Out on Principle!

The Reform Administration have been defeated and they acknowledge it; but they claim victory of principle. The first session of the new Parliament will show where principle is. Not with the Tories, the electors will find. Let each man see for himself. Will Mackenzie repeat the disgraceful scenes of the passing out of the Pacific Scandal Cabinet? NO!

DEFEAT OF MR. BLAKE.—The defeat of Mr. Blake in South Bruce during his absence in Europe through ill health, is much regretted. Even the Montreal Gazette, a leading Conservative journal, admits that Mr. Blake's absence will be a great loss to Parliament, irrespective of political considerations. We hope he will consent to accept a seat for some other constituency. For Mr. Blake to be absent from the House at a time when the veriest clap-trap as to trade theories is gravely proposed to be embodied in legislation would be a national misfortune.

SIR JOHN A. MACDONALD has secured a seat in the House of Commons as the representative of Marquette, Manitoba.

A WELL DESERVED TRIBUTE.

Speaking of the Hon. Mr. Mackenzie, the Montreal Witness says :

"It is not often that a country is blessed with a ruler so steadfast and so true as the man whom Canada has just capriciously rejected. His was the patriotism that watched over the nation's interests with unflagging and painstaking solicitude, and that labored with an assiduity and endurance that few could equal, if they would, in fulfilment of the onerous task of chief ruler. He was a man of the people—a workingman by training and sympathy—who knew the interests of that class as thoroughly, and sought them as faithfully, as ever a ruler did. Yet it is the workingmen of Canada who have rejected him, and set up a flatterer who has not the first link of common interest or feeling with them. The time will come when the stock, honest form and character of Mr. MACKENZIE will be held in remembrance as worthy of honor far above the brilliant and plaint party managers whom the people seem to prefer, and when his firm adherence against all odds to what he knew to be right and good will be worth more to his memory than the proudest titles. In his administration he has been honest, in his policy he has been right, and in both he will yet be vindicated. Meantime honest men love him, and now that he is in a hopeless minority, apparently for a long time, we may be permitted to utter his praises without awaking the suspicion even of the sordid that we have anything to hope for in doing so. A good and true and great man has been crushed down under the revolving wheel of popular opinion, and we are proud to be able at such a time to own how much the country owes him and to claim for him the unpurchasable esteem of true and wise men everywhere."

THE ENGLISH PRESS ON THE CANADIAN ELECTIONS.

Protectionist Delusion Strongly Deplored.

(Special by Cable to the Globe on Saturday.)

The English press is almost unanimous in deploring the prospect of the Dominion being shortly handed over to a Protectionist Government, and the policy of past years abandoned.

The London Times says :—"We are afraid the significance of this electoral return cannot be reasonably disputed. The victory of Canadian Conservatives is the victory of protection over free trade—no new thing. We unfortunately find our Colonies rejecting sound, economical doctrine; and going back to fallacious reasoning and shortsighted projects which the intelligence and experience of the Mother Country have long ago rejected. Sir John A. Macdonald and his party have their way in Canada: they may perhaps go as far towards the protection of native industry as Mr. Berry's Administration in Victoria has done, but they can hardly go any further. The protectionist victory in Canada, however, carries with it an unusual sense of disappointment, and opens up a range of serious apprehension. Canada not many years ago, showed much promise of becoming a thoroughly free-trade country, establishing her prosperity on that solid foundation; but protectionist reaction, even though its violence may subside in time, though its illusions may be sanctioned by experience, will leave behind it many obstacles in the shape of prudential, jealous, vested interests, unhappily to say renewed movement in favour of free trade. At the same time it must be borne in mind that the Canadian policy, unlike the policy of any Colony, either of Australia or South Africa, is liable to aberrations produced by the close neighbourhood of a great independent power. When we hear that Canadians have no vehemently declared fiscal protestation, we cannot further forget speculating upon the probable effect of that declaration in the States. The proposals for a Customs union embracing the United States and the Dominion, which, as our American correspondence lately informed us, have been attracting attention in Washington, will not probably meet with a much warmer reception from the new Ministry that will be formed under Sir John Macdonald, than they would have received from Mr Mackenzie. The Protectionists in Canada are at least as jealous of American as of English competition, and the Conservative party have been consistently opposed to any measures tending towards amalgamation with the Republic. Yet it must be acknowledged that to the mass of people who vaguely hope that protection will bring them relief, the invitations of the Americans may be made to look tempting; and we may see such another sudden, unexpected movement of public opinion as that which gave the Protectionists their majority this week. It may be worth while recalling the fact that one of the earliest attempts of Mr. Mackenzie's Ministry was to procure the renewal, four years ago, of the Reciprocity Treaty with the United States. The Hon. George Brown went to Washington to open negotiations which afterwards fell through, owing to the apathy or hostility of the Senate. It was while the negotiation was undecided that the Earl of Derby and the Earl of Carnarvon assured a deputation of English manufacturers that the Ministry would disallow any Canadian legislation designed to impose differential duties on English manufacturers in favour of the United States."

[NOTE BY EDITOR OF GLOBE.—There was no necessity for any such assurance by Lords Derby and Carnarvon—for differential duties against English goods and in favour of the United States were not then entertained by any one in Canada, and would be ruinous to any Government that proposed them even now.]

THE ORANGE PROCESSIONS!

The Judgment of Court.

MONTREAL, Sept. 23.—This afternoon his Honor Mr. Desnoyers rendered his decision in the case of the Orangemen. Having rehearsed the charge, his Honor said :—"The evidence goes to show beyond a doubt that the defendants did meet with a number of others on St. James street on the 12th of July to walk in procession, with regalia and badges, from the Orange Lodge Rooms to Stanley street Church, and their walking in procession would not only have proved a breach of the peace, but would in all probability, have caused considerable blood shed. As to the fact of the defendants being members of the Orange Association, no direct proof has been adduced, those of the witnesses called who were likely able to prove it refusing to do so, inasmuch as they could only know it by being Orangemen themselves, and their admission to that effect would criminate them. This view was sustained by Sir A. A. Dorion, but I do not think that there can be any doubt that the defendants do belong to the Orange Order. Mr. Dunbar Browne says that he professionally examined the lease for the Lodge-Room of the Orange Order, and indentifies said room with the Lodge where the defendants had assembled on the 12th July, on St. James street, where, and in the vicinity of which they were arrested. On that occasion, the 12th, the defendant David Grant acted and spoke openly as one high in authority on behalf of the Orange Association. At the time of arrest the defendants wore on their persons badges and regalia pertaining to doubt, to the Association, judging from the inscriptions on some of them. Two of the said defendants were on horseback, apparently for the purpose of marshalling the procession." The judgment then reviewed the proceedings of the 12th, showing that when the Mayor and Ald. Mercer asked the defendant Grant that the Orangemen should walk to church without regalia he replied that he would have to consult the Lodge before answering. Ald. Mercer saw about 200 persons assembled in the Hall. His Honor then quoted section 6 of the 10th chapter of the Consolidated Statues, under which action is taken. "The witness Mr. McNally, who almost admitted being an Orangeman, said that he was of the opinion that the nature of the oath and the secrecy should have been admitted, but after a conversation with the counsel, Mr. Doutre, and Col. George Smith, he changed his mind and declined to answer questions, as it was hinted to him that the proper time had not come to make these disclosures. Mr. Dunbar Browne, in one of his answers, stated that 'No one but an Orangeman could know an Orangeman'; is not this clear evidence that the Orange Society is a secret one? Mr. Dunbar Browne quoted from book "E" that the object and aim of the Association was to promote the principles and practice of the Christain religion, to maintain the laws and constitution of the country, etc. This book also gave the obligation of secrecy, which was quoted in full in the judgment. The defendants contend, as a legal proposition, that the preamble of of the said statute, although not recited in the 10th chapter of the Consolidated Statues of Lower Canada, has been consolidated therein, and limits the operation of that statute to the words of the preamble. Section 8 of the first chapter of the Consolidated Statues of Lower Canada enacts that the said Consolidated Statutes shall not be held to operate as new laws, but shall be construed and have effect as a consolidation and as declaratory of the law as contained in the Acts and parts of Acts, so repeated, and for which the said consolidated Statues are substituted. The schedule "B" annexed to the Consolidated statutes of Lower Canada being a schedule of Acts wholly or partly consolidated in this volume and of the sections of the said Acts, showing which of them are consolidated and when, and accounting for those not consolidated, indicates that the first nine sections of the said ordinance, 2 Vic., cap. 8, have been consolidated under cap. 10 of the consolidated Statutes, and the 10th and 11th clauses relating to publication in churches and parishes had become obsolete. The interpretation clauses show clearly that the preamble of the said ordinances form part of cap. 10 of the said Consolidated Statute. Therefore I have no hesitation in holding that the last two sections only of the said ordinance, concerning publication in churches, etc., have been repealed by the consolidating Act, and the first nine sections and preamble have been consolidated, and the preamble must be read as forming part of cap. 10 of the consolidated Statute. But I cannot adopt the view of the defendants that the words of the preamble limit the ordinance to the case of the Canadian rebels." Authorities were then cited to show the wide application of the Act, with two cases, one in which a number of persons banded together to raise wages, and another in which twelve men blackened their faces and were preparing to go night-poaching, and sworn not to betray eachother. These were referred to as having both come under the operation of the Act, thus showing that it was not merely limited to seditious or mutinous bodies. "The sixth section of the ordinance upon which the present prosecution is based was framed upon and is almost a copy word for word of sec. 2 of the 39th George III., chap. 79, which was not intended to punish Canadian rebels, but to suppress, as being unlawful combinations and constituting the Societies of United Englishmen, United Scotchmen, United Britons, United Irishmen, the London Corresponding Society, and all societies of a like nature inconsistent with the public tranquility (Russel, vol. 1. page 257). The fact that the ordinance 2nd Vic., cap. 8, as well as the Imperial statutes recited above, make an exception in favour of the Freemasons, show that the Legislature intended to embrace in prohibition other secret societies which might exist; and moreover, the further Canadian legislation, 29 Vic., cap. 46, 1865, in favor of Freemasons, at a time when the Orangemen had associated themselves in Lower Canada, shows clearly enough that they, the Orangemen, were covered in the prohibitions By the record of the information, the defendants having meant on the 12th July to walk in procession with banners, &c., are charged with having participated in an unlawful assembly. The statutes are silent upon this point, and in common law the authorities are few. I find in Russ., p. 268, that if the meeting from its general appearance is calculated to excite terror it is generally unlawful; and it has been held down by Baron Anderson that any meeting under circumstances which, according to the opinion of rational and fair men, are calculated to produce danger to the peace of the neighborhood, is an unlawful assembly." His Honour quoted the same authority also to the effect that the hour and manner in which the meetings were held etc., should be taken into account by the jury, and from Russell on Crimes, page 373, to the effect that any meeting calculated to raise fears and jealousies among the King's subjects seems properly to be called an unlawful assembly, and other authorities sustaining this position. He gave also the opinion of Jamieson, Attorney-General, and Christopher A. Hagerman, Solicitor-General of Ontario in 1836, that all Orange processions were illegal and might be suppressed.

The defendants are committed to stand their trial at the coming term of the Court of Queen's Bench. They were asked if they desired to make any statement, and individually declared that they were not guilty. The personal bail of the defendants was then renewed in the sum of $100 each for their appearance at the Court of Queen's Bench. which opens to-morrow.

The Peterborough "Times" Independence.

Their principles are naught but show :
Tis money makes the mare to go.

It is not a discovery of the past few weeks but one of long ago to many of our readers that the town of Peterborough is blessed by the publication of three weekly newspapers. The Examiner is, and always was an out-and-out Reform journal; the Review, on the other hand, is a strong Conservative paper, and, lastly, the Times was, and still professes to be an Independent publication; but what "independence" means to the editors and proprietors of the Peterborough Times is a question we cannot solve. In the leading editorial of the latter in last week's issue, we find the following sentence : "We have expressed our opinion upon the all-important subject with unbiassed mind, not caring one straw for either party," and then in another column, evidently dashed off by the same editorial pen, we stumble across such appeals as these : "Electors of the East Riding, send the right man to Ottawa and vote for John Burnham." And again, "Vote for George Hilliard and help to build up your country," and many more of the like ilk, but always on the one side. Now, we would make no objections to the insertion of advertisements in their proper place, when paid for, or to a party paper advocating the claims of its own party be they either Conservatives or Reformers, but when a journalist declares his paper to be an independent one, then it behooves him to save his pen from wandering into forbidden expressions, or writing independent articles for the first column and Party appeals for the second column. The closing words of the article first referred to are sadly applicable we fear in this case, and we opine it would be more honorable for our contemporary to haul down its Independent flag and go the "whole hog." Listen to the virtuous ejaculations when the editor began to write of actions irrespective "of either party," merging into the statement that "others go so far as to assert that a man only becomes an independent candidate simply to play 'fast and loose,' and waiting to see what his support is worth," and then view the other columns filled with the advice to vote a straight party ticket! Oh, consistency, thou art a jewel, but we fear thou art not found in these Times. —Lakefield News.

QUERY.

DO parties claiming to give something for nothing do it, or is it a bait for green horns? To solve the mystery, compare my Boots and Shoes with what is offered elsewhere at "WONDERFUL Prices!" No absurd nonsense such as "Great rejoicing" about "Our great factory" and "Wholesale prices," but judge for yourselves by examining my stock.

The Examiner.

PETERBOROUGH, SEPT. 26, 1878.

LOCAL NEWS.

School Board.—The regular monthly meeting of the School Board will be held next Tuesday evening.

The New Post Office.—It is expected that the new post office will be ready for occupation in two or three weeks.

The Central Exhibition will be held next Tuesday, Wednesday and Thursday in Cobourg. We hope to see Peterborough, both town and county, well represented.

Fancy Penmanship.—Mr. E. J. Hartley sends some very handsome specimens of penmanship to the Central Exhibition which opens in Cobourg next Tuesday.

Western Fires.—Business men send for them, and spare yourselves the weary walk home to dinner. Fresh and hot every day at noon at D. Lemay's confectionery, George street.

The Provincial Exhibition.—The Provincial Exhibition is being held this week in Toronto, and was formally opened on Tuesday by Lord Dufferin. So far the exhibition promises to be very successful.

Larmour's Boots fit the feet as does a kid glove the hand, neatly yet easily; never cramping any part of the foot, while netting them off to the best possible advantage. Always made of superior leather, they wear for a long time.

Prettie Field.—Mr. William Wood of North Monaghan, pulled from a crab tree (Transcendent) planted thirteen years ago, and of a very moderate size, the large quantity of 55 twelve quart pails of fruit—making in all over thirteen bushels.

Acquitted.—Martin Henry, who it will be remembered by our readers, was, during the early part of the summer, committed for trial for shooting one Mahoney at Wallace's Point, has been acquitted at the Assizes lately held at Cobourg.

"Siege of the Nations."—The class will meet for rehearsal on Monday evening, Sept., 30th, when practice will be resumed for the approaching concert. Those wishing to take unfilled parts will please be in attendance. Class rooms at Caisse House.

East Riding Election.—As the official returns in this Riding have not yet been opened by the Returning Officer, we are still unable to give reliable figures for each of the polling places. Mr. Burnham's majority is believed to be between thirty and forty.

The Rochester Excursion.—The cheap excursion to Rochester last week was quite a success—about one hundred and fifty taking advantage of the low fare. The Five Brigade Band accompanied the excursion and made a very favorable impression upon our American Cousins.

Bible Christian Missions.—Sermons on behalf of the Bible Christian Missions will be preached next Sunday in Peterborough at 10.30 a.m., and 6.30 p.m.; in Ashburnham, at 2.30; and 6.30; in Bethel, Omemee, at 2.30, and Salem at 10.30. Missionary meetings will be held on Tuesday, Wednesday, Thursday and Friday evenings, at Peterborough, Ashburnham, Salem and Bethel, respectively.

New Lending Library.—As will be seen by advertisement on the first page of this paper, Messrs. Wilcox and Davis have opened out a circulating library in connection with their book and stationery store. At present they have about six hundred volumes, which number will be steadily increased if the reading public will bestow the patronage necessary to carry it on successfully. We might perhaps also add that they have secured the agency for the sale of tickets to all parts of Canada and the United States.

Rifle Match.—We hope our readers will not forget the Association Matches which take place on the ranges at the north end of the town on October 1st and following days. A valuable lot of prizes are offered for competition, and the list may be seen posted in most of the shops in town. We understand that the score-book in use by the Association last year is missing, having last been in the hands of Capt. Bridgewater. Should any of our readers now have it in their possession, they will confer a favor by having it up the spout office.

Calcutt's Excursion.—Mr. Calcutt has made arrangements to run the Golden Eye at reduced rates during the grand Central Exhibition to be held at Cobourg on October 1st, 2nd, and 3rd. The boat will leave Peterborough every morning at 7 a.m., connecting with the Cobourg train at Harwood, returning on the arrival of the train at Harwood. She will also leave Hastings every day at 1 o'clock p.m., connecting also with the train at Harwood. The fare from Peterboro' and return is only $1.50, so no doubt a large number will avail themselves of the means of a pleasant and cheap trip. Tickets good for the week.

Chatter Hats.—The elegance of every man's appearance depends in a great measure on the covering of his head. The work of the tailor, no matter how superior, may readily be marred by wearing an old or shabby hat; while on the other hand an ill-looking suit of clothes is made to have a decidedly improved appearance by wearing a neat, stylish hat, such as are at all times kept in stock at Hyman's. Mr. Hyman has this fall laid in a choice selection of hats, and all those gents who require this necessary adjunct to an elegant attire should inspect his stock, as we feel convinced they will have no difficulty in pleasing themselves.

A Good Move.—All the physicians of Cobourg have united in a movement, the purpose of which is to protect them from being imposed upon by a very large class who avoid paying their medical bills, although able to do so. The physicians are preparing to have lists of such compiled and furnished to each other for mutual protection; and all who do not, within a reasonable time, settle their medical accounts, will be placed on the list, thereby depriving themselves of attendance, except for cash or good security. The movement is becoming general throughout Ontario.—Sentinel. The Peterborough doctors will no doubt "follow suit" with pleasure.

Superior Clothing for Gentlemen.—That the appeal of bespeaks the man has been attested by the windows and appearance of specimen garments on pegs made by Matthew A. Green the well-known merchant tailor, of a quality to the appearance of every man. Not only do they enhance his presence, but also add to his comfort, for fulfilling garments feel easier than awkwardly cutting coats. Not only do their seats, pants, and vests fit well, they also wear well, their durability putting money in the pockets of the wearers. It is, therefore, in every way to the advantage of gentlemen to entrust their measures for clothes with such skilful clothiers as Messrs. Maddens and Green.

A Perilous Position.—On Saturday last, during the severe gale, whilst Mr. John Corkery and daughter, of Emily, were returning from Peterborough they met with an accident which might have proved more serious. Crossing Mud Lake bridge, they encountered another buggy and Mr. Corkery's horse, worth $140, becoming unmanageable backed into the lake and was drowned. The occupants of the buggy luckily caught hold of the timbers of the bridge and remained in this position until their cries brought assistance from Bridgenorth, when they were speedily rescued from their perilous position. The driver of the other rig did not attempt to render any assistance, but drove rapidly away in the opposite direction.

Mr. Youmans's Concert.—The entertainment of Mr. Youmans in aid of St. Andrew's Benevolent Society, held in Smilhers' Hall on Monday evening, was greeted with a large and appreciative audience. The programme which was quite attractive, consisted of some choice selections from different authors, and it was surprising to what a high degree of perfection, considering the short time for practice, the leader had brought his juvenile singers. This was particularly remarkable in Master and Miss Katie Jeffery, of Port Hope, who as "Captain and Mrs. Jinks" did exceedingly well. Mrs. Bowman in her usual fine style sang several pieces. Miss Johnston kindly presided at the piano. Too great praise cannot be accorded to Mr. Youmans for the able and effective manner in which he trained his pupils.

Primer of Canadian History.—The Globe of a recent date has the following complimentary notice of the "Primer of Canadian History" lately published by the Principal of the Peterborough Collegiate Institute and Public Schools:

J. Frith Jeffers, M. A., the author of a manual of Canadian history, and a well known Canadian educationist, has turned up his quarters, albeit with a primer on the same subject. Like the former work, it forms one of the series of schoolbooks published by James Campbell & Son. A good primer of history is, from the nature of the case, hard to produce, and Mr. Jeffers must be congratulated, being even more successful with this than he was with his manual, though that is probably the best for school purposes to be had. The narrative is brought down almost to the present time, the only recent important events omitted being the appointment of the Marquis of Lorne and the general election which came off a few days ago. As an instance of Mr. Jeffers' accuracy it may be noticed that he has substituted in his primer the more correct term "Kaywaydin" for the one formerly in use, "Keewatin"—a change which ought to commend itself to teachers everywhere.

T. Dolan & Co.—We have much pleasure this week in drawing our readers attention to the advertisement of T. Dolan & Co. in another column of this paper. The constantly increasing trade enjoyed by this firm since its commencement caused the necessity of an extension of premises, and during the summer this has taken place and now the Shop is largely increased over its former capacity. With this extra room they are now enabled to show to more advantage their large and choice stock of goods, and have devoted the second flat to a show room for ready-made clothing. Their new fall stock—both in dry goods and clothing—is largely in excess of former seasons, and buying largely, and for cash, they can afford to sell much cheaper than those houses which do a credit business. We bespeak for the firm that share of public patronage which their enterprise so justly entitles them to, and hope that with their increased facilities they may continue to enjoy a still larger trade.

Incidents of the Contest.—Under the above heading the Review of last week contains a paragraph setting forth that a firm in town had discharged one of their workmen because he had voted for Mr. Hilliard. We are authorized by Messrs. Paterson & Son—the firm in question (at least the supposition that they are the parties is supported by street rumour, the Review not having the manliness to give names) to state that there is not the shadow of truth about the charge. A man named Beavis was discharged, not because he voted for Mr. Hilliard, but for having liquor on the premises and while under its influences, using blasphemous language. We are further requested to state that neither members of the firm asked either their tenants or employees to vote any one way or the other, a statement which any of them will certify. We think in justice to the reputation of the firm, the writer of the paragraph in the Review should have at least made himself aware of the facts of which he was writing, as he must have known that five out of the seven men employed in the tanning were Conservatives, and that they have always voted as such.

TOWN COUNCIL.

Council met on Monday evening last. Present.—His Worship the Mayor and Messrs. Cahill, McBain, Smith, Ormond, Paterson, Hughes, Yelland, Rutherford, Carlisle, Deane.

Minutes of last meeting read and confirmed.

COMMUNICATIONS.

From John McGee, Assistant Constable, complaining that Mr. Beavis had let a prisoner out of the lock-up.—Received.

From Miles & Co., laying before the Council the prospectus of a new atlas for the Dominion of Canada.—Received.

From the Treasurer, a statement of receipts and expenditures for the month of August.—Referred to Finance Committee.

From the Street Inspector the following report:

I beg leave to report on the following petitions for street improvements:—

1. From T. Bradburn and others, asking for a sidewalk on Dublin street (south) from Aylmer to Maiden Lane. I cannot recommend it.

2. From John Corkery, on behalf of the Trustees of the Separate School, asking for a sidewalk on north side of Murray street from George to Aylmer. As the appropriation is so nearly expended, I cannot recommend this, but would recommend a good crossing in front of the school.

3. From B. Leavin, asking for a sidewalk on east side of Bethune street, from his house to the corner of Wolfe street. I would recommend this; cost $12.00.

4. From Charles Robinson asking for a water table to be made to carry away the water from his premises on Stewart street. I have done the work; cost $4.

5. From O. Leonard, asking for a crossing at the corner of Wolfe and George streets, and a sidewalk to her dwelling. I cannot recommend this.

6. From Jas. Dowel and others, asking to have Bethune street graded from London to Smith streets. I cannot recommend this this season, although it is required, for the same reason as the other.

PETITIONS.

From Jas. A. Hall and others, asking that the sidewalk on Bethune street from Charlotte to Simcoe be extended to Hunter.—Referred to Street Inspector.

From E. C. Hill and others, asking that the Council do not pay the account of Messrs. Pearse and Eastland for special audit of Police Court books, as said work should have been done by the Auditors each year, and should be paid by them.—Referred to Finance Committee.

From George Rule, John Lynch, John Brown, Thos. Leonard, Robert Johnston, Wm. Collins and O. M. Roger, in reference to errors and discrepancies in assessment.

From William Appleyard, Louisa Ware, Mrs. Macfarlane, Mrs. E. Wood, Mrs. Barnhard, Mrs. Bulmer and Mrs. Rabell, asking for remission of their taxes.

From T. Fitzgerald and others, asking for assistance for Mrs. Fleet.

From Wellington Pitt, asking for relief.

From R. A. Morrow and others, asking that two gas lamps be erected on Sherbrooke street, one at the corner of Stewart street, and the other at the corner of Rubidge street.

The applications for remission of taxes were referred to the Charity Committee to consult with the Collector and report to the Council. Those in reference to errors in assessment were referred to the Finance Committee.

TAXES UNCOLLECTED.

The COLLECTOR handed in a return of the taxes uncollected.

Councillor SMITH asked that the Collector be heard in reference to the reason why he had not enforced the By-law.

Mr. CORNISH said he had to give fourteen days notice, and he had only got through sanitary delinquents. Some that he had applied early had promised to pay on the 1st of October, and he was waiting till then.

ACCOUNTS.

The following accounts were handed in:—

Gas Company, Firemen's Hall	$24 50
Gas Company, Council Chamber	2 25
Special Constables	7 00
W. Healy	5 00

The accounts from Special Constables and Wm. Healy were ordered to be paid, and the Gas Company's referred to Finance Committee.

SIDEWALKS.

The following resolution of which notice of motion was given, was substituted and declared lost, the mover and seconder only voting:

Moved by Councillor PATERSON, seconded by Councillor THOMAS.—That the new sidewalk on Bethune street be extended from Simcoe street to Hunter street, if the necessary funds are available.

DUNKIN ACT.

Councillor RUTHERFORD asked Councillor Rogers if he was going to refresh the minds in reference to the Dunkin By-law, and being answered in the negative, wished to press his amendment.

While the CLERK was preparing Mr. Rutherford's amendment, Councillor PATERSON asked if Councillor CAHILL was going to bring up his notice of motion in regard to the petition asked for by Hazlewell Hall and others.

The STREET INSPECTOR said he had done the work petitioned for believing it to be much needed.

Councillor RUTHERFORD'S amendment to notice of motion was then submitted as follows:

Moved by Councillor RUTHERFORD, seconded by Councillor CAHILL.—That on account of the large amount of money that is at present going to the Ontario Government in shape of fines coming from the enforcement of the Dunkin Act, which otherwise might pass into the Treasurer of this Corporation, be it therefore resolved that Thomas Beavis and John McGhee Licenses Inspectors, be and are hereby instructed to act as prosecutors on behalf of this Corporation.

Councillors SMITH and CAHILL drew the attention of the Mayor to the fact that as it was a reconsideration of a question formerly decided, it would need a majority of the whole Council to pass it.

The motion on being put was declared lost, the following being the division.

Yeas—Carlisle, Rutherford, Yelland, Hughes, Paterson and Ormond.

Nays—Cahill, McBain, Smith and Deane.

TAXES.

Councillor PATERSON moved, seconded by Councillor DENNE.—That the Street Inspector be instructed to have the tanks on the creeks, used by the fire engines, cleaned and put in proper repair and the cost of same charged to the fire department.—Carried.

POUNDS.

Moved by Councillor PATERSON, seconded by Councillor SMITH.—That Mr. Beavis inspect the pounds, as there are some repairs needed, and report at our next meeting. Carried.

THIRD WARD RESERVE.

Moved by Councillor PATERSON, seconded by Councillor YELLAND.—That the Street Inspector be instructed to have a pitchable shed built for the engine for the Third Ward, not to cost more than $60.

After a short discussion the motion was laid over, awaiting an answer from the Drill Shed authorities as to whether the engine could be kept there.

DUNKIN AGAIN.

Councillor SMITH submitted the following resolution of which he had given notice at last meeting, amended so as to make the petitioners bear the expenses of preparing the by-law:—

That the TOWN Solicitor be requested to prepare a by-law at the expense of the petitioners to repeal the Dunkin By-law with a view of having the same voted upon by the people, provided the said Solicitor be of opinion that the same can now be voted upon.—Carried.

MAYOR'S ORDERS.

Moved by Councillor CAHILL, seconded by Councillor ORMOND.—That the Treasurer be authorized to honor the Mayor's order for charities.—Carried.

HOSE TOWER.

The CLERK read the following:—

To the Mayor and Council of the Town of Peterborough:

GENTLEMEN,—As a representative of the Peterborough Fire Brigade, I am authorised by the members thereof to request your honorable body to devise some means whereby we may with an accident which might have proved more serious. Crossing Mud Lake bridge, they encountered another buggy and Mr. Corkery's horse, worth $140, becoming unmanageable backed into the lake and was drowned. The occupants of the buggy luckily caught hold of the timbers of the bridge and remained in this position until their cries brought assistance from Bridgenorth, when they were speedily rescued from their perilous position. The driver of the other rig did not attempt to render any assistance, but drove rapidly away in the opposite direction.

Mr. Youmans's Concert.—The entertainment of Mr. Youmans in aid of St. Andrew's Benevolent Society, held in Smithers' Hall on Monday evening, was greeted with a large and appreciative audience. The programme which was quite attractive, consisted of some choice selections from different authors, and it was surprising to what a high degree of perfection, considering the short time for practice, the leader had brought his juvenile singers. This was particularly remarkable in Master and Miss Katie Jeffery, of Port Hope, who as "Captain and Mrs. Jinks" did exceedingly well. Mrs. Bowman in her usual fine style sang several pieces. Miss Johnston kindly presided at the piano. Too great praise cannot be accorded to Mr. Youmans for the able and effective manner in which he trained his pupils.

Primer of Canadian History.—The Globe of a recent date has the following complimentary notice of the "Primer of Canadian History" lately published by the Principal of the Peterborough Collegiate Institute and Public Schools:

J. Frith Jeffers, M. A., the author of a manual of Canadian history, and a well known Canadian educationist, has turned up his quarters, albeit with a primer on the same subject. Like the former work, it forms one of the series of schoolbooks published by James Campbell & Son. A good primer of history is, from the nature of the case, hard to produce, and Mr. Jeffers must be congratulated, being even more successful with this than he was with his manual, though that is probably the best for school purposes to be had. The narrative is brought down almost to the present time, the only recent important events omitted being the appointment of the Marquis of Lorne and the general election which came off a few days ago. As an instance of Mr. Jeffers' accuracy it may be noticed that he has substituted in his primer the more correct term "Kaywaydin" for the one formerly in use, "Keewatin"—a change which ought to commend itself to teachers everywhere.

T. Dolan & Co.—We have much pleasure this week in drawing our readers attention to the advertisement of T. Dolan & Co. in another column of this paper. The constantly increasing trade enjoyed by this firm since its commencement caused the necessity of an extension of premises, and during the summer this has taken place and now the Shop is largely increased over its former capacity. With this extra room they are now enabled to show to more advantage their large and choice stock of goods, and have devoted the second flat to a show room for ready-made clothing. Their new fall stock—both in dry goods and clothing—is largely in excess of former seasons, and buying largely, and for cash, they can afford to sell much cheaper than those houses which do a credit business. We bespeak for the firm that share of public patronage which their enterprise so justly entitles them to, and hope that with their increased facilities they may continue to enjoy a still larger trade.

Incidents of the Contest.—Under the above heading the Review of last week contains a paragraph stating forth that a firm in town had discharged one of their workmen because he had voted for Mr. Hilliard. We are authorized by Messrs. Paterson & Son—the firm in question (at least the supposition that they are the parties is supported by street rumour, the Review not having the manliness to give names) to state that there is not the shadow of truth about the charge. A man named Beavis was discharged, not because he voted for Mr. Hilliard, but for having liquor on the premises and while under its influences, using blasphemous language. We are further requested to state that neither members of the firm asked either their tenants or employees to vote any one way or the other, a statement which any of them will certify. We think in justice to the reputation of the firm, the writer of the paragraph in the Review should have at least made himself aware of the facts of which he was writing, as he must have known that five out of the seven men employed in the tanning were Conservatives, and that they have always voted as such.

TOWN COUNCIL.

Council met on Monday evening last. Present.—His Worship the Mayor and Messrs. Cahill, McBain, Smith, Ormond, Paterson, Hughes, Yelland, Rutherford, Carlisle, Deane.

Minutes of last meeting read and confirmed.

COMMUNICATIONS.

From John McGee, Assistant Constable, complaining that Mr. Beavis had let a prisoner out of the lock-up.—Received.

From Miles & Co., laying before the Council the prospectus of a new atlas for the Dominion of Canada.—Received.

From the Treasurer, a statement of receipts and expenditures for the month of August.—Referred to Finance Committee.

From the Street Inspector the following report:

I beg leave to report on the following petitions for street improvements:—

1. From T. Bradburn and others, asking for a sidewalk on Dublin street (south) from Aylmer to Maiden Lane. I cannot recommend it.

2. From John Corkery, on behalf of the Trustees of the Separate School, asking for a sidewalk on north side of Murray street from George to Aylmer. As the appropriation is so nearly expended, I cannot recommend this, but would recommend a good crossing in front of the school.

3. From B. Leavin, asking for a sidewalk on east side of Bethune street, from his house to the corner of Wolfe street. I would recommend this; cost $12.00.

4. From Charles Robinson asking for a water table to be made to carry away the water from his premises on Stewart street. I have done the work; cost $4.

5. From O. Leonard, asking for a crossing at the corner of Wolfe and George streets, and a sidewalk to her dwelling. I cannot recommend this.

6. From Jas. Dowel and others, asking to have Bethune street graded from London to Smith streets. I cannot recommend this this season, although it is required, for the same reason as the other.

PETITIONS.

From Jas. A. Hall and others, asking that the sidewalk on Bethune street from Charlotte to Simcoe be extended to Hunter.—Referred to Street Inspector.

From E. C. Hill and others, asking that the Council do not pay the account of Messrs. Pearse and Eastland for special audit of Police Court books, as said work should have been done by the Auditors each year, and should be paid by them.—Referred to Finance Committee.

From George Rule, John Lynch, John Brown, Thos. Leonard, Robert Johnston, Wm. Collins and O. M. Roger, in reference to errors and discrepancies in assessment.

From William Appleyard, Louisa Ware, Mrs. Macfarlane, Mrs. E. Wood, Mrs. Barnhard, Mrs. Bulmer and Mrs. Rabell, asking for remission of their taxes.

From T. Fitzgerald and others, asking for assistance for Mrs. Fleet.

From Wellington Pitt, asking for relief.

From R. A. Morrow and others, asking that two gas lamps be erected on Sherbrooke street, one at the corner of Stewart street, and the other at the corner of Rubidge street.

The applications for remission of taxes were referred to the Charity Committee to consult with the Collector and report to the Council. Those in reference to errors in assessment were referred to the Finance Committee.

TAXES UNCOLLECTED.

The COLLECTOR handed in a return of the taxes uncollected.

Councillor SMITH asked that the Collector be heard in reference to the reason why he had not enforced the By-law.

Mr. CORNISH said he had to give fourteen days notice, and he had only got through sanitary delinquents. Some that he had applied early had promised to pay on the 1st of October, and he was waiting till then.

ACCOUNTS.

The following accounts were handed in:—

Gas Company, Firemen's Hall	$24 50
Gas Company, Council Chamber	2 25
Special Constables	7 00
W. Healy	5 00

The accounts from Special Constables and Wm. Healy were ordered to be paid, and the Gas Company's referred to Finance Committee.

SIDEWALKS.

The following resolution of which notice of motion was given, was substituted and declared lost, the mover and seconder only voting:

Moved by Councillor PATERSON, seconded by Councillor THOMAS.—That the new sidewalk on Bethune street be extended from Simcoe street to Hunter street, if the necessary funds are available.

DUNKIN ACT.

Councillor RUTHERFORD asked Councillor Rogers if he was going to refresh the minds in reference to the Dunkin By-law, and being answered in the negative, wished to press his amendment.

While the CLERK was preparing Mr. Rutherford's amendment, Councillor PATERSON asked if Councillor CAHILL was going to bring up his notice of motion in regard to the petition asked for by Hazlewell Hall and others.

The STREET INSPECTOR said he had done the work petitioned for believing it to be much needed.

Councillor RUTHERFORD'S amendment to notice of motion was then submitted as follows:

Moved by Councillor RUTHERFORD, seconded by Councillor CAHILL.—That on account of the large amount of money that is at present going to the Ontario Government in shape of fines coming from the enforcement of the Dunkin Act, which otherwise might pass into the Treasurer of this Corporation, be it therefore resolved that Thomas Beavis and John McGhee Licenses Inspectors, be and are hereby instructed to act as prosecutors on behalf of this Corporation.

Councillors SMITH and CAHILL drew the attention of the Mayor to the fact that as it was a reconsideration of a question formerly decided, it would need a majority of the whole Council to pass it.

The motion on being put was declared lost, the following being the division.

Yeas—Carlisle, Rutherford, Yelland, Hughes, Paterson and Ormond.

Nays—Cahill, McBain, Smith and Deane.

TAXES.

Councillor PATERSON moved, seconded by Councillor DENNE.—That the Street Inspector be instructed to have the tanks on the creeks, used by the fire engines, cleaned and put in proper repair and the cost of same charged to the fire department.—Carried.

POUNDS.

Moved by Councillor PATERSON, seconded by Councillor SMITH.—That Mr. Beavis inspect the pounds, as there are some repairs needed, and report at our next meeting. Carried.

THIRD WARD RESERVE.

Moved by Councillor PATERSON, seconded by Councillor YELLAND.—That the Street Inspector be instructed to have a pitchable shed built for the engine for the Third Ward, not to cost more than $60.

After a short discussion the motion was laid over, awaiting an answer from the Drill Shed authorities as to whether the engine could be kept there.

DUNKIN AGAIN.

Councillor SMITH submitted the following resolution of which he had given notice at last meeting, amended so as to make the petitioners bear the expenses of preparing the by-law:—

That the TOWN Solicitor be requested to prepare a by-law at the expense of the petitioners to repeal the Dunkin By-law with a view of having the same voted upon by the people, provided the said Solicitor be of opinion that the same can now be voted upon.—Carried.

MAYOR'S ORDERS.

Moved by Councillor CAHILL, seconded by Councillor ORMOND.—That the Treasurer be authorized to honor the Mayor's order for charities.—Carried.

HOSE TOWER.

The CLERK read the following:—

To the Mayor and Council of the Town of Peterborough:

GENTLEMEN,—As a representative of the Peterborough Fire Brigade, I am authorised by the members thereof to request your honorable body to devise some means whereby we may with a suitable engine house and hose tower—the present engine house being too small and there being no suitable place for cleaning and drying the hose after a fire, thereby causing a considerable yearly loss to the town by the rotting of hose; whereas if we had a suitable place for drying and cleaning said hose, it would do away with this expenditure, together with the customary accounts which are rendered for cleaning the hose after every fire.

ANDREW MCNEIL,
Captain Hose Company No. 1.

Councillor PATERSON said this was a question that had been put off from one year to another for some time, and thought arrangements could now be made with the Commissioners to sell them the present engine house and erect one more suitable as well as a hose tower.

The MAYOR said that the Commissioners were willing to aid the town in the matter, but as a legal difficulty existed they had consulted the Town Solicitor, who advised getting special legislation.

Councillor SMITH said it was most likely that special legislation would have to be obtained in reference to the old burial ground, and a clause in reference to this matter might be inserted.

Moved by Councillor PATERSON, seconded by Councillor YELLAND.—That the question of building a new engine house and hose tower be referred to the Fire Committee with power to prepare a By-law to be submitted for approval at our next meeting, and that the Committee be authorized to ascertain what a suitable site with a suitable engine house and hose tower would probably cost.

Councillor CAHILL said he thought if the old Market House could be utilized it would be much better than issuing debentures.

Councillor RUTHERFORD thought it foolish to spend money on patching up the old building.

After some further discussion the motion was carried.

TAXES.

Moved by Councillor CAHILL, seconded by Councillor SMITH.—That the Collector be requested to not enforce payment of taxes in cases which have been referred to committees, until the same shall have been reported upon by them.—Carried.

TREASURER'S BONDS.

Councillor MCBAIN asked if anything had been done in the matter of the Treasurer's bonds. He wished it to be attended to at once. As one of the custodians of the people he wished to have matters settled properly.

Councillor DENNE, while having no fears of anything happening, thought it but right that such matters should be attended to earlier in the year.

Councillor HUGHES agreed with the former speaker.

Moved by Councillor MCBAIN, seconded by Councillor CAHILL.—That the Clerk be requested to submit a copy of the motion relating to the Treasurer's bonds to that official, and to insist on immediate compliance with its provisions.—Carried.

The Council adjourned for two weeks.

DEVASTATION IN THE WEST INDIES.

Loss of Life and Destruction of Property in Hayti and Trinidad.

NEW YORK, Sept. 22.—Advices from Hayti report terrible destruction by a tornado and partial tidal wave on the 3rd, 4th, and 5th of September. At Jacmel several warehouses were swept away with their contents, several dwellings and a public hall demolished, two wharves were swept away and five vessels wrecked, including the Dominion frigate Ocama. At Auxoyes 434 houses were destroyed. The Gambean bridge, military headquarters, court houses, school houses, arsenal, and prison were destroyed, and all the roads are filled with broken trees and debris. Several lives were lost and many persons wounded. At Tobock, Port Salut, St. Louis, and Cavilion the tornado tore the houses to pieces, and the sea rushed into the market place, sweeping away men, women, and children. Five bodies have been found. As Again only forty houses remain. At Jeremie twenty houses were swept out to sea. At Curail forty houses were destroyed. The distress in the country is fearful, as the crops and roads are entirely destroyed. Letters to business houses in this city state that the destruction of the coffee crop is almost complete. A Jamcel letter says half a million pounds of logwood were swept away there.

Trinidad advices states that the tornado swept that island, tearing down houses, trees, bridges, and warehouses, and strewing the coast with wrecks and wreck master. The post office and Colonial Bank building in Port Spain were pervaded by immense trees blown upon them. Heroic bodies of rain fell, and at midnight an earthquake shock occurred, but no lives were lost.

Terrible Tragedy in Texas.

EIGHT CHILDREN MURDERED.

Eight children of Gen. Lynch, the oldest 17 years, living in Hockley, Texas, were murdered on Friday at midnight by an unknown party. Lynch, the father, was awakened by a pistol ball striking him in the breast. He sprang up, and saw a masked man standing in the middle of the room pointing a pistol at him. Another shot was fired, and Lynch fell unconscious. When he recovered the second blood in the house outside he pursued. The murderer, shooting Lynch dead, seized a hatchet and put the wife names out of the way, then fired the house. The distressed father saw the house burn and fell in upon the bodies of his children. Lynch is a thought will recover. Suspicion rests upon a young man named Bertrame, with whom Lynch had had a difficulty.

ARE YOU A FREEMASON?

The Rev. Mr. McGill, Rector of St. Paul's Church, Port, Illinois, having been asked the above question by a lady, replied as follows:—

I AM one of the Band who will faithfully stand
In the bonds of affection and love;
I have knocked at the door, once wretched and poor,
And there for admission I strove.

By the help of a friend, who assistance did lend,
I succeeded an entrance to gain;
Was received in the "West," by command from the "East,"
But not without feeling some pain.

Here my conscience was taught with a moral quite fraught
With sentiments holy and true;
Then onward I travelled to see it unravelled.
What Hiram intended to do.

Very soon to the "East" I made known my request,
And "Light," by command, did attend;
When, lo! I perceived, in due form revealed,
A Master, a Brother, a Friend.

Thus far I have stated, and simply related,
What happened when I was made free;
But I've travelled since then, and was raised up again
To a sublime and ancient degree.

Then, onward I marched that I might be "arched"
And find out those treasures long lost;
When behold a bright flame, from the midst of which came
A voice which my ears did accost:

Through the "Vales" I then went and succeeded at length
The "sanctum sanctorum" to find;
By the signet I gained I quickly obtained
Employment which suited my mind.

In the depths I then wrought, and most carefully sought
For treasures long hidden there;
And by labor and toil I discovered rich spoil,
Which are kept by the Craft with due care.

Having thus far arrived, I further contrived
Amongst valiant Knights to appear;
And as Pilgrim and Knight I stood ready to fight,
Nor Saracen foe do I fear.

For the widow distressed there's a chord in my breast,
For the helpless and orphan I feel;
And my sword I could draw to maintain the true law
Which the duty of Masons reveal.

Thus have I revealed (tri wisely concealed),
What the "Free and Accepted" will know;
I am one of the Band who will faithfully stand
As a brother wherever I go.

THE OLDEST MAN IN THE WORLD.

(From the London Telegraph, August 23.)

At last the oldest inhabitant has turned up. There is no doubt about the fairness of his claim to this title, and no chance that a rival will soon appear, for this person's age exceeds by half a century even that of old Parr, who is perfectly well known to have beaten every other patriarch since the antediluvian days. It is, perhaps, a drawback that the newly discovered centenarian, or rather duo-centenarian, is an American. One is inclined to grudge that pushing and somewhat "stuck, up" continent the possession of all the biggest oddest, and oldest, as well as newest things. But there is no help for it in this case. We must bow to antiquity in the person of the very old fellow who has been described by the correspondent of a German paper. He resides in the republic of Columbia—a State whose chief products seem to be tobacco straw hats, monks, volcanoes and earthquakes—chiefly the last—and he is a half-caste, Miguel Solis by name. At a recent conference of Physicians in Bogota, Dr. Luis Hernandes told how he had interviewed the patriarch. Solis, it appears, is modest enough to claim an age of no more than 180 years, but his neighbors, all of whom, of course, have known him from infancy, repudiate the notion that he is such a youngster, and boldly assert that he has overpassed his second century. The evidence on this point, it must in candor be admitted, is not quite conclusive. The oldest inhabitants told Dr. Her nandes that when they were boys Solis had the reputation of being more than a century old, and confirmation of this is said to be afforded by the fact that a signature which Solis recognizes as his own appears among the list of contributors to the cost of erecting the convent of San Sebastian in 1712, when he was a sprightly infant of 50 or thereabout. But, unfortunately, as no witness of this interesting signature can be found in the natural course of things, the attestation turns on old Solis' good faith or his memory, and without being uncharitable, we may fear that one or the other may be defective. For the rest the aged curiosity is interesting enough. Dr. Hernandes found him in in good health and at work in his garden. "His skin resembled parchment, and his long, snow-white hair was wound about his head in turban fashion. His eyes gleamed so firedly as to make his visitor feel uncomfortable when looked at." He attributed the length of his life to regular moderate diet. He eats only one meal a day, but that consists of "strong and hearty food," to which he devotes himself assiduously for more than half an hour at a stretch, having discovered that no man can eat more in half an hour than he can digest in twenty-four hours. But this is not all, for he fasts two whole days every month, and then refreshes himself by copious draughts of cold water, which is probably more stimulating diet in those regions than it is in Europe. Finally, he always lets his food get cold before partaking of it, and he considers that this precaution has had a great deal to do with the prolongation of his life. On the whole, however, one would like to know more about this parchment-skinned and weird looking hermit of the Columbian wilds before crediting the statement that he came into the world just as Cromwell was leaving it, and that he was an octogenarian at the time of Culloden. The old fellow may be a practical joker, and may owe his highly-effective "make-up" to the monks of San Sebastian, who would be sure to enter into the fun of the thing.

What Stanley Did for Geography.

Stanley gave nine months to the exploration of the Lualaba, or rather to the Livingstone, as he called it, and as it must be called for all time. Before he went out on this mission we knew there were two rivers—the Congo and the Lualaba. We knew that the Congo ran into the Atlantic Ocean, but its source was lost in cataracts. The Portugese were content to scatter a few settlements about its mouth, and trade for gums and ivory along its banks. But it was an unknown river beyond the cataracts. We knew there was a river in the middle of Africa called the Lualaba; we knew it had a swift current, that it was a river of large volume. But beyond that we knew nothing. Some had one theory, others had another. Livingstone was convinced that it ran into the Nile, was really the source of the Nile; and who would question even the theory of so great a master? What Stanley did was to show that the Congo and the Lualaba were one and the same; that the Congo, instead of losing itself among the rapids, was to force itself into the very heart of the continent; that the Lualaba, instead of going north and submitting to the scurping waters of the Nile was to turn to the west and force its way to the sea; that these two rivers were to disappear from the map, and be known as one river—the Livingstone; that this river was to be 2,000 miles in length; that for nearly ten degrees of longitude it was to be continuously navigable; that its volume was 1,800,000 cubic feet a second; that the entire area it drains is 800,000 square miles—in other words, that here was an immense waterway 2,000 miles into the centre of Africa, navigable with the exception of two breaks, which engineering science can easily surmount—a waterway into a tropical empire, rich in woods and metals and gracious soil, in fruits and grains, the sure home of a civilized empire in the years to come. As Petermann, the eminent German geographer, puts it, Stanley's work was to make the fragments of Africa explorable—the achievements of Livingston, Barton-Speke, Du Chaillu, Baker, Cameron, of all the heroic men who had gone before him—into one connective whole, just as Bismark united the fragments of the German people, lying about under various princes and dukes, into one grand and harmonious empire. Even as Bismarck had created imperial Germany, so Stanley created geographical Africa.—JOHN RUSSELL YOUNG, in Harper's Magazine for October.

PRINCESS LOUISE.

Her Prominence in Charitable Work.

Princess Louise, in her new position, will be able to continue the good works to which she has so well accustomed herself in England, and she will be able to show, as the Princess Royal and the Princess Alice have already done, what a Princess can do to influence the well-being of the people over whom she is called to preside. Princess Louise will be missed in England. She is patroness, not only in name but in word and work, of so many charitable institutions in England, and of so many societies whose intention it is to help forward the education of women, that her absence will be a real loss. She has always been so graciously ready to give time and attention when she has been asked to do so, to preside at opening meetings, to give away prizes, to exercise for good the influence which her position gives her, that her absence will be felt; and when the time comes for her return to England she will be gladly welcomed back again. But, in the meantime, much work lies before her, for the doing of which the education of which life has been giving her has been helping to prepare her. She will carry with her to Canada many earnest and sincere wishes for her personal well being and much hope that she may show among her own people there, as well as her sisters have done on the continent, the good results of that excellent training which our beloved Queen has so carefully bestowed upon her daughters. The influence of women, always great, is never so much so as when exercised by women in high rank, and when that rank is the highest, the good which they do bears fruit in every lower grade and people.

FAMINE IN CHINA.

At last good news comes from the famine districts in China. Rain has fallen on the thirsty land, and in sufficient quantities to hold out a promise of fair autumnal crops. All that is now immediately required, therefore, is to find support for the sufferers until the grain is once more gathered in. But the far more important question of how can such visitations be avoided for the future still remains for the consideration of the Chinese Government. That, unless prevented, they are likely to recur, may be gathered from the records of the past. History states that during the last dynasty—that is to say, the period of 260 years—extending from 1368 to 1628—the provinces now suffering from draught were visited by similar periods of famine no fewer than forty times. No doubt these famine periods varied much in intensity, but that the extreme verge of misery was sometimes reached may be gathered from the ominous statement appended to the account of ten of them that "men eat each other." The records of the present dynasty are not yet available, but but there is no reason to suppose that the droughts have, under the Manchoo rule, been less frequent than formerly. In fact, the only hope for the district lies in the introduction of a complete system of irrigation. The soil being composed of a thick bed of loess is easily percolated by water, and is thus at the double disadvantage of requiring constant showers to fertilise the grain, and of having the only water supply—rivers and streams, for springs are never found in the loess—invariably below the surface of the land.

Effect of Different Manures on Grass Land.

A Yorkshire correspondent of the London Agricultural Gazette gives the following bit of experience, which shows that one should not be too hasty in judging of the comparative effects of different kinds of manure: "Last January I dressed a very poor plain, or sheep run (21 acres), with about 14 loads of farm-yard manure (not very rotten) on four acres. The rest of the pasture was sown about three week later with special dissolved bones, at the rate of 4 cwt. per acre. The effect of the first dressing was soon visible, and the four acres were distinctly marked out from the rest, showing where manure was applied. As this result remained unchanged till the beginning of April, and the artificial manure then appeared to have been used in vain, judgment was given in favor of the yard manure. After this, however, we had some warm weather, with fine growing showers, which soon altered matters, and the line of demarcation became each day less distinct, till at length the superiority of the bones became manifest. I have now (June 19th) got a most luxuriant mixture of grass (chiefly red and white clover) from the portions sown with artificial manure. On the four-acre piece there is scarcely any clover, and only a poor share of rye-grass and other common varieties. I have used dissolved bones on a good deal of grass this year, and the result in each case is astonishing. My land is a strong loamy clay."

Russia's Horses.

(From the Boston Post.)

It has been truly asserted that the horse is a very noble animal, but in Russia he is so numerous that his nobility must be of a rather cheap order, just as it is among the higher animals at the German watering-places, where a man can't throw his leg over the arm of his chair in true American fashion without kicking a Baron or a Count, and sometimes both. Russia has 21,570,000 horses, and about four times as many people. Thus four persons must ride one horse or three must go afoot. The number does not seem great, but it is so, comparatively speaking. France eats so many of her noble beasts that it can hardly be told how many are left behind. The United States is credited with 9,500,000 horses, and England with 3,355,000, a number so small that they are utilized in menial service, and the Knights have to walk. Germany has 3,353,000, and Austro-Hungary 3,500,000, so that it would probably take all the horses in the other leading countries of Europe to equal the supply that Russia boasts. We think of the Cossack chargers, so hardy as their masters, and of Masseppa, and his "fiery untamed steed" when we speak of Russian horses, but have they a Rarus or a Goldsmith Maid among them? We think not.

The Harvest Moon.

The moon which is now on the wane is popularly known as the harvest moon, because, as Ferguson, the Scotch astronomer, quaintly remarks, the farmers, of the Old Country "gratefully ascribe the early rising of the full moon at this time of the year to the goodness of God, not doubting that he has ordered it so on purpose to give them an immediately supply of moonlight after sunset for their greater convenience in reaping the fruits of the earth." The peculiarity of the Harvest Moon, which is the full moon immediately preceding the autumnal equinox, is that it rises for three or four evenings—particularly in high Northern latitudes—at almost the same hour, although usually the hour is forty-eight minutes later every evening. This is explained by the fact that near the autumnal equinox the path of the moon is very slightly inclined to the horizon, and consequently the time of rising or appearing above the horizon is not much affected by her ordinary eastward movement. The most favorable instant occurs September 21. The full and new moons of this month are also noticeable for unusually high tides.

RECIPES.

ECONOMY is the very soul of cookery.

CORN FRITTERS.—Grate six ears of corn; add one teaspoonful of flour and two eggs; pepper and salt to your taste; to be fried like oysters.

SAUSAGE.—Mix one part veal, two parts pork, salt, pepper and powdered sage to taste. Chop very fine and make into small cakes with a little flour. Use within a few days.

TOOTHACHE DROPS.—One ounce of alcohol, two drachms of cayenne, one ounce of kerosene oil; let it stand twenty-four hours after mixing. It cures the worst case of toothache.

PICKLED CABBAGE.—Take the outside leaves off a red cabbage; cut in thin slices; place in a jar; pour boiling vinegar over it. When cold cover tightly. In ten days it will be fit for use.

LIQUID SAUCE.—One-half cup of butter; one cup of sugar. Beat these together with one heaping teaspoon of flour. Pour into it (a little at a time, stirring all the while) one pint of boiling water, and let it simmer on the stove a few minutes. Add one teaspoonful of lemon extract.

JUMBLES.—One cupful of sugar and one of good butter, rubbed to a cream, one-half cupful sour cream, one well-beaten egg, one teaspoonful of soda dissolved in a very little hot water; flavor with nutmeg; sifted flour enough for a soft dough or batter.

HOW TO CURE THE CHILLS.—Take the juice of half a lemon in about two thirds of a cup of good strong, hot coffee, as soon as you get up in the morning, and a second dose in hour, and an hour after take a third. Repeat this for two or three mornings. This is a good simple, cheap, and not very hard to take.

TO KEEP BUTTER COOL.—A flower pot wrapped in a wet cloth and placed over butter plate, will keep the contents of the plate as hard as if it were kept on ice. Milk will not sour if the can containing it be wrapped in a wet cloth.

FOAM SAUCE.—One teacupful of sugar, two-thirds of a cup of butter, one teaspoonful of flour, beat smooth, place over the fire and stir in three gills of water. A little lemon, vanilla or orange adds much to the sauce. To be eaten with sponge cake or pudding.

STEWED MUSHROOMS.—Wash them, cut off the ends of the stalks and peel them; put in a stew pan without any water, and season with salt and pepper; add two ounces of butter rolled in two teaspoonfuls of flour to every pint of mushrooms; cover them closely and let them simmer slowly until they are soft.

BAKING POWDER.—Three ounces of tartaric acid, four ounces of the best saleratus, nine ounces of sifted flour; pulverise the acid and saleratus; mix thoroughly and box tightly in a tin box. Keep a small quantity in a box for use, as it loses its strength if left uncovered. This quanity will make a pound, costing only twenty-five cents. It is good for I have used it.

CHEESE OMELET.—Butter the sides of a deep dish, cover the bottom with thin slices of cheese, place upon this very thin slices of bread, well buttered, a little red pepper and mustard, another layer of cheese, and, just before putting in the oven, beat the yolk of an egg in a cup of cream and pour into the dish. Bake for half an hour or until it is nicely browned.

JOY AMONG THE CHILDREN.

COPELAND'S SWEET CASTOR OIL, equally suitable for children and adults. Endorsed by over 600 doctors in Canada. The difficulty of administering nauseous medicines and the desirability of having them pleasant to the taste, induced T. Copeland to undertake researches, which resulted in the discovery of a Sweet Castor Oil, perfectly palatable, of the same strength and medical qualities as the ordinary Castor Oil; and while equally safe and harmless yet acting with more certainty, and producing neither nausea nor griping. Some children say it is honey; others call it syrup—they all say they like it. One parent says—My children drink it like water;" another—"We had to bide the bottle or they would have finished it right off;" another—"My little girl has taken it twice without any trouble, and does not know what it is, though she hates the ordinary Castor Oil, and we never could get her to take it without a fight;" yet another—"I wish you success of your SWEET CASTOR OIL; it is a splendid thing—sure to take the place of all common oil."

The extraordinary demand for this improvement of a staple household medicine has brought fraudulent imitations into the market, but the public can guard themselves against substitutes (which unprincipled parties are attempting to sell on the reputation of this article) by seeing that the name, COPELAND'S SWEET CASTOR OIL, is on both wrapper and direction label.

The undersigned having purchased Messrs T. Copeland & Co's interest in the above preparation, are now manufacturing it from the original recipe.

S. G. BEATTY & CO.,
Belleville, Ontario.
THE design of the above Institution, and the work it is most successfully accomplishing, as shown in the great success of its graduates throughout the country, is to prepare boys, and young and middle aged men for Commercial Pursuits by giving them a THOROUGH and PRACTICAL Education in Book-Keeping in all its forms, Penmanship, Arithmetic, Correspondence, Grammar and Spelling, Banking Methods; how to deal with notes, drafts, bills of exchange checks, and all kinds of business paper.
GRADUATES OF THE COLLEGE who have finished their four months course and taken their diplomas are continually stepping into good positions, in which, owing to the completeness of their knowledge, they speedily attain promotion.
Among our students are those who have been through the grammar schools and universities, as well as those whose education in early life has been neglected. The former come to receive a practical education, such as is needed in everyday life, the latter to supply their neglect, and all to secure that knowledge which will help them to success in the world.
The College Journal, containing full particulars, and specimens of penmanship are sent on application. Address, Permissive.

Sir Wilfrid Lawson and other advocates of the "Permissive Bill," as it is called, find in the "Scott Act" of the last session of the Canadian Parliament just such a measure as they desire, and in the manner in which the Canadian Parliament dealt with this measure an example which the British Parliament should follow. It is not by any means probable that the British Parliament will be influenced by the Canadian example. In a debate in the Imperial Parliament on Sir Wilfrid's Bill:—

Sir Alexander Gordon (Aberdeen) said:—

"Since the measure was last before the House a most important step in regard the matter has been taken in one of the largest of our colonies. It was known to most hon. members that the Canadian Parliament, on the proposal of the Canadian Government, had passed a bill regulating the traffic in liquor in Canada. He held a copy of that bill in his hand, and it was a remarkable document in two points of view. One was that it was a most perfect piece of legislation; the details of the measure were worked out with a minuteness and exactness which would do credit to any assembly. It was also remarkable as being the expression, he might almost say, the unanimous expression, of the people of Canada, for it passed the Parliament of Canada with very little opposition. The Government, headed by the leaders of the party, advocated the measure, and he believed it passed without any division in the House. He thought the example which had been set to the House of Commons and to this country in Canada was one with was well worth following." Sir Alfrid Lawson on the same occasion remarked:—"You heard the hon. member for Aberdeen say to-day that a bill virtually the same as mine has been already passed in the Dominion of Canada. The right hon. gentleman the Secretary for the Colonies knew nothing about it when my hon. friend asked for it. Of course not; he has been far too busy with the Eastern Question to anything about other parts of the world. But it is a bill which is virtually the same as mine, only the machinery for carrying out the details is much more elaborate. When we find our countrymen on the other side of the world, our countrymen—the same blood, of like passions, subject to the same temptations, trained in the same habits, and with the same love of freedom as ourselves—passing such a bill as that, do you think it possible, I ask, that the people of England will much longer submit to tho legislative abuse which I am now attacking?" At an immense meeting held in Exter hall subsequent to the Permisive Bill debate, Cardinal Manning, the great Roman Catholic leader, also spoke of Act:—"Sir, these things have an effect upon the public opinion of England; but, if I am told I am quoting an example from the American Union, I would bid them look to the Dominion of Canada. I am well aware that in the nineteenth century it is the established axiom that 'children bring up their parents in the way they should go.' I know perfectly well the Mother Country has impressed its own character and infused its own mind into its colonies, which are its daughters; but I firmly believe every day the reaction of our colonies is more powerful and more sensible upon the Mother Country and I am entirely convinced that those who vote against the Permissive Bill having a trembling consciousness that the Dominion of Canada has brought Sir Wilifrid Lawsons triumph sensibly nearest home."

A Wife's Devot on.

RECLAIMING A DRUNKEN HUSBAND.

The following story is true in every detail:—A milliner of respectability married a dissipated tailor, who abused neglected and abandoned her. Several years having passed without clue to his whereabouts, her friends advised divorce and the acceptance of an advantageous offer of marriage. The woman persistently declined every offer, and when she had accumulated a sufficient sum started off in the direction her husband was supposed to have taken when he left her. At Halifax, N. S., she received a slight clue, and took the steamer for Portland, Me. Thence she followed the trail to New York city, where she ceased for many months to hear of him. Finally she found he was working in Albany, for which place she immediately started. She was about a week too late; he had been discharged for drunkenness. Spending her days at lucrative work and her evenings at detective service, she unwearying wife at length discovered that he was employed by a large firm in Chicago. She wrote there, and was answered that her husband had gone away, no one knew where. Not satisfied with this, she travelled to Chicago and ransacked every concern interested in the tailoring business there, until she met a fellow-countryman, who said that her husband, when last heard from was in Omaha. She wrote there got no answer, but went on. Then she heard that he had certainly left for San Francisco, where he had obtained a fine place as cutter in a large firm. She of course went thither, only to be that her husband had been several days away from work, and was drinking hard. He had not even been to his boarding house. This led her to visit the station-houses, and in one of them she ascertained that her husband was in jail for ten days. He was released, and prevailed upon to return home, after six years' absence. All this occured eighteen years' ago, and to-day the prodigal husband of yore is a strict temperance man in independent circumstances, a model husband and a father, and a respected citizen.

Melancholy Drowning Accident.

TWO BROTHERS SUPPOSED TO HAVE BEEN DROWNED ON STURGEON LAKE.

On Saturday last two sons of James Brook, of Cameron, Noble, aged 20, a painter, and George about 17 years—left home 9 a.m., with the intention of going on business to Dunsford, on the southeast side of the lake, in a large sail-boat, about 30 feet long and 4 feet wide, carrying about 800 pounds of stone as ballast. They were last seen about 5 p.m., on their way home, beating against the wind, which was at the time blowing hard from the northwest. It is supposed the boat must have got water-logged on account of the rough sea, and with the large amount of ballast, must have gone down to the bottom with those on board. Mr. Brock and others have been along the lake shore but can get no tidings about the unfortunate boat. Capt. Crandell, of the Vanderbilt, made a careful search of the lake on Wednesday, but could find no trace of the boat or its inmates. A straw hat, with a black-band, was, however, picked up at Sturgeon Point, and as it answers to the description of that worn by one of the young men, it is supposed to have belonged to him. This is the only clue as yet found. The sad affair has a cast gloom over the village of Cameron, where the young men were highly respected. The bereaved family have the sympathy of the entire neighborhood in their affliction. Mrs. Brock is from home at present on a visit to other members of the family. —Lindsay Post.

Saying Grace.

"Saying grace," although usually done with brevity, is said with infinite variety of phraseology, and anecdotes thereof are numberless. The last of which we have heard was by Mr. Compton, an English comedian of the first class, who died a few weeks ago in London. He had been to a party in the country. Next day on his way home, he stopped at a village inn and ordered dinner. He wore a long black coat over a dress suit, and had a white neck-tie. The landlord mistook him for a clergyman.

"There is to be a meeting of clergy here to-day, Sir and they are to dine. I'm sure the dean would be glad to have you join them."

"Thank you," said Compton, who was very hungry; "I shall be glad."

"I will take in your card," said the landlord.

"I have no card," replied Compton; "you can say Rev. Mr. Payne, who is passing through the town."

The dean said they would be glad to give a strange brother a seat at the table. The Rev. Mr. Payne appeared and the dean with courtesy placed him at his right hand, and asked him to say grace. Compton felt a cold chill run through him, but with perfect presence of mind recalled the opening portion of the Church service, and bit upon the very words for his purpose. In his rich, melodious voice he said,

"O Lord, open Thou our lips, and our mouths shall show forth Thy praise."

Tell us, good people, if you have heard anything neater than that.

Sewage as Manure.

The total amount paid by our farmers for manure must be something enormous. How much of this amount might be saved by a judicious application of the sewage now wasted, it is impossible to say. The Chinese are noted as agriculturalists, and they never bring manure from "the ends of the earth." In China, in Flanders, Europe and in other places, everthing not wanted in the house, and which can be made available, is used on the farm. "In the West India sugar plantations," Johnson says, "the cane after having had its saccharine juice pressed out at the mill, serves as fuel in in boiling down the syrup. The ash thus produced is rich in those mineral ingredients necessary to the production of the plant and the neglect to return this valuable ash to the soil has not only occasioned a large importation of foreign manures, but also a serious deterioration of the soil." In our time we persist in buying manure while we poison the rivers by allowing the sewage to flow into them; whereas a little chemical knowledge, combined with judgment, would convince all concerned that if the sewage was decdarized and used on the farm, money would be saved and the rivers would be pure.—N. Y. Observer.

Duty.

It is the duty of every one to take active part as actor on the stage of life. Some seem to think that they can vegetate, as it were, without being anything in particular. Man was not made to rust out his life. It is expected he should "act well his part." He must be something. He has a work to perform, which it is his duty to attend to. We are not placed here to grow up, pass through the various stages of life, and then die without having done anything for the benefit of the human race. It is a principle in the creed of the Mahometans that everyone should have a trade. No Christain doctrine could be better than that. Is a man to be brought up in idleness? Is he to live upon the wealth which his ancestors have acquired by frugal industry? Is he placed here to pass through life like an automaton? Has he nothing to perform as a citizen of the world? A man who does nothing is useless to his country as an inhabitant. A man who does nothing is a mere cipher. He does not fulfil the obligations for which he was sent into the world, and when he dies, he has not finished the work that was given him to do. He is a mere blank in creation. Some are born with riches and honor upon their heads. But does it follow that they have nothing to do in their career through life? There are certain duties for everyone to perform. Be something. Don't live like a hermit, and die unregretted.

Trouble in the East.

The Berlin treaty after all, is not likely to work well; and it will not astonish us if war should break out again in Europe in more countries than one. The Albanian League is said to number 45,000 well armed and equipped men, determined to resist the occupation of her territory by any Christian power. It is said Servia and Montenegro will co-operate with Austria. It is thought possible at Vienna that the anarchy in Albania, may compel Austria to occupy that Province also. There are 36,000 insurgents with 40 cannons in old Bosnia, who have an advance guard of 6,000 strong Mahomedans object to be transferred from the dominion of the Porto to that of Austria at the dictum of the continental Powers. The inhabitants of Botoum also appear to view the cession of that town to Russia with similar feelings. It may be hoped that the resistance threatened will not be persisted in; but the fanaticism of the Turk, intensified by the settlement of the Eastern question, will make him troublesome enemy to deal with. It is one thing to draft protocols on paper and quite another thing to transform them into facts. It is evident that trouble is brewing in the East.

An Unwelcomed Guest.

A FROG IN A MAN'S STOMACH.

The other day a man employed in the water works near Byron drank out of a spring near by after dark, and thought he swallowed a blade of grass, a piece of moss or something else whilst drinking. He took no further notice of it at the time. After a day or two, however, he commenced to feel unwell and sick at his stomach, and concluded he would take a glass of brandy in the village and see if it would settle it, thinking probably it was a fit of indigestion. The brandy was no sooner down than the man experienced the most violent contortions, and thought he

PETERBOROUGH, OCTOBER 3, 1878.

CONJURING WITH A CREED.

What say those Catholics who have been clamoring for representation for their creed to the following from the Mail?

"Mr. McQuade's old Catholic friends, the Conservative Catholics of the riding who had stood side by side in many a hard-fought battle, went up to the polls to a man and cast their votes for the Orange candidate. We see the same feeling among the Catholics of Kent. There is a large Catholic vote in this county. The Grits thought that all they had to do was to send Mr. Hugh McMahon, a strong Catholic, into it to detach the Catholic vote wholly from Mr. Stephenson. But in this they failed utterly. With a few trifling exceptions, it went as straight for Mr. Stephenson as it had ever gone."

No one will deny that Mr. John Connelly, the Reform candidate, and Catholic, would have made a much better representative of South Victoria than Mr. Arthur McQuade. Yet the very paper that has talked untruthfully of Reformers refusing to Roman Catholics a chance of election to the House of Commons, actually commends those of South Victoria because they voted for an Orangeman and a much inferior man The pleasure of the Mail is due to the fact that Mr. McQuade is a Conservative and Mr. Connelly a Reformer.

Mr. McMahon is truly spoken of as "a strong Catholic;" for he is a man who would be an ornament to the House of Commons. It is next thing to an insult to compare him for ability with Mr. Rufus Stephenson. Yet the Mail, and the Tory party is pleased at the defeat of this "strong Catholic," because he is a Reformer, and commends his co-religionists for voting against him. And at the same time Tory credit is claimed for the election of several Roman Catholic Conservative candidates.

But the inconsistency is brought to a climax by the Tory out cry for a protest against the election in Niagara of a Reform Catholic and highly representative man in the person of Mr. Patrick Hughes, of Toronto. He had the satisfaction of defeating Mr. J. B. Plumb, the windy and interminable bore of the House in the last Parliament. The majority is a narrow one, hence the cry of protest, without any expressed reason other than the hope that Mr. Hughes may in some way be unseated. A recount of ballots cannot be objected to, and probably will take place in this instance, as in others where the majorities are small. But an outcry for a protest should never be made without some good and substantial grounds for an action; and if these existed the Tories would not be at all backward in mentioning them. Such an outcry in a mere party sense by those who already claim a majority of seventy or more, plainly demonstrates the utter hollowness of the cry with which the Tories approached the Catholic electors of Ontario, and with which, judging by present chuckling, they captured some of them.

BRITISH AND AMERICAN OPINIONS.

The Tory journals draw from the adverse criticisms of the American press on the "National Policy," the deduction that it will be injurious to the Americans, and that the present tariff in for the benefit of the United States, rather than Canada. Some of them even go so far as to base on their assumption a proof of the annexationist tendencies of the Grits. But these clever people are very careful not to say a word about the still stronger condemnation of the English press on the protectionist policy of the Canadian Tories. If the opposition of American journals contain any suspicion of Grit annexation sentiment, does not the greater opposition of British journals savour of a warmer feeling in Reform breasts for permanency of British connection? The fact that the best papers in the United States, the leaders of public opinion there, oppose a protectionist policy, is a pretty fair sign that our Republican neighbors to the South who have tried such a policy, are beginning to see its evil effects, and are getting sick of the fraud, and that the leading British journals, published in the midst of a people practising the doctrines of Free Trade, should adopt a similiar tone so equally good evidence of the satisfying effects of the British trade policy It is rather amusing to hear the Mail talk of the ignorance of the leading English newspapers about Canadian matters: but it must be remembered that these "ignorant" English have a way of looking at matters Canadian and Imperial, in a way that we in Canada are bound to respect as a colony of the Empire. The London Free Press may flippantly declare that it is of no consequence what the English think so long as we are satisfied here; but it is of very great consequence that Canada and Canadian commercial affairs stand well with the people from whom the Dominion draws yearly loans. Those who talk thus of British opinion and British intelligence, should be the last to cry "annexationist" at their political opponents, especially when they are trying to assimilate the trade policy of Canada, and that of the United States, and then establish a sort of commercial kinship between the two countries. Indeed it is high time the leading papers of Britain began to show disapprobation.

PERSONALITIES IN POLITICS.

Concerning our article on "Personalities in Politics" the Review remarks:

"We are glad to be able to join in the congratulations of our contemporary over the comparative freedom of the recent political campaign in both Ridings from personal abuse and vituperation. Any one contrasting the last election with those preceding it, must feel that there has been a marked change for the better in this respect, and we hope it is only the inauguration of a new era."

We are pleased to have this corroboration from the journal politically opposed to us in the locality, but we are sorry that the Review did not enter more fully into the spirit of our expressed views as to the causes of personalities in the discussion of political matters. The too ready acceptance and retailing of stories told by those who have had some disagreement with others of the opposite party is the principal reason for all the petty scandals that disgrace our politics. What matters it to the electorate of Canada, or of any one Electoral Division for that matter, that two men quarrel upon some point? It is not the conqueror, satisfied with his conscience in the matter, who tells others of a private dispute. That is the work of the discomfited party, who, suffering from the consequences of an error of his own, tries by some plausible, but therefore none the less false tale, to explain somewhat to his own advantage the changed relationship between himself and his former friend. Such a person knowing the little concern others have for his personal squabble, sees the necessity of embellishing and spicing his story by connecting with it somehow a little of that subject which at the time engrosses public attention. In times of political excitement he of course gives his tale a party coloring, and when he finds a newspaper conducted with more partisan zeal than common-sense discretion, his purpose is easily accomplished. In this way has arisen a scandal concerning the discharge of a man from the employment of a firm in this town, the man being represented in the role of a political martyr. But why should he have gone at all to the Review with his grievance, except for the very purpose of using the newspaper man as an instrument to gratify his revenge? That an editor, used to the specious claims of dead-heads and pretenders of all kinds, should be so easily taken in is a wonder to us, especially when it was such an easy matter to have got the other side of the story before committing his journal by reference to the affair. And the case is still more indefensible when we consider that whatever be the truth of the story, it can have no possible bearing on the affairs of the constituency or the country now that the elections are over. Clearly the Review has been made the tool of the discharged man.

"The Kingston Disgrace" is the way the Tory papers put it. The query is, do they mean Sir John or his defeat?

Says the Lindsay Post:—A most regrettable feature of the contest is the defeat of Mr. John Bertram, West Peterboro' an able and most useful member.

The Chicago Times says: "Like a crab the Dominion of Canada goes backward. She has forgotten Pacific Railroad scandals and takes to her bosom once again the Macdonald whom once she spurned. Unlike the Bourbons, Canada, though she learns nothing, forgets much."

The Tories have been promising the farmer higher prices for his wheat and other grain if the N. P. was adopted. The cry carried the elections, but now the Hamilton Spectator advises farmers to sell as quickly as possible, as no foreign war is likely to cause a rise in prices. Exactly.

We reproduce from the Review the following, and leave our Reform readers to draw their own conclusions from it, and our remarks of last week on the same subject:—

The result of the late election contest in this County, affords a striking illustration of the great advantage which a thoroughly organized party possesses over an unorganized one in such a contest.

ALLUDING to the statement that Mr. Mackenzie is not likely to resign immediately, a Tory paper, the Moncton Times, says:—

"The only reason for the postponement is that the Grits will thereby be able to get their salaries a week or two longer, and friends may be favored by orders for supplies of different kinds."

This Tory estimate of the "only reason" is pretty good evidence of the impatience of the party of plunder to enter upon the receipt of public salaries and favours for orders for supplies.

The Hamilton Spectator (Conservative) says:—Sir John and the men at his back would not dare, even if they desired, to violate the promises to which he owes his return to office. * * * * * *

If it should turn out upon actual experiment that the believers in protection are wrong; that their policy does more harm than good; that expenses increase and receipts fall short; that enforced idleness and poverty result from its operation, there will be good cause to reverse our steps and go back to a revenue tariff or free trade.

IT is but a few days ago that the Mail was advocating the shutting out of British as well as American importations, for the protection of home manufacturers. But after the election, on Tuesday of last week, it declared:—

"The object of the new Government will be to increase rather than to diminish the volume of trade between Canada and the Mother Country."

What have expectant manufacturers to say to this change of base on the part of their quondam "friends?" And what say to it those who have been abusing Canadian importers for making rich at the expense of the country? Of a verity they will soon learn that they have been badly fooled.

THE other day the Mail dwelt on what it called the mistake of the Reform journals and speakers in reminding the people of the Pacific Scandal and other Tory jobs perpetrated when a Conservative government was in power. It declared that they seemed to forget that the Reform government was on trial. It then showed its consistency by carefully avoiding any reference to the promises and patchwork policy of the incoming Conservative Ministry, and referring in detail to the Steel Rail purchases, and other corruptions of wrong doing against the Reform Government. The Mail evidently forgets that the Tory leaders have entered on their trial.

LIKE the abandoned wretch who accuses a comrade of the evil he is himself addicted to, the Tories are accusing the Reformers of bribery and corruption at the late elections. Now, it is well known to every intelligent man in the Dominion, be he Reformer or Conservative, that the Ministerial party was quite confident of carrying the country by a decent working majority; that the Opposition did not hope to do more than reduce the Reform majority of last session; and, that both parties were about equally astonished at the result. Is it then likely that the Reformers, confident in their strength should enter upon what they considered a useless expenditure of money, or descend to base practices, they felt no temptation to enter upon? Is it not rather probable that the Tories, doubtful of their ability to bring down last session's Reform majority in the House, should in their eagerness to make proud their boast, stoop to that bribery and corruption formerly so habitual to them. It is well known they had "lots of money," much of it undoubtedly got from manufacturers to whom they had promised protection when they again obtained the ordering of affairs. Considerable sums were spent in the printing and distribution of campaign documents, paying speakers like Fraser and Wright, and in other ways generally considered legitimate. But from many places reports come that such were not the only uses to which Tory money was put; but that the "almighty dollar," Boundery pressure, and obfuscating whiskey played as considerable a part in the Tory service as the seductive promises of high prices and increased wages by reason of a readjusted tariff. Probably the less Tory journals say about bribery and corruption the better for their party.

Western Algoma and Southern Keewaydin.

From a manuscript that has come into our possession we extract the following:—

I can conceive nothing more beautiful than the scenery which fringes the northern shore of the Lake of the Woods. Those who have had the privilege of examining Lord Dufferin's portfolios, will find the evidences of his appreciation. In his visit to those shores a year ago, his sketch book was never from his hand. From Winnipeg you cross to St. Boniface, and immediately strike the terminal portion of the old Dawson route. The road bed is abominable, having been rutted and ruined by Mr. Whitehead's commissariat carts. The route is interesting You have prairie; sand hills; a visitation of hornets and musquitoes around your horses, that perplexes your driver; a long range of brule; a narrowing of the road which winds like a country road in South Wales; an undulating muskeg, from whose murky waters you startle a mallord, or alarm a snipe; gaunt jackspine; bastard oak and flourishing elm; a ruined shanty. These make a diversity, and with a lay-over house every thirty miles, you consummate a journey of one hundred and ten miles in about forty-eight hours. The Northwest angle is a geographical curiosity, for which all Canadians may bless Lord Ashburton for all time to come. It is a mere Indian village and Hudson Bay Post, that has attained that name by the fact of its being the point of embarkation to Rainy River, Red Portage, and the main line of the Canadian Pacific running from Thunder Bay to Selkirk on the Red River Arrived here and possessed of a letter of direction from Joseph Whitehead the contractor of section 15, you can go on board his fine steamer, the Lady of the Lake, which will transport you to Rat Portage. Here commences the real enjoyment of your trip. In three hours from the time you weighed anchor you are floating in an Elysium of natural scenery, which I certainly think cannot be surpassed on our continent. Imagine the scenery of the Thousand Islands magnified a thousand fold and intensified in its conformation, and you may perhaps fancy what the landscapes of the Lake of the Woods present. This blue inland sea of rippling currents and mimic wavelets, glimmering in the height of September sun, and clouded upon its island margins by the reflected tints of grey rock and autumn foliage, its utter isolation and weird like silence, unknown save to the Indians whose wigwams dot its islands, and to the enterprise of rail road interests, is indeed an object of consummate joy, so peacefully do those broad waters roll in unknown beauty. Historically known to the early Jesuit fathers, and as the route of Sir Garnet Wolsley's battalion to crush the Riel rebellion, Rat Portage is a point of interest The Portage is quite short—about 200 feet—but the beaten pathway and the smooth surface of the rocks indicate the tramp of many moccasins. How many red men have traversed this narrow ground into the country of the Ogibbewas, the Cree and Sioux can relate, for the graves of their chiefs are yet observable along the shores of the Winnipeg River.

As soon as you cross Rat Portage you are in and upon Contract 15, and virtually the guest of the fine old English gentleman, who is the contractor for this portion of the Canadian Pacific Railway. Some five or six miles below the portage are the head quarters of the line, Darlington Bay, so named from Mr. Whitehead's birth-place in England. Mr. Charles Whitehead, the chief superintendent, Messrs. Buttan and Middleton, the contractors Engineers, and Dr. Baldwin, a scion of the great Reformer will extend to their guests, a courteous welcome and a liberal hospitality, highly gratifying to a traveller rambling amid such a sterile region. Contract 15 embraces a space of the Canadian Pacific reaching from the Northern Pembina Branch, thence almost due east to Cross Lake.

The reader will please bear in mind that the Pembina Branch of the Canadian Pacific runs due north of Winnipeg on the eastern shore of Red River, and connects with the main line about twenty-two miles north at a point two miles south of Selkirk.

It would require the graphic delineations of Cooper and the pencil of Salvator Rosa, to describe or picture the exquisite loveliness, which, all so rude and so rough, mark the features of Contract 15. Of course there is turbulence where the works are progressing, and this region of rock is being blown to atoms by Mowbray's tri-nitro-glycerine; but apart from such explosion, silence and solitude prevail. In the frosted branches of the silver birch—the sombre hues of a cedar, or the luxuriant foliage of a poplar, thrown upon a sky line of intensest azure, in the mirrored reflection of steep and mossy crags, in lakes of opal, placid and calm; in fantastic shadow and dreamy monotony of pine clad hills, this line of the 15th Contract extends its tortuous route. To any practical agriculturist, the land is forbidding in the extreme. In fact to him, these are the gates of an inferno leading to a paradise beyond. But to the idler, the sportsman or pedestrian, this may become a heaven. Here he will find rest amid natural loveliness most superb. With caribou and moose and salmon trout of the purest, abounding amid the broad expanse of the waters of the Lake of the Woods, with its clustered islands and indentations, how very pleasantly a summer season might be passed.

There is an old thief and dumb woman hanging for murder, four of sick son in Simcoe, who is said to be worth about $10,000.

Political Rumors.

The result of the recent elections has given rise to a great many rumors in regard to the composition of the new ministry. The Ottawa Free Press, in alluding to this matter says:—

To begin with we take it as a matter of course that the Hon. JOHN O'CONNOR, the member elect for Russel, will take his place in the new cabinet as Post master General. His party can do no less for him, than award to him the position which he has well earned, and in every sense well qualified to accept. Then we have the rumor, said to be well founded that upon accepting office Sir JOHN MACDONALD will appeal to the electors of North Leeds and Grenville for endorsation, and would without doubt be returned by acclamation. Mr. ALONZO WRIGHT is spoken of as a prospective Minister of Agriculture, and has undoubtedly very strong claims upon the party which for sixteen years he has steadfastly supported. Mr. TASSE, one of the members for the city, is also spoken of as one of the new Cabinet, and it is said has gone to Montreal to qualify himself for the responsibility of that position.

We have it upon good authority that the Hon. EDWARD BLAKE, immediately upon his return from Europe, will be asked to represent the County of Durham, the member elect, Mr. BURK, resigning in his favor. In such case the people of Ontario will be spared the reproach of having sacrificed to a mere temporary error, a statesman who towers above his fellows in intellectual might and vigor, and who has won for himself renown both in Britain and America.

The friends of the Hon. Mr. CARTWRIGHT in Lennox are determined to contest the election in that county, and are confident in strong assurance that he will sit in the new Parliament to criticise Dr. TUPPER'S effort to introduce the "wedge of protection," by the thick end.

Of those who are claimants for the dangerous position of Finance Minister in the incoming Administration, Dr. TUPPER is said to insist upon it; Mr. TILLEY expects it; Mr. MCCARTHY considers himself the best qualified for it; while the rank and file believe that Mr. CHARLES COLBY, to be the best and safest man for the place.

It is stated the Hon. PETER MITCHELL, who was defeated in Northumberland, will be called to the position of Speaker of the Senate, for which place Mr. COSTIGAN is also said to be an applicant.

HON. D. L. MACPHERSON will lead the Government in the Senate, his claims being considered superior to those of Hon. Mr. CAMPBELL, who made no effort to aid his party in the late elections, and whose apathy in the Kingston contest is believed to have contributed to Sir JOHN MACDONALD'S defeat.

Mr. RUFUS STEPHENSON, M. P., for Kent, is spoken of as a prospective cabinet minister, Hon. JOHN CARLING, holding his seat in the House until the post of Lieutenant-Governor of Ontario, long ago promised him, becomes vacant two years hence.

Hon. Mr. LANGEVIN will without doubt be taken into the new Cabinet as Minister of Public Works and will be elected by acclamation for Champlain, Mr. MONTPLAISIR, the member elect, resigning in his favor.

The friends of ex-Judge COURSOLLES member elect for Montreal East, are pushing his claims to a seat in the Cabinet, on the grounds of his acknowledged ability and of the strong support which Montreal district gave to Sir John in the recent election. The Montrealers say it is necessary that the commercial metropolis should be represented in the new Administration, in order to ensure the carrying out of the policy upon whose promises they were induced to elect supporters of the Premier expectant.

Mr COCKBURN, Sir JOHN'S Speaker in the Parliaments of 1867 and 1872, will be appointed to the Bench, paving the way for the nomination of Dr. BLANCHET the member elect for Levis, to the presiding chair for the House of Commons.

Hon. Mr. CHAPAIS, a member of Sir JOHN'S old Cabinet, is to be ignored, and it is expected that Hon. Mr. BELLEROSE will be the French Canadian leader of the Conservative party in the Senate.

Issue of the General Elections.

(From the Montreal Journal of Commerce.

The issue of the recent general election must be regarded as determining the character of the fiscal policy of this country, for some years to come at least. Fortune has favored that party which advocates a re-adjustment of the tariff in the interest of home industries, and it remains for its leaders to justify, by results, the policy which they have induced the Dominion to adopt. The country has pronounced for the Opposition on the strength of their assurance that they can, and will inaugurate a policy which will relieve languishing industries and create many new ones, which shall protect the Canadian manufacturer against the indiscriminate slaughter of American goods and which shall have the effect, generally, of mitigating the existing business depression. These be brave promises, and to fulfil them will be an achievement deserving of the gratitude for the whole community. Business men, irrespective of political predelictions, would heartily rejoice at the attainment of such results, and upon the success or failure of the new policy to bring them about will depend the continuance of that public confidence which was so generously accorded to the Conservative party last Tuesday.

At a recent meeting of the Petersville, O., Council a disgraceful scene was enacted; some of the members called each other liars, one of them striking a colleague in the face.

The Journal of Commerce remarks:—The reports from all sections are highly encouraging for the Fall trade. The demand for goods is very much in excess of the corresponding date of any previous year since the panic Collections are more satisfactory, and a general feeling of hopefulness is reported.

Never Put Off Until To-Morrow what you can do To-Day

If an old but significant adage. The reader of this article has an opportunity to save money, and that opportunity should not be put off, just the same as never comes. By all means select your FALL BOOTS, SHOES, and RUBBERS from the Fair Grounds before opening out at 23, Water St., one door of Golden Boot. The choice is the largest ever submitted, and the prices are still lower than any house in town, and bear in mind that the fit, style and finish is very superior. It is a duty which every man owes to his family and himself to make these as there, to give each business his patronage, and save money by it.

PETERBOROUGH, OCT. 3, 1878.

LOCAL NEWS.

Fish and Game Society.—A meeting of the Peterborough Fish and Game Protective Society will be held this evening in the Huffman House at 8 o'clock. Members are urgently requested to be present.

Mansard Roofs.—Mansard roofs are in course of erection on Burnhams' Block, corner of George and Simcoe streets, and on the building occupied by Fitzgerald and Stanger as a carriage shop, on Brock street.

Steamer "Cruiser."—After the 1st of October the steamer Cruiser will leave Lakefield on Mondays, Wednesdays, and Saturdays at 9 a. m. Advertisement for change of time table received too late this week for change.

Excursion to Midland.—The excursion to Midland last Thursday was very well attended, but owing to the roughness of the waters of the Georgian Bay, the excursionists only got as far as Victoria Harbor, the present terminus of the road.

The Central Exhibition.—The Central Exhibition is being held this week in Cobourg, and from all accounts promises to be the most successful yet held. We understand that Peterborough is well represented. We are unable to give particulars this week but will do so in our next issue.

A Large Yield.—We were shown on Tuesday last, by Mr. Robert Goodfellow, of North Monaghan, a specimen of the common white bean, which for prolific yield beats anything we have yet heard of. From one vine was gathered the large number of 561 beans, there being on the vine 169 pods.

A Warning.—The Globe gives the following warning:—"The public and business men especially, are warned against the wiles of an individual who is going round soliciting advertisements and orders for a Provincial Directory. The canvasser in question solicits payment in advance, a thing unknown in the publishing of directories.

Royal Black Knights of Ireland.—The Grand Black Chapter of British America met in Toronto on Wednesday of last week. Among the officers elected for the current year, we observe the names of R. Dunlop, Esq., Peterborough, as one of the Grand Standard Bearers; and John Smith, Esq., Peterborough, as one of the Grand Committee.

A Novel Amusement.—A popular amusement at Nevada pic-nics is the "egg race," one of which is thus described:—"Each lady was required to carry an uncooked egg in a tablespoon, the one reaching the goal first with the egg unbroken to be judged winner. Enough eggs were broken to make an omelette as big as the wheel of a quartz waggon."

First Prize Boots.—We learn by telegram that Mr. W. J. Larmour has been awarded first prize at the Central Exhibition at Cobourg, for the best assortment of boots and shoes. This must be extremely gratifying to Mr. Larmour especially as a Cobourg man (and most likely one of the competitors) carried off first prize at the World's Fair at Philadelphia in 1876.

Thorley's Horse and Cattle Food.—Dr. Emmet & Co., have been appointed sole agents for the celebrated Thorley's Improved Horse and Cattle Food. This food has been in use for over a century in the Old Country, and has always been in very high demand among stock raisers and livery men. It is not to be used as a medicine but as a seasoner to the animals food, being a purely vegetable preparation.

Foot Ball Club.—At a meeting of the Peterborough Foot Ball Club held in the Huffman House on Saturday evening last, the following officers were elected for the ensuing year, viz:—President,—Geo. C. Rogers; Captain,—A. D. Braithwaite; Sec-Treas.,—Ed. Snyder. Committee,—W. Nesbitt, E. Peck. Tuesday and Thursday of each week have been fixed on practice days, and Saturdays as general match day.

Provincial Exhibition.—Quite a large number from Peterborough and vicinity visited the Provincial Exhibition last week in Toronto. From the prize list we observe that Mr. Wm. Hamilton obtained first prize for stationary engine, one to four horse power; a boiler for steam engine shown by the same gentleman was highly recommended. In Fine Arts, the Rev. V. Clementi carried off first prize for marine view, in the amateur list.

"Rules You a Dollar."—The Toronto Telegram tells a story of a poker-player who, having been enticed to one of the city churches by a companion anxious to reform him, fell asleep during the service, and, when the plate was next passed, thought he was playing his favorite game, and dropped a dollar and five cents on the plate, muttering, "Raise you a dollar." The five cents was in response to a similar sum donated by his companion.

"The Grocery."—We invite the attention of our readers to Mr. Maxwell Hall's extensive advertisement in another column. The success which has attended "The Grocery" store since its commencement and the steadily increasing business enjoyed by Mr. Hall is good proof of both the quality and prices of his goods. He has this fall laid in a very large and well assorted stock in all departments, and those in need of groceries would do well to give him a call.

Personal.—Mr. J. J. Bell, M. A., brother of Dr. Bell, of this town, and for some time a resident of Peterborough, has purchased the New Nation and Prince Times. The Journal of Commerce has the following paragraph:—"J. J. Bell, M. A., formerly proprietor of a Goderich paper, has connected for some time with the Canada Journal, has purchased the Times of Picton, Ontario. Mr. Bell is a gentleman of undoubted ability, and will be sure to give the people of Prince Edward county full value for the amount of their subscriptions. We wish him every success."

New Book.—We saw at the store of Messrs. Maddren and Green yesterday a very handsome book just published by Mr. Maddren of that firm. It is entitled "Elements of Centaur," and is, no doubt a work of great value to the craft, though many incomprehensible than "Greek" to us. The work calls for $5.00. It is very large, containing about 150 well executed engravings, and a full explanation of Mr. Maddren's system, which is extensively used in the States. The book was make by the Case, Lockwood and Brainard Company, Hartford, Conn., in printed, an extra heavy paper, in heavily gilt, and beautifully bound in leather. The general agent is in town, but leaves in a day or two, to deliver the book in the Western States, where it has been sold by subscription in nearly all the leading houses.

A Pinch of Salt.—In reply to our denial that Messrs. W. Paterson & Son had discharged an employe because he had voted for Mr. Hilliard, the Review ever true to its motto of "When you tell a lie, stick to it," still maintains that it was for political reasons that Beavis was discharged. We have no hesitation in pitting the veracity of the Messrs. Paterson against either that of the discharged employee or the writer in the Review, and believe the public will readily accept their word in preference to the other two. As to the Review's allusion to the pinch of salt, that journal has become so notorious for handling the truth carelessly that although we blush to tell it, they have a salt water well in their establishment, so that they may the more easily season their weekly production, when "writing" their paper, in order to render it palatable to their subscribers. If there were many such journals in the country as residues of truth as our cotem, the salt manufacturers might find them more beneficial than any protective policy John A. could devise.

Bible Christian Missions.—We have received the twenty-third annual report of the Missionary Society of the Bible Christian Church, which contains the usual interesting particulars of the labors of that body. From it we learn that the Society employed 9 ministers, who are assisted by 21 local preachers; they preach in eighty-five churches and 34 other places. There are 2,662 church members, 627 Sunday School teachers, and 2,787 scholars, showing an increase of two churches, 159 members, 24 Sunday School teachers, and 192 Sunday School scholars during the past year. The income of the year amounted to $16,126.44, which is $1,976.77 less than the expenditure. At the present time the Society bears a burden of debt reaching $67,-976.71, all of which has been expended on legitimate work and which must for the most part be wiped out before the Society can possibly extend its operations. Last year's contributions at the annual meeting for the benefit of the Society from Peterborough amounted to $177.-50; Lakefield, $25.60; Ashburnham, $41.25. The total from the Victoria and Peterborough District at these missionary meeting was $1,304.22, making with quarterly receipts the sum of $3,-303.64.

Majority for Burnham 36.

Musical Society Concert.—This concert which was unavoidably postponed on account of the illness of Mr. Fred. Burnham, was held last Friday evening in Bradburns' Hall. It was not as well attended as it should are been, considering the choice programme that was presented, but this can easily be accounted for by the fact that clog dances and indifferent songs were omitted. Those who were present appeared to be highly pleased with the arrangements and with the manner in which the several pieces were rendered and look forward with great pleasure to the next con ert which we hear will shortly be given. The first selection on the programme was the overture by the Musical Society, which was immediately followed by a song by Mrs. Chambers, entitled "Waiting." Mr. and Mrs. Heathfield then very finely executed a duett, when Mr. Stanley sang "Let me like a Soldier Fall" and was loudly and repeatedly encored. The Anvil Chorus, from the Opera of Il Trovatore was very skillfully and musically rendered by a chorus of singers, accompanied by twenty strikers and ten anvils. As there were only three rehearsals the strikers showed that they were decidedly apt pupils. In part second, the Musical Society again favored the audience with two selections. Mrs. Chambers in her usual style, sang the "Lover and the Bird" and was encored. In the "Anchor's Weighed" Mr. Stanley admirably acquitted himself and was repeatedly applauded. The concert was then closed by "The Prison Scene" from one of Verdi's best Operas, by Mrs. Chambers, Mr. Stanly and chorus. Mr. Stanley deserves great credit for the efficient manner in which he prepared the singers in the "Anvil Chorus" and "Prison Scene."

SCHOOL BOARD.

The regular monthly meeting of the School Board was held last Tuesday evening. Present,—The Chairman, James Stevenson, Esq., and Messrs. Edwards, Denniston, Romaine, Cook, Leek, Cox, Kincaid, Dumble, Ernett, Measles, Shaw, Edmison, and McClelland.

Minutes of last meeting read and confirmed.

ENQUIRIES.

Mr. DENNISTOUN said he had been informed there were no rooms in the school building in which the pupils could eat their lunches. Coming on the cold weather, if this were so, some provision should be made for rooms.

Mr. ERNETT said there were two rooms, one to each of the buildings.

Mr. DUMBLE suggested that a fixture be applied to the pipes so that pupils could warm their lunches.

On enquiry of Mr. SHAW, Mr. ERNETT stated that the contracts with the janitors had been closed and filed with the Secretary-Treasurer.

Mr. EDMISON asked if the contracts for the satisfactory working of the steam pipes had been signed, and was answered by the Chairman of the Property Committee that the Contractor was bound to the satisfactory working of the system.

In answer to Mr. MCCLELLAND as to what had been done in regard to seating the new rooms, Mr. ERNETT said he had several of the seats and desks, which had been broken and thrown aside, repaired; but as yet, they could not tell how many seats would be required.

ACCOUNTS.

An account from T. W. Robinson, amounting to $3.50 for water-lime, was presented and ordered to be paid.

COMMUNICATIONS.

From Bennett and Bros., London, in reference to school furnishings.—Received.

From the Principal, drawing attention to the large number of scholars in Miss Matthews room and suggesting that an assistant be engaged.—Received and referred to Committee on Supervision.

From Jas. Coyle Brown, stating that in the matter of arbitration between the Town and School Section No. 11, Douro, it had been decided that for every dollar levied the Town should provide 57 cents and No. 11, Douro, 43.—Received.

From the Education Department, a circular giving apportionment of school grant throughout the Province.

THE PRINCIPAL'S REPORT.

A report from the Principal of the attendance during the month of September, was read as follows:—

	On Roll.	Av.
Institute	197	132
Central School	469	339
South Ward School	293	146
Third Ward School	149	123
Auburn School	53	51
Total	1061	806

COMMITTEE ON APPOINTMENTS.

Mr. DENNISTOUN read the following report from the Committee on Appointments:—

Your Committee beg to report that our Public Schools are in an efficient state and the organization good—as testified by the results and by the report of the Government Inspectors—and in view of the additional expense which the employment of a Head Master of the Public Schools must necessarily entail, it is not expedient to make any change in the present management of the schools.

JAS. F. DENNESTOUN, Chairman.

Mr. DENNISTOUN moved that the report be received.

Mr. DUMBLE moved for the adoption of the report as the matter had been referred to a committee and by them considered, and he thought it should be adopted and settled at once.

Mr. COX thought it should be adopted as otherwise it might be taken as that the schools were not in an efficient state.

Mr. DENNISTOUN was prepared to vote for the reception of the report, but as he did not approve of the statements in the report, and as there was no recommendation contained in it, he could not vote for its adoption. He believed the schools were in a more efficient state than last year, but he did not believe that they were so far advanced that they could not be raised to a further state of efficiency.

Mr. DUMBLE maintained that it was perfectly necessary for the chairman to move the adoption of the report, and claimed that adopting the report would not prevent its being taken up again if it was necessary to do so. It might be taken up when a full Board was not present and passed against the wishes of a majority of the Board.

Mr. DENNISTOUN said after the explanation given by him, if members still persisted in having the report adopted, he would claim the rights which the rules gave him and bring in a minority report. He then read the following:

MINORITY REPORT.

The Minority of the Committee on appointments recommend the appointment of a Head Master, for the Public Schools who shall assume the management of the same on the 1st of January 1879, under the direction of the Principal of the Collegiate Institute leaving the Principal free to devote his whole time to the Institute and in order that the expenses of the School may not be increased by such appointment they would recommend that the services of one of the teachers in the Institute be dispensed with, providing that can be done without impairing its efficiency.

J. F. DENNISTOUN.
ROBERT ROMAINE.
R. W. ERNETT.

Dated 1st October, 1878

Mr. DENNISTOUN moved for the reception of the report.

Upon the understanding that no action would be taken unless a month's notice was given, the motion was carried.

SCHOOL SUPERVISION.

Mr. DUMBLE read the following report of the committee on School Supervision on the matter referred to them in regard to the South Ward School Petitions—the one asking for a change, having emanated from the Review Office.

The committee on School Supervision beg to report:

That they have considered the matter referred to them by the Board in reference to the South Ward School.

The petition of Joseph Lundy and fifty others alleges that it is desirable "with a view of securing greater efficiency and discipline" that a Head Master should be appointed over the School. A counter petition signed by Wm. Cummings and one hundred and twenty one others express their "entire confidence and satisfaction," in the way the School is at present conducted, and prays that no alteration be made.

An examination into the circumstances of the petitions discloses the fact that more than one half of the names attached to the first petition are those of persons who have not children in attendance at the School, while the second petition contains the signatures of parents or guardians of two hundred and twenty-three pupils out of a total number of 275 on the roll.

It further appears that a considerable number of persons who signed the first petition did so under misapprehension of fact and in order to undo the mischief they signed the counter petition. Under these circumstances we think no action is called for on the part of the Board. Your committee cannot help congratulating the Teachers of the South Ward School on the fact that so large a population of the parents and guardians of the pupils are satisfied with the management of the School.

All of which is respectfully submitted.

D. W. DUMBLE,
Chairman.

The report was on motion received and adopted.

BONUS TO INSTITUTE PUPILS.

Mr. EDMISON moved, seconded by Mr. SHAW, —That with a view to encourage pupils residing outside of the County of Peterborough to enter our Collegiate Institute and prepare for passing the Intermediate Examinations, this Board on learning the result of the Intermediate Examinations from time to time will refund to each of such pupils who shall successfully pass such examinations, one-half of the fees that may have been paid by her or him during the time preceding such examination.

In moving this resolution Mr. EDMISON said that many of the best pupils in the Institute, when learning that the fees had been raised, had determined to leave the school. He believed to refund a portion of the fees to successful pupils would bring more outsiders to our Institute, and as it would not cost any more for teachers, but on the other hand largely increase our government grant. He believed it would be an economical arrangement.

Mr. ERNETT believed it would be an injustice to the town pupils. As it was a matter of money he submitted that it could only be left over as a notice of motion.

Mr. SHAW did not look upon the resolution as others. The pupils coming from a distance were generally advanced, and served as a stimulus to the others. By their passing, the Board would secure the government grant which was largely in excess of the amount of the proposed refund or bonus.

Mr. DUMBLE thought it a matter worthy the attention of the Board, and believed it would be a paying transaction.

Mr. EDWARDS was opposed to the resolution as was also Mr. ROMAINE.

The motion on being put five voted for it and six against it, Mr. McClelland abstaining from from voting.

A very irregular discussion arose as to whether the resolution should have been voted upon, as it involved an expenditure of money; but was cut short by the Chairman announcing he would hold it over as a notice of motion.

FEES FOR THE MONTH.

In answer to Mr. ERNETT, the SECRETARY announced that the amount of fees collected during the month of September, was $83—87 being from the Common School and $56 from the Institute.

The Board adjourned in confusion.

Tents of All Sizes can be had from $3.50 and upwards at I. Robinson & Co's. 34

Sabbath School Convention.

Before our next issue the Convention of the Sabbath School Association of Canada will have assembled in our Town. We hope all our readers in town and county will avail themselves of its sessions. The Convention is composed of about three hundred delegates selected annually by Sabbath Schools of every Protestant denomination in Ontario and Quebec, and sent to the place of meeting. These yearly assemblies are always marked by Sessions of great interest. Not only is Sabbath School work reviewed, but its present aspect is considered, and ways and means devised for future advancement.

The place of meeting will be the George Street Methodist Church, which the Trustees have kindly placed at the disposal of the Executive committee of the Association. The members of the several churches have also opened their houses for the entertainment of the delegates during the Convention.

The days of session will be the 8th, 9th and 10th of the present month. For the convenience of our subscribers who may attend, we insert the Programme, which commends itself in the appropriateness of the subjects of discussion, and the names of the gentlemen engaged to address the meetings.

COUNTY PLOUGHING MATCH.

Joint Arrangements by the East and West Riding Agricultural Societies.

A meeting of the representatives of East and West Riding Agricultural Societies was held last Saturday in the Police Court room, Peterborough, there being present from the East Riding Messrs. D. Henderson, And. Nelson, Wm. Drummond, A. R. Kidd, D. Forsythe, Wm. McIntosh, Thos. Blezard, John Cleghorn, A. S. McQuire, Jno. Clements and Jno. Breakenridge; and from the West Riding Messrs. Jno. Walton, Rev. V. Clementi, Is. Garbutt, H. Collins, A. Scott, J. Bennett, T. E. Bell, W. Rutherford, Geo. Fitzgerald and J. Carnegie.

Mr. Clementi was appointed Chairman, and Mr. Carnegie Secretary pro tem.

Moved by Mr. CARNEGIE, seconded by Mr. KIDD, and unanimously resolved,—That all the arrangements for the County Ploughing Match be referred to an Executive Committee of seven, to be chosen in the following manner, viz: One by this meeting, who shall be Chairman of the Committee, and three each by those present from the East and West Ridings respectively.

In accordance with this resolution the meeting then proceeded to the selection of the Chairman of the Executive Committee, when Mr. Kidd proposed Mr. Clementi, but on his positively declining to act, it was Moved by Mr. BELL, seconded by Mr. KIDD,—That Isaac Garbutt, Esq., be appointed Chairman: and the motion was unanimously carried.

The representatives of each Riding then consulted together, and those from the East Riding named Messrs. T. Blizard, A. R. Kidd and John Breakenridge as their representatives on the Committee, and those from the West appointed Messrs. Wm. Rutherford, Alex. Scott and J. E. Bell as their representatives on the same.

On motion of Mr. KIDD, Mr. Carnegie was appointed permanent Secretary of the Committee.

Those present then entered upon a general discussion as to where a suitable field or fields could be obtained for the match, the unanimous feeling being that if possible, the match should be held within three miles of the Town of Peterborough.

Nothing definite being arrived at, it was resolved by the Executive Committee,—That the members of the General Committee and others be requested to send into the Secretary at the Review office on or before Friday, the 4th of October, a memorandum of any field or fields which they may deem fit for the match, and that the Committee should adjourn to Saturday, the 5th October, at 10 a.m., for the purpose of proceeding to inspect such field, and arranging the prize list and time of match.

It was mentioned by a member of the Committee that a "plough" had already been offered as a special prize, and as it was thought other manufacturers would be glad to do likewise each member of the Committee was authorized to obtain such gifts before the next meeting in order that they may be taken into consideration in framing the prize list, and duly advertised. The amount of money at the disposal of the Committee is $150, being contributed in equal portions by the County Council and the East and West Riding Agricultural Societies.—Review.

LINDSAY.

OFF THE TRACK.—A lumber train from the north on the Midland Railway was thrown off the track Wednesday evening by the rails, it is said, spreading and some of the cars badly smashed. The train had stopped as usual on the approach to the diamond crossing and started again too suddenly, which with the bend in the track at this point caused one of the trucks to jump the track and four others followed, making a complete wreck of the first one. The evening train on the Victoria Railway was late in consequence of the crossing being blocked up.

THE STURGEON POINT REGATTA.—As stated in our last issue the second day's races laid down on the programme were cancelled but a "scratch" race was made between the two double scull crews—Jack Hanlan and Frank Adair, Toronto, and the Gaudaur brothers, Orillia—for a purse of $20. The Gaudaur brothers took the lead and held it till within about half a mile of the finish, when the Toronto boys passed them and took the prize by two boat lengths. The race was very exciting and much interest was manifested in it by the professional oarsmen present. It was pronounced the best race of the regatta. As a speculation, as in other respects, the regatta has proved a failure and a loss to every one connected with it. The railway and steamboat companies were not the only loosers. Mr. Duuham who had done everything in his power to lighten the weight on other shoulders, comes out considerably behind, and Messrs. W. A. Jewett and M. Russel, who had large booths on the grounds, were also out to some extent.—Post.

THE AFGHAN DIFFICULTY.

The Ameer Decides Upon an Alliance with Russia—British Preparations Hastened.

LONDON, Sept. 30.—The Times correspondent at Calcutta telegraphs as follows: "Unless Shere Alia gives us satisfaction, the present occasion will be seized to procure for ourselves the passes piercing the mountain ranges along the whole frontier from the Khyber to the Bolan, and further strategic measures will be adopted to dominate the Sulieman range and Hindoo-Koosh mountains. The present condition of affairs on the Afghan frontier and the relations with the hill tribes should once for all cease to exist, and we may thank the Ameer, and more especially Russia, the causa causans, for affording us the opportunity of consolidating the defences of our Indian Empire by a strategetic and military reconstruction of our frontier."

VIENNA, Sept. 30.—A Constantinople despatch states that Schir Ali Khan, the secret envoy of the Ameer of Afghanstan, is instructed to claim the Sultan's intervention in the pending difficulty in order that England shall not declare war against Afghanistan. He is further to convince the Sultan that an alliance with Russia is advisable for the Mussulman race, and that the Ameer personally has decided to conclude such an alliance.

Pompeii.

Excavations at Pompeii prove the city to have been one of the most fashionable and beautiful of Roman summer resorts, and but for the eruption it might have remained as to this day. As with Pompeii, so with thousands of people who have beauty of form and feature They might always be admired but for the eruptions, that makes the face unsightly, and betrays the presence of scrofula, virulent blood poisons, or general debility. There is but one remedy that positively cures these afflictions and that remedy is Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery. It is the best known tonic, alterative and resolvent. It speedily cures pimples, blotches, liver spots, and all diseases arising from impoverished or impure blood. It also cures dyspepsia, and regulates the liver and bowels. Sold by druggists.

Come Into My House and Abide.

"And he said come in thou blessed of the Lord." Gen. XXIV. 31.

Of kindly note rewarded here,
God's word bright lustrous hath giv'n,
Thou Abra'm all unconsciously
Prepar'd his board for guests from heav'n.
And by their benediction led,
Are blend'd to all eternity.
Save Kaleb, Joshua said, for she
His messengers sent out by me,
The Shemanite oft entertain'd
The Prophet, and how'r in fever pain'd.

But brightest of these records shine.
The home of holy peace and love,
At Bethany, whose inmates serv'd.
Their Friend and Master from above.
Why envy them? Betsee, saith He,
My brothers serve and these serve Me;
Lydia, by kindly countenance,
Made sure proof of her faith'fulness.

Then as disciples of our Lord,
Who left His throne of bliss above,
To minister and live a life
Of self-denying wondrous love,
He said, If My disciples feet
I've wash'd, then surely it is meet
As bearers of My sacred name,
You'll unto others do the same.

Faith without works is dead, so pray't
Without the corresponding deed.
Most like a tinkling cymbal be,
A soulless form, a lifeless creed.
For when, "Thy kingdom come," we pray,
We must endeavor day by day,
With willing hearts and ready hands,
To do whate'er God's cause demands.

How can true piety exist,
In hearts of those who've never known,
What 'tis to add to others joys,
By exerting first their own?
Who would the pleasure sweet forego,
That once has felt the genial glow,
From deeds reflected, great or small,
That answer'd to the needy's call.

If workers would be with Christ,
Do much, or little, all you can,
Like those whom Moses' hands upheld,
Support the leaders in the van,
Of gospel work of ev'ry kind.
The glorious one, the youthful mind,
If't be, to mould for life to come,
A friendly hospice make you home
To lab'rers in this work, and bring Rich blessings from heav'ns beauteous King.

The Late Elections.

Opinions of the Press.

New York Graphic:—The election in the Dominion of Canada yesterday resulted in an irretrievable defeat for the Government and an overwhelming victory for the Conservatives and Opposition. Whatever may be the effect on the relations between this country and Canada, the final solution of them troubles will probably be the establishment of an American International Congress—like the German Zollverein—to adjust the duties each country towards each other. The Graphic has often suggested this as a great step in advance, calculated to promote amity, justice, and the general prosperity.

From the Boston Advertiser —The Government of Canada has met with an overwhelming defeat, and the return of Sir John A. Macdonald to the head of affairs is fully assured. The result is certain to be the enactment of a protective tariff, for the Senate is, as has always been, Conservative in politics. Moreover, there will be an indefinite postponement of the plans for either a reciprocity treaty or a customs union with the United States, in both of which the present Government has taken a strong interest

Chicago Tribune:—In its general aspects, the election turned upon the tariff issue, and, like our own recent election in Maine, represented a vague, unintelligent desire of the dissatisfied people to try some new remedy for the hard times. Rather than endure the evils they have, they were willing to fly to others that they know not of. Certainly there was nothing in the record of Sir John Macdonald, the late head of the Canadian Pacific Credit-Mobilier Cabinet, to inspire confidence; but as he had the sagacity to join a popular stampede and get the control of it he has come out ahead. The result of this victory is yet to come. It will not be strange if it is similar to the result of all popular delusions.

Montreal Star (Conservative) says:—Sir John Macdonald's claim as the leader of the Opposition in the late House, and as a prospective member of the new one—for several seats have been offered him—is generally acknowledged; but, upon many hands, in view of the scandals with which his name has been associated, it is thought it would be a graceful act upon his part, that would tend to the advantage of his party, if he would waive his claim, and allow some such a man as Mr. Tilley to be brought to the front. Dr. Tupper has been mentioned; but the impression is that the late Lieut-Governor would wield much more influence, and be enabled to manage his men much more skilfully. We would not for a moment desire to appear in the position of assailing a man when he is down, as some may suppose Sir John Macdonald to be. It is undoubted, however, that he could secure election did he seek it, but he has time and again protested that he did not wish to remain in public life. He has succeeded beyond his expectations, and has led his party to an almost unprecedented victory. He could now very readily seize on his laurels, remaining, if he chooses, as a simple member of the Legislature, the adviser of his friends, and, indeed, as the man behind the throne, who is more powerful than them all.

Montreal Herald:—No unbiassed mind, unwarped by any political creed, looking on as the struggle progressed, could fail to see how the great showman was practising on the ignorance and selfishness of the masses; how adroitly he manipulated the phrase National Policy so as to leave the impression that national policy meant national prosperity, the cessation of hard times, and the introduction into the Dominion of life from the dead. People who are no more able to discuss politics than they are to solve a problem in Euclid could understand well enough what bread and butter meant, and all that Sir John A. Macdonald had to do was to persuade them that National Policy meant this and nothing but this. The delusion being strong upon them, of course they were easily persuaded to believe that the Mackenzie Government withheld this boon from them, and had therefore forfeited their right to administer the affairs of the Dominion. The other day a party was asked how he could vote for such a person. His reply was characteristic:—"I don't care what he is; I'll vote for a bookan if he will only help to drive out the Mackenzie Government, because they won't give us protection." This individual expressed the real sentiments of thousands who cast their votes on Tuesday last. The result is now known throughout the Dominion.

Ammonia for Plants.

I had been using spirits of ammonia to cleanse some fabric; it was diluted in soft water, and wishing to empty the dish I turned it on a scarlet geranium that I brought out of the sitting room (as it looked as if it was struck with death or old age), and set it in the kitchen window. It was a pretty strong dose, but I thought I would see what it would do. It operated like a life elixir; the buds began to swell, and to-day it is as fresh and vigorous, with a thick foliage of leaves, as a young and thrifty plant. I afterwards tried it on other plants, and I find it a splendid thing. It seems to strengthen them, and they really show that it is the one thing needful. As to not a costly fertilizer, and is very convenient. People like, if they cultivate plants, to have them look as if they are glad to live and enjoy living. I do not think a flower stand, filled with pale, sickly, yellow plants, is any ornament; it pow'ful thoughts and sober memories into our minds. But a few bright, vigorous growing plants remind us of the promise, that the Spring, laden with blessing verdure, will return, and the green never can like the rejected that promise.

Beds and Pillows.

The newspaper called Iron, referring to Mr. Mitchell Henry's efforts to bring some modification of the new prison rules, says: "Whatever opposed harshness there may be in the point upon which Mr. Henry laid so much stress—the bed of bare boards—close confinement is by far the greater evil. Watertons, the naturalist, who lived to a patriarchal age, slept to the last on a bed of bare boards with his window open winter and summer. A Russian peasant sleeps with his arms beneath his head; this arrangement is known in the Czar's dominions as the Russian pillow. With a sufficiently warm covering over him, a man may sleep on boards as soundly, perhaps more so, than on down; but sleep is difficult unless the head rests upon something softer than wood. Still, in such matters, habit counts for a great deal. The Irish prisoners, it seems, are allowed a pillow of wood—the sort of pillow the Celestials use; in England they supply a more luxurious article stuffed with ocean fibre. The Scotch Highlanders sometimes threemacked on the snow, wetting and wringing out their plaids before retiring to rest; and it is recorded that on one occasion when one of the party rolled a ball of snow and placed it under his head the chief kicked it away, upbraiding his reviner for indulging in such unmanly luxury."

The Wonders of a Well.

Remarkable Discovery in Pennsylvania.

A man named Neff near Alexandria, Huntingdon county, Pa., made a remarkable discovery a few days ago. Having gone to his well for a drink, he was so surprised that no water was forthcoming, and his curiosity having been excited, he descended the well to find the bottom out and a cool breeze blowing upwards, enough to cause a rustling among the leaves of a tree on the outside. Mr. Neff then adjusted a lantern to a rope one hundred feet long, and let it down the cavern. As the fire had not been extinguished, he concluded that the air was pure. He then secured a rope 300 feet long, and fastened to one end of it a basket containing a lantern, dog, and cat, and slowly let them down. Bottom was reached at two hundred and ninetyone feet, and at the end of six hours the basket and contents were drawn up to the surface. The lantern was still burning and the animals gave no evidence of suffering except chilliness. The next day the owner of the disappeared well accompanied by a friend, descended to the bottom, and discovered a cave extending for miles in different directions. Stalagmites and stalactites were numerous, and at intervals small streams of water ran over stoney beds. Many bats flattered through the cavern, and petrified sea shell abounded. A vein of nickel ore was also discovered samples of which have been analysed and found to be superior to the nickel of either Lancashire, Pa., or Germany, the only places where the metal is mined.

The Most Profitable Sheep.

At this season of the year the farmer, with an eye to future profits, will look over his flock and decide which ones he will keep and which turn off; to do this with profit, they must be prepared for the butcher, unless how'ever, they are of some very choice variety, when it will be necessary to not only have them in prime condition, but have them properly classed and a reasonable amount of extra care to make them appear to advantage.

Other things being equal and taken into consideration, large sheep fatten to better advantage than small ones, and matured animals better than young ones. Two-year-old wethers are the most profitable to fatten, and can be made suitable for the best of markets in winter on good clover hay alone. We do not mean the dark-looking, burnt-up stuff, commonly called by that name, but what a true American farmer would call hay, cut when in full bloom, and cured in such a manner as to retain all its juices before they reach and are turned into woody fibre, and of a good green color. A sheep of, say 120 pounds, live weight, will consume 21 pounds. Allowing that it would ordinarily consume 10 pounds to keep it in good stationary condition, an expenditure of 7 pounds of hay extra will produce 14 pounds of mutton, worth, in the spring, 10 cents, so that the extra feeding is literally realising to the farmer at the rate of nearly $30 per ton for his hay. No other stock, we think, will give such return for the trouble of fattening an ewe.

Rules for the Government of Children.

First.—Never give in to disobedience, and never threaten what you are not prepared to carry out. Second—Never lose your temper. I do not say never be angry. Anger is sometimes indispensable, especially where there has been anything mean, dishonest or cruel. But anger is very different from loss of temper. Third—Of all things never sneer at them; and be careful even how you rally them. Fourth—Do not try to work on their feelings. Fifth—Never show that you doubt except you are able to convict. To doubt an honest child is to do all you can to make a liar of him; and to believe a liar, if he is not altogether shameless, is to shame him. Sixth—Instil no religious doctrine apart from its duty. If it have no duty as its necessary embodiment, the doctrine may well be regarded as doubtful. Seventh—Do not be too hard on mere quarrelling, which, like a storm in nature, is often helpful in clearing the moral atmosphere. Stop it by a judgment between the parties. But be severe as to kind of quarrelling, and the temper shown in it. Especially give no quarter to any unkindness arising from greed or spite. Use your strongest language in regard to that.

Errors in Keeping Poultry.

Although there are many widely different breeds of fowls, adapted more or less to the varied wants of the farmer, there are some general rules for their management which are applicable everywhere; and many flagrant errors are made by most farmers. One serious error is, the custom of keeping hens until they become too old to be profitable, because they were choice birds and good layers when young. A hen of any breed will lay only half as many eggs the second year as the first after she commences laying. All fowls kept by a farmer after they are two years old are kept at a loss, as far as money is concerned. When the flock is allowed to run without killing off the old ones and replacing them by pullets, disease is sure to attack them. They are liable to cholera, etc., after they become aged. If the practice of keeping only pullets is once followed, I am sure that no farmer would ever abandon it.

The re-opening of the Tilton-Beecher scandal threatens us with another deluge of that 'gush' which seems to characterize the parties in the case. The letter just published by Mrs. Tilton was written, so Frank Moulton says, because the little woman's keen sense of religious duty and her conviction of right compelled her to do so; she believes in God, in angels, and in heaven, and so on. We used to hear them talk about Elizabeth's white soul, but her soul was not white enough to keep her from lying, was if her present story be true, from grosser offences.

HOUSEHOLD.

How to Keep Warm.—Persons who pile any great thickness of clothes, particularly in the country, are apt to feel the cold pretty severely. Simple protection against the severity of the weather is obtained by tightly encompassing under the coat or waistcoat to the chest.

GRANDFATHER'S CLOCK.

My grandfather's clock was to large for the shelf,
So it stood ninety years on the floor;
It was taller by half than the old man himself,
Though it weighed not a pound-weight more.
It was bought on the morn of the day he was born,
And was always his treasure and pride;
But it stopped short—never to go again—
When the old man died.

Ninety years without slumbering (tick, tick, tick, tick,)
His life's-work he did (tick, tick, tick, tick,)
It stopped short—never to go again—when the old man died.

In watching its pendulum swing to and fro,
Many hours had he spent while a boy;
And in childhood and manhood the clock seem'd to know,
And to share both his grief and his joy.
For it struck twenty-four when he entered at the door
With a blooming and beautiful bride;
But it stopped short—never to go again—
When the old man died.

CHORUS:—Ninety years, etc.

My grandfather said of many an treat here,
Not a servant on faithful he found;
For it wasted no time, and had but one desire—
At the close of each week to be wound.
And it kept in its place—not a frown upon its face,
And its hands never hung by its side;
But it stopped short—never to go again—
When the old man died.

CHORUS:—Ninety years, etc.

It rang an alarm in the dead of night—
An alarm that for years had been dumb;
And we knew that his spirit was planning for flight—
That his hour for departure had come.
Still the clock kept the time, with a soft and muffled chime,
As we silently stood by his side;
But it stopped short—never to go again—
When the old man died.

CHORUS:—Ninety years, etc.

Storing Potatoes.

Potato harvesting will now soon be in order, and as operations will begin rather earlier than usual, we offer some views upon the best mode of storing, which may possibly be of advantage to some.

To store potatoes properly, we have to guard against heating; for although the potato will not absolutely ferment by heat, as so much vegetable matter will, a heap becomes warm enough to excite any germ fungus there may be in the tuber, and this exhalation may be sufficient to cause a decay, which can be communicated to roots in which no symptom of rot exists. Moisture is favorable to heating; and hence it is best to have the potato thoroughly dry before storing, if any considerable quantity is to be put away in bulk. Thus, if they are spread on a barn floor, or other cool place, out of the sun, before putting in the root cellar, they will be safe against rotting. When potatoes are perfectly healthy there is not so much necessity for this care in drying. Hundreds of bushels are often taken at once from the field to the cellar, without any damage whatever resulting; and it is only in view of the possibility of rot that we think it advisable to take the extra precaution in drying. It is well to note that a cool shed is the best to dry them in, as the tubers will otherwise absorb more heat than when they come out of the ground, and this is what we try to avoid.

There is one disadvantage in drying potatoes in this way, which is always more or less connected with dry cellars—namely, the trash from shrinking which results. In an average dry cellar there is often as much as a loss of 20 per cent. in bulk from shrinkage. Thus one hundred bushels stored away in a place like this in winter will give but eighty when taken out for sale in the spring. This is often as much and sometimes more than the advance in spring over fall prices, and as an argument often used to induce growers to sell their crop as soon as taken up, instead of keeping them for the spring rise. But this loss can be wholly avoided and the roots kept in excellent condition by carefully storing in the open ground. A dry place is to be selected, where the water can run easily away, and the potatoes laid up in long narrow ridges, say about four feet wide and as long as the quantity to be protected demands. After the whole has been collected together, a thin layer of straw, only thick enough to keep the earth from falling in among the potatoes, is to be put along the sides and over the tubers, and a thin layer of soil, just enough to keep the straw in place, is thrown over. It is best not to throw more earth than this over it at first, as the natural heat of the potatoes will accumulate, while it is the object to let it pass rapidly away. As soon as there is danger of frost, then the potatoes should be covered thickly with soil, as the frost is certain to penetrate. In this way the potatoes are preserved at a temperature but a little above the freezing point, and thus guarded against heating much and at the same time there is little loss from evaporation—a great point gained when the bushel measure is brought out in the spring.

The great objection to this old-fashioned and excellent plan is that we cannot get at them in the winter season. But we are only recommending it where they are required to be kept over to spring. Where they are needed before that time, a cellar is almost indispensable. Another objection is the extra labor which open-air banking makes. Perhaps the saving of ten or twenty per cent. may be a fair set-off to this; but at any rate, those who have good root cellars will generally run the risk, in preference to the labor of storing in the open ground. But we have referred to the excellence of the plan because some have no good root-cellars; and others, who have, may yet fear rot and be glad to take the best precautions to guard against accident.

Only those, however, which are apparently sound should be chosen for the out-door pensties; for those which are certainly deceased will be better preserved by an occasional sorting over during the winter season.

The New Cabinet.

(Globe.)

Away in adjacent all the other officials engaged (not actually doing hard work) in shaking their sky John A. Macdonald (member for Sitting Bull Guild, North West Territories), has succeeded in forming a Government, having distributed the portfolios as follows:—

Premier (with cabinet cabinet), Sir John A. Macdonald.
Finance, Hon. R. L. Richay.
Interior and Assistant Finance, Hon. D. L. Macpherson.
Minister of Justice and Attorney-General, Hon. Edward Blake.
Minister of Militia and Defence, Hon. Alexander Campbell.
Minister of Marine and Fisheries, Hon. Geo. E. Cartier.
Minister of Inland Revenue, Hon. Thomas Ryan.
Minister of Customs, Hon. Isaac Burpee.
Minister of Public Works, Hon. Dr. Tupper.
Customs, (Abolished.)
Interior, Hon. S. Platt.
Post Office, Hon. Rebt. Hay.
Revenue, (Abolished.)
President of Council, Hon. Thos. White.
Secret Service Disburser, Hon. A. Mackenzie.

The first meeting of the Cabinet was held shortly after its formation. All the members were present.

On motion the Treasurer was authorized to purchase a new minute book.

Hon. D. L. Macpherson enquired how steep he might go for said book.

Sir John Macdonald—Not steeper than 75 cents; perhaps you could get a good enough one for 50. We must have economy and retrenchment after Mackenzie's extravagance.

Hon. Gentlemen—Hear, hear.

Hon. Mr. Tilley said the principal business before the country was the arranging of the tariff.

Hon. Mr. Hay suggested that the American tariff be adopted in its entirety.

Hon. Mr. Pope was of opinion that a purely free trade tariff would suit Prince Edward Island better.

Hon. Thomas White said the 17½ per cent. tariff was just the thing for Quebec, excepting in the matter of sugar. A protective tariff was needed on that article.

Hon. Mr. Platt said Ontario demanded a duty on grain, flour and agricultural produce generally, but would like free coal.

Hon. Mr. Robinson said he was opposed to free coal. He suggested that the United States Tariff be abolished, as that we might make a slaughter market of that country by way of retaliation.

Hon. Dr. Tupper agreed with Hon. Mr. Robinson as regarded coal. Nova Scotia, however, had requested him to draw it mild on flour and other Upper Province productions.

Hon. Mr. Tilley said he intended to put a tax on tea and sugar.

Hon. Sir John A. Macdonald said he had promised the Upper Province people free tea and sugar. He trusted the Finance Minister would bear out all the pledges that had been given.

Hon. Mr. Tilley said he would do so if it took him half a day.

Hon. Mr. Mackenzie intimated that he had in his possession a large amount of Secret Service funds. He said he intended to use a portion of it to pay for regilding the wooden globe on the roof of Mr. Brown's newspaper office, but positively refused to state what he was going to do with the balance.

The Cabinet then adjourned for refreshments.

Feminine Fall Fashions.

Ribbons with graduated stripes of another color are among the latest importations in millinery goods.

Evening bonnets, composed entirely of ostrich feathers on a transparent frame, are an expensive novelty.

Corduroy velvet will be largely used for the underskirts of winter costumes.

The pannier has resolved itself into very small dimensions, and consists in the slight looping or draping of the back breadths of the overdress.

The tightfitting coat sleeve remains in favor, and is now made with a slight gathering at the elbow.

A new freak of fashion shows the dolman with a double skirt.

Silver lynx promises to become the leading fur for the coming winter.

The short walking dress is slowly but surely gaining favor.

Parisian brocades and old English and mediæval French brocade stuffs, are revived for parts of costumes.

The long twelve or six-buttoned kid glove with the opening at the side seam, grows in favor.

Hosiery for the fall is in hair line stripes around the limb, and is embroidered up each side.

The newest black velvet bags are embroidered in gold and other colors in floral patterns. Wide velvet belts are wrought in the same colors to be worn with them.

Black felt bonnets in close princess shape with a band of cashmere feathers, or else with an Alsacian bow of velvet or satin ribbon, will be much worn during the fall and winter.

Lace pendants are attached to the fronts of wide lace collars.

A new red is a brilliant cherry color, called "Niniche" after a new play now on the Paris stage, in which this color prevails. It is seen in flowers and other bonnet trimmings.

An Alsacian bow made of India cashmere feathers, is a novelty for trimming felt bonnets.

A new kind of felt bonnet has long smooth hairs adhering to it, and is called camel's hair felt. White felt, white satin, plain white silk and moire silk are used for dress bonnets.

A Sad, Sad City.

One of the saddest things about the yellow fever scourge in Memphis is that just as the sickness is reaching its turning point, and the diminishing temperature begins to give notice of coming frost, many of the heroic men and women who remained in the city relieving the distress of the sick and the dying, are themselves beginning to fall before the destroyer. Among those are not a few citizens who, if they had consulted their own convenience and safety, would have fled at the first outbreak of the epidemic, but chose rather to abide at the post at duty and danger. Being acclimated, they have escaped attack until within the past week or 10 days. An idea of the desolation which prevails in this afflicted city may be formed from the fact that out of a population of sixty thousand, only about twenty-five hundred whites and six thousand blacks—less than one-tenth of the whole—remain within the city limits; and yet out of this small number of people a hundred have been dying daily, which gives the spelling down-rate of over one per cent. a day of the resident population.

PETERBOROUGH, OCTOBER 10, 1878

THE RESIGNATION OF THE MINISTRY.

A great deal of discussion has lately gone on in the press concerning the time of resignation of the Mackenzie Government. The impatience displayed by Tory journals is suggestive of a greed for place, especially when they complain that the Reformers are holding office merely for the matter of ministerial salaries. The ungenerous remark may be taken as an index of the selfish thought that prompts it. Others of the papers supporting Sir John Macdonald more reasonably ask for the immediate resignation of the Mackenzie Administration, in order that the Protectionist doctrines of the Conservative leaders may be put into practice as soon as possible. Most of the Reform journals agree in this desire, believing that the sooner the "National Policy" is put to the test the sooner its weakness and utter incongruity will be discovered.

There are, however, arguments against as well as for the immediate resignation of the Ministry. Our best constitutional authorities is in favor of a defeated Ministry holding office till the assembling of Parliament, and till that body passes an official verdict. In this case the present occupants of the Departments hold, that the policy to which the incomers are pledged is detrimental to the interests of the country. Especially are fiscal changes dangerous at a time of commercial depression like the present, and any considerable changes in the tariff, by upsetting the basis on which business is now beginning to revive, would certainly retard the improvement so much desired, because required. For this reason the present Ministers could conscientiously hold office in the interests of the country. Another argument for the assembling of Parliament before the resignation of the Ministry is, that a debate should be held on the motion of want of confidence, in which discussion the views of the party coming into power might be fully expressed with the weight and responsibility of utterances on the floor of the House. In this manner the country would have a more perfect knowledge of the purposes and plans of the new Ministers coming before it, a reasonable expectation which would be denied the electors did the present Ministry resign without meeting Parliament and forcing a discussion of policy before the new Ministers sought re-election. So far as we have observed, none of those who favor immediate resignation desire an extra session; but only by such session could Parliament be met and the question on which parties divide be discussed in the House before February. It is hard to see any use for an extra session for any purpose than to satisfy a desire that the protectionist Ministry should enter upon its duties as soon as possible. But even the most eager Protectionists will scarce hold that the intervening three months can make any great difference to trade. Certainly not so much as an uncertainty as to when the changes of tariff to which the incoming Ministry are pledged will take place. In view of such uncertainty if a defeated Ministry intends to go out before the regularly proclaimed time for the meeting of Parliament, it would be better for trade in all its branches to announce such intention, and the date for carrying it out. Still another valid reason advanced for delay and a debate in Parliament is, that our new Governor-General may learn from such debate the most prominent features of Dominion politics and understand the principles on which parties differ. Of course there are other ways in which he may discover all he desires of such matters, but all must be more or less indirect as compared with a discussion by the people's representatives in Parliament assembled. It does seem that a change of Ministry, an entire change of policy along with a change of Viceroy is scarcely fair to either the Queen's representative, to his Ministers or to Parliament.

On the other hand there are arguments in favor of immediate dissolution worthy of recognition. The circumstances and extent of the defeat suffered by the Reform party at the polls are advanced as a proof that the people want the present Ministry out as soon as possible—in short, are tired of them. It is held that Ministers are perfectly aware that they have only a hopeless minority of the newly elected members at their back, and that they should hand the Executive functions over to the majority as speedily as possible. Some of them it is pointed out were defeated at the polls, and not being members of Parliament, cannot be considered Ministers. Of course it may be answered that neither are their proposed successors members of Parliament in the strict sense of the word; but those who are eager for resignation assert then, nothing, not even constitutional points should stand in the way of the voice of the electorate. This is new doctrine for Tories to hold, but most of our Canadian Tories advance it now. The practical reasons given take into account the greater convenience of an appeal by the new Ministers to their constituents during the recess, thus avoiding the necessity of an adjournment of Parliament for the re-election of members chosen to form a Cabinet. This question of economy seems to us the most plausible argument advanced by the advocates of early resignation; but it does not when examined carry much weight. In any case new Ministers have to appear for re-election, and it does not matter so far as the cost to the country is concerned when they do so. An adjournment of Parliament to admit of such re-elections need not occupy any great space of time, and the members assembled at Ottawa could easily may there until the re-assembling of the House, except of course those who desired to appear before constituents to whom they were appealing, or those who wanted to personally help the re-election of their friends.

There are other questions arising out of a resignation and a re-election of new Ministers during a recess, into the discussion of which our space will not at present allow us to enter, as these are matters of detail in probable or possible procedure of the new Ministry, and the effect of commission or omission on the state of trade they will readily suggest themselves to our readers. Indeed there are complications either way so far as party policy is concerned, though if that were the only ground of action we believe immediate resignation would best suit the Reform party in Canada at the present juncture.

AN INIQUITOUS IMPOST.

The Tory Government of British Columbia, with Sir John Macdonald's friend, Walkem, at its head, is earning a by no means enviable name for itself. In addition to the resolutions threatening separation if the railway be not built on Vancouver Island by the Dominion Government, a bill was passed at the last session of the British Columbia Legislature placing a tax on the Chinese. Having for its object the driving out of the Chinese, this Act was of a most tyrannical character. It provided that each person from China over the age of twelve years, should hold a quarterly permit, for which $10 was to be paid, without such a paper none of them would be allowed to work, or reside in the Province. The bill called for its production at every lodging house, every workshop or other place of labor, and even at every toll bridge at which the poor Chinaman appeared. Not to produce it was to be held as evidence that the permit was not held; and all Chinese without licenses, and all who employed unlicensed Chinese were to be subjected to a fine of $100, or two months imprisonment at hard labor, in default of payment. A Chinese unwilling, or even unable, to pay the tax was to work it out on Government works, the rate being fixed at fifty cents per day, and even from this 5 per cent. could be taken for overseer's wages, 5 per cent. for the use of tools, and the value of the laborers food. Discretion was also given to the overseer to demand another day's work for any he chose to regard as unsatisfactory. Should the slave resist, any Justice of the Peace, could send him to jail at hard labor for six months. Thus, under the provisions of this Act of Parliament, the legalised slave-driver could keep all the Chinese who could not pay the first quarter's fee of $10, at hard labor on the public works for six months, and by drawing forth a little resistance to his persecutions he could further legally condemn them to hard labor inside prison walls for the other six months of the year. This could go on in perpetuity by this iniquitious Act of Parliament in a British colony in the nineteenth century. But thanks to the better judgment and greater conception of justice of others than the Tory Government of British Columbia, the disgraceful Act has been declared unconstitutional by the Supreme Court of the Province; and the spectacle is spared us, of a British community going back to slavery. Britain took great trouble to open up commercial communication with China, and to secure admission of British people into that country. What then is to be said of a British colonial Legislation, that seeks by a most arbitrary law, that would disgrace even heathens, to shut out Chinamen from our shores without any attempt at consultation or treaty with the Chinese Government? It is a source of satisfaction to know that the men who passed that Chinese Tax Bill, want to withdraw from the Canadian Confederation. By all means let them.

EDITORIAL NOTES.

There will be about 90 new members in the new Parliament; some 45 of these are from Ontario.

The Monetary Times says:—"Hardly any greater danger can threaten the country than an indiscreet alteration of the tariff."

The Mail and other Tory journals touch on all imaginable subjects so as to avoid embarrassing references to their "National Policy"

The Marquis of Lorne and Princess Louise are to come out in the "Sarmatian" on the 14th November, to Halifax, into which port they will be escorted by the North American squadron.

Is Sir John elected? By the Act 33 Vic., cap. 3, sec. 5, no person is qualified to be elected as a member for any electoral district of Manitoba unless he is a duly qualified voter within said Province. Sir John, to be a voter there, requires to reside one year at least.

Now that the Princess Louise is coming to Canada three additional regiments have been ordered to this country. One will probably be stationed at Ottawa, another at Quebec, and the third will probably be stationed at Toronto or Montreal.

Mr. Justice Hagarty, in his charge to the Grand Jury at the Waterloo Assizes, in referring to the recent general elections, said it was a matter for congratulation that, amidst so much political excitement and keen party strife, there had been few, in fact no breaches of the peace in that or any other county in which he had visited on his Assize circuit, and that the great electoral contest throughout the Dominion had been carried on in a peaceable and orderly manner.

The Orillia Times recommends the hanging in public by of the guard men delivering the general election, for the House of Commons only desires them to do their duty. Of one of them it says:—

Mr. Bertram has already met and defeated Mr. Scott, and he should be able to do it again and the students of current political history need not be told what a valuable acquisition he would be to the Legislature. Let Ontario Liberals determine on a strong fight with their best men; we cannot afford to throw away a single chance.

One of the Tory organs—thirsting for the blood of more Grits—says: "We appeal to our friends throughout the Provinces to gird on their armour for this impending contest (for the Local). The enemy will die hard, but he is so badly wounded as to be at our disposal." Nothing cowardly about this! Gird on the armour to attack a badly wounded enemy and still afraid that he will die hard! You are right, liberal principles have too much vitality to succumb to one or a score of reverses.

THE CASTLETON TRAGEDY.

On this subject the Cobourg Sentinel speaks out plainly, and we take the earliest opportunity of cordially endorsing its sentiments by re-producing its article, as follows:—

"We believe that never since this part of the country was settled was there an occurrence which for the depravity of the guilty parties, and the turpitude of the offence, has caused so much excitement and indignation throughout the country as this great crime.

"It was hoped and by some expected, that retribution swift and speedy would overtake the offenders. Indeed the guilty parties themselves seemed to expect it, for one of them, burdened by a guilty conscience and dread of justice and the avenger of blood, fled from the country.

"An inquest was held over the unfortunate remains of the poor girl. The half-demented old villain who did the work which he was employed to do, was arrested, tried and sentenced to a life confinement within the walls of a penitentiary. But what has become of the principal culprits, the dark plotters again the blood of the innocent unborn, and who did not hesitate to expose to the risk of immediate death the poor girl whom they had dishonored and destroyed. Have they had a trial by their country, a full and fair trial for criminal charges which were patent to the whole country and which could hardly be denied? An indignant public has thirsted for justice. The machinery of the law has been invoked. The well paid officers of the Crown have been here to attend the prosecution of the case. Three different courts of assize have been held in our country town since the perpetration of the sad offence, and yet, we record it with sorrow and indignation, no trial has yet taken place, and the accused whom the public have denounced and believe to be guilty, tread the earth securely. They freely pass from country to village and town and city, no one offering to make them afraid; they breathe the air of freedom, they know not the walls of a prison, or even the surveillance of a constable, and their manner and gait show not only a sense of security but seem to contemn the very idea of danger. What is this? Why have not these people had a trial? We regret to have to say that it is because the forms of law have been used to shield and protect them—because their trials have been postponed, doubtless with the fond hope that indignation will have worn itself away, and that the lapse of time will deaden the sense of public injury, and that in the end a very trifling punishment, if any, will be accorded to them.

Accident on the Grand Trunk.

A Montreal Express Crashes into a Freight Train—One Life Lost—The Inquest.

MORRISBURG, Oct. 4.—A serious accident occurred on the Grand Trunk Railway here at two o'clock on Friday by which one life was lost and a large amount of railway property destroyed. The night express train from Montreal, with thirteen passenger cars drawn by two locomotives and filled with excursionists returning from the boat race, arrived here on time. A freight train, leaving west, was standing on the main line at the station and the semaphore was up, signaling approaching trains not to enter the yard, when No. 4 express came thundering up, and just before reaching the semaphore the coupling between the rear locomotive and the forward car broke, detaching the engines from the rest of the train. The forward engineer realized the difficulty at once. He was between two fires. Slacking speed too suddenly would have caused a collision between the passenger train and engines, and keeping out of the way of the detached cars would have involved a collision with the freight train. The van in rear of the freight train was struck with great force and it mounted the top of the forward locomotive, the two engines toppling over and crushing into the freight cars. The engineers and firemen had a miraculous escape, but James Pritchard, a Grand Trunk employee, who was on the foremost engine, was crushed to death instantly, his head being crushed in a frightful manner. Two locomotives and three freight cars are almost a hopeless wreck. It is marvelous that the loss of life was not greater. The shock in the rear part of the express train was scarcely perceptible, and the passengers in the Pullman cars first learned of the accident when they awoke about six o'clock. The up express was detained about five hours, and the down express about two hours.

MYSTERIOUS DEATH.

A Man found Dead on the Rice Lake Road. Was it Murder—or an Accident.

On Wednesday night, the 3rd of October the body of Robert A. Stewart, a farmer, belonging to the Township of South Monaghan, was found on the Rice Lake Road, badly bruised about the head and at the point of death. The general impression at first was that his death was the cause of an accident; but, when it was found that a sum of $150—which he was known to have possessed in cash, having sold his grain in Port Hope during the day—was not to be found, grave fears of foul play were entertained, and up to the present time nothing has transpired to solve the mystery. An inquest was held by Richard King, Esq., M.D., Coroner, on Friday last at Centreville, but nothing of any importance was gained from the evidence taken as to how the deceased came to his death. Several witnesses were examined, including two of his daughters, who had passed him on the road in a buggy a few minutes before, and were only about four or five hundred yards ahead of him at the time of the accident, and on hearing the team running away, turned back and found their father lying on the road, as above stated. The inquest was adjourned until Tuesday evening last, to enable, if possible, to get further evidence; but up to going to press we have not heard any further particulars. Some think it was an accident, others that there was foul play.

LATER.—The jury have brought in a verdict of "accidental death."

SWAMPED.

The Steamer "Whistle-Wing" Sunk in Rice Lake.

Crew and Passengers Saved.

As we go to press we learn by telegram that the steamer Whistle-Wing, during the gale yesterday afternoon, was swamped in Rice Lake, near Tait Island. The crew and passengers were all saved.

AWFUL RAILWAY DISASTER.

Total Destruction of a Boat Race—Ten Persons Killed and a Hundred Injured Report, the Carnage, among the Victims.

BOSTON, Oct. 6.—The single scull race on Silver Lake, to-day, between Patrick Hanlan, Belfast, and M. F. Davis, Portland, Me., four miles, $2,000. was won by Davis; time 23 m. 6½ sec.

LATER.—An accident on the Old Colony Railroad occurred between Atlantic and Wollaston Heights, at seven o'clock this evening, about seven miles from Boston. No intelligible account has been received, but is known that at least ten persons were killed and about a hundred injured. The train was returning from Silver Lake with about 1,500 persons who had been out to witness the Hanlan and Davis boat-race. It is not yet positively known from what cause the accident occurred. At least five cars were wrecked, including the English coach, in which were many carmen and newspaper men. Patrick Keegan, the loser of the race today, was sitting with Mrs. Faulkner, wife of his old boating partner, and both were killed.

LATEST.—The engineer of the leading locomotive on the wrecked train states that the accident was caused by collission with a freight car which was being switched. The train could not be stopped in time.

FASHIONABLE WEDDING.

The marriage of Chas. Percy, Esq., General Manager of the Midland Railway to Miss Meredith, youngest daughter of H. H. Meredith, Esq., took place at St. John's Church last Wednesday. The ceremony was performed by the Rev. Dr. O'Meara, assisted by the Rev. Charles Bethune, with a choral service. Shortly before eleven, the invited guests began to arrive, for whom were reserved half the seats in the church. The other part was so quickly filled that long before the ceremony commenced the church was so crowded that our reporter was unable to take notes of those present, the bridesmaids', dresses, &c., or to be able by sight to gain a view of the proceedings. A little before eleven, the bride was escorted up the aisle by her father, followed by seven bridesmaids; the bridesgroom having previously arrived with his corresponding friends. The service was opened by the organist, Mr. H. G. Gilmore, playing a voluntary Leybach & Co., he also played, in connection with the choir, the following music:—Mendelssohn 454 (St. Alphese), "Gloria in Excelsis," Full Anthem, V. Novello, "Deus Misereatur," Stephenson in F, Hymn 456 (Mendelssohn), concluded with the "Wedding March" (Mendelssohn). The dresses of the bride and bridesmaids were very fine, and no doubt expensive, but the actual ceremony was entirely lost to the view of all but the priviledged few in the immediate front seats of the church. A great many guests were present from a distance, and the ceremony attracted a great deal of attention. The O. Y. B. Band furnished the music during the day at Wildwood. After the déjeuner, the happy pair retired by Grand Trunk Railway to pass the honey moon at Niagara and New York.—Port Hope Times.

SUNDAY SCHOOL CONVENTION.

The Opening Session—Fair Attendance—J. F. Jeffers M. A. Elected President.

The fifteenth Provincial Sabbath School Convention for the Province of Ontario and Quebec assembled in the George street Methodist Church here on Tuesday afternoon at half-past two o'clock, the President, Dr. Edward McGuire, of Guelph, in the chair. There was a fair attendance of delegates and visitors.

The proceedings were opened with appropriate religious exercises, conducted by the President and the Rev. John Shaw.

The President named the following Nominating Committee:—Mr. H. J. Clark, Toronto; Rev. G. Bell, L.L.D., Walkerton; Mr. Wm Watson, Weston; Mr. G. Fotheringham, Aurora; and Mr. J. H. Roper, Peterborough.

The President delivered a brief retiring address, in the course of which he emphasized very strongly the necessity of the Church's sympathy and support in the work of the Sabbath Schools, in order to their greater success. He contended that the work should be regarded by every Christian Church as one of its regular ordinances, and so to be dealt with financially and otherwise. He was strongly convinced that the lack of that sympathy and support was one great reason why Sabbath School work did not make more material progress than it did. There were many earnest workers who would have been present at this Convention but for the apathy of their congregations in failing to meet the financial requirements of the Sunday Schools.

After a further service of prayer and song,

Mr. J. H. Gunn, Chairman of the Nominating Committee, presented the following report of the names recommended for election to office for the ensuing year:—President, Mr. J. F. Jeffers, M. A; Vice-Presidents those of last year, with the addition of the retiring president, Dr. McGuire Treasurer, Hon. John McMurrich; General Secretary, Rev. Wm. Mulliard. Minute Secretaries, Rev. W. M. Roger, M. A., Rev. Alt. Andrews, and Mr. W. J. Mason; Business Committee, the Nominating Committee, with the additions of D. McLean, Rev. J. MacEwan, Wm. Edgar, D. W. Dumble, W. W. Johnston, and G. M. Roger.

The report was adopted.

Short verbal reports on Sabbath-school were then given as follows:—Mr. Maxwell Hall, for the county of Peterboro', Rev. Alfred Andrews, of Strathroy, for the county of Middlesex; Mr. R. R. Bird, of Peterborough, for the county of Hastings; Mr. R. P. Campbell, for the county of Peel; the General Secretary, Rev. Mr. Milliard, for the counties of Prince Edward and Welland; Rev. E. H. Dewart, for the city of Toronto; Mr. G. Fotheringham, for the riding of North York, and Mr. Watson, for East and West York. Generally speaking encouraging reports of the work and its prospects were given.

Several of the speakers strongly recommend the holding of Teachers' Institutes and normal classes as a means of providing a supply of efficient teachers.

The report of the Business Committee, containing the programme for this evening's session having been presented and adopted, Rev. E. H. Dewart pronounced the benediction, and the Convention adjourned until 7.30.

EVENING SESSION.

The Convention resumed at half-past seven, the President in the chair. The church was crowded with delegates and visitors. The opening religious services were conducted by Rev. Mr. Mulhern, Baptist Minister of Peterborough.

The PRESIDENT then introduced to the Convention his successor in office, Mr. J. Frith Jeffers, M.A.

The PRESIDENT-ELECT delivered a brief address, in which he thanked the Convention for the honour they had conferred upon him. He felt keenly the responsibility which attached to the office, but he hoped to have their sympathy and assistance in the discharge of his duties.

Rev. A. BELL, of Peterborough, then delivered an eloquent and cordial address of welcome to the delegates on behalf of the citizens of Peterborough. He dwelt upon the benefits which were likely to result to the people of the town, not only from attending the sessions of the Conventions, but by the opportunities for social and Christian intercourse which it afforded. He strongly urged the importance of Sabbath School education, because among other reasons in was the best means of ensuring in our future rulers that righteousness which exalteth a nation.

After the singing of the hymn "Blest be the tie that binds,"

Rev. E. H. DEWART responded to the address of welcome in an equally eloquent speech. One reason why so many christian workers had assembled in this Convention was to give an expression of their practical sympathy in a great Christian work for he believed there was no department of work, none of the many and varied signs of the times, more significant than the work in which they were engaged. While the man of science took special note of the progress of science, and the politician busied himself with improvements in legislation, he believed that in Heaven where they saw things differently from here, no sign of the times, no feature of the age in which we lived, evoked deeper interest or profounder sympathy than the tender, kindly, Christian effort that the Church was now putting forth on behalf of the young. He went on to pourtray in earnest language the dangers to which the children even of Christian parents are specially liable in this age of worldliness, scepticism, and formalism, and to urge the importance of Sabbath School training as the best safeguard against the temptations of the times. Teachers should endeavour to realize the grandeur of their work, and if they could do so ever so faintly it would strengthen and encourage them when they felt weak, dispirited, and faint-hearted. They should do their work faithfully and conscientiously, lest it should be said to them on the day of reckoning "Inasmuch as ye did it not to one of the least of these, ye did it not to me." It was the function of the Sabbath School not only to bring the children to a knowledge of the truth, but to train and guide them to implant right principles in their minds. These Conventions were most important adjuncts in the work, because everyone present received a practical suggestion to be applied when he went home, because they had led to an interchange of thought on everything connected with Sunday Schools, and because they stirred up their hearts by the thoughts presented and the views taken on this great Christian duty. He concluded by expressing the hope that all these benefits would be realized to the fullest measure at the present Convention.

Rev. W. FRIZEL, Newmarket, also responded briefly, expressing the hearty thanks of the delegates to the people of Peterborough for their kindly welcome and their genuine and hearty hospitality. He was convinced that the effects of this gathering would be a general increase of Christian sympathy, a warm enthusiasm in the work of the Sabbath School, and greater efficiency in training up the children of the Church to lives of usefulness.

Rev. WM. MILLARD, General Secretary, then read a report of the mission work of the Association as carried on since May last by the agent of the Association, Mr. C. Crosweller chiefly in Muskoka. The report regretted the financial embarrassments which beset them in the prosecution of this important work, especially as the agency had been attended with the utmost success, and their was an earnest demand for the continuance of Mr. Crosweller's services. In carrying out the work of the mission that gentleman had travelled 1,775 miles, visited 191 families, delivered 60 sermons or addresses, organised 35 schools, having 133 teachers and 805 scholars visited 20 other Sunday Schools, and distributed a large number of Bibles and other religious books. The report went on to give an interesting account of the difficulties under which the work had been prosecuted, and of the desire of the people in the Northern districts for its wider extension. Mr. Crosweller reports the establishment of a Sunday School in a neighbourhood at the head of Trading Lake, where for sixteen years there has been only one religious service. The man who first settled there has now a family of ten children, none of whom have ever been to a Sunday School, or, with the above exception, to any religious service. The report concludes with an appeal to the wealthier Sunday Schools to give their surplus reading matter to those backwoods Sunday Schools, where literature of the kind is now wanting and earnestly solicited.

Mr. FOTHERINGHAM, Aurora, spoke briefly of the financial difficulties of the Association, and requested that a liberal response be made to the appeal for funds to meet current expenses.

Rev. Mr. DEWART spoke in the same sense.

A collection was then taken up.

Rev. Dr. BELL, of Walkertown, gave an interesting account of the International Sunday School Convention at Alanta Georgia.

The Convention adjourned with the usual exercises.

A report of Wednesday and Thursday will be given in our next

PETERBOROUGH, OCT. 10, 1878.

LOCAL NEWS.

East Riding Show.—The East Riding Fall Show will be held to-day and to-morrow in the Village of Keene.

Provincial Exhibition.—Mr. A. Watts, of Dummer took first prize for white, yellow and red onions at the Provincial Exhibition.

Lost Cow.—A communication in connection with the Harvey Boons to the Lindsay and Bobcaygeon Railway, is unavoidably held over.

Good Bye.—The Marquis of Lorne has been bidding his constituents farewell. His words have the true ring of honor, sense and earnestness.

Temperance.—Mr. Cheney, of Vermont, addressed a meeting in the Opera House on Sunday afternoon in the cause of temperance. There was a good attendance.

Remember the entertainment under the auspices of the members of Carswell Lodge next Thursday evening, 17th instant, in their hall, corner of George and Simcoe Streets.

Repeal of the Dunkin Bill.—The Town Clerk was authorized by the Council on Monday evening to take steps for the submission of a by-law for the repeal of the Dunkin By-law in this town.

Hall, Innes & Co.—This firm invite the inspection of their Millinery and Mantles by an advertisement in another column, when those requiring anything in this line will no doubt find that the reputation which they have always enjoyed in this department will be fully sustained.

New Paper.—The Tribune is the name of a new paper, published in the interests of Reform, by the Orem Stand Tribune Printing and Publishing Company. The "get up" is good, and we wish the Tribune the success they deserve, and which appearances indicate they will achieve.

Reform Association.—A meeting of the Young Men's Reform Association will be held on Thursday evening next at 7.30 o'clock p.m., in their rooms, over Stone & Bailey's Fruit Store. A full attendance is particularly requested as business of importance will be brought before the Association.

The Assessment.—The Assessors have just completed the assessment of the town for 1879, and from their books we glean the following:—Value of Real Property, $2,270,625; Personal Property other than Income, $46,620; Taxable Income, $164,599; aggregate value of all property, $2,526,620; population, 6,026.

Congratulatory Address.—We understand the Caledonians of Lakelow are seriously thinking of getting up a joint address to the Marquis of Lorne, on behalf of the various Caledonian and St. Andrew's Societies throughout the Dominion. We have no doubt the Peterborough Society will cordially co-operate.

Creditable.—The Lindsay Post of last week speaking of the Central Exhibition held at Cobourg says:—

Mr. Peter Hamilton, Peterborough, made a most creditable exhibit of seed sowers, ploughs and reapers. A chopping mill—a new Yankee invention for chopping cattle food—manufactured by Mr. Hamilton, was the subject of much inspection.

Opening.—The ladies of Peterborough will not forget to call and examine Miss E. Delaney's unusually large and fashionable display of Fall and Winter Millinery. It is always one of the events of the season, and this year the attractions which this establishment offer surpass any of its previous efforts. Every lady in town should inspect the stock.

A Generous City.—Montreal is a generous city. It voted $10,000 for the relief of the burned out St. John, N.B., people, and surely that was a generous action. It omitted, however, the little formality of paying the amount to the suffering sister city. But this fact was not discovered until last week when the city was voting a generous sum to the Yellow Fever districts.

Church Announcements.—Rev. Dr. Grant, of Queen's College, Kingston, will preach in St. Andrew's Church on Sunday morning at 11 o'clock, in St. Paul's Church in the evening at 7 o'clock. On Tuesday evening there will be a public Missionary Meeting in St. Paul's Church at half past seven, addressed by Rev. Dr. Grant and Rev. D. J. Macdonnell, of Toronto. Strangers are cordially invited.

The Mayoralty.—The general excitement of the past few weeks has kept Mayoralty talk quieter than usual for this season of the year. Still several names have been mentioned in an off-hand sort of way, and there are people who fancy they can already name next year's Mayor. Prospective aldermanic candidates are beginning to give themselves away by the unanimousness of their hand-shaking.

Fine Tailoring.—Messrs. Madison & Green are doing a very large and constantly increasing business and probably enjoy the highest reputation of any house doing a fine trade in their line in any section of Ontario. Their surprising success is owing to the fact that they always keep desirable goods, ask fair prices, employ the best workmen, never slight anything, and thoroughly understanding their business. 40-3in.

The Caisse House.—During the past week Mr. T. G. Choate has assumed control of the Caisse House, and has secured the services of Capt. Turver, a former proprietor, as general manager. The house has been refitted throughout, and with the practical knowledge of Capt. Turver as an hotel manager and Mr. Choate's popularity and wide spread business connections and acquaintances, we can safely say that the Caisse House has fallen into good hands.

Benefit Concert.—Peterborough ever true to its name in regard to benefit concerts, rather outdone herself on Monday evening, on the occasion of a concert for the benefit of Prof. Stanley, who has been in this town for the last month. However he had a Musical Soiree advertised for the Good Templar's Hall, and about 15 or 20 put in an appearance. Mr. Stanley has a good voice and is a very strong tenor singer. Miss Clarke presided at the organ in her usual good style.

Amalgamation.—The Woodstock Sentinel and the Woodstock Review amalgamated last week. Both papers were a credit to the publishers, and now that they have been consolidated, the Sentinel-Review will be one of the strongest papers of the West, and will possess a great advantage as an advertising medium, both papers were especially devoted to the local interests of the county and contained the latest home and telegraphic news, with able and carefully prepared local articles.

Canada under the Administration of Lord Dufferin.—Mr. Israel C. Black is agent in this locality for this work which every person in the Dominion will be glad to purchase and own. As its name implies, it will be a thoroughly able review of the noble Earl's career as Governor-General of the Dominion. The publishers intend to spare no expense in making the volume a credit to Canada. The extraordinary popularity of our late Governor-General, the great value of the book and its wonderful and historic interest, will ensure a ready sale. The book will be bound in various styles. The cloth volume will have an embossed cost of arms of the Earl.

Lighting Cars.—Car lighting is a problem which occupies the minds of inventors as well as the railway authorities. The "dim, religious light" of candles is just about enough to show how gloomy a car can be at night. Oil lamps in cars have been rather at a discount since the terrible accident which they caused on a Canadian railroad some years ago. The Railway Age suggests that a small machine be attached to a locomotive and run by steam from the boiler which will generate electricity enough to light every passenger car to the brilliancy of day. The plan should please the trainmen, as their work would only be the easy and simple connecting of a wire or two when the car was coupled on.

Found Drowned.—On Sunday morning, John Dawson, a laborer who had been in the employ of the town during the summer was missing. Search was made for him without avail until Monday morning, when he was found in the river a little south of Dalhousie street. When the deceased was last seen on Saturday he was on the corner of Aylmer and Dalhousie streets about 10 o'clock p.m., with a box of matches in his possession. The matches were found at the edge of the water which indicated suspicions that he had been drowned. Grappling irons were then procured and after grappling for some time the body was found. There being no marks of violence, the Coroner did not consider it necessary to hold an inquest, and the remains were taken to his former home and interred on Tuesday. He leaves a wife but no children.

I. O. G. T.—The Supreme Lodge of I. O. G. T. which has just closed its session in Baltimore, agreed to the often urged request of the Canadian representatives, and dropped the words "United States" from its title. For the first year since 1869 there has been a decrease in membership noted—though not very great. Daughters and sisters of Oddfellows over 15 years are hereafter to be admitted to the Rebekah Degree. A charter was granted for a Grand Lodge for the Province of Quebec. The following are the officers for the next two years:—John B. Harrison, California, Grand Sire; Luther J. Glenn, Georgia, Deputy Grand Sire; James L. Ridgley, Maryland, Grand Secretary; John Vansant, Maryland, Grand Treasurer; Theo. A. Ross, Maryland, Assistant Secretary; Rev. J. W. Venable, Kentucky, Grand Chaplain; N. Taylor, Massachusetts, Grand Marshal; J. H. Goodell, North Carolina, Grand Guardian.

A Liberal Young Man.—How noble it is to see a man bravely offer himself up as a sacrifice in the cause of humanity. What a pathetic sight is presented by a person without any thought of sordid gain planting himself in the thickest of the fight and battling manfully against an overwhelming force. The foregoing sentences are intended to introduce to a sympathetic public Mr. W. J. Farrow, a telegraph operator in Longwood, Ont. This gentleman offered his services to Memphis. He was willing to wrestle with the electric instrument for $150 a month in advance and a guarantee of the situation at that rate for five years. That is, he would run the risk of catching the fever for $9,000. He wrote to Memphis making this magnanimous offer, but strange to say the people were so blind to the liberality of the proposal that they neglected to avail themselves of the valuable services of Mr. Farrow. There is a great deal of ingratitude in this world.

Personals.—Dr. Walters, of Rochester, and a couple of friends were in town for a few days this week, on their way home from the back lakes, where they have been fishing and hunting for a short time.....The Rev. Stephen Lett, D.D., L.L.D., Rural Dean of North Simcoe, died at Collingwood on Friday last, aged 85 years.....Mr. Shannon, of the Lakefield News, was in town on Monday. Under the new management the News will no doubt be an advocate of public opinion. The life of an editor is certainly one of great and various annoyance, but it has some very amusing aspects.....Mr. T. B. Tate, has been appointed agent of the Midland Railway at Orillia. We congratulate our young friend on his advancement. He will be found a careful and obliging official.....Coal Burgess sails for England this week. He will show the old country people what can be done with a Southerner when he is caught young.....Mr. George Eyvell, of the Globe, is in town, reporting the Sabbath School Association of Canada, which has been in session in the George Street Methodist Church this week.

A Deer Hunt.—On Monday morning last two of our local sportsmen, and prominent members of the Fish and Game Society, were informed by a party residing in the lower end of the town that two deer were seen in the vicinity of the Locks, and thither they proceeded with visions of a genuine deer hunt almost within the bounds of the Corporation. When within a short distance of the Locks two fine deer were seen grazing, and with stealthy steps—worthy of woodmen hunters—the trio proceeded until the poor unsuspecting victims were quietly driven into a corner of the fence and the contents of fourteen cartridges poured into them. After thus riddling them, the "shootists" proceeded to view their tropy, when to their surprise they found they had slain two of Mr. John Ludgate's pet deers. Considerable wonder is expressed why experienced sportsmen could not have detected sooner the difference between tame and wild deer, and the charitable of the community think perhaps the "deer fever" was upon them. However, that may be, and the lesson it may teach them in the future to be more careful, Mr. Hyman, it is said, has removed the stuffed deer which he has for some time kept at his shop door as a sign, for fear that the sight of it might bring back the mania to those over zealous lovers of sport.

The Toronto Medical & Electro-Therapeutic Institute.

Lately while in Toronto we visited the above institution to enquire after the health of Mr. Marvin Knowlton, who is at present a resident patient, under medical treatment, and found him in a fair way of recovery. The Institute is a very commodious, extensive and beautiful building on the corner of Jarvis and Gerrard Streets, one of the finest localities in the City, and is furnished with all the newest ideas in design and arrangement. The grounds attached are suitable for all kinds of exercise for patients desiring in the premises. The rooms are modern in style and with best ventilation. The proprietors are two ladies, Mrs. Jenny E. Trent and Miss E. A. Tuft. Mrs. Trent is a native of Scotland, but graduated in medicine at Philadelphia, and a Streatsite to practice medicine in Ontario. We believe she is the only woman in Ontario authorized to attach to her name the initials M. D., M. C. P., & S. Miss Tuft is also a graduate of an old established woman's medical college, and has had several years experience in hygeaic and Electric-Therapeutic Institutions in New York and Philadelphia.

Dr. S. Verney, Medical Electrician, who has had long and extensive experience in various cities in the United States and Canada, has charge of the gentlemen's department. He is a gentleman of agreeable manners, extensive practice and long experience in this mode of treating diseases. Miss E. A. Tuft, M.D., has charge of the ladies department, and Mrs. Trent is consulting physician. At present there are about 125 patients under treatment for various diseases. Twenty-five of these are boarders. Everything appears to be arranged for the comfort, and with a view to the speedy restoration to health of those in attendance. The proprietors are persuaded that with their treatment even the most firmly seated diseases can be removed and cured. The charges for board and treatment are considered moderate. All in the Institute appear to enjoy the arrangements as if it were a home, and the aim of the medical treatment is as much as possible to make the Institute a place of mental and social enjoyment.

FINANCE COMMITTEE.

Councillor CAHILL, Chairman of the Finance Committee, submitted the following report:—

To the Mayor and Town Council of the Town of Peterborough:—

GENTLEMEN,—The Finance Committee beg leave to recommend the payment of the following accounts:—

J. R. Stration, printing	$ 3 00
Toker & Co	5 47
Gas Company	27 50
Maxwell Hall	21 00

Your Committee recommend that Messrs. Rowe and McGrath, assessors, be paid the balance of salary due them for 1877, provided that they agree to refund the same in case the Dickson estate refuse to make good the loss by reason of the error made in their assessment, and that the Clerk take Messrs. Rowe and McGrath's receipts in accordance with this recommendation.

Your Committee cannot recommend the payment of Messrs. J. A. Delaney & Sons, having already refused the same.

Other matters which have been referred to this Committee, but which they have not had time to investigate will be reported upon in due time.

All of which is respectfully submitted.

THOS. CAHILL, Chairman.

The report was on motion adopted.

FIRE WATER AND GAS COMMITTEE.

Councillor PATERSON, Chairman of the above Committee read the following report:—

To the Mayor and Town Council:

GENTLEMEN,—The Fire, Water and Gas Committee, to whom was referred the matter of acquiring a site and the building of a Fire Hall and Hose Tower thereon, beg to report:

It would recommend the purchase of a suitable site and the erection of a Fire Hall and Hose Tower thereon, provided the Commissioners of the Town Trust allow the Corporation eighteen hundred dollars for the present engine house.

This sum added to five hundred dollars already appropriated for the above object, would make two thousand, three hundred dollars, which your committee thinks would purchase the site and build the proposed Engine House and Hose Tower, which would not only be an ornament to the town, but would save a large amount annually expended in the purchase of new hose to replace those destroyed through insufficient accommodation for its proper preservation.

Your Committee would recommend the purchasing of a site and the building of the Fire-engine House and Hose Tower to be undertaken next spring.

Your Committee would further report that it has communicated with the Commissioners of the Town Trust and have requested them to call a meeting to consider the proposition of purchasing the old engine house and if possible to give an answer this evening.

Your Committee has also requested the Commissioners to grant the Fire Brigade the use of the old engine house, until the proposed new one is finished and ready for occupation.

All of which is respectfully submitted.

WALTER PATERSON, Jr.,
Chairman.

Councillor SMITH said he was requested by Mr. Stevenson to state that while the Commissioners wished to do everything in their power to co-operate with the town, he believed it would be necessary to have legislation upon it.

The report was on motion of Councillor PATERSON received and adopted.

REPEAL OF THE DUNKIN ACT.

Councillor SMITH moved, seconded by Councillor BAPTIE.—That a By-law to repeal the Dunkin By-law be now read a first time.

In amendment, moved by Councillor RUTHERFORD, seconded by Councillor YELLAND.—That the By-law be read this night six months.

The amendment was put and lost and the original motion carried.

On motion the Council went into Committee of the Whole on the second reading of the By-law. Councillor Baptie in the chair. Committee rose. Council resumed. Chairman reported By-law read in Committee of the Whole without amendment.

The By-law was then read a third time and passed.

Councillor SMITH moved, seconded by Councillor MCBAIN.—That the Clerk be and is hereby instructed to take the necessary steps to have the By-law providing for the repeal of the Dunkin By-law submitted to the ratepayers for their approval as required by law and in accordance with the opinion of the Town Solicitor.

TREASURERS' BONDS.

Councillor MCBAIN again asked for information as to the Treasurer's Bonds' and was informed that Mr. Edwards had arranged for the bonds.

TOWN CLOCK.

Councillor SMITH drew the attention of the Council to the damaged state of the face of the town clock.

The MAYOR said he had arranged to have it fixed.

THIRD WARD ENGINE.

Councillor PATERSON moved, the resolution of which he had given notice of at the last meeting:—That the Chief Engineer have a suitable house built for the Third Ward Fire Engine, cost not to exceed twenty-five dollars but that only ten dollars be expended without further permission from the Council.

After an amusing and laughable discussion, partaking rather freely of personalities the motion was carried.

POUNDS.

Moved by Councillor PATERSON, seconded by Councillor YELLAND.—That Mr. Beavis have the Pounds put in proper repair and have all openings closed that are not necessary. Cost not to exceed ten dollars.—Carried.

THE MIDLAND RAILWAY.

Moved by Councillor PATERSON, seconded by Councillor DOUGLAS.—That the Clerk request the Midland Railway Company to forward the interest for damages to property on Bethune street which is now past due.—Carried.

Council adjourned for three weeks.

THE CENTRAL EXHIBITION AT COBOURG.

A Great Success—Peterborough Well Represented.

(By our own Reporter.)

The fourth annual Central Exhibition of this district, was held in the Town of Cobourg, on the first, second, and third days of October inst., and was a great success. No better weather could be possibly desired by any one, than that which favored this show, as a consequence the attendance of visitors was very large, especially on Wednesday, when about 7,500 were present. The list of entries shows a large increase over those at Lindsay last year, the total number of entries was about 3,700, classified as under:—Horses 329; Cattle 309; Sheep 260; Swine 78; Poultry 269; Grain and Seeds 205; Roots 271; Butter 43; Cheese 8; Miscellaneous 96; Fruit 405; Garden Vegetables 489; Agricultural Implements 169; Domestic Manufactures 136; Ladies' Work 260; Fine Arts 56; Leather and Leather Work 6; Plants 33; Natural History 19; Bands 3; Special 86; Extra 200.

THE GROUNDS AND BUILDINGS.

The Agricultural Ground in which it was held are situated in the North Eastern portion of the Town, just east of Victoria College, they comprise some twenty acres enclosed by a substantial board fence, twelve feet high, around this inside are built the stalls and pens for the stock. In the centre of the grounds, three large buildings had been erected, each of which were well filled with the different exhibits. In the largest of these, or

MAIN BUILDING,

Fine Arts, Flowers, Fruit and Ladies' Work were exhibited, the display in all these classes was exceedingly good, both in numbers and quality, in the Fruit department it was especially so, the show of Apples, Pears, Plums and Grapes being something extra. In the Art department were some well executed pictures, water colors and crayons predominating. Messrs. Irwin of Port Hope, and Lawes of Cobourg, exhibited fine collections of Photographs.

S. G. Beatty & Co., Belleville, show some fine specimens of writing and pen and ink drawing.

Mr. E. J. Hartley of Peterboro', is also an exhibitor in this line, and carries of two prizes.

Messrs. Toker & Co., of the Review, show some very fine specimens of Binding executed at their establishment, their display includes a Bible History of Canada, Turner Gallery, and a Shakespeare. They secured first prize.

The Ladies' department seemed to be the great centre of attraction for the fair sex, being crowded during the whole time of the Exhibition.

In the Flower department, Mr. A. A. Burnham was the principal exhibitor, showing some magnificent hot-house plants amongst his collection. We now proceed to the Western building in which are the display of which was very large, filling the whole building, the samples shown were very good, especially the vegetables, some mammoth specimens being exhibited. We must now pass to the Northern building in which are shown the including Stoves, Furniture, Sewing Machines, Organs, and a large number of miscellaneous articles.

GRAINS, ROOTS AND VEGETABLES,

DOMESTIC MANUFACTURES,

W. J. Larmour is on hand here with an immense assortment of Boots and Shoes, including everything from an infant's cack, to the coarsest men's boots, (all his own manufacture) including his own celebrated style, the "New Opera," which attracted great attention. As usual he secures first prize.

W. DeLaney, Cobourg, shows a fine assortment of Fishing Tackle, his own manufacture, he also has his celebrated Patent Lamp Tie and Cemetery Posts, on exhibition. These are something neat and lasting, being composed of iron bars fastened together by rings of the same material, they look very light and ornamental. The lamp post has been adopted by the Corporation of Cobourg, as the one to be used in the Town.

J. M. Lydgate, Peterborough, secures second prize for a collection of native mosses and shells.

A. Watts, Dummer, exhibits eighty-one native woods'.

J. Hooper has a fine show Monuments and a marble fence. One stone of Columbia Marble was much admired. The

POULTRY AND PIGEONS.

The exhibit in this department was very large, a number of extra coops had to be put up to accomodate all the entries. Mr. G. Hope, Port Hope, is the principal exhibitor of Pigeons and Chickens.

Messrs. Thomas & Campbell, Brooklyn, are also large exhibitors of chickens and ducks.

John McClelland, Peterborough, secures first prize for Black Breasted Game, and Light Brahmas.

CARRIAGES.

These are shown in a large open shed, erected specially for the purpose, which is well filled with fine specimens of the carriage builder's art. Messrs. Cummings, Cobourg, Hamilton, Lindsay and Chalk, Port Hope, were the principal exhibitors, The latter shows a canopy topped phaeton, which is really superb.

AGRICULTURAL IMPLEMENTS were shown in the northern portion of the ground, a large and varied display was made, most of the large firms being well represented.

The Fat Men's Convention.

We can see some pleasure, if no reason, in the convening of a baby show, but we confess we would never see the slightest cause, reasonable or otherwise, for a fat men's convention, unless it be the fact that misery loves company. For fifty or a hundred men, whose several weights range from two hundred to three hundred pounds, to hold a convention simply because of so much surplus avoirdupois, is absurd to say the least. It becomes doubly so when we reflect that obesity is a disease. What would we think of as many persons emaciated by consumption holding a convention to compare their relative weights. There is but one ground upon which we would advocate another fat men's convention, and that is that they will meet to discuss the merits of Allan's Anti-Fat, the only known remedy for obesity. It is safe and reliable. Sold by druggists.

The People Want Proof.

There is no medicine prescribed by physicians or sold by Druggists, that carries such evidence of its success and superior virtue as BOSCHEE'S GERMAN SYRUP for severe Coughs, Colds settled on the breast, Consumption, or any disease of the Throat and Lungs. A proof of that fact is that any person afflicted, can get a Sample Bottle for 10 cents and try its superior effect before buying the regular size at 75 cents. It has lately been introduced in this country from Germany, and its wonderful cures are astonishing everyone that use it. Three doses will relieve any case. Try it. Sold by J. D. Tully & Co.

A Card

To all who are suffering from the errors and indiscretions of youth, nervous weakness, early decay, loss of manhood, &c. I will send a recipe that will cure, FREE OF CHARGE. This great remedy was discovered by a missionary in South America. Send a self-addressed envelope to the REV. JOSEPH T. INMAN, Station D. Bible House. New York City. 46-1y.

Irish Canadian:—We suggest that some thoughtful Tory propose at the next dinner of the United Empire Club, this toast. "The National Policy; in battle a lion; in victory an elephant; may the chief discover what to do with it."

A case is reported in Montreal of a wealthy married man having seduced a girl away from her home and keeping her as his mistress. The girl's parents have brought her home and an action is to be entered against the alleged seducer.

Ten men who kept refreshment booths on Toronto Exhibition grounds were fined $20 and costs for selling liquor without a license.

Editors like brevity, but a man who was recently hung in Indiana suited them too well.
He made no remarks about Heaven, but nodded to the preacher and said: "I'll see you later," and then the trap fell.

BURNED TO DEATH.—A man named Wm.
Hoocy, who resided near Newtonville, in the township of Clarke, was burned to death in his own house early on Sunday morning. The building was entirely consumed. He lived alone, and was last seen alive by his brother about ten o'clock on the evening previous.
The body was not recovered until ten o'clock on Sunday morning, when it was altogether beyond recognition, the head, arms and limbs being entirely consumed. He leaves a son and daughter to mourn his untimely end.

THE GRANGERS.—Durham Division Grange has authorized its delegates to urge upon the Dominion Grange to petition the Legislature so to amend the statutes that corporations shall not have power to charge market fees on farmers, produce. The Grange also adopted a report recommending selling in bulk at home, and to that end advising that Grangers store grain, etc., properly classed, selling by one individual, one of the order, assisted by an advisory committee, in all cases having the business under the control of the order. In case it is found necessary to sell abroad, selling by an individual of the order is advised, through a responsible banking institution; though, if thought well, a reliable commission merchant might be employed.
The executive committee was instructed to take steps to see that each shipping point be supplied with reliable agents for the storing and selling of grain.

The greatest question at present agitating the politics of the United States is the money problem. Between hard money and soft money advocates there is a bitter fight. Just at the present time it is interesting to learn that the GOVERNMENT OF PERU lately publicly burned large quantities of paper money in the anticipation of a favorable effect on the public finances.

A CHANGEABLE RIDING.—It is a fact that for nearly twenty years North Ontario has never sent the same person to the House of Commons consecutively. It was alternately Cameron and Macdougall, then Thompson, then W. H. Gibbs, then Gordon, W. H
Gibbs again, and now Wheeler. Another singular coincidence is that both the Messrs.
Gibbs were elected in 1873, defeated in 1874, elected together again in 1876, and once more beaten, and by the same means in 1878.

D. I. K. Rice, temperance lecturer, declared in Toronto on Sabbath last that Sir John A.
Macdonald is the grandest and noblest man in the Dominion. This must have been the opinion of quite a number of temperance people when they cast their ballots at the elections, and in giving expression to such an opinion they unquestionably forgot their principles as temperance advocates.

Guelph has voted in $360,000 by-law for

Two instances of smuggling across the lines from Montreal have come to light. In one case $1,200 worth of woolen rags was captured, in the other, a waggon load of high wines.

The wonderful success of Mr. Beecher's lecturing tour in California is almost phenomenal in the history of the lyceum. He received $10,000 for ten lectures, and the Redpath bureau, which had him in charge, cleared almost as much. No audience room could begin to hold the immense crowds that thronged to hear him.

A presiding elder of the Methodist Church asked a brother who aspired to a license what was the difference between an exhorter and a preacher. Well, you see, was the answer, a preacher takes a text and sticks to it, but an exhorter ain't bound to stick.

The Thunder Bay Sentinel describes the wonderful vein on Spar Island, Lake Superior, as follows: "The vein crosses the upper end of the island and runs into the water as far as the eye can see upon both sides; the width is from thirteen to fifteen feet and depth unknown, for only about ten feet has been sunk in the vein in either shaft or in the drift. The sight of the beautiful crystal spar (carrying silver, copper and lead, as it does) is delightful, whilst its extraordinary richness is visible to the naked eye.

A most brutal murder was committed on Saturday night near Barnston, in the Eastern Townships. While Francis Daly was on his way home from Coaticooke he was murdered by two men and then tied to his wagon axle by a noose around his neck, made of his lines and dragged quite a distance. When found he was dead. A coroner's inquest was held when the jury returned a verdict of "wilful murder by one James Bowen, and that one Webster was an accomplice." Both men were taken into custody. Daly leaves a wife and three small children.

Last Monday while a laboring man named
Carl Fromm and his son Henry, a lad of 18 years, were digging a drain some twenty feet deep through their property in Berlin, Ont., the banks suddenly closed upon them and before they were extricated life was extinct.
A young lad by the name of Heim was buried at the same time but rescued himself.

I have just had a call from the inevitable tree agent, whose talk is always only less remarkable than the colored pictures of his wonderful fruit book. I took him out and showed him a thrifty young orchard I planted last spring, the growth of which has been marvellous; not a tree lost or set back. The only observation I could get from him was that they would have any blight, as the growth was too strong. I declined to give him an order, and I advise brother farmers not to buy trees from those they know nothing about. This counsel has often been given, and can't be too strongly impressed. Buy at nurseries you know, and don't go too far from home. Get trees that thrive the best on your soil and get those that are grown in soil as near like your own as possible. This may not suit nurserymen, but I know that trees grown on clay soil don't thrive on our granite soils like those propagated in such soil. The clay soil trees always have a set back for two or three years till they get acclimated. In this section hundreds of dollars have been lost by not buying of reliable dealers, or buying of dealers whose nurseries are remote and where the soil is unlike our own.

Whether the people of Canada forget Sir
John's connection with the Pacific Scandal or not it is pretty evident they are not likely to forget it in England. The London World a leading Metropolitan journal, in reviewing the recent elections in this county, says
"The substitution of Macdonald and Tupper for Mr. Mackenzie means a Protectionist tariff, the taxing of the consuming many for the producing few. There is more to be said against Sir J. A. Macdonald than that; everybody remembers the Pacific Scandal, and the way in which contracts were turned to account in bribing constituencies. With this stain on Sir J. A. Macdonald's past, brought to light only five years ago, and with a Protectionist policy in his pocket as his gift to the Dominion, we cannot think the change likely to be of much good to Canada."

Lord Dufferin's reply to the address to the Commercial Travellers Association in Toronto last week was one of his happiest efforts.
Having referred to the usefulness of the body in advancing the interests of the country His Excellency said: "I am a commercial traveller who has travelled more and further than any of you. (Renewed laughter.) I have vaunted my wares with as much earnestness and sincere belief in their excellence as any gentleman present. (Loud laughter.) I have endeavored to extend our connections and to push the business of our House—(great laughter)—with energy and integrity—(laughter and applause)—and as you are good enough to assure me—to the satisfaction of my employers—(great applause)—and amongst those who have addressed me there are none in a better position than yourselves to give me an assurance on such a point, as you are in the habit of mixing so intimately with all classes of the community." (Loud applause.)

The Princess Louise, in her new position as the lady head of honor and position in Canada, will be able to continue the good works to which she has accustomed herself in England where she is patroness, not only in name, but in act and work, of so many charitable movements, and of so many societies whose intention it is to help forward the education of women, that her absence will be a real loss.
She has always been so graciously ready to give time and attention when she has been asked to do so, to preside at opening meetings, to give away prizes, to exercise for good the influence that her position gives her, that her absence will be felt; and when the time comes for her return to England; she will be gladly welcomed back again. But in the mean time much work lies before her, for the doing of which the education which life has been given her has been helping to prepare her. She will carry with her to Canada many earnest and sincere wishes for her personal well-being, and much hope that she may show among her people there, as well as her sisters have done on the Continent, the good results of that excellent training which the beloved and respected Queen has so carefully bestowed upon her daughters. The influence of women, always great, is never so much so as when exercised by women in high rank; and when the rank is the highest the good which they dy bears fruit in every lower grade of people.—Harper's Bazar.

JOY AMONG THE CHILDREN.

COPELAND'S SWEET CASTOR OIL, equally suitable for children and adults. Endorsed by over 600 doctors in Canada. The difficulty of administering nauseous medicines and the desirability of having them pleasant to the taste, induced T. Copeland to undertake researches, which resulted in the discovery of a Sweet Castor Oil, perfectly palatable, of the same strength and medical qualities as the ordinary Castor Oil; and while equally safe and harmless yet acting with more certainty, and producing neither nausea nor griping.
Some children say it is honey: others call it syrup—they say they like it. One parent says—My children drink it like water;"
another—"We had to hide the bottle or they would have finished it right off;" another—
"My little girl has taken it twice without any trouble, and does not know what it is, though she hates the ordinary Castor Oil, and we never could get her to take it without a fight;" yet another—"I wish you success of your SWEET CASTOR OIL; it is a splendid thing—sure to take the place of all common oil."
The extraordinary demand for this improvement of a staple household medicine has brought fraudulent imitations into the market, but the public can guard themselves against substitutes (which unprincipled parties are attempting to sell on the reputation of this article) by seeing that the name, COPELAND'S SWEET CASTOR OIL, is on both wrapper and direction label.
The undersigned having purchased Messrs
T. Copeland & Co's interest in the above preparation, are now manufacturing it from the original recipe.

Mitchell's Belladonna Improved India Rubber Porous Paster.

There never has been a time when the healing of so many different diseases has been treated by outward application as the present.
It is an undisputed fact that over half of the entire population of the globe resort to the use of ordinary plasters.
The principal ingredients used in making these Plasters are Gum Olibanum—or better known as the Frankincense of the Bible—Rubber, and Burgundy Pitch; which, when scientifically compounded, is full of electricity, and when combined with the pure medicinal gums, is found to be one greatest healing mediums ever brought before the human race.
They are acknowledged by all who have used them to act quicker than any other Plasters they ever before tried, and that one of these Plasters will do more real service than a hundred of the ordinary kind. All other Plasters are slow of action, and require to be worn continually to effect a cure; but with these it is entirely different; the instant one is applied the patient will feel its effect.
They possess all the soothing, warming, supporting and strengthening qualities of all other Plasters. Many who have been relieved of RHEUMATISM, TICDOLOREUX, and various other pains in the KIDNEYS, BREAST or SIDE, and believe it is solely done by the electrical qualities which the Porous Plasters contain, and which is imparted to the system, thus restoring them to a healthy condition.
They are very soft and pliable, still very adhesive; and a sure cure for WEAK BACKS PAINS IN THE SIDE AND BREAST, and are invaluable to those who have a COLD of long standing, and often prevents CONSUMP-TION. Some even tell us they believe they were entirely cured by the use of them of a long seated Consumption.

THE BOBCAYGEON AND LINDSAY RAILWAY BONUS.

To the Property Owners and Tax Payers of the Township of Harvey:

As one of the persons to be affected by the By-law, to be submitted to you on the 5th of November next, in aid of the Bobcaygeon and Lindsay Railway, I beg leave to address you. I am opposed to the passing of this By-law, and I trust that all those of you who feel an interest in the welfare of the Township, and who are unwilling to waste money is advancing the interests of others, will not fail to attend and record your votes against the By-law. I am surprised at the assurance of the people of Bobcaygeon in coming into our comparatively new and poor township, and which we cannot spare, and which if we could spare, we need so much ourselves. We, the people of Harvey, are struggling hard, and against many difficulties, in trying to make homes for ourselves, and in order to do this, we are enduring many privations, working early and late in the hope that some day, yet to come, we may reap the rewards of our industry and toil, and that ourselves and our families may yet be able to feel that we have not laboured and toiled in vain. All the money which we can spare for public improvements is required in our own township. Our roads need improving, our schools need more help, our families need food and clothing and education, and we, who have to look out for and provide all these things, feel sometimes that we need rest, and that while we and our wives are toiling, we are toiling for that which we shall share the enjoyment of, and that when old age overtakes us, and we can toil no longer, we, can at least have the privilege of knowing and feeling that we have laid up some small store of comforts from which we can spend our declining days in peace and comfort, and that instead of leaving to our children our properties and a debt too, incurred for the benefit of others, we can feel that they shall not have it in their power to reproach us for wantonly and foolishly laying the heavy burden of this By-law debt upon them. Our Councillors have done very wrong in thus forcing this matter upon us again, they have allowed themselves to be feted and flattered by the people of Lindsay and Bobcaygeon, until their good sense has been lost, and they have been made to consent to do all they can to incumber us with a heavy debt, a debt which will hang like a millstone about our necks and the necks of our children for twenty or thirty years to come—and all this not to benefit ourselves, not to improve our own roads and bridges and our schools, not to [illegible] our own localities, who come amongst us with soft words in order that we may be flattered to and allow them to build up their prosperity, instead of keeping it and increasing our own. And I do hope, when another election comes round, that we we will all take care to choose other and better men to manage the business of our township, and men who will prove themselves more patriotic, and more sensible, and more economical than our present Councillors have shown themselves to be. That we will choose men to represent us, whose interest and inclinations it will be to work for our good and not for the good of others. Men who will be proof against flattery, and who can resist temptation when they are tempted, and whose motto will be the Township of Harvey first, and the Township of Harvey last.

ASKING US TO THROW AWAY MONEY

SUNK HEAVILY IN DEBT,

We are modestly asked to give Bobcaygeon and Lindsay twelve thousand dollars of our money to help them in an undertaking which they will find it hard to accomplish, and the benefits of which, when accomplished, will be more than doubtful. A road which, if built to-morrow could not pay working expenses, and which would not sell for the cost of the iron rails laid upon it. In order the better to mislead us we are told that we will have twenty years to pay the money, and that we will never feel the debt; and we are asked to believe all the foolish stories which are so deceitfully laid before us about the great benefits which this road will be sure to bring us.

TWELVE THOUSAND DOLLARS

is a large sum of money, and this alone, if judiciously expended in our own township, would make all our roads and bridges good, would provide us with comfortable school houses and with books and school apparatus for our children. But do not be deceived. It is not twelve thousand dollars alone which we will have to pay. The yearly amount which we will have to raise under this By-law for twenty years to come is thirteen hundred and twenty dollars, and if you multiply thirteen hundred and twenty dollars by the twenty years you will actually have to pay twenty-six thousand four hundred dollars. But we will lose even more than this large sum, for if you add the interest upon each yearly instalment of thirteen hundred and twenty dollars for the twenty years, you will find that your whole loss will be more than forty thousand dollars. These are facts which even the people of Bobcaygeon cannot deny. And I want you to look at them fairly and squarely and then say what you will do. And while you are doing this, do not forget that our township will have to pay its share of the hundred and fifty thousand dollars of the County to the Toronto and Ottawa Railway, and the possibility of our having also to pay our share of the County's seventy-five thousand dollar bonus to the Grand Junction Railway, which will amount to nearly twelve thousand dollars, besides all our other local and county taxes. The result would be, should we be so blind as to vote this bonus to the Bobcaygeon and Lindsay road, our township would be overwhelmed with debt and taxes, and

THE HOPED ADVANTAGES SO BOUGHT,

And which also of [illegible] and the payment [illegible] which we must undergo in raising all this money. Just think of the many benefits and comforts which this money would provide for ourselves and our families, how many good things it would enable us to get and enjoy. Think also of the possibilities of bad crops and hard times, of sickness and of death. Think what will be our position in view of those things—all of which are liable to happen, and will surely happen with more or less of us within that time, and then just consider how, under these circumstances, this large sum of money is to be raised and paid, and paid every year as regularly as the collector comes round, whether we are able to pay it or not, and no matter at what sacrifice, and then say if you are prepared, by voting for this By-law, to place yourselves in such a position of trouble and danger.

THE ADVANTAGES TO HARVEY

from the building of this short line of railway are literally nothing for the losses and sacrifices which will have to be made in order to obtain it. Even if we were not separated from Bobcaygeon by water, as we now are, the advantages to be derived by us are very trifling compared to the immense cost of obtaining it. We can very well afford to do without this railway, but we cannot afford to do without good roads throughout the township, and the yearly interest of this twelve thousand dollars would make all our roads and bridges for the whole twenty years that we would be giving it for this useless piece of railway. If the people of Harvey are so insane as to give twelve thousand dollars or any sum to this railway they deprive themselves of the means of making all their improvements for twenty years to come. They keep the township in debt and they become literally hewers of wood and drawers of water for the benefit of Bobcaygeon. Shall we place ourselves in this position? Shall we thus foolishly give up our substance to build up the village, while we are kept poor and are kept

NO BETTER THAN SLAVES.

Time will tell, but I don't believe that two sane men will be found in the Township of Harvey to thus give their all away simply at the bidding of Bobcaygeon.

This nominal railway company make great promises of what it is going to do if we will only give them our money, but their

PROMISES ARE WORTHLESS

and not binding in law, as I will presently show, and even if they were binding, which they are not, we would not be an exception to the general rule, that railway promises are only made to be broken. But this company is not an existing company in fact and in law, but only a provisional company, appointed by an act of incorporation, and its objects and duties simply consist in opening stock books and organizing a company of stockholders, whose acts alone will be valid and binding. And this, I believe, has first or present one being only provisional, and beyond the obtaining of stock and organizing another company, only nominal. The present provisional company has no right or power to do any act outside of opening the stock books, and therefore it has no authority to give any bond or other promise or obligation to this township in reference to our proposed by-law, and any such bond or undertaking would

NOT BE WORTH THE PAPER IT IS WRITTEN UPON.

So do not be deceived, and remember if you are credulous and foolish enough to give away your money, you give it away and will get nothing in return. Before I close, I cannot help calling your attention again to the fact, that this railway, if built, can be of no advantage to this township. In order to reach it at Bobcaygeon, a large portion of the people would have to travel a long distance under very serious difficulties, and when they reach Bobcaygeon, they are either obliged to sell their produce in that small market, or go on to Lindsay at a greater additional loss of time and expense. Compare our routes to Lake Ontario and the Grand Trunk by the way of Bobcaygeon and Lindsay, and by the way of Peterborough. After you have travelled many miles to reach Bobcaygeon, you are then upwards of sixty-five miles from Port Hope and Whitby, the real shipping points for Montreal for your produce. And to reach this you have to pass over two railways—and if to this distance you add the number of miles, which many of you will have to travel before you reach Bobcaygeon, your produce will, from its starting place at your own doors, be over eighty miles. Now, I need not tell you how much the cost of carriage over sixty five miles of railroad will be —but it is important for you to consider it, because the difference in the price of your produce at Bobcaygeon, will, at all events, be the extra cost of getting it to Whitby or Port Hope. In other words you will receive just that much less for your produce. At present you have the option of going with it to Lindsay and to Peterborough, and when you reach Peterborough, as some of you can do almost as easily as you can reach Bobcaygeon, you are then only thirty miles from Port Hope, a difference in favour of this route of thirty-five miles of railway travel and expense. And more than this, when the Grand Junction Railway is finished between Belleville and Peterborough, the difference between this route and that by way of Bobcaygeon to the front will be still greater, and of course

THE COST OF CARRIAGE STILL LESS.

It is for you therefore to say whether, in view of these facts, you would be voting wisely in plunging your township ruinously into debt, to get a road which can be no real advantage to you. And to consider whether a portion of this money would not to better spent in improving your own roads south west, so as to facilitate your business operations at the least possible expense. I hope in voting upon this by-law, you will fully allow yourselves to be influenced by others who may be working for their own advantage, to do what you will ever regret doing, and that you will not be led into a ruinous debt of which neither you nor your children will see the end. But whatever happens, I will at all events have the consolation of knowing that I have done my duty.

ONE OF THE PEOPLE.

Provincial Sabbath School Convention.

Second Day—Morning Session.

The Convention assembled at Wednesday morning at nine o'clock, and was opened with the usual religious exercises, which were conducted by Rev. Dr. Bell, of Walkerton.

Rev. F. H. WALLACE, B. D., of Peterboro', then conducted a Bible reading, the fundamental idea of which was that in every period of sacred history the family appeared to be regarded as the highest sphere of religious instruction. After citing a number of passages to show that this was true of the patriarchate as well as the Mosaic and Christian dispensations, he went on to say that important as the Sabbath School was it should not be allowed to supplant parental instruction, but should rather be regarded as auxiliary and supplemental. They should adopt the motto of the Heidelberg catechism, "From the Home to the School; from the School to the Church; from the Church to Heaven."

Mr. L. C. Peake, (Toronto) then read an interesting paper on the work done during the past year in the establishment and maintenance of normal classes, his remarks having special reference to the work in Toronto. The great hindrance to success in the Sunday School was the lack of properly-trained teachers, and though these classes were not the only thing necessary to the production of thoroughly qualified teachers, experience had shown that a faithful adherence to the Chatauqua course of instruction did very much to supply the great want of the schools.

PETERBOROUGH, OCTOBER 17, 1878

WHO WILL PROTECT PROTECTION?

Among the warmest advocates of protection in Canada, was and is Mr. R. W. Phipps, of Toronto, a gentleman of comparative leisure, and hobby riding propensities It is not surprising then that during the excitement incident to the pushing forward of the Tory plank, called the "National Policy," Mr. Phipps should have become an eager enthusiast. Letters of his were published in the Mail in the interests of the Tory party. He issued a phamphlet, which was distributed by every Tory Candidate, quoted freely by most of the Tory journals, in Ontario at least. The Peterboro' Protectionist paper almost reproduced it in lengthy instalments. Mr. Phipps be-pair of perambulating parrotts—Wright and Fraser—their season's engagement is closed. Indeed the piece in which they were cast as performers is worn out and they will have to study another role. On all hands Protection has completely flattened out, and the principles and arguments of the Reform press and Reform speakers before and since the elections are beginning to assert themselves in the minds of the people as the true theories and deductions on the trade question.

INSTRUCTION IN COOKERY.

Father Stafford has taken steps to establish cookery instruction in the Convent at Lindsay, thus further proving his claims to be considered a practical Reformer. This plan of teaching the art of cooking in classes though a new application in Canada, has been in operation for some years both in Britain and the United States, and with considerable success. Schools for cookery may be of immense benefit to the social advancement of the people. There are two classes in Canada that urgently need instruction in the art of cooking—the rich and the poor The more wealthy daughters of the land are in most cases brought up without any practical knowledge of this most important of household economy, so that when they come to be mistresses of establishments of their own they are completely at the mercy of their servants. If servant-raldom has obtained a bad name it is in great part the fault of inexperienced, and therefore weak mistresses. If the servant knows more than the mistress, as is frequently the case, what wonder is it that the orders of the latter are despised and disregarded? Practical ignorance among mistresses has also caused a deterioration in servants, simply because good work cannot be thoroughly appreciated by those who know little or nothing about it. In this way the little learning of the maid has become a dangerous thing to the less learned mistress, as displayed in arrogant assumption and often downright insolence from those whose duty should be obedience The plain outcome of such a connection is mismanagement and waste. This may not greatly affect the pecuniary condition of the most affluent, but when the waste consequent on the work of the ill taught takes a very considerable percentage off the narrower incomes of the poorer classes, the matter becomes indeed more serious. The rich lady should know how to cook so that she may intelligently order her servants. Much more should the Mechanic's wife and the labourer's wife know how to cook that they may husband the family resources by making things go as far as possible. One woman will set a comparatively luxurious table on a sum totally inadequate for a half-decent meal in the hands of another. Why? The one has practical knowledge of how to do it. The other has the same or better materials, but does not know how to use them to advantage It is not so much the money as the method that spreads the table with such viands as delight the eye and tickles the palate of the husband, brother or son, satisfy their tastes and enable them to dispense with the outside allurements of the restaurant and bar-room. A great medical authority has declared that a considerable part of the habitual consumption of intoxicating liquors can be directly traced to badly cooked food. Hence it will be seen that the sobriety of man somewhat depends on the kitchen skill of the women. As we understand that [illegible] we perceive the probability of an extension of cookery instruction in Canada through the efforts of a Miss Dods, lately engaged in the work in Scotland. In some places arrangements have already been made to form classes to be taught by her. Why not in Peterborough?

THE HON. R. J. CARTWRIGHT.

The defeat of the Hon. Mr. Cartwright in Lennox may partly be accounted for by his own adherance to his chivalrous notions as to a personal canvass; but principally to the strenuous efforts of his opponents against him in particular. He is an object of fear and hatred to the Conservative leaders. No man knows Sir John Macdonald, externally and internally, so well as Mr. Cartwright, and no man is more able to express his knowledge with telling effect. Therefore his absence from Parliament would be a great relief to Sir John, as well as to Tupper and other very vulnerable gentlemen on the Tory side of the House—as it is the desire of the Conservatives not to have Mr. Cartwright in the House of Commons, so is it that of the Reformers to have him there. To this end after his defeat in Lennox, it was expected that some of the newly elected Reform candidates would make room for him. Mr. Horton has done so in centre Huron: but to enable him to resign, that gentleman had to go through the formality of accepting an office under the Crown, their being no Parliament before which to lay a resignation. The clerkship to which Mr. Horton was appointed is not by any means a prize, and he is sure not to fill it but the necessity of his taking something to vacate his seat has been seized on with avidity as a probable cause of predjudice to him and Mr. Cartwright. The latter gentleman has received the hearty nomination of the Reform Convention of centre Huron. The conservatives have brought out a Mr. Samuel Platt, of Godrich, to oppose him, and they will do their best to defeat a man for whom they feel a wholesome terror. It is therefore the duty of every Reformer who can do so to give a helping hand to place Mr. Cartwright at the head of the poll. The fight will be against the full strength of the Ministerial metal, but there is a prospect that the late Finance Minister, and those who will volunter to assist him will triumph over all odds and win the day. It is certainly to be hoped that they will.

A CASE OF CONDEMNATION WITHOUT TRIAL.

A number of Conservative papers, led by the Port Hope Times, are raising a great ado over a change in the postmastership at Port Hope, whereby a son of the late occupant has succeeded to the position. When Mr. James Baird was appointed on the recommendation of Mr. Lewis Ross, late member for the Riding, the Tory journal at Port Hope objected to the age of the appointee. However the work has been done without loud complaint of the infirmities of the chief official. Now that the son has taken the place of the father, doubtless also on the recommendation of Mr. Ross, the same rabid organ of partisan discontent objects on the score of youth! The young man is twenty-two or twenty-three years of age, which is considered a capable age, even in these depressed times. One would think that the article in the local paper was written by some disappointed aspirant for the office so unreasonable is it. The writer even becomes so offensive as to call the newly appointed post-master a "not over-smart inexperienced boy," and again coarsely refers to him as "a young fellow not reputed to be over-civil, and knowing practically little or nothing about business or anything else." The most offensive of these remarks might not inaptly be applied to the man who made this; for his article does not proclaim him over-smart; and certainly he is not over-civil. Now it is not to be believed that a young man, the son of a Baptist preacher and a bookseller, has grown up to the age of twenty years and more, without knowing enough to make him undeserving of being called an "inexperienced boy." Is it possible that young Baird has done nothing all his life, that he should be "inexperienced" so far as to be unable to do the post office business in a town the size of Port Hope? He does not need to be "over-smart," nor does he require to be more than "civil" to fill the position efficiently. That the question as to his competence is a gratuitous insult is proven by a remark of the Times itself at the time of his father's appointment. This not over-civil paper then supercilliously remarked that the old man's years did not practically make much difference, as the son could conduct the business of the office satisfactorily. Now it goes back on itself. We submit that such a paper is not over-smart. The alleged discontent of Port Hope Reformers at young Baird's appointment may be a mere thought born of a Tory wish; or it may be the actual feeling of frustrated expectations. In either case its allegation is shameful; and both Reform and Conservative if quite impartial would exit the orders of the latter are despised and disregarded? Practical ignorance among mistresses has also caused a deterioration in servants, simply because good work cannot be thoroughly appreciated by those who know little or nothing about it. In this way the little learning of the maid has become a dangerous thing to the less learned mistress, as displayed in arrogant assumption and often downright insolence from those whose duty should be obedience The plain outcome of such a connection is mismanagement and waste. This may not greatly affect the pecuniary condition of the most affluent, but when the waste consequent on the work of the ill taught takes a very considerable percentage off the narrower incomes of the poorer classes, the matter becomes indeed more serious. The rich lady should know how to cook so that she may intelligently order her servants. Much more should the Mechanic's wife and the labourer's wife know how to cook that they may husband the family resources by making things go as far as possible. One woman will set a comparatively luxurious table on a sum totally inadequate for a half-decent meal in the hands of another. Why? The one has practical knowledge of how to do it. The other has the same or better materials, but does not know how to use them to advantage It is not so much the money as the method that spreads the table with such viands as delight the eye and tickles the palate of the husband, brother or son, satisfy their tastes and enable them to dispense with the outside allurements of the restaurant and bar-room. A great medical authority has declared that a considerable part of the habitual consumption of intoxicating liquors can be directly traced to badly cooked food. THE BLAME SHIFTED TO OTHER SHOULDERS.

Last week we gave our views on the question of the resignation of Ministers during a recess of Parliament, but ere they appeared in public the question had been decided so far as the Mackenzie government was concerned by the fact of its resignation. In taking the course he did, though not to our mind the strictly constitutional one, Mr. Mackenzie plainly followed the desire of most of the people, and probably his own and that of his colleagues. They could have no personal advantage in keeping office one day later than that on which they knew an adverse majority would meet them in Parliament. On the contrary the plainest consideration for their own comfort would induce them to resign even earlier than they did. But the voice of the country was plainly in favor of their speedy resignation as expressed by the press on both sides. The Tory journals one and all cried out for the immediate elevation of their leaders and the inauguration of the "National Policy," while most of the Reform papers plainly expressed their desire that the new regime should begin at once in order that its utter hollowness might be seen. In no case can the Tory party complain of Mr. Mackenzie's resignation before calling Parliament together; for the exponents of that party both oratorical and journalistic eagerly clamored for his resignation, and actually blamed him that he did not resign sooner. Their chief plea was that every day he retained office so much the more did he delay the day of national prosperity their leaders were ready immediately to usher in. Mackenzie did resign the Tory leader was not so much as ready to name his Ministry, though three weeks had already gone by in which he might have prepared for what he knew to be inevitable. Even as we write the country is trembling in expectancy as to the probable composition of the Protectionist Cabinet. And when that has been decided we are told by leading journals of the now dominant party that it is not probable Parliament will be called before February. Here then the country is asked to submit to the selfsame delay against which these same organs so vigorously protested but one week ago. If the policy to be introduced in respect to the tariff had been clearly defined delay would not matter so much. But now in addition to the usual conjectures which hinder business there are grave doubts expressed even by their warmest friends as to the fulfilment of their pledges by the new Ministers. This will last, and have its enervating effect on Canada's depressed trade, until the assembling of Parliament and the fixing of its much talked of tariff by the new Ministry. If this very unsatisfactory state of things must continue we had much rather the responsibility not rest on the late government, but on those who so loudly vaunted of their ability to provide a remedy for hard times and to introduce a plan whereby all should be protected into prosperity. Instead of allaying the commercial depression it now looks very much as if their action on assuming office will be to aggravate that disturbance in business circles that detains dull times a constant guest.

HONESTY OR EXPEDIENCY?

The Tory party in Canada, so far as its press is concerned, is already dishonoured on the tariff question. It was raised by that party while in power; but because it threatened to be troublesome the baby was strangled almost at its birth. Its uneasy ghost—all unreal and strangely fascinating—was evoked for party purposes in opposition. It turned out a greater success than even its originators—the former murderers of the baby—had anticipated. Indeed it threatens to be a very embarassing ghost so far as they are concerned, and they would like to lay it for their own place. But, like that of Banquo, "it will not down." Not only has the "spook" itself assumed proportions that permit its being hid, the people have taken to it as to a patent medicine, and think no family should be without it, and, like children for the candied dose, cry for it. Thus the Conservative leaders are likely to come to grief between the devil they themselves let loose, and the deep sea of popular expectation they themselves have raised.

Judging from the late as well as the former utterances of Tory leaders we are convinced that they do not believe in the policy—if their inconsistent theories can be called a policy—they so persistently turned and twisted before the public, to suit the humor of the particular class or locality, for the deception of which it was manipulated. The "National Policy" of the Tories having been a dishonest child in the first instance having suffered a dishonest death, and having become a dishonest ghost, it is not wonderful that past dishonesty should now be producing its legitimate fruit. This is seen in the changed utterances, or equally significant silence of those journals which of late enunciated the doctrines of a high tariff on everything which can be produced in the country, and proclaimed the necessity for an immediate inauguration of their "policy" as the only means of saving Canada from utter ruin. The Mackenzie Government was blamed that it did not change the tariff—nobody knows how—so as to protect everybody, and the election of Sir John Macdonald and his friends was to bring about the desired results. The "fly on the wheel" Government was denounced, and its party opponents were pointed to as those who had the ability and the will to speedily bring about prosperity. These knew just how to do it, and were constantly referred to as though they had their plans all cut and dried. Reformers who asked particulars were coolly told that the Conservatives were not going to let out their intention for their opponents to steal. Sir John and his party have been returned at the head of the polls, and all is changed. The wheel seems to have got on the fly. The Tory ability and will to discloss the secret of prosperity through changes of tariff have disappeared. Though there is now no fear of a Grit Government infringing on the Tory patent, the plans are still not forthcoming. Tory boasting has given place to a sort of imbecility. What they could say and would do were there party only in power remains still to be heard and seen. Some are even beginning to bark back on their own tracks. Those who formerly referred to tariff readjustment as an easy matter, now talk of the difficulty of reconciling the conflicting interests and of preserving the revenue while shutting out imports The men who, it was said, were ready to point the way to increased national prosperity must now have time to consider what had better be done. The lately ready are now unready. We have the spectacle of a Protectionist party that can find nothing to be protected.

It is easy to see by the general utterances of the Conservative press in what direction that party is tending, and that it is about to sacrifice once more the principal of political honor that made the Tory of the olden days a consistant combatant, if he was an unreasoning zealot. There are no doubt many Conservatives elected who honestly assumed the Protectionist theory through the representations of their friends; and there are certainly those on both sides who voted solely in the hope of helping along the glowing promises of Protectionist politicans. Now that the doubts expressed by the most pronounced Protectionist journals through threats to force Sir John Macdonald into granting the demands of the manufacturers, the excuses for delay or the silence of partisan papers, and the fitful and fuble speeches of Tory leaders, show that the hopes of candidates and voters in Protection are not likely to be realized, can these men in honor stick to the party deceiving them, and take part in the deceit? Can a member elected on a Protectionist basis conscientiously hold his seat by a trick upon himself and many who voted for him, or can those of his constituents who were duped, honesly refrain from asking for his resignation unless he strives the harder because of obstacles to represent their views as one of the dominant party, or withdraws himself from a party that refuses to carry out its pledges. The same remarks will apply to those journals that have honestly fought for Protection as a principle rather than a party card, and we hope there are some of them in the ranks of our political opponents. At least those which now express confidence in the fulfilment of [illegible] and which ready in case of disappointment to denounce the deceivers. We shall see presently.

EDITORIAL NOTES.

Sankey the singer sails the sea for England.

The Toronto Telegram starts the annual agrufication in favor of electing city Mayors by the Council instead of by popular vote.

There is no doubt, says the Toronto Leader, that the presence of Mr. Mowat, who is a gentleman of sterling worth, adds great strength to the Local Administration.

It is moved by the American Philological Association that the spelling of the word catalogue be changed to "catalog." All those in favor will please to spell accordingly.

The imports of Canada during the month of September amounted to $7,497,461, upon which a duty of $1,179,073 was collected. The manufactured imports only amounted to $276,396.

A good deal has been heard and read of ballot tax stuffing in the United State, but at the late election it seems to have been tried in the Province of Quebec. Detection will we hope be followed by prompt and condign punishment of the offenders.

We call the following from a South Simcoe "poem." There has been nothing like it since the days of J. Burr-Plumb. Listen:

"Like one awaked from drowsy sleep, North Simcoe farms to see
The man to honor and to choose in D'Alton McCarthy."

The success of the various exhibitions held lately, in the matter of products shown, as well as in the turn-out of people, is the best refutation of the croaking recently indulged in by politicians of a certain stripe, that Canada was being ruined.

Will those Tory candidates who cried out against the extravagance of Reform Ministers in keeping up their salaries, now that they (the Tory candidates) are elected move for a reduction of Ministerial salaries. Not much!

Mr. Phipps is now declared on high Conservative authority to be "cheeky" and "a fool." Yet 30,000 copies of his Protection pamphlet were circulated. In other words, the Conservatives were willing to use "a fool" to fool the people in the trade question.

Persons afflicted with sleepiness in church perhaps may wish for the remedy hereafter devised by one John Rodge who in the year 1735, left to his native parish in Shropshire the sum of twenty shillings yea ly, that a man might be employed to go about the church and, with a wand awaken all sleepers by tapping them sharply on the Head.

The Americans, instead of railing at Courtney for calling the race with Hanlan would show more genuine manliness and common sense if they accepted defeat gracefully. Their man did his best and he was fairly beaten. Why try to add disgrace to defeat? If they have a better man than Courtney, there is no doubt but he can be accommodated.

The Toronto Mail now threatens, 'by authority,' that should Mr. Horton of Centre Huron be appointed a collector of Customs to make way for Mr. Cartwright, the appointment will be cancelled by the new Government. This not only shows malice of the Tory party in victory, but how much they fear the presence of Mr. Cartwright in the House. They must face Mr. Cartwright notwithstanding.

Those who refer to Mr. John Stewart Mill, as having spoken in favor of protection for a young country, very carefully forget to give the very qualified language used by the great political economist. Mr. Mill in his "Principles of Political Economy," was ready to admit that there might be circumstances in which protection would benefit a new colony: but he afterwards emphatically pronounced against every such possibility. Do the Mill-quoting protectionists know this, or is the fact merely supposed?

A large and enthusiastic convention of the Reformers of the Centre Riding of Huron was held at Seaforth, on Thursday last at which Mr. Horton, the member elect, offered his resignation, which was accepted. The convention afterwards nominated, by a standing unanimous vote, the Hon R. J. Cartwright. Motions were adopted in approbation of the step taken by Mr Horton, and cordially endorsing Mr. Mackenzie's leadership. Mr. Cartwright was notified of the action of the Convention, telegraphed his acceptance of the nomination, and left on Thursday morning for the constituency.

The Monetary Times, published in Toronto, holds that "raw material should be free," and declares that "a tax on coal is a tax on motive power, and a tax on bread-stuffs would somewhat enhance the cost of lumbering and procuring fish." The Maritime Journal, published in Halifax, as plainly proclaims that "the national policy adopted by the electors is altogether at variance with this," and that "the development of our natural resources must necessarily call for a taxation of such foreign raw materials, so-called, as pig and bar iron, coal, &c." Thus it is that commercial journals favoring protection differ in essential principles, and on express particulars, as widely as it is possible to disagree. One says that raw material must be exempt; the other that it must be taxed. The faithful follower of the Protectionist party saves perplexity by taking his choice and ignoring the remaining "must"; but in the end he with all other poor people who suffer from this disagreement of political quacks, is likely to get no choice at all but be forced to pay both the tax on raw material and the tax on the manufactured article. And the trouble will be that these "taxes" instead of going into the public chest will go to increase the pecuniary power and swell the arrogance of a few bloated monopolists. Then another tax will fall on the people to supply the depleted exchequer.

The Chatham Planet, like most of the Tory journals, would wish that the English papers should remain silent on the late elections in Canada, and the policy proclaimed by the victorious party. The Planet professes a patronizing pity for the lack of intelligence shown by the English press on Canadian affairs. This is cool: but the height of egotistical impudence is reached when it is said the london Times had better "let up" until the return of the news-paper correspondents about to come to Canada with the Marquis of Lorne. The Thunderer is likely to go on alluding to Canadian affairs wholly unconscious of the remarks or even of the existence, of the Chatham Planet; but we should be curious to see whether the latter will regard as more intelligent, the remarks of the Times, or Canadian protectionist [illegible] of the correspondents, or the utterances of [illegible] British papers on things Canadian on the merits they display. This can be best judged on the data from which their deductions are drawn; and it is observable that however wrong they may be in minor details, they are pretty safe in main facts. The views they take of what are know to be facts, are worthy of the best Canadian consideration, joined as they must be with those Imperial interests and British opinions on which Canada depends for her political existence.

Starved to Death.

TORONTO, Oct. 14.—A German bricklayer's assistant named John Hadir died of starvation this morning at 26 St. Lawrence street, Toronto. He met with an accident some weeks ago, and was confined to bed. His wife was also recently ill, and since then the whole family of four have been literally starving. The man's pride would not allow him to make his condition known.

The New Cabinet.

MONTREAL, Oct. 14.—Sir John Macdonald stated to-day that no advance in forming a Cabinet would be made until the arrival of Mr. Masson, M. P.. The latter arrived in New York by the French line and is expected here to-morrow. He is said to be too ill to accept a seat in the Cabinet. The new Ministers will probably be sworn in to-morrow, immediately after the arrival of Mr. Masson. Among the gentlemen mentioned to be in the Cabinet is Hon. H. L. Langevin, and many of the Premier's warmest supporters feel very keenly the indiscretion which characterises such an evil choice. The latest rumor says that Hon. J. A. Chapleau, ex-Provincial Secretary, is to be one of the Ministers representing this Province. The other names regarded as certain to be chosen are Hon. Senator Macpherson, Hon. Dr. Tupper, Hon. J. Pope, of P. E. I.; Hon. J. H. Pope, of Compton; Messrs. Masson, McKenzie Bowell, James Macdonald, Hon. John O'Conner, and Hon. Mr. Tilley. Among the most probable ones to fill the other two places are Senator Trudel and Mr. McCarthy.

LINDSAY.

LIBERAL COLLECTION.—The offering in St. Mary's Church last Sunday in response to Father Stafford's appeal for aid for those suffering from the effects of yellow fever in the South amounted to the handsome sum of $310.

WINDING UP BUSINESS AND GOING WEST.—The community will learn with regret that Mr. C. L. Baker has decided to wind up business here and remove to the North Western States. His departure next spring will leave a void in our business circles that will scarcely be filled, for it is not likely that his various lines will be carried on by one man. We believe Mr. Baker has decided to establish his new home in Fargo, a thriving town, nearly as large as Lindsay, on the Northern Pacific Railway, where it crosses Red River. It is on the eastern boundary of Dakotah, and is some 250 miles south of Winnipeg. The surrounding country is similar to the finest Manitoba and Minnesota districts, and farming is there conducted on a large scale and under most favorable conditions.

BAPTISM.—In the course of an excellent sermon on the parable of the talents last day evening, Dr. Jeffers took occasion to condemn the practice of betting on the results of athletic sports, and particularly the boat-race, and its apparent sanction by the press. He considered the development of bodily strength and prowess as right and proper, but when the ambition occasioned all others led to such wholesale betting as was done, then was prowess put to a wrong purpose. This form of gambling he believed should be prohibited by law as well as other forms.—Free.

BELLEVILLE.

A GOOD SALE.—The Grangers of Ameliasburg asked for tenders for about 30,000 bushels of barley held jointly by them. The tenders were to be sealed, and four were put in. Mr. W. Crawford, who represents Chapman & Son, of Toronto, was the highest bidder, offering $1.17, and his tender was accepted.

NORTH HASTINGS RAILWAY.—At the annual meeting of the shareholders of the Belleville and North Hastings Railway Company the following directors were elected:—M. Bowell, M. P., Hector Cameron, M. P., D'Arcy Boulton A. F. Wood, A. Hugel, W. A. Foote, and James Crossen. The directors subsequently met and appointed the following officers:—President, M. Bowell, M. P.; Secretary-Treasurer, Wm. Sutherland, jr.; Solicitor, N. B. Falkner.

THE GRAND JUNCTION.—The City Council have accepted a proposition from the Grand Junction Railway Co. to make one-half of the bonus of $50,000 voted by the city payable when the line is completed to Hastings and the remainder when it is finished to Peterboro'. The Company bind themselves, if this be done, to enter into a contract with Messrs Bickford & Co. to complete the road to Hastings by the 1st of August next, and to Peterboro' by January 1st, 1880, and to put the line in operation to Stirling at once. Bickford & Co have consequently commenced work. They have secured two thousand tons of steel rails, which are at Montreal.

NARROW ESCAPE.—Sunday afternoon a horse belonging to Mr. Peter Aikens became restive on the west bridge over the Grand Trunk, and backed up against the railing, which gave away, and horse, man and vehicle fell upon the railway track, twenty feet below. The man escaped with not very severe injuries, but the horse's back was broken by the fall, and the animal had to be killed. The buggy was smashed.

Courtney is said to have admitted to a New York correspondent that Hanlan is the best sculler the sun shines on; that he passed him when he liked, and was not then doing his best.

Never Put Off Until To-Morrow what you can do To-Day

To an old but significant adage. The reader of this article has an opportunity to save money, and that opportunity should not be put off, lest the morrow never comes. By all means select your FALL BOOTS, SHOES, and RUBBERS from the New Goods now being opened out at S. White's, Sign of the Golden Boot. The choice is the largest ever submitted, and the prices are still lower than any house in town, and bear in mind that the cut, style and finish is very superb. It is a duty which every man owes to himself and family in such times as these, to give such houses his patronage, and save money by it.

PETERBOROUGH, OCT. 17, 1878.

LOCAL NEWS.

Trance.—Read Mr. G. W. Hotchkin's advertisement in another column.

The Pulpit.—Rev. D. S. Muldhern, of Almonte, occupied the pulpit of the Baptist Church on Sunday last.

Personal.—The Rev. Dr. Grant of Queen's College, Kingston, occupied the pulpit of St. Paul's Church, on Sunday last.

Masonic.—Rev. Vincent Clementi, of Peterborough was elected Grand Prelate at the Grand Priory of Canada, held last week in Montreal.

Cheap Excursion.—About 175 persons availed themselves of the cheap excursion to Toronto on Wednesday, the tickets being good for six days.

East Riding Show.—A report of the East Riding Agricultural Society's Fall Show, and the prize list of the same will be found on our fourth page.

St. Paul's Church.—There will be a special sermon to young men by Rev. E. F. Torrence, on Sunday evening next. Subject, "Are the Scriptures Inspired?"

Social.—A social in aid of the library fund of the George-street Methodist Church School will be held this evening in the basement of the church. Tickets five cents.

Gone a Hunting.—Several Peterborough gentlemen have gone on their usual annual hunting tour. Plenty of sport and well filled game bags is our wish for them!

Reform Club Meeting.—As many members of the Young Men's Reform Club as can make it convenient, are requested to attend the meeting to-night in their rooms, at 7.30 p. m. Business of importance will be transacted.

Hymeneal.—Mr. C. O. Alexander, of Barrie, yesterday led to the altar, Miss Minnie Edith, third daughter of the late Charles Parry, Esq. They left on the evening train for a tour. We tender them our warmest congratulations.

Fall Assizes.—The Fall Assizes opened yesterday in Bradburn's Hall, the Court Room being undergoing repairs. In the absence of Mr. Justice Gwynne the Court was opened by Judge Dean'stown and adjourned till this morning.

Counterfeit Money.—We understand that several of our merchants had counterfeit five dollar bills of the Bank of Commerce passed upon them last Saturday. The imitation is said to be remarkably clever, and only those who are quite familiar with the genuine article can easily detect it.

Personal.—Mr. F. J. Hall, of Cobourg, late of the firm of Jeffrey & Hall, has left Cobourg to settle in Walkerton, the flourishing county town of Bruce, where he has purchased an extensive hardware business. We are sure his numerous friends in this locality wish him an abundant business success.

Clean the Grain.—We cannot impress the agriculturist too much with the idea that the cleaning of his grain as much as possible means an increase in its value. This has been a point in regard to which the grain merchants have long been particular, and hence the farmer should profit by his experience.

Mendelssohn Quintette Club.—This Company gave an entertainment in the Opera House on Tuesday evening to a fair audience. The high standard which this Club occupies in the musical world made their visit here one of the events of the season. All the old favorites are still with the organization, and they fully sustained their reputation.

The Fastest Time on Record.—In answer to numerous enquiries respecting the fastest mile on record, we inform our readers that Joshua Ward rowed at Staten Island, N. Y., on the 11th of October, 1858, five miles in 26 minutes and 16 seconds. In England the fastest championship time—distance, four miles and three-eighths—was made by James Renforth in 23. 15, with the tide, although the same course has been rowed in 22.58.

Annigama?—The Globe says:—It is understood negotiations are being carried on between the Montreal and Dominion Telegraph Companies with a view to pooling their revenues on a per centage basis. The practical end of this proposition is the extinction of all competition between the companies, the closing up of a number of branch offices in large cities, and the amalgamation of the joint business in numerous towns and villages throughout the country.

New to Business.—As the fall show season is nearly over, the farmers' attention, which for several weeks is usually taken up with these, is being turned to disposing of the year's crop, and in spite of the low prices large quantities of grain may be expected in town during the next few weeks. Our merchants are fully prepared for business, and can give good value for all the money farmers or others have to spend for goods. We hope to see the fall a lively one with business men.

New Music.—The "Champion Waltz," another acceptable contribution to the album of the pianist, from the pen of Mr. Albert Nordheimer, has just been published. It is embellished with a title page bearing a faithful photograph of Hanlan in his shell, and its appearance is elegantly appropriate at the present moment, when the people of the Dominion are talking of nothing but the exploits of the "Island boy." The music is bright and captivating, merits being very pretty. The new waltz should become very popular.

Encounter with Lynxes.—One evening last week while Mr. James Argue, foreman on Mr. James Elliott's stock farm in Harvey, was out in the fields counting the cattle, he saw what appeared to him to be two wolves running from the vicinity of the herd. Having his gun and a dog with him he started in pursuit, and soon treed the animals, which turned out to be two large lynxes. One of them took up a position about 40 feet from the ground and the other about 60 feet, but were speedily brought down by two well-directed shots. After a short but fierce struggle, the dog assisted by Mr. Argue succeeded in killing them.

A Big Push.—Most of the country news papers are now making a "big push" to gather in their subscription and patty printing and advertising accounts. They all seem determined to commence early in this matter, and like Ulysses S. Grant, to fight it out all winter on that line if necessary. It will not be necessary except in the case of a few hard cases, for the unanswerable fly going to pay up promptly this fall—and only newspaper publishers but everyone else. By the way why should not all the papers combine and publish a list of the hard cases, "don't pays," etc., who collect not only them but honest merchants. Such list published under the auspices of a local committee would have a good effect, and then honest men would get their own.

Obituary.—The decease of W. Mercer, Esq., Merchant Teller, of this town, will be learned with surprise by many of his numerous friends. Although suffering for some time from Asthma, he was not considered until very lately in danger by his family. He was able to attend to his business until about two weeks ago, and was not confined to his room more than that time. His decease, therefore, when learned, took many by surprise. Mr. Mercer was a native of Scotland, but had been in business in this town about twenty years, and during that time has been very highly respected by all who knew him for his straightforward dealing and honorable character. His remains were followed to their last resting place on Monday by a very large funeral cortege.

A Warning to Shoemakers.—The jealous wife of a Cincinnati shoemaker admitted that it was necessary for him to put on women the new shoes that they bought, but the objected to his performing that service in the case of old and consequently easy shoes. A young woman went into his shop to have her shoe mended while she waited. When it was finished she placed her foot in his lap to have it put on and buttoned. While he was absorbed in this his wife came to the door, and the scene aroused her jealousy. She went out and got a clothes line, doubled it to convenient length, came back, and remarking that she had been married to him fifteen years, and he had never offered to put on her shoes, she gave him a lashing with the rope in the presence of the innocent customer.

The Weather.—The most inveterate grumbler could by no possibility find cause to complain of in the weather, thus far, this autumn. It has been, in fact, the perfection of temperature and beauty—warmth that is not summer heat, and nights that do not attain to an unpleasant degree of cold. The frost has held off, and the foliage of the forest is, in almost summer freshness. Deshes of color may be found here and there, it is true, just enough to give beauty and variety to the landscape. The crimson maple has taken on its gaudy tints of scarlet, and the beech is tinged with yellow, and the oak is of a deeper brown, but some can deny that we have had a season of unusual length, and every possible opportunity has been afforded the tenderfoot to gather the abundant fruits of the earth.

Serious Fire.—On Saturday night last, the Phœnix Planing Mill, occupied by Mr. W. Rombough, as a sash, door and blind factory; and by Messrs. Hosback & McKee as a furniture factory, was totally destroyed by fire, together with the contents of the same. Fortunately the night was very calm, and by the timely arrival of the Steamer and the Third Ward engine, the Mills and lumber in the yard adjoining were saved, and the fire confined to the building in which it originated. Mr. Rombough's loss on machinery and stock is about $5,000, insured in the Royal of Liverpool for $2,000. Messrs. Hosback & McKee loss between $300 and $400; no insurance. The building was owned by the Dickson Estate, and was insured in the Western for $1,600; loss about $2,000. The origin of the fire is unknown, but is supposed to have been the work of an incendiary, or caused by tramps or vagrants who may have frequented the Mill. We are requested by Mr. Hazlitt to return thanks on behalf of the Dickson Estate to the members of the Fire Brigade and citizens who so energetically worked to save their property.

Queen's College Endowment.—On Monday evening last, the Rev. D. J. Macdonnell and Principal Grant addressed a meeting in St. Andrew's Church, on behalf of the endowment fund of Queen's College. Judge Dana'sston presided. The speakers gave a short history of the establishment of the College and its work since; and forcibly appealing to the their hearers to assist in making up the $150,000 which was now asked for, in order that the facilities for imparting knowledge in the University might be increased to a measure commensurate with the work it was intended to do. There was no denominational distinction made with students attending this College, which was open to all comers. It was worthy of endowment on account of its history. It had turned out the best of High School teachers, leading barristers and doctors, and had prepared men who held positions that only men of education could do. The appeal which was now being made was being generously responded to, as already between $120,000 and $130,000 was subscribed. At the close of the meeting a resolution was moved by Mr. Carnegie, seconded by Rev. E. F. Torrance, expressive of the sympathy of the meeting in the endowment movement, and promising it support.

Sabbath School Convention.—On our first page will be found a brief synopsis of the 15th annual convention of the Canada Sabbath School Association which was held in Peterborough last week, and was in every way a successful one. Delegates from various parts of Ontario, especially, were present, and took part in the discussions and addresses. From the reports of committees read, the Association appears to be doing a good work in arousing a warmer interest in Sabbath Schools and in placing before teachers a high standard of qualification, as well as in organizing Sabbath Schools in some of the new settlements, where religious work of any kind has not yet been systematically provided for. The Association suffers in common with all other enterprises from the pressure of the times. Its funds are low; indeed the Treasurer, the Hon. John McMurrich, reported the Association in debt about $1,200. An effort was made at the Convention to remove this, which, although not entirely successful, provided for a considerable portion of the deficiency. The meetings were largely attended by citizens, and were both entertaining and instructive. The hints on the practical work of the Sabbath School teacher were calculated to awaken and stimulate, and to ensure better and more systematic preparation before appearing before the classes. The high standard sought to be placed before all engaged as Sabbath School teachers and superintendents, may discourage some as impossible of attainment, but it is better to err in thus fixing a high standard than in making it too low, as no matter what is sought, the tendency is to something a little lower. If half the interest that appeared to actuate the speakers at the convention could be carried home by the delegates and brought into activity, we might hope for a higher standard of morality in all the diversified walks of life. At the close of the convention work several very excellent resolutions were recognized as intimately connected with Sabbath Schools. One of these was temperance, but experience goes to prove that the temperance work is too often submitted in the form of resolutions, and left there, not only by Sabbath Schools but by Church conventions, under whatever name they may be convened. It is encouraging, however, to find the public mind returning to the necessity for temperance reformation, and in this there is cause to hope for a brighter future, and we trust, less selfish activity than we generally witness.

A Special Meeting.—A Trip to Hastings.

A special meeting of the Town Council was held last Tuesday evening. Present,—His Worship the Mayor and Councillors McBain, Ormond, Paterson, Hughes, Rutherford and Dumble.

The Mayor explained that the reason why he had called the Council together was to entertain an invitation from Mr. Abbt. Thompson, proprietor of the Steamer Arlington, to an excursion to Hastings on Friday next.

Councillor Ormond moved, seconded by Councillor McBain,—That the communication from Mr. Thompson be received.—Carried.

The following accounts were presented:

Wm. Scullie, cleaning hose	$2 00
W. S. Cox " "	7 00

On motion of Councillor McBain, seconded by Councillor Hughes, the accounts were ordered to be paid.

Moved by Councillor Paterson, seconded by Councillor McBain,—That the invitation of Mr. Thompson to this Council for a free trip on his Steamer to Hastings and return on Friday be accepted, and that the thanks of this Council be tendered to him for the same.—Carried unanimously.

Moved by Councillor McBain, seconded by Councillor Dewis,—That the Clerk be authorized to have one hundred tickets printed for the excursion for distribution.—Carried.

The Council separated.

Disputed Title.

However varied may be the opinions concerning the validity of Hagyard's title to the Pectoral, there is not a question in the minds of either Doctors or Laymen but even one in a thousand of the persons poisoned, with the consequent right of Dr. Hagyard's family, to the use of the name. Listen to the voice of the people:

NEW ORLEANS, June 26th, 1876.

Dr. R. V. Pierce, Buffalo, N.Y.:

Dear Sir—I am Postmaster, Constable, Police-man to my family, and Physician to the whole of the people in this warm climate, where bilious affections are particularly prevalent. I purchase of the best confidence in Dr. Hagyard's Yellow Dock and Sarsaparilla Pectoral. Yours truly, JOHN C. HEINEMAN.

NEW ORLEANS, July 15th, 1876.

LITERARY.

Canadian Monthly.—The October number of the New Bedford Canadian Monthly opens with interesting extracts from Mrs. Jameson Brenner's late work, "Voyages in the Sunbeam," and a view of a Chinese pagoda and boats. Professor Lyall contributes a criticism on Tennyson, and Mrs. Frances Rye an interesting paper on "European Peasants." There are also several poems, among which are "The Leper Knight," a legend of Malta, by Carrol Ryan; "Sonnet," by H. L. Spencer; "Ma Chamberette," by Madame Giandenwyn, with a translation by John Reade. Among the other articles are "A Quarrel with the Nineteenth Century," by Martin J. Griffin; "The Winning Card," by Edgar Fawcett, and "The Academy and the Grove in Canada," by J. Allen Jack, B.C.L.

Canadian Methodist Magazine.—The Canadian Methodist Magazine for October opens with two illustrated articles containing each thirteen beautiful engravings. The first is an account of a trip to the famous Lehigh Valley, Penn., and the second is a description of the grand scenery on some of the "Northern Lakes of Canada." "The Infancy of the Earth" is an extremely interesting scientific article, giving the opinions of different astronomers concerning the primary formation of the earth. "A Hundred Years Ago" is a review of Lesky's late work, "England in the Eighteenth Century." "The King's Messenger," a serial story of Canadian life, gives a sketch of pioneer life in Muskoka. Other articles of interest are, "Odd Characters," by a city missionary, "The Early Story of Newfoundland," by Jessie Cameron, and "Bartholomew Bull—the Patriarch of Spadina," by Rev. John Carroll, D.D.

BRIEF MENTIONS.

—Weather variable and turning cold.

—Venison will soon be on hand. It will come as dear as usual this season.

—The man who can hum a hymn while joining a stove-pipe, is good enough to walk right into full membership in any church without probation.

—Is there a scientific man in the country who can tell, after a cook gets a hole in it, what becomes of the material that once took the place of the aperatures?

—The name of a New Hampshire school teacher is May L. Cough. It is much more natural to hear school teachers addressed as "May I Cough?"

—Danbury News: "One hundred and fifty tons of coal have been purchased for the Centre district schools. Coal is much pleasanter than black for warming scholars."

—Is there a scribbler who's soul so dead
Who never to himself has said
"That vacation gave me a clearer head,
And made my scissors sharper?"

—Mr. O'Donnell has given good satisfaction this season by the attention that he has given to his contract in the watering of the streets. The job could not have been in better hands.

—This is a perilous season for a newspaper. It is liable to overlook the fact that one of its constant readers took the second prize for crook-neck squashes—in which event is acquires a bitter enemy.

—An old bachelor said: "There is more jewellery worn nowadays than when I was young; but there's one piece I always admired which I don't often see now." "What is that?" asked a young lady. "A thimble," was the reply.

—A young man advertises in the Colborne Express that "he is in good standing in society, is twenty-five years of age, and wishes to correspond with a young lady of good social repute, of about the same age, with a view to matrimony."

—Some fellow has written a poem to his girl, beginning: "If thou couldst only know." Yes, if she could only know the number of old socks he is saving up to be darned, and the dilapidated apparel that she will be expected to resuscitate, we have no doubt the course of his true love would begin to be less smooth.

Rev. Mr. Millard, General Secretary, read a letter from Mr R. S Porter, Secretary of the Victoria County Association who reported that in all parts of that county the information received as to the work was of the most satisfactory character.

Rev. John McEwen then conducted a Bible reading.

It was unanimously agreed that the General Secretary be instructed to send a telegram to the Nova Scotia Sunday School Association, now in convention at Truro, conveying the greetings of this body.

Two able and interesting papers were then read as bearing upon the general topic for the session, namely, "Our Work"—that of Rev. T. F. Fotheringham, M. A., of Norwood, dealing especially with the lessons, and that of Mr D. C. McHenry, M. A., Cobourg, with qualified teachers. An interesting discussion took place on the latter paper, the experience of teachers and superintendents being related and many practical suggestions evoked.

The business Committee reported the Executive Committee, their report being adopted :—

The report was adopted.

The solo "Keep Me From Sinking" was then sung by Mr. J. D. Shoffer, who, it may be mentioned, has conducted the singing of the Convention throughout with great efficiency, Miss Jones, of Cobourg, acting as accompanist at the organ with equal success

An interesting and instructive normal class lesson on the subject of the Sabbath School teacher's preparation was given by Rev Mr. McEwen, of Ingersoll. The illustration of his method was received with great favour by the Convention, and amply accounted for his success in this class of work.

The doxology was then sung.

Rev. Dr. O'Meara, of Port Hope, pronounced the benediction, and the services of the session closed.

AFTERNOON SESSION.

After the opening exercises,

Mr. Daniel McLean, Toronto, delivered an address on "Our work promoted by County and other Associations," in which he showed how Sunday School and Church work had been stimulated, a better mutual feeling produced, and better systems of teaching introduced by the influence of these Associations.

Rev. John McEwen discussed the subject of how the work had been promoted by normal class instruction, and concluded by presenting a memorial from the normal class in Ingersoll, briefly setting forth how greatly they had been advanced by that system of training.

Rev. A. Andrews delivered an address on "How our Work has been promoted by Teacher's Meetings," in the course of which he spoke in the highest terms of weekly reunions of teachers.

Rev. Mr. Mulhern gave a brief verbal report on Sabbath School work in the Ottawa Valley stating that it was being conducted progressively and intelligently.

Short addresses followed on the subject of the promotion of the work by County Associations, Teachers' Meetings, &c., the opinion generally expressed being in favour of these auxiliaries to Sabbath School instruction.

The session closed at five o'clock.

EVENING SESSION.

The Convention reassembled at 7.30, the President in the chair. The opening services were conducted by Rev. Mr. Roberts, Peterborough.

After routine, the subject "Our work promoted by Christian love and sympathy" was discussed in eloquent addresses by Rev. Messrs. Coverdale Watson, and G. S. Mulhern.

Rev Mr. Andrews, from the Committee on Resolutions, reported to the following effect, the items being adopted seriatim :—(1) Pledging continued support to the mission work to the Association, (2) Expressing satisfaction that the next International Convention is to be held in Toronto. (3) Pledging the best endeavours of individual delegates to organise new county associations where they do not exist. (4) Requesting the Executive Committee to draw up a brief circular letter to county secretaries, setting forth what is required of them in reporting to the Provincial Association. (5) Approving of the practice of weekly reviews of the previous Sabbath's lesson by the superintendent of the school before the study of the day's lesson is undertaken in the classes. Monthly and quarterly reviews are also highly recommended. (6) Reaffirming the sense of the Association of the importance of normal class work, and recommending the formation of the classes in cities towns, and smaller places wherever practicable. (7) Recommending teachers' minutes. (8) Expressing the conviction of the Association that definite efforts ought to be made in every Sunday School on behalf of total abstinence, and commencing the formation of Bands of Hope in connection with schools. (9) Approving of the work brought to the attention of the Association by delegates from the Y. M. C. Association. The report concluded with a number of votes of thanks.

The remainder of the session was devoted to farewell addresses.

EAST RIDING SHOW.

A Successful Exhibition—Large Attendance.

(By our own Reporter.)

The Tenth Annual Exhibition of the East Riding of Peterborough Agricultural Society was held at Keene, on Thursday and Friday last. The first day was occupied in the usual preparations, and the second was the day for the crowd. The weather being the most delightful of the season, gave the people of the township and adjacent localities, an opportunity of seeing the show, which was admitted by all to be equal, if not superior, on the whole, to any exhibition yet held under the auspices of this Society. The Judges, we are informed, expressed the opinion that they had not seen a better show of horses this year. The improvement in draught horses being especially noticeable. In the cattle department though there were not many pure bred animals there were some excellent grades, which shows that the farmers are introducing well bred sires into the riding. With the exception of Southdowns a marked improvement was noticeable in the various classes of sheep. In pigs the display was large, while in poultry there was an average exhibit. Potatoes, though good quality were not shown in great numbers. Other root crops were largely represented, and comprised some enormous specimens. The moist weather of the present season has proven particularly favorable for roots, whatever it may or may not have been for other crops, and some of the specimens we saw on Friday were simply immense.

Inside of the Town Hall was the special centre of attraction for the mass of visitors, the ladies especially manifesting great interest in the display of braiding, embroidery, and other articles of a kindred description. Many of these betokened great taste and skill, and the display was decidedly in advance of any previous year.

Mr. W. T. Mather made an exceedingly fine show of carriages, which would compare with anything in this line shown by any one exhibitor in the province this season. His exhibit consisted of a farm or market waggon, with a soft maple box, varnished, with spring seat and shelving, and was finished in good style; an open buggy, cut under, piano box; one double seated cut under carriage, one top buggy, piano box, trimmed with green Morroco; one Dexter Buggy, trimmed with green leather and black Morroco, with a Gothic raise in the fall, and Boston cushion with a fall back front, dash raised; one phaeton, body lined with green leather and black Morroco, double winged, and a portable seat in front; one piano box buggy, three spriners, dropped back, pipe fall, trimmed in moquettes; one Portland cutter, elaborately trimmed in moquettes, shewing good workmanship throughout. The trimming was done by Mr John King, of Lindsay, and the painting by Mr. S. Mather, and was a credit to both.

Messrs. Fisher & Partlif also exhibited two buggies and two waggons, which will prove serviceable articles.

The usual agricultural machines of different manufacturers were on exhibition. There was $186.63 taken at the gate, being the largest amount yet taken in gate money in the Riding.

The Directors and Officers of the Society always active and energetic, this year excelled themselves, and being favored with particularly bright weather, their efforts were rewarded with a good show. The Secretary, Mr. W. E. Roxburgh, has worked indefatigably, and devoted a large share of his time to the affairs of the Society, and the result of his labor cannot but be very gratifying to him. We have not attempted to particularize any of the exhibitors, that is always an invidious and thankless task, and we prefer to allow our readers to judge for themselves from the prize list.

The Norwood Brass Band contributed largely to the enjoyment of the day by a number of selections in good style. This Band is rapidly improving under the leadership of Mr. W. H. Mullins, who is a painstaking and active leader. He lately procured a handsome 4 in 1 silver cornet, the beauty of which caused considerable comment.

JOY AMONG THE CHILDREN.

Copeland's Sweet Castor Oil, equally suitable for children and adults. Endorsed by over 6 0 doctors in Canada The difficulty of administering nauseous medicines and the desirability of having them pleasant to the taste, induced T. Copeland to undertake researches, which resulted in the discovery of a Sweet Castor Oil, perfectly palatable, of the same strength and medical qualities as the ordinary Castor Oil; and while equally safe and harmless yet acting with more certainty, and producing neither nausea nor griping. Some children say it is honey: others call it syrup—they all say they like it. One parent says "My children drink it like water;" another—"We had to hide the bottle or they would have finished it right off;" another—"My little girl has taken it twice without any trouble, and does not know what it is, though she hates the ordinary Castor Oil, and we never could get her to take it without a fight;" yet another—"I wish you success of your Sweet Castor Oil; it is a splendid thing—sure to take the place of all common oil."

The extraordinary demand for this improvement of a staple household medicine has brought fraudulent imitations into the market, but the public can guard themselves against substitutes (which unprincipled parties are attempting to sell on the reputation of this article) by seeing that the name, Copeland's Sweet Castor Oil, is on both wrapper and direction label.

The undersigned having purchased Messrs T. Copeland & Co's interest in the above preparation, are now manufacturing it from the original recipe.

Mitchell's Belladonna Improved India Rubber Porous Paster.

There never has been a time when the healing of so many different diseases has been treated by outward application as the present. It is an undisputed fact that over half of the entire population of the globe resort to the use of ordinary plasters.

The principal ingredients used in making these Plasters are Gum Olibanum—or better known as the Frankincense of the Bible—Rubber, and Burgundy Pitch; which, when scientifically compounded, is full of electricity, and when combined with the pure medicinal gums, is found to be one greatest healing mediums ever brought before the human race

They are acknowledged by all who have used them to act quicker than any other Plasters they ever before tried, and that one of these Plasters will do more real service than a hundred of the ordinary kind. All other Plasters are slow of action, and require to be worn continually to effect a cure; but with these it is entirely different; the instant one is applied the patient will feel its effect.

They possess all the soothing, warming, supporting and strengthening qualities of all other Plasters. Many who have been relieved of RHEUMATISM, TICDOLOREUX, and various other pains in the KIDNEYS, BREAST or SIDE, and believe it is solely done by the electrical qualities which the Porous Plasters contain, and which is imparted to the system, thus restoring them to a healthy condition,

They are very soft and pliable, still very adhesive; and a sure cure for WEAK BACKS PAINS IN THE SIDE AND BREAST, and are invaluable to those who have a COLD of long standing, and often prevents CONSUMPTION. Some even tell us they believe they were entirely cured by the use of them of a long seated Consumption.

ELECTRICITY.

Thomas' Eclectric Electric Oil—Worth Ten Times its Weight in Gold—Pain Cannot stay where it is used.

It is the cheapest medicine ever made. One dose cures common sore throat. One bottle has cured Bronchitis. Fifty cents worth has cured an old standing cough. It positively cures catarrh, asthma, and croup. Fifty cents worth has cured crick in the back, and the same quantity home made of eight years' standing. It cures swelled neck, tumors, rheumatism, neuralgia, contraction of the muscles, stiff joints, spinal difficulties, and pain and soreness in any part, no matter where it may be, nor from what cause it may arise, it always cures you good. Twenty-five cents worth has cured bad cases of chronic and bloody dysentery. One tea-spoonful cures colic in 15 minutes. It will cure any case of piles that it is possible to cure. Six or eight applications is warranted to cure any case of excoriated nipples or inflamed breast. For erysipelas, if applied often and bound up, there is never the slightest discoloration to the skin. It stops the pain of a burn as soon as applied. Cures inward flux, colic, worms, and cures and troubles of every description on man or beast

Beware of Imitations.—Ask for Dr. Thomas' Eclectric Oil. See that the signature of S. R. Thomas is on the wrapper, and the names of Northrop & Lyman are blown in the bottle, and take no other. A MAIDEN'S SOLILOQUY.

Uneasily, aimlessly, drifting through life.
What was I born for? "For somebody's wife"
I am told by my mother. Well, that being true,
Somebody keeps himself strangely from view.
And if naught but marriage will settle my fate
I believe I shall die in an unsettled state:
For though I'm not ugly—what woman is?—
You might possibly find a more beautiful phiz.
And then as for temper and manners, 'tis plain
Who seeks for perfection will seek here in vain.
Nay, in spite of them dreadbooks my heart is perverse,
And I should not feel grateful for better or worse
To take the first body that graciously came
And offered these treasures—his home and his name.
I think, then, my chances of marriage are small.
But why should I think of such chances at all?
My brothers are all of them younger than I
Yet they thrive in the world, and why not let me try?
I know this is business [illegible] an adept.
[illegible] from book [illegible] kept,
But—this is the question that troubles my mind
Why am I not trained to work of some kind?
Uneasily, aimlessly, drifting through life.
Why should I wait to be somebody's wife?

MURDER AT OTTAWA.

The Death of Fireman McAuley—A Supposed Case of Suicide Developes into one of Murder—The Victim believed to have been shot and thrown into the river—The Hon. John O'Connor.

OTTAWA, Oct. 18.—Recent developments go to show that fireman McAuley, whose remains were found yesterday in the Ottawa river, about fourteen miles from the city, was murdered in cold blood. The medical evidence revealed the fact that deceased met his death by a bullet shot in the head. The ball had entered near the right temple, about an inch above the ear, and half an inch forward. It went forward, striking the frontal bone, and then passed down a little, failing to penetrate the bone on the right cheek. On a line with the jaws was an abrasion a couple of inches in length. It is evident that he was shot by some party who stepped up to him from behind. The question of suicide cannot now be entertained for a moment, for deceased could never have shot himself in the manner mentioned and then thrown himself into the water. The medical men give it as their opinion that he was dead before being placed in the water and struck on the cheek with a stick before being shot. So far no evidence has been elicited to implicate anyone in the murder, but suspicion points to one or two parties, who are being watched by the detectives. No stone is being left unturned to probe the matter to the bottom and discover the murderer, if possible. Until the post mortem examination was held to-day, it was very generally believed that McAuly had committed suicide on account of some dispute it was alleged he had had with the young lady he was keeping company with. This theory, however, has been exploded, and there is not the slightest doubt but that he was murdered, robbed, and then thrown into the river.

The evidence of the young lady goes to show that the deceased called on her on the evening of the 1st inst., and remained until twenty five minutes after ten o'clock, and then left for the station to go on duty, having five minutes to spare. He never reached the station.

Deceased was thirty-three years of age, and had resided in Ottawa for a number of years. At the time of his death he was Grand Chaplain of the Orange Young Britons.

The appointment of Hon. John O'Connor, to such an unimportant position as President of the Council, in which he will have no charge of a department, has given considerable offence to the Irish Roman Catholic population. It is taken as an insult, and threats of vengeance are loud.

It is a source of general surprise that Sir John should have so wronged the Province of Ontario as to give the two foremost important portfolios to the Eastern Provinces. So far as the city is concerned the excitement in regard to political changes has been completely temporarily, eclipsed by the discovery of the brutal murder of the Orangeman McAuley.

THE ORANGE TRIALS.

A Verdict of "Not Guilty" on the Charge of Unlawful Assembling.

Evidence in the Case—Individual Cases—The Judge's Charge—Mayor Rose Mackay's Action Endorsed—The Remaining Prosecutions Dropped—Discharge of the Rest of the Defendants—Further Action in the Matter.

His Honour, Mr. Justice Ramsay, in his closing remarks to the Jury on the Orange Case in Montreal, on Thursday last, said that while the indictment had been very properly brought up by Mr. Carter, he thought that there was not sufficient evidence to warrant the case proceeding. His Honour then delivered his charge to the jury. He said:—"The case is one arising out of the unfortunate trouble of the 12th of July, to which it is unnecessary for me to refer. The indictment is not framed under the statutes of the second year of her Majesty's reign, but is under common law, which declares that when men assemble with the intention of obtaining an object, even be it a lawful one, by unlawful means, the assembly shall be deemed unlawful. Now in this case there is not one title of evidence to show that it was an unlawful meeting, or that the Orange Order is an unlawful society. This is not charged in the indictment, nor has there been any attempt to prove it. These men were not feared as the perpetrators of unlawful acts, but were exposed to the unlawful acts of others in doing what, so far as we know, they had a perfect right to do. The Orange procession is a ridiculous one, dressed out in these trumperies which give offence to some persons, but they are not obliged to expose themselves to be so offended. They might have remained at home in their houses. We are told there were some 5,000 persons on the street. Mr. Mercer more moderately says 2,000, and it is to be hoped that there are not more than 2,000 persons so foolish as to waste a day in that manner. Well, we must enquire, Was the act of the Orangemen in assembling a criminal one? I have spared no trouble since I know this matter was to come up for trial in studying the case, and I must tell you that it was not a criminal act. The conduct of the Mayor has unanimously been brought into the case, and as such is the case the Court may refer to it. It may be open to criticism or discussion but it appears to the Court that he acted discretely and wisely, and not only was it his right but his bounded duty to adopt any means possible for the maintenance of peace. His act was that of preventing the madman from throwing himself into the river to test some life saving powers.

His Honour having presented the case to the jury, the form was observed, and the jurors arose and declared the defendants to be not guilty of participating in an unlawful assembling.

MONTREAL, Oct. 18.—At the opening of the Court of Queen's Bench this morning, Judge Ramsay presiding, his Honour asked Mr. Carter whether he had decided to carry on the prosecutions against the other defendants or not, to which that gentleman replied that he had been requested by his clients to state that their object had been obtained and they were pleased that his Honour's decision met with the approval of the other Judges on the Bench. They did not want to punish or persecute the defendants, but merely to have the law clearly explained on the subject.

His HONOUR—It was impossible with the evidence you had, to come to any other decision. But I may say that the persons belonging to such societies who assemble together will subject themselves to the peril of the law. It seems the cases were fairly brought to Court. The Council and Mayor could not do otherwise than they did.

The defendants were then brought in "Not guilty," and discharged by the Court. Same jury acting in each case.

Mr. Joseph Doutre, Q.C., Counsel for the Orangemen, was asked whether the decision given by the Court would hinder the members of the Orange order from walking in a body to church on the next 12th of July. Mr. Doutre said it was impossible to rightly answer the question at present. The matter would be decided in a higher Court. Suits arising out of the recent prosecutions would immediately be instituted in the Superior Court, and this would be the first step towards having the matter sifted in the higher tribunals and the Privy Council.

Seven of the Orangemen who were arrested are going to sue Mayor Beaudry for damages.

Sir John Macdonald's Responsibility.

(From the Lindsay Post.)

It was at Peterborough Sir John Macdonald declared with impious fervour his wish to God that he could catch Riel, the while he had sent that archrebel a thousand pounds to get out of the country. It is not, therefore, unnatural that the Peterborough Review, with this glaring exhibition of it leader's characteristic hypocrisy engraven in its memory, should be impelled to depart from the customary servility of Tory journals, and denounce the "Chieftain" as to his duty in the present crisis of the country's fortunes! The Review says:—

"If great the success of the advocates of a truly National Policy for Canada at the polls, great is the responsibility thus cast upon the shoulders of the successful party, and especially upon Sir John A. Macdonald, their leader, by its ratification by the electorate. * * * In the whole history of his political career Sir John Macdonald never had the House, and, what is still better, the country, so thoroughly at his back as he has it at the present time. In the new House he will be able to treat with contempt a threatened kicking over the traces by any of his supporters on any but good public grounds, and thus be able to set at defiance those who have other than their country's good to serve. That Sir John Macdonald will be equal to the task which the country has imposed upon him we firmly believe, but should he not, either through his own fault, or that of his supporters, HIS BOAT, WE DOUBT NOT, WILL BE, AS IT SHOULD, AT THE BEST GENERAL ELECTION, AS COMPLETE AS THAT OF MR. MACKENZIE ON THE PRESENT OCCASION. The country having taken Sir John and the party which he leads at their word, and placed them in a position to carry out their promises, it will become them to remember that the greater their victory the greater their responsibility, and that upon their ability to give the country 'works, not words,' depends a triumph, to which the present one will be as empty sound, or a fall which will only be second to that of Mr. Mackenzie and his colleagues."

No stale joke, no neatly turned epigram will satisfy the Review or Mr. Phipps—who has good public grounds for his course—or the "National Policyists." No declaration that "these hands are clean"—or rather that these hands are willing, but the heart is weak; none of the old stage tricks will now answer. The Review shows clearly enough that Sir John Macdonald, with his enormous Parliamentary backing, will have absolutely no excuse if he does not give a true National Policy, or, in other words, a good solid measure of Protection. And if he does not, be is to be kicked out. This is the unkindest cut Sir John has received for many a year. When a devoted and bitterly partisan organ like the Peterborough Review thus early in the day betrays its lack of confidence in the "Chieftain," and feels in duty bound to prod him up to a proper sense of duty, it is evident there must be some screws lose somewhere. Perhaps Sir John will feel so strong in the new House that he will "treat with contempt" what the Review now says, holding that his Peterborough organ, after its fulsome anti-election adulation, might have waited a few weeks until he could show the "good works" of which he is capable. But that same Peterborough organ knows the "Chieftain" better than most people from sad experience, and hence the loudly on "works, not words."

THE MIDLAND RAILWAY

Another Change of Officers—A New Regime.

The regular monthly meeting of the Midland Railway Board, consisting of Lewis Ross, Esq., G. A. Cox, Esq., Lewis Wallbridge, Esq., E. S. Vinslin, Esq., was held in the offices of the Company yesterday, and important changes were made in the future management of the road. Mr. G. A. Cox, President of the Board, was placed in full charge of the general running of the line, and management of the offices. Mr. H. Read, who has been filling the office of Accountant has been promoted to be Secretary and Treasurer. The freight and passenger agency has been added to the duties of Mr. H. G. Taylor, Superintendent. It will be observed that under the new state of affairs, Mr. C. Perry, and Mr. A. White retire from all connection with the road.

The position that Mr. Cox has assumed is one of great responsibility and trust, and we have not the least doubt but that he will prove equal to the occasion. He has long since shown to the public that he is possessed with energy and ability, together with firmness and tact in the management of his own affairs, and we have every confidence that he will carry the same principles into practice when looking after the extensive and varied interests that will engage his attention while assuming the duties now devolving upon him.

It augurs well for the future prosperity of that line, to see the system of retrenchment that has been commenced under the new regime. While those having business to transact with the Midland Railway will regret the retirement of Messrs. Percy and White, nevertheless every well-wisher of the future prosperity of the road will most heartily approve of the policy inaugurated by the change of affairs. It is absolutely necessary that the most rigid economy should be practiced in the management of all such corporations; and under the circumstances it behooves all the employees to assist the new manager by discharging their various duties in a satisfactory manner.—Port Hope Guide.

MURDER BY WHOLESALE.

Terrible Fate of an Ontario Family in the Far West.

The Guelph papers announce that a letter received a few days ago from Kansas by Mrs. Inglis, Nassagaweya, from her daughter, Mrs. Wm. Laing, conveys the sad intelligence that her husband and three sons were treacherously murdered by Indians on the first of October in that state. Mr. Laing emigrated to Nebraska from Wawanosh about 12 years ago. After living there until a few months since he removed with his wife and family of three daughters and three sons to Kansas. After erecting a house and having everything in a comfortable shape, on the 1st of October, he along with his youngest son and two daughters of a neighbor, left for a trip of one hundred miles to make a payment on his farm. When about eight miles from home a band of Indians surrounded him, but appeared friendly, and some of them even shook hands. One of the treacherous fiends took up a position behind, and without warning shot poor Wm. Laing dead. The little boy was afterwards shot, and the girls were brutally treated and then driven back to Mr. Laing's place. Two of Mr. Laing's sons, aged respectively about 18 and 20 years, were roofing a building. When the Indians came the lads were ordered to turn their backs, and were then shot dead. The Indians next proceeded to the house and ordered Mrs. Laing and her three daughters to leave. They at once complied, and Mrs. Laing then heard from the girls that had been so shamefully abused that one was a widow and sorrowful. The Indians sacked the house and secured $100 that was in a chest belonging to one of the boys. Mrs. Laing and her three little girls left for a neighbor's house, following the river a distance of about 12 miles. When they reached there they were completely exhausted, but were tenderly cared for. She is left completely destitute, the

The Examiner.

PETERBOROUGH, OCTOBER 24, 1878

THE "MAIL" IN THE NET OF ERROR.

The Reformers are now some what triumphantly shouting to their opponents "Bring on your National Policy;" but it does not appear. It was according to Tory orators and Tory prints, to prove a remedy for hard times. Now the times are as hard as, or even harder than ever; but the National Policyists don't seem to be able to apply their remedy. They distinctly promised prosperity, and better prices for produce to the farmer. But prices of farm produce have fallen, and the self-styled farmer's friend puts forth no hand to help him. This is certainly cruel after the professions that were made. The Tory organs can offer no satisfactory explanation; because they do not want to give the only correct one—that they were lying all along. They therefore try to evade the issue so persistently pressed by Reformers, by asking why the former opponents of Protection should now call for its adoption. Reformers merely demand of their opponents a fulfilment of their promises. Is this an unreasonable request if the promises be genuine? Assuredly not. The Reform party desires a Protective Policy now no more than it ever did, or will; but now that those who are pledged to such a Policy are in power, Reformers want the inevitable trial and condemnation of the "National Policy" to come as speedily as possible. The Reformer leaders and their followers hold, and pronounce, too, the same views on a fiscal policy as they did before the general election. Can the same be said of the Tory leaders and their following? The Mail having been very officious in publishing the former promises of its party leaders, now finds itself called on to admit delay in their performance by an excuse for such delay; and such an excuse! It says:—"Those who have "no access to the facts and figures, kept "under lock and key by Ministers, "may lay down certain broad lines of "policy, but no one but a knave or an "idiot could expect them to fill in its de- "tails." Ministers do not keep facts and figures relating to the revenue and general finances of the country under lock and key. Details are regularly published, and are at all times accessible to any one who takes the trouble to seek them in a gentlemanly way. The late ministers were no exception to the general rule. They kept nothing under lock and key that needed to be known in regard to the tariff. If such were the case, where did Tory speakers, on a hundred platforms, and Tory writers in a hundred newspapers get the details, figures, and so called facts—they presented their hearers and readers? But, accepting its own confession, that it and its party friends had no facts and figures on which to base what it calls their "broad lines of policy" the Mail must then explain who keeps the details locked up now, after the Mackenzie Government has resigned. The fact is, the Mail is cutting a ridiculous figure. In attempting to lie out of one dilemma, it only gets itself into others, and more inextricable ones. "No one but a knave or an idiot" would attempt such an excuse as the Mail has tried to frame.

THE DEPARTURE OF LORD DUFFERIN.

Lord Dufferin sailed from Quebec on Saturday last, to the regret of every true Canadian. During his stay in the Dominion, the glory of the Crown has been faithfully reflected in the Vice-royalty. Not only has he filled the position with the grace and bonhomie becoming its prominence and his own rank; he has also by his happy faculty of appropriateness—doing and saying the right thing in the right place—and by his easy intercourse with all, made himself a prince favorite and a personal friend of the people. In an ostentatious way he has done much for education, and art in Canada. Himself an artist of some merit, and an orator of unusual power and versatility, he has helped to awaken a spirit of emulation in Canadians for excellence in these accomplishments. A boon earlier, he has given life to that sport, so well adapted to our Canadian winter. By his evident interest in these concerns he has endeared himself to the populace from one end of the Dominion to the other. As an intelligent medium through which to transmit to the Colonial office a clear appreciation of Canadian affairs, he has been of incalculable value to the Dominion in his official capacity. It is not improbable that his usefulness will extend even further; there being a belief that he will publish a book based on his experiences of Canadian life and travel. The popularity of Lord Dufferin is well shared by his estimable wife. Their leave taking of Canada has caused genuine grief to many, and sorrow to all; and for long years to come will the memories of their stay be cherished, their names be retained as household words, and the good wishes of Canadians follow them and their descendants.

The Orangemen arrested in Montreal on the charge of forming an illegal assemblage on the 12th of July, have been acquitted, Judge Ramsay charging the jury that assembling in a lodge room was not illegal.

A plan has been hatched in Montreal to get the manufacturers of Canada to put their heads together and arrange a tariff, to be adopted by the new Finance Minister, which will satisfactorily protect all the "struggling industries."

It is asserted that in accordance with the pledge given by Sir John A. Macdonald at Hamilton, to the effect that under the National Policy everybody should have just what he wanted, the Ontario Manufacturers' Association has already struck nineteen committees to sit upon the new tariff, and secure protection for as many industries or classes of industries as possible.

It is hard lines for a Tory Journal, when it has to reproduce Protectionist doctrine from the American Manufacturer, and call it "impartial opinion." How can we have impartiality from a journal that depends for its very existence on rings of Protectionists in the United States? The very name of the publication proclaims its partiality.

The Conservatives circulated 80,000 copies of Mr. Phipps' Protection pamphlet; but now that they have no further use for him they have cast him over. A Toronto organ now speaks of his impudence "run mad:" calls Mr. Phipps a "consumate egotist;" thinks his impudence "idiotic," alludes to his "overweening self-conceit;" and finally describes him as "a laughing-stock." The Conservatives must feel very stsong.

The receipts of barley from Canada at Oswego, since the harvest to October 8th, have been 1,197,637 bushels, and for same time last year 903,792 bushels. Increase this season 293,895 bushels. The amount of barley on the Erie Canal from Lake Ports for tide-water on the 7th inst., noon, was 215,155 bushels, of which 161,138 bushels were shipped from Oswego, and 58,017 bushels from Buffalo. The quantity on the canal same time last year was 438,000 bushels.

On account of the retirement of the Hon. R. A. Davis and Hon. James McKay from the Government of Manitoba, a reconstruction has taken place with the following result: Hon. John Norquay, Premier and Treasurer, D. M. Walker, Attorney-General, Hon. Joseph Royal, Minister of Public Works, C. P. Brown, Provincial Secretary. A fifth member is to be entered who will have the portfolio of Minister of Agriculture. The dissolution of the House will occur shortly and the elections come off in a month.

The Philadelphia Public Ledger of a recent date contains no less than 138 advertisements of sermons to be delivered on the following day This is as it should be. The great modern agency of communicating with the masses is the newspaper press. In no other way can invitations to hear the Gospel heralds be as widely distributed. Does anyone think that if Paul, the sagacious and practical, lived now-a-days, he would hesitate to turn all modern facilities and opportunities to account in promoting his good work?

It is now generally understood that Sir John Macdonald will sit for Victoria Vancouver Island. The people of that Island want a railway; and already the papers of Victoria have expressed the conviction that with Sir John as their representative they are sure to get their road, of course at the expense of the other provinces of the Dominion. They gave him a seat in the expectation that he will give them a railway at a cost of several million of dollars Such is, and ever has been, the much vaunted influence of Sir John Macdonald. His party friends boast that he never pocketed money; but he has never hesitated to use the public funds for his political preferment.

Speaking of the agitation in the stock market the Montreal Witness of that city says:—Public attention, which has of late been riveted on political matters, is for the moment turned towards the "street." There the stock indicator shows extraordinary declines in certain stocks—declines which fortunately are not of the character to create any general panicky feeling, but which nevertheless show holders of certain stocks that fortunes are slipping from their grasp. On no previous occasion since the advent of "hard times" have the public or the brokers been less prepared for the announcement of a reduction of the dividend of the Bank of Montreal than now. Time and again, in months gone by, it has been said that the Bank of Montreal would reduce its dividend, but now that the reduction to 5 per cent. has been made everyone seems unprepared for it. The announcement was put on the street after the forenoon Stock Board, and almost immediately the Stock fell from 167 to 155, or no less than 12 per cent. Yesterday afternoon the Witness explained the causes which brought about the decline in city gas stock; it fell yesterday 9 per cent., and to-day it declined 13 per cent. more. Twenty-two per cent. on a capital stock of $2,000,000 in two days shows how rapidly colossal fortunes disappear. It is needless to add that the stock market is generally weak and unsettled.

The Review professes to be Protectionist before it is Tory. How long it will remain in that mind, remains to be seen. It is satisfied that "the country has thoroughly endorsed the principle of the National Policy," whatever that may mean. So satisfied is it that "the customs duties will be arranged so as to raise sufficient revenue while at the same time fostering Canadian industries," that it is content to wait for details. We are glad to see that our contemporary is ready to make the raising of a revenue the first consideration in framing a tariff. So far we agree most thoroughly. We are, and were, content with that, so long as it did the least harm to the commercial interests of the country. We are also content to wait for the fostering business, longer doubtless than is our Protectionist neighbor. We are ready to postpone the details in that direction indefinitely. Is the Review? Or will it get impatient should the details it speaks of be deferred for months. It considers it would be "premature to discuss the details till the new Finance Minister frames a tariff so as to suit the wants of the country," but if the framing does not come up to the Review's expressed notion of what suits the wants of the country, what then? Will it still consider the discussion premature? Or will it bring its council to aid in what it calls "a task of great difficulty, and one requiring much consideration." Surely the Review will not be so cruel as to give no consideration to a matter requiring so much! It is a pity the Review cannot be logical as well as combdent.

THE NEW CABINET.

(From the Mail of Monday.)

We understand that the new Cabinet will be composed as follows:

Sir JOHN MACDONALD—Premier and Minister of the Interior.
Hon. S. L. TILLEY—Minister of Finance.
Hon. CHARLES TUPPER—Minister of Public Works.
Hon. JAMES MACDONALD—Minister of Justice.
Hon. JOHN O'CONNOR—President of the Council.
Hon. MACKENZIE BOWELL—Minister of Customs.
Hon. HECTOR L. LANGEVIN—Postmaster-General.
Hon. L. F. MASSON—Minister of Militia.
Hon. ALEXANDER CAMPBELL—Receiver-General.
Hon. J. C. AIKINS—Secretary of State.
Hon. J. H POPE—Minister of Agriculture.
Hon. L. F. BABY—Minister of Inland Revenue.
Hon. J. C. POPE—Minister of Marine and Fisheries.

It is not improbable that at an early day, when Mr. Campbell's health is restored, there will be some interchange of offices, ending in his return to the Post Office, while it is possible that one of the most important departments may be divided and a minor one abolished. It is known that in 1873 Sir John Macdonald was maturing a plan of appointing junior representatives of some of the chief departments with seats in the House, and it is presumed that he will not abandon his intention. For the present, however, things will be as I have sketched them.

Mr. Aikins' appointment to office will be recognized as a concession to those Reform voters, estimated at something like fifty thousand, who contributed to the overthrow of the Mackenzie Administration; and doubtless the fact that he is a highly respected and prominent member of the Methodist body did not lessen his claims to consideration. It is a surprise to some that M. Langevin, after his defeat, should have a portfolio, but a more hard working Departmental officer is not to be found, and it is understood to have been the almost unanimously expressed wish of the French Conservative members that he should be taken into the Cabinet. M. Masson's health has been a subject for some anxiety with his friends, but it is confidently hoped he will be able to bear the strain of Ministerial work. The office allotted to Mr. Baby was tendered first to Mr. Chapleau, it was understood, but was declined on the ground that at present that gentleman's services are pledged to the Opposition in the Local Legislature. Mr. Macdonnin Bowell's name has proved most acceptable to the French Catholic element and though formerly a Grand Master of the Orange body his known liberality of sentiment as exemplified in his course in the O'Donoghue matter commends him to their esteem. Long known as a faithful and hard working member of the House, his able services on all the principal Committees have pointed to his early enjoyment of a seat in a Conservative Cabinet. Mr. Pope of Compton is recognized as a most efficient occupant of the Bureau of Immigration, and his great experience will be of peculiar service now that the rich prairie lands of Manitoba and the West would seem to be attracting attention in the Old Country. His namesake Prince Edward Island's new Premier of the Local Conservative Government and is a wealthy shipowner, practically conversant with every detail of the business devolving upon his Department. Senator Wilmot of New Brunswick, has since been appointed President of the Senate and a member of the Government without port folio.

FATAL PANIC AT A WEDDING.

Ten Women Killed

Richmond, Va.,—During a marriage at the colored Baptist Church, Lynchburg, while the building was packed to its utmost capacity, a piece of plastering fell, creating a panic of the most dreadful character. The bodies of ten women have been already taken out. The wounded are being sent to their homes.

Three women were dying in the Church yard, one more died in the street after being taken out and it is believed over thirty more were seriously injured.

THE ORANGE CASES.

MONTREAL.—Oct, 21.—Notices of suit were served on Mayor Beaudry yesterday afternoon, informing him of the action for damages to be brought against him by the Montreal Orangemen. The law in all such cases—the proceeding being against a public officer—affords the defendant a month's time in order to prepare his defence and get up his case. This, together with Mr. Jos. Doutre's trip to Europe, will delay the opening of the matter before the Court about two months. The plaintiffs are jubilant, and feel certain of ultimate success. David Grant sues for $10,000, Thos. Ingram, Fred. Hamilton, Alex. Gibson, John Lilburn, Wm. Garven, and John Cromwell for $5,000 each. The suit is brought, not against the Corporation, but against the Mayor personally, and in case it goes against him he will have to foot the little bill out of his own pocket.

KEENE.

LIBERAL CONSERVATIVE ASSOCIATION.—At a meeting of the Conservatives held in the village of Keene, on Friday evening last, a club was formed, to be known as the "Otonabee Liberal Conservative Association." The following gentlemen were elected to office:—Amos McCrae M. D., President; Peter McGregor, Vice-President; James McIntyre, Secretary-Treasurer.—Com.

Both ladies were thrown out, Mrs. Myers falling on a heap of stones, and Miss Brodie striking on a log. The former received a sprained wrist, and the latter a slight chest injury, but neither seriously.

The sum of $39 was realized at the union tea meeting of Sunday Schools at McKee's church, North Smith, on Friday last. The entertainment proved a success, all appearing to enjoy themselves.

It was proposed in the Quebec City Council, on Friday night, to cut off the whole of the gas in the city streets. Matters are so rapidly growing from bad to worse in connection with municipal affairs that one alderman stated on Friday that he thought the Council ought to pass a resolution acknowledging their inability to conduct the affairs of the city, and begging the citizens to place their affairs in the hands of others. No state of affairs, say the local papers, could possibly be worse than that which now exists.

Says the Harriston Tribune:—The late sudden fall, the uncertainty of what is to be done, and the apparent want of confidence of moneyed men will, we fear, have a depressing effect upon the grain market during the whole season. Already we have heard of monopolists raising the price on their wares and goods, while the farmers are obliged to lie at the mercy of speculators and banks. In fact, the backbone of our trade seems to have already bent to the breaking point, and may at any time snap, as there is nothing so demoralizing to a nation's trade as an uncertain policy upon the part of a Government. Should one-half of the promises made by Sir John and party be carried out, fortunes will be made and fortunes will be lost, consequently, those in possession of funds will hold off and await their chances, and who will be the losers by such a crisis? If we mistake not, the farmer, the labourer, and the mechanic, while the capitalists and speculators will pocket their gains for a time, then be share with the rest of the country the depression that is sure to follow.

Never Put Off Until To-Morrow what you can do To-Day

To an old but significant adage. The reader of this article has an opportunity to save money, and that opportunity should not be put off, lest the money never come. By all means select your FALL BOOTS, SHOES, and RUBBERS from the New Goods now being opened out at T. White's, Sign of the Golden Boot. The choice is the largest ever exhibited, and the prices are still lower than any house in town, and bear in mind that the cut, style and finish is very superior. It is a duty which every man owes to himself and family in such times as these, to give such houses his patronage, and save money by it.

LOCAL NEWS.

Springless Trusses.—Read G. W. Hotchkiss's advertisement in another column.

Another Leading Line.—Look out for T. Dolan and Co's announcement next week, of another leading line of Goods at sweeping reductions.

St. Pauls Church.—There will be a special sermon to young men on Sunday Evening next, by Rev. E. F. Torrence. Subject, "Sickness and the Bible."

Relief for the South.—The Oddfellows of Ontario, of the Independent Order, have already contributed $2,000 for the relief of their brethren in the Southern States. Further contributions are coming from the same source.

The Lovely Autumn.—The golden leaves are falling in the bosom of the knoll, and the languid winds serenely kiss the scarlet gladiola; the maiden o'er the flower pots is sentimental, coy, and every bosom in the land is bounding now with joy—with the exception of the ice man's which isn't.

The Musical Trade Review, published at 225 Broadway, New York, presents its readers twice a month with a complete record of musical events, spicily written, well arranged and interesting from cover to cover. Its criticisms are outspoken and manly in tone, and the publication deserves, in all respects, the widest support.

P. P. Home.—The Committee of the Peterborough Protestant Home, acknowledge with thanks the receipt of 2 lbs. of Tea from Mr. Hogan, was for him at the Rifle Match, a bag of Potatoes from Wm. Hill; Butter from Mrs. Ormond; Mr. Hook, Potatoes; Mrs. Alexander, a bag of Apples; Mrs. Wallis, bag of Apples; Mrs. Edwards, Bag of Apples.

Excursion to Hastings.—On Friday last Mr. Alex. Thompson, proprietor of the steamer Arlington placed the boat at the disposal of the Mayor and Town Councillors and their friends for an excursion to the Village of Hastings. Owing to the unsettled state of the weather the attendance was not so large as expected, but we learn those who went spent a very pleasant time.

Works of Art.—Don't forget the clearing sale of those choice Oil Paintings, on Saturday, at 2 o'clock in the afternoon, and 7 in the evening. Mr. Stapleton has received instructions to close out the collection regardless of sacrifice. This is an opportunity that our lovers of art seldom have. The paintings during exhibition have been very much admired and considering the sale is unreserved it should be well attended. Sale also this evening at 7 o'clock.

Mighty Important Sale.—Mr. Charles Stapleton has received instructions from Robt. Fife, Esq., lot 13, in the 1st concession of Asphodel, to sell by public auction on Thursday, November 7th, all of his well-bred cattle, sheep, horses, implements and household furniture. As this will be one of the most important sales of the season, farmers and others interested are requested to bear it in mind. The sale will be without reserve as Mr. Fife is giving up farming. For particulars see posters.

Sabbath School Social.—An enjoyable evening was spent by the friends who attended the Social held last Thursday evening in the lecture room of the George Street Methodist Church. The proceeds from this and other similar entertainments to be held the coming winter are to be applied to the improvement of the School Library. Another one will be held on Friday evening 1st November. The admission is only five cents and we have no doubt but that these who have the management in hand will be encouraged in this laudable work.

Fine Millinery.—With each change of the season come events of special interest to the ladies, in their visits of inspection to the millinery establishments of the town. During the past few weeks Miss Semple's millinery show room has been one of the chief centres of attraction. Novelties in all departments are shown in great variety, but a personal visit of those interested will satisfy them much more than any detailed description we might give in the matter. Our lady readers would do well to pay a visit to this establishment.

A First-Class Livery Stable is an establishment that always meets with public favor, and one that many people are desirous of knowing where to find. A really model place where to obtain the use of handsome carriages, good horses and steady drivers is at R. White's livery stables, on Charlotte street. Mr. White furnishes the best conveyances and teams at all hours of the day and night; is always prepared to provide vehicles, horses and drivers for balls, parties and weddings. Parties requiring comfortable rigs at any time cannot do better than give these stables a call.

Personal.—Dr. D. Fraser, formerly practising in Lakefield, but who for some years past has been in Europe for the purpose of acquiring a better knowledge of his profession, has returned after passing a creditable very successful examinations, having taken the Degrees of M. R. C. S. in England; and L.R. C. P. and L. M. of Edinburgh, in Scotland. During his absence he has been connected with the St. Thomas Hospital, London; Royal Infirmary, Edinburgh, and the Hotel Dieu, Paris, besides taking other institutions of importance We wish him every success in the future.

Canadian Woollens.—In the course of an article upon woollens, mixed fabrics and worsteds in the Paris Exhibition, the London Manchester says:—The Canadian exhibit of woollen cloths is a remarkable one, and indicates a progress in the manufacture of fancy trouserings, tweeds, &c., of no ordinary character. The style and finish of some of these goods places them well abreast of similar productions in other and older countries, and it is quite evident that the producers of woollen goods in Canada are laying themselves out to supply the wants of markets beyond their own.

New Dominion Notes.—In consequence of numerous forgeries, the Dominion Government some time ago decided to call in the $1 and $2 Dominion notes, and issue a new issue. We understand that the new notes are almost ready for circulation, and are of an exceedingly elegant design, having on either side vignettes of Lord and Lady Dufferin, beautifully engraved, and excellent likenesses. This is a happy tribute to their excellencies, and will enable the people of the Dominion to bind in their hearts—the images of the most popular representatives of royalty that Canada has ever been blessed with.

High Toned Enterprise.—The Lindsay Post says:—"A. Lemden, Esq., tailor has sent Mayor Deacon and all the Mayors of Canada a circular stating that 'as the Marquis of Lorne is about coming to your (this) country, the Mayor of the different towns will, no doubt, wish to obtain a complete outfit, with insignia of office, sword, &c., and goes on to state that for so much the same will be supplied. Fancy seeing the mayors of the different towns of Canada wearing a sword, cocked hat, lace coat knee-breeches, &c., &c." Wouldn't the aspirants for the civic chair look "immense" if dressed in such a garb when electioneering.

Musical Instruments.—The Lakefield News in describing the articles on exhibition at the fall show, held last week in that village, says:

We must not forget to mention that Mr. Pentland, of Peterborough, had three Organs on view, one of which, built by the South American Co., was mounted on a exceedingly fine base and at the price, a bargain for any one. Also an exhibit of an instrument by Mr. J Brooks, built by the Uxbridge Organ Co'y. The great beauty of the latter is a full organ knee swell, which by a combined arrangement is made to control a large portion of the instrument, equivalent to drawing the whole of the stops. We examined the instrument and can easily understand its action is a valuable one, especially where the instrument is required in the regular church services of the present day.

Carnwell Lodge Entertainment.—A very successful musical and dramatic entertainment under the auspices of Carnwell Lodge, I.O.G.T., was held in their hall, on Thursday evening last. The performances began with a song—"The Two Orphans"—by Mr. J. Cuttler, and for an encore gave "Jim Fisk." A recitation entitled "the face against the pane" by Mr. W. Gullist, was followed with a reading by Mr. J. Cobb, both being well rendered. A song was next given by Miss Rook, followed by a dialogue, after which Mr. O. Dixon, ventriloquist, introduced his family of "Blockheads," and the "Talking Hand." He also introduced a variety of voices and sounds, and was frequently applauded. The evening's entertainment concluded by a laughable farce, which was duly appreciated by continued laughter.

Medical "Protection."—We understand that the medical men of Peterborough have just united in a movement to protect themselves from being imposed upon by the too numerous class of patients who shew no inclination to pay for the services rendered. It is proposed at short intervals to have lists of delinquents printed and circulated to each practitioner, who will then be in a position to refuse his services to those who do not consider them worthy of remuneration. The movement originated in Toronto and is becoming general throughout the Province, the lists being furnished in almost every town, so that "dead beats" removing from one place to another will find their reputation for bad pay gone ahead of them. It is not intended that the deserving poor shall suffer, but in a place like Peterborough, where there is a physician paid by the town for attending to the poor, the other physicians are perfectly justified in protecting themselves even from loss by them.

Highly Important to Purchasers of Dry Goods.—Ladies and others contemplating the purchase of dry goods should make it a point before setting out on their shopping trips to visit the large, commodious, and well-stocked store of Hall, Innes & Co., Simcoe street. This is one of the most reliable houses in its line of trade in Peterborough. Established nearly half a century ago, it has ever been conducted on the principle of selling goods just for what they are. Hall, Innes & Co. have laid in an unusually large stock of fall fabrics, selected with the utmost care by experienced buyers, and embracing everything pertaining to a full assortment of staple and fancy dry goods, millinery, clothing, carpets, &c. Prices have been put down low, the firm having resolved to give customers the full worth of their money. They solicit an examination of their stock, a careful inspection of the latest novelties, and a consideration of the prices asked; guaranteeing to afford the amplest facilities for looking closely at a stock of goods that cannot be excelled for quality, variety, and cheapness.

Ontario Business College.—The Kingston Whig in describing the Central Exhibition recently held in that city, alludes to the Ontario Business College in the following complimentary terms:—

"We are pleased to find Ontario Business College, Belleville, among the exhibitors, and as usual making a magnificent display of business and ornamental penmanship. The display made by the College is the same that took the first prize at the late Provincial Exhibition at Toronto. The fourth annual circular of the College is being distributed, and from it we learn, and are pleased to note, the yearly increasing success of the institution, which is the leading Commercial College in Canada. The great success of its graduates is the surest proof of the thoroughness of its training, and the works on book-keeping and penmanship, of which Mr. S. G. Beatty, Mr. J. W. Johnson and Mr. W. B. Robinson, its Principals, are the authors, and which are the national Canadian works on these subjects, prove the fitness of these gentlemen for imparting a sound commercial education. The advantage enjoyed by students of Ontario Business College, in addition to its thoroughness, is that board is cheaper in Belleville than in any other place. Students, Business, College." will prove of special interest to all readers who at once take steps to examine Dominion's ancient classical literature. The editorial departments are as interesting and entertaining as usual.

ASPHODEL, BELMONT AND DUMMER FALL SHOW.

The annual exhibition of the Asphodel, Belmont and Dummer Agricultural Exhibition was held at Norwood on Tuesday, Oct, 8th Altogether the display of exhibits was creditable, showing a marked improvement over former years The entries amounted to nearly 600. All the local shows here this year have distinguished for the fine turn out of horses, and this show was no exception to the rule in this respect. The dairy department was well filled, and the exhibits of grain was good. There were numerous specimens of the more useful home manufactures such as blankets, rag carpeting, felted-cloth, flannel, coverlets, quilts, &c., which indicated much domestic industry and patient skill. The department of fancy work showed in many instances great artistic ability and wonderful neatness of arrangement The following is the

A WILD ORATOR.

Gen. Butler, of New Orleans notoriety, is running for Governor of Massachusetts on the Independent ticket, and is making a strong bid for the workingmen's vote. Among his supporters he has one orator all the way from California, Mr. Dennis Kearney, who goes for men and things after a style that would have rejoiced the hearts of some of our Conservative friends during the late campaign in Canada. He pulls off his coat, divests himself of shirt collar and neck-tie, and harangues the mob with all the volubility of Dr. Tupper though in far more expressive language. In a recent speech in Boston he went for the newspapers in this style:

"Newspapers from the earliest days of printing had been in the interests of cut-throats, petitioal bills, daylight thieves and midnight murderers. For the reporters of the press I have great respect. They are workingmen like ourselves, working for bread and butter, but for the villainous, serpent-like, simpering of hell that sets these newspapers I have the utmost contempt—a villainous, thieving, infamous band of scallawags, that are aiming to control public opinion. If the workingmen of the United States possessed within their breasts a single spark from which the flame of freedom could be fanned they would not permit such monsters to live in their midst. They would control the telegraph. They would hurl these infernal, lying scallawags from power and select honest men to transmit the plain, unvarnished news."

But he can wax eloquent after a fashion, and we recommend the peroration of this same speech to the serious consideration of those political shouters who like to make "big talk." They can put it up for use at the next election:

"I walk the earth at midday and I find a vast expanse of blue heavens, unrelieved by the speckle of a single star, but I know that Mars still holds his course, that Venus still wheels through space, that Jupiter and Uranus are flashing in the heavens, that the blazing belt of Orion and the bright and guiding gleam of the North Star are still there. And 'tis thus with a movement of this kind. We know that the workingmen are as true as the stars in heaven, and will when called upon, exhibit themselves in beauty, in majesty and in power."

"To Help on Pantaloons."

(St. John Sun.)

A tailoring establishment in Dock-st., St. John, has a card in the window with:—"Wanted—Several steady girls to help on pantaloons." Yesterday afternoon a countryman could be seen gazing earnestly into the window, and reading this notice over. At last he mustered up courage to enter the store. "Mister," he said to one of the clerks, "be that true," pointing to the notice in the window. He was told that it was, and that if he had any girls who understood the business to send them along. "Well, darn my eyes if I ever heard the like; a fellow that can't help on his own pantaloons ought to be ashamed to ask help to do it," and he hurried out of the store, followed by the peals of laughter which were sent after him.

JOY AMONG THE CHILDREN.

COPELAND'S SWEET CASTOR OIL, equally suitable for children and adults. Endorsed by over 600 doctors in Canada The difficulty of administering nauseous medicines and the desirability of having them pleasant to the taste, induced T. Copeland to undertake research, which resulted in the discovery of a Sweet Castor Oil, perfectly palatable, of the same strength and medical qualities as the ordinary Castor Oil; and while equally safe and harmless yet acting with more certainty, and producing neither nausea nor griping. Some children say it is honey: others call it syrup—they all say they like it. One parent says—My children drink it like water;" another—"We had to bide the bottle or they would have finished it right off," another—"My little girl has taken it twice without any trouble, and does not know what it is, though she hates the ordinary Castor Oil, and we never could get her to take it without a fight;" yet another—I wish you success of your Sweet Castor Oil; it is a splendid thing—sure to take the place of all common oil."

The extraordinary demand for this improvement of a staple household medicine has brought fraudulent imitations into the market, but the public can guard themselves against substitutes (which unprincipled parties are attempting to sell on the reputation of this article) by seeing that the name, COPELAND'S SWEET CASTOR OIL, is on both wrapper and direction label.

The undersigned having purchased Messrs T. Copeland & Co's interest in the above preparation, are now manufacturing it from the original receipt.

It stands far ahead and unequalled among the hundreds of competing medicines of the day It has stood the test of ten years, and is to day more popular than ever. As a summer restorative it stands unrivaled; it enables the system to bear up against the constant drain to which it is subjected by a high temperature. Persons who are subject to bilious Colic, Dysentery, Indigestion, &c, should take the Shoshonees Remedy. Price of the Remedy in pint bottles $1; Pills, 25 cts. a box. Sold by all medicine dealers.

Churn Slowly.

BY SARAH H. HALE HUNT.

A little maid in the morning sun
Stood merrily singing, and churning—
"Oh, how I wish this matter was done,
Then off to the fields I'd be turning!"
So she hurried the dasher up and down
Till the farmer called, with a half-made frown,
"Churn Slowly!"

"Don't ply the dasher so fast, my dear,
It's not as good for the butter,
And will make your arms ache, too, I fear,
And put you all in a flutter;
For this is a rule whichever you churn—
Don't be in a haste whatever you churn—
Churn Slowly!"

"If you'd see your butter come nice and sweet
Don't churn with a nervous jerking,
But ply the dasher slowly and neat—
You'll hardly know you're working;
And, when the butter mellows, you'll say,
'Yes, this is surely the very best way'—
Churn Slowly!"

Now, little fellow, do you think that you
A lesson can find in butter?
Don't be in a haste whatever,
Or act yourself into a flutter;
And when you stand at life's great church
Let the farmer's words to you return
"Churn Slowly!"

Bank Failures in Scotland.

The full particulars have come to hand of the City of Glasgow Bank. The bank was instituted in 1839, and was incorporated under an Act of Parliament in 1862. There were in all 1,249 partners connected with it; and the paid-up capital amounted to £1,000,000. At the beginning of the present year the reserve fund was stated at £450,000; the dividends and surplus profits in hand at £148,501; the deposits at £8,362,712; and the "circulation, acceptances, &c.," at £2,114,229. A noteworthy fact in connection with the bank was that it had more branches than any other Scotch establishment, the total number of these being 133. Taken at the quotations made in the course of December, the price per £100 stock for the last three years was—1875, £228; 1876, £228; and 1877, £243. When the half yearly report was made in July last a dividend of 12 per cent. was declared; and at that time the assets of the bank were reported at £11,892,593, 11s 8d., and the liabilities at only about £10,500,000.

The shareholders of the bank appear to comprise a large number of persons in middle class positions in society, professional men, trust bodies, and ladies. The failure will therefore, fall with special hardship in most cases, and there is too much ground to fear that great inconvenience and suffering will result. By the prompt action of the other Scottish banks the holders of the £1 notes have been able to get their money, and thus the extent of the first convenience has been lessened. The depositors of the bank will also be repaid in due time. This the law provides for. Many of the shareholders will doubtless suffer seriously through this arrangement; but the principle thus adopted in the interest of the depositors will be carried out.

At the present there does not appear to be any tangible evidence to prove the perpetration of a fraud on the part of the directors; nor does the failure furnish any argument whatever against the validity of the system peculiar to the Scottish banks. The directors may have been injudicious in their arrangements, but it does not follow from that, that they have intentionally trifled with the money of their constituents. A great deal has been written upon this subject in the American papers is utterly wide of the mark, and has been dictated more by malice than a strict regard for truth. However culpable, the directors are not criminals; and until evidence to be alleged against them to prove their complicity in fraud they must be held to be innocent of any criminal act.

It is doubtless a shock to the community that such an unexpected collapse should happen. There is no argument, however, in that against the system itself. The fact, indeed, that the other Scottish banks have withstood this shock is proof of the soundness of the system, and of the efficacy of their management. Every banking institution in the world is liable to adverse changes; and assuredly the people of the United States have no reason to pride themselves on the stability of their banks, or the certainty of their dividends. They who live in glass houses should not throw stones. What a frightful catalogue of bank failures in the United States might be paraded! and what an overwhelming amount of evidence could be adduced to prove rascality and fraud in connection with them! Where one bank failure has taken place in Scotland, there have hundreds here. As we write there lies before us the report of a most disastrous failure in Pennsylvania; and it is only one out of a number.

Nor are the depositors or shareholders any better off. In the City of Glasgow Bank there was paid a dividend of 12 per cent. That contrasts favorably with the official statement just published that 338 National banks in America with a capital of $43,797,900, paid no dividends for the six months ending March 1, 1878, and 357 banks, with a capital of $53,736,950, paid no dividends for the six months ending September 1, 1878. We have no desire to exonerate the directors of the City of Glasgow Bank from any measure of blame which legitimately falls upon them. But we are not disposed to allow them to be unjustly accused, and the Scottish banking system itself decried. Nor can we let the papers of this country plume themselves upon their fancied superiority, when such glaring facts of deficiency and fraud are patent to the public.—Scottish American Journal

The Electric Light.

The electric light may now be looked on as settled. Our Michigan genius, Edison, has wrestled with the problem and 47 accounts of Western papers are to be believed. He has "done the feat. Here is how it is to be tested. First the Professor will light up all the houses in Menlo Park—grotto, and down his laboratory—with the light—upon—from eight to eight. When all is in readiness—general introduction, general salutations, all probably to assist the city of New York, each shall carry off, perhaps a radius of half a mile—illuminating a surrounding country. Where will man be now? Where will time be?

WEDDED BY THE WIRES.

The Most Extraordinary Marriage Ceremony on Record.

(From the St. Louis Globe Democrat.)

"What God has joined together let no man put asunder," was the message that was started over the wires from Washington court house, to reach its destination two hours later at Georgetown, Cal., 3,000 miles away. It formed a part of the service of the most novel marriage on record, joining till death shall part Mr. Wheeler C. Ellis, at Georgetown, to Miss Lina Sellers, at this town. The history of this strange proceeding, as related to your correspondent by a friend of the parties is as follows: Three years ago, Wheeler Ellis, a young, poor and hard-working mechanic, left Washington for the far west to seek his fortune, leaving behind a lovely and lonely maiden to await the coming of some future time, when his finances would permit of marriage. This time had come this week, but on account of his business engagements the young man found he could not take the trip east. A friend arriving here from the west, was commissioned to take the young woman to Georgetown, where the ceremony would be performed. This arrangement, though entirely in accordance with the young lady's wishes did not suit her mother who so strenuously objected to this way of the thing being done, that some other plan must be adopted or the affair postponed. The girl had waited long already, and nothing but distance seemed to stand in the way. At the suggestion of Rev. George Carpenter, the telegraph was called into service. This calmed the old lady's objections, and the preacher performed the ceremony. No cards. The only spectators were a friend or two. From the time of the first message till the young man answered the solemn "I do" was something over four hours. The bride started immediately for a home and husband in the far west with the best wishes of many friends. The parties are well known here, and the affair caused quite a ripple of excitement when it became known. It is unequalled in strangeness in the annals of marriage.

The Campbellford Herald says:—A rumour to the effect that two hundred men were at work between Stirling and this village, was afloat here on Monday last; it was only a superficial report, however of a sensational character. Mr. Newman, of Toronto, in whose hands the work is now placed, was here, Monday evening, and from him we learn that if no delays take place in the shipment of iron, he will complete the road to Campbellford by the 20th of November

Death of Cardinal Cullen.

LONDON, Oct. 24.—Cardinal Paul Cullen, Roman Catholic Archbishop of Dublin, is dead.

The deceased prelate, according to "Men of the Time," was born in Ireland about 1800, and left his native country at an early age to study in Rome, where he remained thirty years during a considerable portion of which he was Rector of the Irish College and member of several ecclesiastical congregations in that city. After the death of Dr. Crolly, Roman Catholic Bishop of Armagh, which took place in 1849, Dr. Cullen was appointed by Pius IX. to the position thus vacated. In 1851 he was consecrated "Primate of all Ireland," and was transferred to Dublin in the following year on the death of Dr. Murray. He was strongly opposed to the mixed system of education represented by the Government schools and Queen's Colleges, and he was one of the first to conceive the idea of a Catholic University in Dublin, so he has ever proved himself a patron of that institution, and the main pillar of its support in Ireland. He was proclaimed Cardinal in June, 1866, being the first Irish Bishop who since the era of the Reformation had been advanced to that dignity.

Free Trade the Gospel of Peace.

Sturdy John Bright can see only one way of averting the world's woe—converting the nations to the gospel of free trade, which he maintains is the gospel of peace. In answer to an invitation to attend the peace congress lately held at Sovons, he writes: "The situation of Europe at this moment is deplorable; its nations are groaning under the weight of enormous armies and burdensome taxation. They are at the same time deplored in interests and sentiments by tariffs, which form an insurmountable barrier between the people of the different States, and prevent that reciprocity of interests which would make it impossible for their statesmen to drag them into war. How can peace be established and standing armies dissolved? This is the great question for Europe and for every nation at Sharnpe. To say nothing of the direct evil—of the waste of the public wealth—of the loss of life in the armies—of the grief of bereaved families, the people of Europe, the treaty between France and England, organized diplomacy, and Mr. Cobden, has certainly established sentiments of the two nations for each other, and if the tariff of France were at free as that of England the two nations would, through their commercial interests, become one. If the hearts of the two great civilized States would not then be one and the world would be a short time to endure."

CENTRE HURON.

(From the Irish Canadian.)

The Irish Catholic electors of Centre Huron may obtain light for their guidance at this moment by a glance at things in Ottawa. There they may see that Dr. Platt's party has given one representative in the Cabinet to 6,000 Protestants of Prince Edward's Island while rejecting appeals in the press and in public meetings to give a similar representation to 328,000 Catholics, mainly Irish! The Catholics of this Province might, it is true, allow that slap in the face to be repaid by those it has been given to directly; but the Catholics of this Province have a cause in common with those when they see that the representation they themselves have received usually has been conceded in isolation from the sources of the honor and emoluments of the public service, with the functions of a figure head! However man may differ at this early stage of the development of the Tory policy as to the duty of a movement of the Catholics into settled opposition where opposition there is none above the impossible, the development so far is perfectly good for the conclusion that the Catholics ought not to assist in increasing a Tory majority which has led to the intoxication of power that has begun by treating them with contempt.

PROVINCIAL POLITICS.

Already the Tories flushed with their unexpected victory in the Dominion elections, hail the, to them, prospective downfall of the Reform Administration in Ontario. The cry has gone forth that Mr. Mowat and his colleagues in the Provincial Cabinet must be put down. And why? is it because they have not done well that which they have undertaken? Is it because they have in any way neglected the interests of the Province? It is none of these. The only reason given for the Tory outcry against Ontario Ministers is, that they, as they had an equal right with any other citizen to do, used their votes and influence against Sir John Macdonald, Tory policy and Tory tactics in Dominion affairs. They are accused of having deserted their offices and duties, but no attempt is made to show how the offices or duties suffered by a temporary absence such as happens time and again when no Dominion election calls forth general attention. Men of public spirit, thoroughly acquainted with public affairs, as the members of the Provincial Cabinet are, would not be worthy the name of patriots did they sit serene and unmoved amid a general discussion of their country's interests. With the ability to discuss public affairs, any lack of will would show both lack of patriotism and personal cowardice. Evidently aware of the illogical nature of their objection to Provincial Ministers speaking on Dominion affairs, the Tory assailants of Mr. Mowat and his colleagues add to their accusation an assertion that the Provincial purse and patronage was used to coerce electors into voting for the Mackenzie Government. Perhaps the best answer to this is simply to declare its falsity. But that would lead to a repetition of the Tory statement that the lie "cannot successfully be disputed." Now everybody knows that it is not easy to refute a deliberate falsehood, made out of whole cloth, and put forward without any evidence that may be attacked. The only hope in such case is to show the absurdity of the statement. In this instance Mr. Mowat and his colleagues in the Ontario Government, along with Reformers and Conservatives generally, never had any idea other than that the Mackenzie Government would be sustained. With such a feeling, (and that all Reformers had it is evident from their confidence before and surprise after the election,) Ontario Ministers could see no need of "using the purse and patronage of the Province," to coerce electors to vote in the very direction they supposed they were going to vote at any rate. Then again, if the Provincial purse and patronage were unduly used as alleged, where are the effects of it? Of what have the Tories to complain? Judging by results, is it not more reasonable to suppose that purse and patronage were used on the other side?

The accusation being so palpable absurd, why is it made? We think we can discern two reasons. One is in the Tory thought that this will be as good a party cry as any, and the other is the probable desire to use it to distract popular attention, if possible, from the use they make of municipal money and patronage to further party ends. Already we are told, and are ready to believe it, that orders have gone forth from Tory head quarters, that municipal councillors shall be elected and municipal officers filled as far as possible by Conservatives. This has been so much the general practice by Tories that no special orders were required to them were it not that some special object is in view. That object is the attempted overthrow of Reform rule in the Ontario Parliament. The assault will be made at all points, and every means will be used to further the Tory purpose. But "forewarned is forearmed," and we trust that Reformers in each and every city, town, village and township will see to it that the Tory expectations are frustrated at all points and in every particular.

Mr. W. Badgerow of Yorkville has received the unanimous nomination of the reformers to contest the East Riding of York in the Local House. He is an advocate of reducing members indemnity to $600. a year, and doing away, if possible with the Lieut-Governors as unnecessary their duties being almost nil.

THE MANUFACTURERS AND THE TARIFF.

We have formerly remarked that the manufacturers of the Dominion, who subscribed to the Tory election fund, would not rest satisfied till they had more than a promise of remburesement. They agreed to aid the Tory candidates on the promises of increased protection; and having consummated their part of the bargain, they now look to the Tory government for a fulfilment of the other part of the compact. The Tory leaders and the Tory press having shown decided signs of abandoning their protection policy, the manufacturers have taken the alarm, and are adopting such measures as will enable them to force their demands. Already several meetings of manufacturers have been held to consult on the best means of securing their wishes, and of provoking or forcing such legislation as will give them the trade advantages they want. Their gain must assuredly prove the loss of others, but what care they? For helping the Tories they have been promised certain special advantages, clearly at the cost of the general public; but the good of all did not enter into the consideration of either manufacturers or Tory politicians when the understanding was arrived at between them, and the bargain and sale consummated. Those classes that are to be sacrificed, if the party of the second part comes to time, have been taken in by promises similar to those made to the manufacturers. So systematic was this kind of bribery by using business anticipations, that very few who voted on the Tory ticket at the late elections, could without considerable reservation have sworn that no personal inducement had been held out to him. Every man was promised protection in his especial line against the advantages to be gained by others protected in their turn. Each was pointed to a customs duty that would please him, and filled with the idea of personal gain to the exclusion of all thought on the effect of his advantage on others, and these others were in turn approached with inducements in the shape of their special advantages, while conflicting promises made for the interests of their neighbors were forgotten. The farmer and the laborer were for the want of thorough examination and discussion of the spacious part-aspects of Protection induced to vote straight against their own interests. Each class was charmed with an "if" and no "but" was allowed. Now that they are in power were likely to hear more of the "buts" than the "ifs" from the members of the Protectionist Ministry and their friends. Indeed this is the case already. The Tories don't even congratulate themselves and their promise-bought allies on the prospect of a fulfilment of pledges and expectations. Conjectures as to what certain customs duties are to do for the agriculturalist, the miner, the fisherman, the manufacturer, the lumberman, the artizan, and the laborer are no longer heard from those who so lately indulged in them before every man they met. The persons to have been benefitted by the defeat of the so-called Free-Trade government are not even congratulated on their improved prospects. Such congratulations might be looked on as ironical, and the promising party discretely forget to indulge in those petty speeches that might otherwise be expected of them. The present Tory Policy is one of masterly inactivity all along the line. The manufacturers do not ask—and, it would seem, do not expect to be congratulated. It is their evident intention to get the most they can out of the situation; and their plain belief is that they hold the key. Consequently they are preparing to press their demands after the manner of the rings of like composition that control the fiscal policy of the United States government. We hear nothing as yet of conventions of farmers to look after their interests in the formation of the new tariff, or of meetings of miners, lumbermen, or fishermen, to press their views on the attention of the government; neither do we hear of artizans or laborers appointing committees to lay before the ministry the particular legislation they want, in order to raise their "struggling industries," and protect them from foreign competition. Such meetings will come later, when these classes begin to feel the increased pressure of forcing our factories.

THE RENEWED RULE OF DISHONESTY.

Those who in 1874 objected by their votes to the principles—or lack of principle—that actuated Ministers, and led to the perpetration of the series of political crimes which culminated in the Pacific Scandal, will be anything but re-assured by recent events in the political history of the Dominion. Especially significant is the reunion in the Cabinet of the most prominent actors in those sins to which we have alluded. In no humility of spirit did Sir John Macdonald, Hector Langevin, and other members of the former Conservative Ministry, meet the detection of their crimes and its consequent ons. They rather tried to avoid the effect upon themselves, apparently caring nothing for the demoralization of the country, without an acknowledgement of error there can be no full repentance. These men admitted no wrong doing, even when the proofs of their crimes were placed before them. They had to acknowledge the doing of deeds that brought the blush of indignant shame to the cheek of every patriotic Canadian; but they never looked on them as wrong for them to do, on the other hand they carried themselves as with a consciousness of having done something worthy of pride rather than shame; and assumed the jaunty air of the hardened criminal whose boasting over the way he has outwitted those whom he considers honest fools drives out all thought of sorrow for sin. Indeed he looks on his deeds as rather meritorious than otherwise, and blame only the sturdy virtue of those who refusing all bribes, have exposed the wrong doing. The ordinary unrepentant criminal looks on the detective who unearthed his crime as worse than himself, and always trys to fasten counter accusations on the officer. So it has been, we have seen, with the political criminals connected with the Pacific Scandal, and the many minor wickednesses that lead up to it. They could not with the evidences so plain deny their guilt; but they seemed to be more virtuous than their accusers, whom they denounced as hypocrites capable of worse deeds (of the imagination) than those palpable crimes under immediate consideration. They like the genuine goat-bird, have complained of being hardly dealt with, and of being the victims of the schemes of men worse than they, against whom they insinuated all sorts of villanies. They have by another grand scheme of corruption—the granting of personal advantages severally to all classes—obtained a release from the just sentence that held them from any participation in the executive affairs of the country. They have got back the chance of following out their former evil practices; and will any man say they are not likely to again indulge their propensities? All who have the good of the country at heart, be they Reform or Conservative in politics, cannot but deplore the reascendding of as an executive of those old offenders, and the union with them of only such as have only winked at and tried to justify their former offences. The new ministry is to all intents and purposes the Pacific Scandal Cabinet revived; and we may look for a revival of the old practices. With such men in its high places the country cannot be otherwise than demoralised. They did incalculable damage to the character of political life before, and no guarantee is lacking that they will do it again No Conservative or Precotionist voter need now be proud of the vote he gave at the last election.

THE CONTINUANCE OF HARD TIMES.

Prior to the general election a favorite saying of the advocates of and apologists for Protection was, "a change may do good, and anyway things can't be much worse than they are." A change has taken place, and we are worse off than we were then. The financial and commercial depression, instead of diminishing has increased. Moneyed institutions are in what is known as a critical condition, and stocks generally are panicky. Financial transactions are consequently unsteady, and money is dear. Those who must have funds to carry out operations already entered into have to pay a high rate for it, while those who would under ordinary circumstances be doing business, are prevented by the difficulties and dangers staring them in the face. The banks very properly refuse to make advances without the very best security. A great deal of capital is thus locked up, while much money is rendered unproductive for the want of that general circulation of money that gives motive power to all enterprises, and without the mutual interchange of which all industries languish. Late heavy failures in Britain and the Dominion have made the times harder than they have ever yet been; and there is unfortunately little hope of improvement before another harvest. Many farmers are now actually forced to sell their grain at prices far below the expectations they had formed. Those who still believe in the promises to them of National Policyists, and who can tide over the season, are holding their grain for a rise. In view of plentiful crops on all hands, they are not likely to get this, unless something extraordinary turns up in the world. Neither the farmer who holds nor him who is forced to sell at low prices, can pay all the debts they owe. Their creditors suffer, and in their turn fail to meet their financial engagements. Thus it goes from the laborer and employer, from the farmer and the smaller dealer, up to the wholesale merchant, the manufacturers and the banking institutions, credit is shaken, and failures ensue, each concern in its fall knocking down one or more in addition. The uncertainty as to the intentions of the new government in carrying out, or deserting their fiscal policy, makes the confusion more confounded. It is a puzzle to know what may happen next, yet we are assured as readily as ever that "things can't be worse than they are."

ABSURD ACCUSATIONS.

For the purpose of drawing public attention, if possible, from the insincerity of their political friends now in power, the Tory journals have been making charges of a serious nature against the Reformers, in the hope that the denial and discussion may lead away from the pledges that bind the new Ministry in honor to adopt a certain course, or acknowledge former falsehoods and deceptions. First the accusation was made that the late contest was generally characterized by acts of bribery and corruption, and other undue influences on the part of Reformers. But we see or hear of no attempt to adduce proofs of these broad assertions. Again it is alleged by Tory papers that Mr. Mackenzie's appointees to the civil service have displayed an unseemly activity for the Reform cause. The best refutation of all such accusations is seen in the fact that neither party in the late contest at the polls, looked for the result that has come to pass. The Reformers, confident in the triumph of the principles they professed, honestly expected the good judgement of the people to endorse those principles. However mistaken they were in these matters, Reformers generally, felt certain of victory, and hence felt no temptation to use any undue influences to secure votes they confidently expected in any case. With such a feeling prevading the party, no government official, however friendly he might feel towards Mr. Mackenzie and his party, could see any necessity of doing wrong in their favor. The fine-spun moralising that Tory insinuators have built on imaginary cases of official meddling in the Reform interest—needs no answer. We perfectly agree that government officers should work neither for or against those who are for the time their employers—the existing government. So serious do we consider any such offence, that we should not like to accuse anyone of it, without good and convincing evidence. Indeed those who bandy such accusations about for party purposes are guilty of an equally grave wrong; for they are but encouraging the making of the civil service a party engine. There will doubtless always be those who will through jealousy or malice, start reports of political action against civil servants. Especially is this the case on a change of government. It is in the plain duty of party leaders to ignore such rumors, and the party press to discourage their circulation, much less to aid in the mischievous work—as the former change of ministry just such accusations were made by interested persons; but the Reform press frowned upon them. It has even been said that Mr. Mackenzie offended many of his own party by the discourtesy of such complaints, and by patriotically preferring the right to the personal gratification of some place-hunter. In some instances men were kept in the service who proved traitors to the ministers of their departments; as is shown by the frequent publication of departmental secrets in Tory papers before they were entrusted to the care of Reform journalists. Thereby shone who blame the late Premier for his adherence to principle, and who declare that he should have looked rather to plans for strengthening his party. This is merely a political application of the theory of doing evil that good may come, and will not bear the test of truth. Right may suffer a temporary and apparent defeat; but in pure to triumph in the end. The time will assuredly come when the actions of Mr. Mackenzie will be pointed to with admiration, and as a precedent for the guidance of other political leaders.

EDITORIAL NOTES.

The National Policy works so admirably that butter was worth from 8 to 13 cents on Saturday last, and wheat—Nuff said.

Mr. R. W. Phipps has written a second letter. He now shrewdly fears "the projected temple of protection may become a den of monopolists."

It is proposed to form an association of Ontario tanners, who will aim, as the prospectus states, "to bring about a more healthy state of the trade, and to suggest needed alterations in the Act concerning the inspection of hides and skins."

The bogus workingmen's banquet to Sir John, given in Toronto, last winter is yet unpaid for, and the caterer is giving Sir John one more chance before getting judgment in the York county court.

A vote to repeal the Dunkin Act in Grey has been taken. 692 votes were polled for the repeal and 66 against. It is very evident that no interest was taken for or against the repeal by the Temperance people of the county.

Sir John Macdonald is 63 years of age. Dr. Tupper 57, Mr. Tilley 60, Senator Campbell 56, Senator Aikins 55, Mr. O'Connor 54, Mr. Bowell 55, Mr. Masson 45, Mr. Langevin 52, Mr. Pope of Compton 54, Mr. Macdonald 50, Mr. Pope of P. E. I. 51, and Mr. Baby 44.

The London Free Press asks, with more than ordinary coolness, who it was ever promised to increase the price of farm products through the National Policy agency. This is sheer impudence, coming so soon after the elections. What stump speaker on the Tory side didn't say so?

The Halifax Herald turns up its educated proboscis at Mr. Phipps, and waves him aside with the remark that he is a person of "unevenly balanced brains." So much for the author of the 80,000-circulation pamphlet on "Protection Considered With Relation To Canadian Interests." Now who will protect Phipps?

Thomas White has retired from the Montreal Gazette. He will now have time to devote himself exclusively to politics, and the paper can reap its full share of Government patronage. Probably Mr. Bunting of the Mail will imitate his example.

The Stratford Herald has been saying bitter things of the present and former editors of the Beacon, and the Beacon replies by simply asking the people of Stratford, without distinction of party, what they "think of a scullion in the employ of the Robb family attempting to throw slops at Mr. Buckingham?" This is rather hard on Jimmy Fahey.

The Catholics of Ontario feel sad in their representation in the New Cabinet, only John O'Connor has received a portfolio and it (President of the Council) has no patronage for which they were so clamorous. While Grand Master Bowell has the most extensive patronage of any member of the Cabinet. The Irish Canadian is sullen just now.

The cigar makers are the first to feel the mockery of the promises made to the mechanical classes by the protectionists during the election campaign. Instead of the increased wages which the inauguration of a new Government was to bring them, they are met with a demand from the proprietors to submit to fifteen per cent. reduction. So much for the mechanics and the N. P.

The National Policy is not to be inaugurated till February as Sir John has determined not to call the house together until the usual time. In the meantime, during four months, the country is to be allowed to suffer while they profess to have the means within their power to restore prosperity and good times. This is only another evidence of the dishonesty of those who only wanted an opportunity to frame a policy that would ensure a return to plenty and prosperity and happiness.

Word has been passed around by the Conservatives leader that strenuous efforts must be made to get possession of all the municipal councils in Ontario at the coming January elections with a view to next year's general election for the Local Legislature. The idea is to get Conservative majorities on the Boards of Works, etc., so as to have little jobs in the wards to give out to voters; and to get and retain hold of waterworks and all other such undertakings with a view to political influence.

Mr. Hilliard, as may be seen by referring to his card to the electors, secured his seat in West Peterborough on the strength of the "National Policy" cry. Supposing Sir John Macdonald does not give such a tariff as will secure all Mr. Hilliard declared in his card to be wanting, what course will the member for West Peterborough take? As a man of honor he should either resign or go into opposition; and Mr. Hilliard claims to be a man of honor. Already some of the expectations he raised have been dashed. Those who were promised more work and better wages, those who were told of brisk sales and better profits and those who were to get more for their horses, cattle, sheep and grain if the Reformers were ousted from power, are getting vestive. They begin to think Mr. Hilliard a humbug. He must either carry out his programme or take the consequences.

Montreal Witness! Hurry up, Sir John and protect the fish and make them rush to the salesman's net; protect the coal, and teach the manufacturers of Ontario who have elected you to consume it instead of anthracite; protect the barley and the oats, and people the glens of Cape Breton with jubilant farmers. Hurry up, and spread your protecting wings over the hen's eggs over which you have so long cackled, and hatch the chickens for whose advent the country is waiting. Not only are the alleys of Griffintown calling to you, but the plains of Ontario and the valleys of Laurentides look to you; even for Nevada sends back her exile's petition that you will protect. How happy is the father to whom so many children come with confidence, asking bread, when he knows the secret that will unlock the doors of all Nature's storehouses and fill every lap with dainties! Hurry up, Sir John!

Suicide in Markham.

The Markham Economist says:—On Monday afternoon, the 21st October, Jonathan Nigh, a respectable farmer of competence, residing near Almira, Markham, committed suicide by cutting his throat. It appears that deceased had been suffering from a severe pain in his head for some time past. A suit against him for slander, which was proven, appeared to aggravate the disease, and he became so despondent that his family have felt it their duty to keep a constant surveillance over him, especially at night. On Monday afternoon he availed himself of the opportunity of being left alone, and with a razor inflicted several shocking wounds, which was the immediate cause of his death.

HARVEY.

BEAR SHOT.—A short time ago a son of Mr. W. Blewitt, aged 14 years, shot a very large bear. The skin measured seven feet and a half in length, and the carcass when cleaned turned the scales at the nice little weight of 275 pounds.—Com.

PENELON FALLS.

About $150 has been subscribed for the establishing of a Mechanics Institute and Reading Room.

The Gazette advocates periodical cattle sales.

A complimentary supper was given to Mr. Hector Cameron, on Thursday evening in the MacArthur House and is describe as a grand success, if not, why not?

On Sunday morning last, Mr. Samuel Carew, dropped dead in the garden of his brother in law Mr. Elisha Mark, and was not discovered until the next morning. He had long suffered from heart disease.

LAKEFIELD.

VACATED.—Mr. German has vacated the Blakely house. Mrs. Blakely again takes possession.

MR. WEBER has returned from his visit to the old country.

THE Lakefield Bridge is to be repaired shortly.—News.

THE WEATHER.—The storm has passed quickly, and the sun shines with the softness and warmeth of Indian Summer.

APSLEY.

ACCIDENT.—On Monday last while a number of men in the employ of Messrs Ullyott & Co., were engaged building a lumber shanty near Jack's Lake, a young man named John Moore of Lakefield was accidently struck on the head with the point of axe, a very ugly cut being the result. Dr. Clegg was sent for and arrived four hours after the accident occurred during which time the injured man fainted twice. He is rapidly recovering under the Drs. care.—Cow.

Your readers will be glad to know that our Temperance Lodge is progressing. We opened our new Temperance Hall on the 17th, and about 130 sat down to the good things provided by the ladies. In the evening the entertainment was well attended, and passed off well, but none of the speakers advertised from a distance, made their appearance, and home talent had to be relied on. Speeches were given by the Revs. Harding and McKee, which were well received, and the readings and recitations given by others were well rendered, but the singing by Miss Webster, and the recitation by Miss Mattie Lounsley, deserve more than passing notice, neither of the children being more than seven years of age, and the manner in which they performed their part might well call forth the envy of older persons. $30 was the proceeds of the tea, our Reeve, Mr. Colborne subscribed $10, and Mr. James Mickle, of Norwood, sent $10, which made the amount for that day $60. On the 19th a social was held to consume the remainder of the good things left after the tea, at which about 50 couple were present, and the sum of $16 raised, which swelled the amount of opening the Hall to $66. A speech by Mr. John Young, and readings, recitations, and songs by others were well given. Capt. Bridgewater, who was foremost in trying to defeat the Dunkin Act here and in the County, also spoke, and has become a member of the Temple. If another Temple could be established in South Burleigh it would prove a boon to some who are not near enough to go to Apsley. —Com.

[Space prevents our giving a more detailed account of the proceedings in this issue, but in future we hope to be able to give our readers more news from the back country, as we have made arrangements with a correspondent in that locality.—ED. EX.]

SOCIALISTIC TERRORISM.

King Alfonso Fired Upon.

MADRID, Oct. 25.—As King Alfonso was driving through the street known as the Calle Mayor this evening a man in a blouse fired a pistol at him. The King was not touched, and continued on his way to the palace amid the acclamations of the crowd. The would be assassin was immediately seized by soldiers and taken to prison.

LATER.—King Alfonso's would be assassin is named Juan Moncasi, aged 23, by trade a cooper, and a native of Tarragona. He states that he is a member of the International Society, and that his crime was premeditated. He arrived at Madrid on October 20th. His bullet struck nobody. Moncasi was rescued with difficulty from some women who wished to lynch him. All the foreign Ministers and diplomats in Madrid have congratulated the King on his escape. A solemn Te Deum will be sung to-morrow. Judicial proceedings against the assassin have already commenced.

THE CABINET.

(From the Ottawa Irish Canadian.)

Our Quebec correspondent informs us that the Cabinet was completed and the remaining Ministers sworn in in that city last Saturday. It will be observed that the number of Ministers has been increased to fourteen by the addition of Senator Wilmot, without portfolio, thus completing the representation of New Brunswick. This arrangement will give deep offence in certain quarters where Mr. Costigan is regarded as a popular representative. Certainly Mr. Costigan is not second to Mr. Tilley or any other member from New Brunswick, and the reason of his being ignored will infallibly appear because he is Mr. Costigan. We never advocated that a man should be selected for a Cabinet because he was a member of any profession, but it is intolerable to be forced to admit that the fact that Mr. Costigan is what he is he has been excluded from a seat in the Cabinet. The resignation of the Hon Mr. O'Connor to a back seat is also regarded by his supporters at Ottawa and elsewhere as something like a rebuke to their aspirations. These things, taken with the elevation of Mr. Bowell and the general character of the new Administration, do not lead us to regard the selection of Ministers as the happiest that could be made under the circumstances.

THE EASTERN AFFAIR.

England Addresses a Protest to Russia —The Situation again Threatening— Turkey asks for an Explanation.

LONDON, Oct. 29.—A Vienna despatch says England has addressed a protest to Russia against her non-execution of the Treaty of Berlin.

The Times, while admitting that the time has come when some step must be taken, thinks the collective representation of the Powers will be most effected, and believes France, Austria and Germany will not hesitate to unite with England in protecting the provisions of the Berlin Treaty.

The Porte has asked Prince Labanoff to explain the return of the Russians to the positions recently evacuated, and also the refusal to reinstate Turkish authorities in the districts between Tchorlan and Adrianople.

Sixty Thousand Russians have entered Roumelia by way of Bourgas.

The St. Petersburg Golos says:—"If the Russian people were consulted they would unhesitatingly decide for a renewal of the struggle. Despite the expenditure of eighteen months the natural course of historical development, it is evident the inevitable crisis in the Eastern question has arrived. There is no apparent prospect of completing the organization of the Balkan peninsula on a basis of tranquility and justice without a fresh war.

A despatch from Berlin says it has now transpired that a strong Russian force was crossed into the Balkan frontiers until the close of the Berlin Congress for purposes of secret Administration.

The Post says Gortschakoff declares the Treaty of Berlin is a failure, and that it will be impossible to arrive at a pacific solution on its lines. "Peace," it says, "must be commenced by surrendering the count of the restless power which has kept Europe in uncomfortable peace ever since the Crimean war, although the Czar has taken the same view of the question that he does. A new alignment, however, will have to be held in Margrie.

UNWILLING TO ADVANCE.

Another Communication Sent to the Ameer—Russia to Render Active Assistance.

LONDON, Oct. 29.—A despatch from Simla states that telegraphic correspondence is still proceeding with the home authorities. The Indian officials appear dissappointed with the instructions from the Home office. It is rumored the Viceroy has been instructed to write to the Ameer again before advancing.

SIMLA, Oct. 29.—The Begum of Bhopal has offered to place her army at the disposal of England.

Orders have been issued for the collection of stores and transport for 20,000 men at at Peshawur.

The Berlin despatches report that the Russian Gen. Lonskine has started from eastern shore of the Caspin Sea in the direction of Merv near the northern frontier of Afghanistan; one account says to punish marauding inhabitants.

The German St. Petersburg Gazette says:—"Rumors are persistently current that the Government have decided to offer active assistance to Shere Ali. Many volunteers are preparing to start for Afghanistan." The same paper states that by order of the high Admiral 110 torpedo boats have been distributed among sixty-one war ships.

A Simla correspondent understands that the Home authorities have decided that another communication shall be addressed to the Ameer, setting forth explicitly the consequences of a refusal to admit the British mission. The former emissary of the Viceroy, who has just left Simla, probably bears this ultimatum.

Canadian Affairs in England.

The "Times" on our Commercial Policy—How far does Canadian Self-Government Extend?

The Times, in an editorial on the change of the Canadian Ministry, after referring to the circumstances of the victory, asks what is to be done now. Sir John A. Macdonald is not deficient in wit, and would probably be glad to quietly reject protection. But that is impossible. At least there must be a make-believe to do something to carry out the nonsense talked on the hustings. If anything is done to mend, make, or shape a commercial treaty with the United States for admitting the products of the Union on exceptionally favourable terms, this will be by reciprocity, though by way of forcing the hands of the Washington Government higher duties may be tried first. A differential tariff would thus be contemplated, under which commodities from Pennsylvania would enter Canada at lower duties than the same commodities from Germany, France, or even Britain. Such a treaty could not be negotiated, still less ratified, without the consent of the Crown. This raises the very delicate question, how far the limits of self-government in Canada extend? Do treaties we have made with other nations allow us to authorise unequal duties in our colonies? No doubt as far as our hands are free we shall concede to Canada the utmost liberty to fall into error; still, we shall not acquiesce in this result without expostulation and remonstrance. We have never concealed the truth that free trade between Canada and the United States would be fraught with immense advantage to both countries, but to try to develop an interchange of commerce by first blocking out the productions of the United States on the strength of the arguments and commonplaces of protection is suicidal. If the difference between the Mackenzie and Macdonald Governments is that one did its best to liberate trade between the States and the Dominion by mutual agreement, and that the other is about to try a hostile tariff, we must pronounce Mr. Mackenzie altogether right and his opponents altogether wrong. The true policy of the Dominion is to be more advanced, and to adopt free trade legislation themselves without waiting for their neighbors to learn the elements of sound commercial policy. If they must have a leader let them take a pattern by Switzerland, which, amidst countries subjected to restrictive tariffs, has itself next to no tariff, and is a standing example of commercial and industrial prosperity.

Famine is desolating many countries. Recent accounts from Morocco indicate terrible suffering among the people. Crops have failed, and the poor are utterly destitute. The road-sides in some sections are strewed with the dead and dying.

An innocent old farmer in one of the Waterloos finally decided to vote against the late Government on the ground that "he thought Mackenzies had done wrong in stealing the rails off John A.'s fence." This is not a whit more ridiculous than other stories industriously circulated by conscientious Conservative canvassers.

Our colored population, the Toronto Telegram points out, have no representation in either the Dominion House or in any of the Local Legislatures, much less in the Cabinets. Yet they pay taxes, perform all the duties, and assume all the responsibility of citizenship, and are no inconsiderable elements in the population of Western Ontario.—Montreal Witness.

Sir A. T. Galt has come out as a temperance reformer. In a speech delivered at the Sherbrooke temperance convention last week he took the ground that prohibitory legislation was perfectly constitutional and compatible with British freedom, and that it would be easy to replace the revenue that would be lost by the suppression of the liquor traffic. He however, took another position that will not be acceptable to ultra prohibitionists. He said the principal evils and crimes resulted from the use of ardent and not fermented liquors, and that it would be wise to at least begin by abolishing distilled liquors and permitting the sale and use of wine and beer. He thought that this policy would secure double the number of adherents that prohibiting all intoxicating liquors would have.

Sir John Macdonald evidently does not intend to seek re-election, as no writ has as yet been issued. Mr. Todd says he is quite clear that a new election is not necessary, Sir John having been returned for a constituency since his accession to office. There is no precedent of the kind in Canadian history, but there are English precedents. There is a ground for ... about this case, however, and that is that the ... tions: Victoria took place on the 14th October, three days before the commencement of office by the Premier, but should this point be ruled Mr. Todd thinks it would grave to be a more legal quibble. He has been given to understand since, that the Governor-General does not intend to ... his ministers to break away from all law and ... precedent."

LOCAL NEWS.

Fresh Oysters.—New fresh oysters are being daily received, direct from Baltimore, at Stone & Bailey's.

School Board.—The regular monthly meeting of the School Board will be held next Tuesday evening.

Pulpit Exchanges.—On Sunday evening last the Rev. Mr. Wallace and Rev. Mr. Malhern exchanged pulpits.

Personal.—Mr. M. Flanagan, City Clerk of Kingston, was in town during the past week on a visit to his friends.

Gone to Kansas.—John Walton, Esq., left on Tuesday morning last for a trip to Kansas. We hope he may have a pleasant time.

Attempted Burglary.—We learn that an attempt at burglary was made last Friday night, upon the residence of Dr. G. Burnham, sr. A watch dog raised an alarm and the burglars took to flight.

Snow Storm.—On Sunday night the first snow of the season reached this town. Sunday afternoon there was rain and a high wind. Probably this is Vennor's storm—a couple of weeks after date.

The Midland Section.—The work on these sections is now being pushed forward rapidly, and it is expected they will be ready for occupation in a short time. When finished they will be a credit as well to the town as the Company.

Large Yield.—Messrs. James Mann and Son have this year raised 400 bushels of carrots and 450 bushels of mangolds from one and one-sixth of an acre. We have not as yet heard of any larger yield, and think it would be hard to beat.

Stereoscopic Views.—Mr. Little has now for sale a fine collection of Stereoscopic views of the romantic and beautiful scenery of our back lakes, taken during the past summer, which we presume, will meet with a ready sale.

Ostrich Plumes.—At a recent auction sale in South Africa a pound of fine ostrich feathers brought $288.75. There is, therefore, grave reasons to doubt the genuineness of an ostrich plume bought in Peterborough for twenty-five cents.

Presentation.—On Tuesday evening last, Mr. Joseph McClelland, on behalf of the St. John's Church Choir, presented Miss Lillie Brown, with a handsome rosewood eight-day clock, in appreciation of the services rendered by her to the choir for a number of years.

Continuing in Business.—We are pleased to be able to announce that Mr. W. G. Thomson has decided to remain in business, and has re-stocked his store with a choice selection of fancy and staple dry goods, suitable for the fall and winter trade. The millinery department is under the charge of Miss Finlason.

Entertainment.—The second of a series of entertainments in behalf of the library fund of the George Street Methodist Sunday School will be held in the lecture room of the Church, to-morrow evening, commencing at the usual hour. Admission five cents. We trust the efforts of the officials of the school to maintain a good library may be fully sustained.

At Work Again.—Although temporarily suspended from work for a short time, owing to the recent fire, Messrs. Huebeck & McKee are again manufacturing in full blast, having leased a portion of Mr. W. Toole's planing mill. They are now prepared to fill all orders for first class furniture at factory prices. If not in stock selections can be made from photos of the latest styles and designs of American and Canadian furniture.

The Giant T.—Mr. Adam Hall has this fall received an immense assortment of stoves in all the leading lines, comprising base burners, coal grates, parlor stoves, parlor cook stoves and cooking stoves in square, extended and elevated ovens. Having purchased at an advantage, he can afford to sell at very low prices, and this he is determined to do. Customers can therefore rely on getting genuine bargains. Give him a trial.

Fresh Blotches.—The Belleville Intelligencer gives notice that in the future no business notice intended as an advertisement will be inserted in the editorial or local columns, but will be arranged under the head of business notices and charged for accordingly. Whether over punishable this is certainly the best method to pursue, and in the long run will be found to be the most satisfactory to both the advertiser and the newspaper. What say our contemporaries?

Rest Dufferin's Greatness.—The New York World says, a collection of Lord Dufferin's Canadian Speeches carefully and intelligently made, would be a popular book on both sides of the Atlantic. Mr. George Stewart, Jr's, book on "The Earl of Dufferin's Administration in Canada," published by The Rose-Belford Publishing Company, Toronto, will have a full collection, carefully revised by Lord Dufferin himself. The book will be issued very soon. A few first class agents wanted.

Foot Ball.—At a meeting of the Peterboro' Foot Ball Club held in the Huffman House on Saturday evening last, the following officers were elected for the ensuing year:—Mr. J. Jones, P. Donaldson, President; Mr. Geo. C. Rogers, Vice-President; Mr. E. B. Rogers, Captain; Mr. A. D. Braithwaite, Sec.-Treas. and Messrs. Snyder, Dolan and Brown, Committee men. The club play under the Rugby Union Rules. They have challenged Trinity College School, Port Hope, for Wednesday, Nov., 6th, to play a friendly game in Peterborough.

Paid Up.—The Midland Railway, on Thursday last, paid all their men up to date—a most satisfactory state of affairs. It is the intention, during the present regime, to establish a regular pay day, and not allow the wages to run in arrears, another unfavourable which have been such a great drawback in the past. In order to decrease the expenses as much as possible during the winter months, when the traffic on the road is slack, the men in the shops, and wherever available, have been put on three-quarter time. Altogether, a system of thorough economy is being instituted, which no one will regret.

Meeting Night Changed.—Lindsay Lodge, I.O.O.F., have changed their night of meeting from Thursday to Monday, at the usual hour. The change was made for the purpose of accommodating many of the members who find it inconvenient to attend on Thursday evening, and there is strong evidence, says the Post, of good resulting therefrom. It is, we believe, the intention of the Lodge to give a series of entertainments during the winter, which will be open to friends of the members. This will tend to make the institution more popular than ever.

Absent Collecting.—The Monetary Times closes a pertinent article on "pushing collections" by repeating these words written a year ago:

"Let no storekeeper sit idle and wait for his credit customers to come in and pay their accounts. Let every personal debtor for the remainder of this month, busy at the work of collecting—in person, through his clerk or a bailiff, till every sleepy-eye customer shall have been roused or dunned or cued, according as he is willing, lazy or stubborn. The result will be a cheering increase in confidence, and a marvellous increase in confidence and goodwill between merchants and their customers."

Threshing Machine Accidents.—Chapter 168 of the Consolidated Statutes of Ontario provides that the owners of threshing, wood-sawing, or any other machines, connected to a horse-power by means of a tumbling rod or line of shafting shall cause such line or shafting to be covered with wood, leather, or metal covering, so as to prevent accidents occurring. The Act further provides, that persons who own such machines, and who fail to comply with the conditions of the Act shall be liable to fine and imprisonment. It is to be hoped that all parties concerned—those who manufacture such machines as well as those who run them—shall see to it that the conditions of the Act referred to are complied with.

Peterborough Lodge I. O. G. T.—At the regular session of Peterborough Lodge, No. 249, I.O.G.T., held on Monday evening, Oct. 28th 1878, the following officers were elected for the ensuing quarter:—

Bro. Robt. Weir	W.C.T
Sister McElwain	W.V.T
Bro. Hawthorn	W.S
Bro. R. Green	W.F.S
Bro. G. Whitely	W. Treas

Grades of Canadian Barley Established.—The Committee on Grain met in the New York Produce Exchange on Thursday last, and established the following grades of barley:

Extra Canada barley shall be of a bright, natural color, plump, sound, and well cleaned, weighing not less than forty-nine pounds to the measured bushel.

No. 1 Canada barley shall be of a bright, natural color, plump, sound, and well cleaned, weighing not less than forty-eight pounds to the measured bushel.

No. 2 Canada barley may be slightly stained, otherwise sound, reasonably clean, weighing not less than forty-six pounds to the measured bushel.

No. 3 Canada barley may be stained, shal but be sound, reasonably clean, fit for malting, and weighing not less than forty-four pounds to the measured bushel.

An Artistic Teller.—One that has for a number of years given more than ample satisfaction to many of the gentlemen of the town is Mr. R. Elder. He is now prepared to make up in the newest and best styles from fabrics of the latest patterns, coats, pants and vests, that combine a perfect and elegant fit, with the greatest possible amount of comfort and durability. Mr. Elder is in constant receipt of the styles of gentlemen's garments prevailing in London and New York, and is noted for his consumate skill in reproducing them. He invites the attention of gentlemen to his latest styles in the way of cutting and materials. As in the past, he grasp astes absolute and entire satisfaction even in the minutest details. He claims perfection for his work, and does not expect his patrons to be content with anything else.

A Thriving Trade.—Since opening up in Peterborough, Messrs. Hackett & Shirley have succeeded in building up a business of no small proportion. Establishing it in the interest of those who pay cash for their dry goods, they have endeavored to make it to the advantage of this class to purchase from them, by selling at the smallest possible margin above cost. Each week they are in receipt of fresh goods suitable for the different seasons, and purchasing them in the most favorable markets they can sell at astonishing low prices for cash. This week, as will be seen from their advertisement elsewhere in this paper, they have received a fresh supply of new goods, and from the prices at which they are quoted, we believe they will meet with a ready sale. They invite an inspection of their stock and think it no trouble to show goods.

A Needed Reform.—The Lindsay correspondent of the Bobcaygeon Independent says:—

"In a conversation with a Reformer upon Reform principles and upon needed reforms, one of the most needed reforms that we considered was required was in connection with the miserable system of 'trade' that prevails among storekeepers. 'Trading' or exchanging one article for another was perhaps all very well some years ago, but business is now sufficiently advanced to allow of such a bad system being published. It makes market quotations perfectly fictitious and unreliable. For instance the general marketable value of wheat is, we will say, 80 cts per bushel on the market and offers $1 a bushel in 'trade,' and for an illustration we will say that by 'trade' he meant a piano which he values at $300. Now, here in the market put in an uproar, the price of wheat is raised, but it is a thoroughly fictitious value for the reason that though a piano may be worth $300 to one man, to another it may not be worth 500 cents. What is wanted is to have business transacted on a cash basis. I will thank you to send my quarter's salary in cash; I really cannot do with any more such trade as bear's grease, vegetables, and woollen socks."

Boasting.—The Review last week boasted that its editorials were founded on facts culled from data, (a truly explanatory phrase) and from data, too, "not taken at hap-hazard from a contemporary without investigation or any reference to unquestionable data." This sort of Pelion or Ossa allusion to "data" was doubtless intended to impress the gullible.—Like the notorious liar's "Fact, I assure you." But unfortunately for the Review's consistency it had in the same column some exceedingly partisan remarks on Quebec politics, based on false data. Totally unmindful of the failure of Vennor, it actually went into the prophecy line, basing its observations on rumour that Mr. Price, a supporter Mr. Joly, had resigned for Chicoutimi, a rumour that turns out to be untrue. This then is the Review's "unquestionable data." No wonder it is calling on its party friends to really to its support; for it is evidently getting beyond the ability to support itself—except perhaps as a comic paper written without any attempt at comicality.

Canadian Press Association.—We learn from the Kingston News that arrangements have been made with the Grand Trunk and Great Western Railways by which members of the Canadian Press Association will have the privilege of travelling on those lines at the rate of two cents per mile. This is a similar privilege to that given to the Commercial Travellers' Association some time ago, and, as many members of the Press, in the ordinary course of business have to travel frequently, the favor, we have no doubt, will be highly appreciated. It is likely that similar arrangements will be made with other railways, in order to meet the views and suit the convenience of members residing at a distance from the front, and who travel principally on local roads. Messrs. James Shannon, of the News, Kingston, President, and W. B. Clinie, Secretary of the Canadian Press Association, Bowmanville, are entitled to praise for bringing about the present arrangement, and we hope its accomplishment will bring in a large number of newspaper men not at present members of the Association.—Port Hope Times.

Privileged.—A point of some interest to newspaper men came up in a late trial at Rochester, N.Y., which is thus referred to by the Express of that city:—"The city editor of the Express was subpœned as a witness in the case to testify as to how he obtained the information on which he based his article in regard to the charges against Col. Hoyt, which appeared in this paper on the 15th of July last. The witness declined to answer, on the ground that a disclosure by him of the name of his informant or informants would seriously injure him in his business as a newspaper man; that the information had been imparted to him under the pledge of secrecy, that he very often was not able to obtain information on various matters except on conditions of secrecy, and that therefore all communications to a newspaper man should be regarded as privileged, the same as confidential communications between lawyers and clients. The counsel endeavored by various cunningly devised questions to extract the desired information, but the court ruled that the witness was not compelled to answer for the reasons he had stated."

Sudden Death.—On Tuesday last, while Mrs. Robert Matchett, of Otonabee, was spending the evening at the house of a neighbor, in company with some relatives, and while in the best health she suddenly appeared to be in a faint and was immediately placed on a bed, but was never after seen to breathe. A physician was brought in as speedily as possible, but to no avail, as the vital spark had instantaneously left its clay tenement. During the afternoon and evening the deceased, who was only in feeble and robust, was in very good health, complaining of nothing. The fact that she was only premonitorily conscious of a slight head-ache renders the bereavement the more unexpected. She was in the 65th year of her age. Mrs. Matchett's maiden name was Scott. Her father was about the first, if not the first settler on the present site of Peterborough, as he opened the Mills long known as Scott's Mills, and the place where the town now is was then known as Scott's Plains. Her sudden and unexpected death has caused deep sorrow among a large circle of relatives and friends who sincerely sympathize with the family in their bereavement.

Bestowed Farmers.—Too often men gather in the towns and cities to indulge in unsteady industry, and just about as often they become dissatisfied and unhappy. Sometimes a man of more than usual social instincts and with strong desire for improving the moments as they fly, draws in these retired gentlemen and places them in positions where wasted activity will take the place of physical, and provide for a vent that even city gatherings and crowded streets never can. We are pleased to be able to announce that a meeting of retired farmers was held this week at the house of Jas. Beckett, Esq., lately of Otonabee, who offer a very active life on the farm has retired to enjoy himself in his declining years. Mr. Beckett succeeded in getting together a number of retired farmers, and they have agreed to form a club as above stated. The exact order of their proceedings we have not learned. The next meeting will be held at the residence of Mr. W. C. Nicholls, McDonald street, on Tuesday next, at 2 p.m., when the old scenes and occupations will receive due consideration, and we believe, too, that it is their intention to pay due consideration to questions concerning the great future as well as the past and present.

Well Merited.—During the time Mr. Bertram represented West Peterborough, he every session forwarded copies of the Hansard, Trade Returns, and other official papers to the library of the Mechanics' Institute, which if mentioned by the present and future members will prove a valuable addition to their already attractive library. In view of this remembrance on the part of Mr. Bertram to the Institute, the following well merited resolution of thanks was passed at a meeting of the Directors held last Friday evening:

Moved by Mr. E. J. Tobin, seconded by Mr. J. E. Belcher,—That the thanks of the Board be tendered to Mr. John Bertram for his present of the Hansard and other Parliamentary papers; and that the Secretary be requested to send him a copy of this resolution.—Carried.

As these papers are valuable records of trade, debates, and information not to be easily obtained from any other source, the members of the Institute will, we are sure, be glad to receive similar favors from either of the present representatives of the county. While referring to this matter we might be permitted to suggest to the members of the Local House from this county that similar favors would, no doubt, be appreciated from them, and thus have favorable mention made of their names in the records of the Institute as benefactors.

December Examinations.—The examination for the admission of pupils to the High Schools will be held on Tuesday and Wednesday, 17th and 18th December. One mark will* be deducted for every mistake in spelling, in valuing the answers on geography, grammar, and composition. The maximum of marks on each subject is—reading 50, writing 30, dictation 72, fourth book and spelling 72, grammar 108, arithmetic 180, geography 72, composition 72, history 72. The minimum for pass is 288, being 80 per cent. of the total. One-third in each subject is required, and also one-half of the marks for the passing questions. Candidates should notify the head master of the High School of their intention to apply not later than the 6th of November. The Intermediate and Second-class examinations will be held as follows: Monday, 16th December, 1.30 to 4 p.m., English literature. It is indispensable that candidates send notice of their intention to write to the County Public School Inspector not later than the 16th of November.

The New Curling and Skating Rink.—At an adjourned meeting of those interested in the erection of a new Rink for Curling and Skating purposes, held in the Huffman House on Thursday evening last, the committee previously appointed to enquire as to cost of building and procuring of site reported, recommending the acceptance of Mr. Hazlett's offer on behalf of the Dickson estate, which was accepted. The new rink will be situated on that portion of the Dickson Estate lying between Brock and Hunter streets, and from the river's edge to the roadway leading to the mill. The main building will be 220 feet long by 65 feet wide, with a large skating rink in the centre 50x175 feet. On each side of the skating rink will be two rinks for curling—17x175 feet—so that curling and skating can go on together. Over the curling rinks on each side, and on each end of the building will be a promenade gallery, 12 feet wide, capable of holding 2000 people. At the entrance to the building will be a general reception room, with waiting rooms on each side for ladies and gent's. At the extreme ends of the curling rinks will be rooms for the use of curlers, while over the reception and waiting rooms will be a large hall for club purposes. Adjoining this building will be an enclosed uncovered rink 85x220 feet, which will be lit up during the season. It will be connected with the covered rink so that parties can skate from one to the other a distance of about 400 feet. With the exception of a few shares the required amount of stock has been subscribed and work on the building will be commenced in a few days. The erection of this building with all its conveniences, and in such a central locality will fill a want long felt in Peterborough, and we believe the public will appreciate it in such a manner as to make it a paying transaction for the stockholders.

Magic; or, The Water Queen.—To-morrow evening will be presented in Bradburn's Hall, C. N. Brisco & Co's Monster Spectacular Combination, entitled "Magic; or, The Water Queen. The piece as a spectacular drama is highly spoken of by the press, and the performers receive much praise for their splendid acting. The following is a slight synopsis of the drama, taken from the Herald, Montreal, in which city the Company showed to crowded houses in the Academy of Music:

"The scene opens on a desolate spot, introducing a Dutch comedian and the captain of a ship, both of whom have been lured on this place by a mysterious power which has destroyed the ship and cast several of its occupants upon the unwelcome spot. They are soon joined by an Irishman and Bridget, an Irish girl—all of whom were companions on the ship, and now swear eternal fidelity to each other, no matter what may occur. The scene changes to a submarine grotto, supposed to be under the sea, the home of fairies, demons, &c., and a part of the island on which the ships crew had been thrown. The Queen of the realms here meets the negro commodian—another of the ship crew—and is very much amused with his manners and sayings, and pleased with his appearance. The captain comes in, and is enraged that the Queen should prefer the negro to himself, and the Chief of the Demons becomes enamored of Bridget. Act second commences with a scene between the Chief of the Demons and Bridget, in which he discloses a plan for getting possession of the realms, and making Bridget the Queen—the scene shifting to another beautiful grotto, in musical selections, and the advancement of the interests of the Captain in the Queen's favour, while the negro is gradually getting left in that direction and turning his attentions to the Queen's chief attendant, the Act ending by a beautiful concerted piece and dance by the Company. Act third introduces a grand procession of birds, nymphs, and fairies, followed by the Queen in a magnificent chariot, and the demon plotting and counter-plotting; the Irishman having been let into the secret by Bridget wanting to overturn his designs; the negro pressing his claims to a lovely nymph that has been here cast of a flower for his especial benefit; the Dutchman floating around looking for "some one to love"; Bridget in familiar understanding with all the ladies of the Court and in high favour. The company is gorgeous behind, whereby not showing its best advantage on account of the non-arrival of the caldron. The situations are clerical in the extreme."

CHANCERY COURT.

Before the Hon., the Chancellor.

The Court of Chancery opened in Bradburn's Hall, owing to the repairs going on in the Court House) on Monday, before the Honorable, the Chancellor. There were seven cases for hearing.

BUTLER vs. STANDARD INSURANCE CO'Y.

This was a case arising out of the fire on the corner of George and Hunter streets last winter. Mrs. Butler claimed to recover from defendants the value of certain goods comprised in a policy issued by the defendants. The principal defence was that the plaintiff was not at the date of the insurance the owner of the goods. It appeared that plaintiff's brother, who died in 1877, was doing business as a grocer in this town, and by will bequeathed the stock-in-trade to his sister, the plaintiff. Her husband continued the business under his own name, using the stock so bequeathed, part of which had been sold, and other goods purchased by the husband and added to the former stock up the date of the insurance. In the opposition to her claim plaintiff stated she was the owner. The question argued were whether plaintiff was owner of any part of the stock; whether she had intermingle, intermpt; and if she had with reference necessary set forth her interest in the application.

Judgment reserved. Mr. Boyd, Q.C., and Mr. Bumble for plaintiff.

THE MIDLAND RAILWAY.

Opinions of the Press on the New Management.

Our readers are already aware of the election of Gen. A. Cox, Esq., as President of the Midland Railway. In his position he has inaugurated several reforms that must eventually ensure still greater confidence in the minds of the public, of the employees and of the bond holders. The very cautiously management of the past bad caused general distrust, and the employees were forced to go for many months without their pay. Parties furnishing the Company with wood, ties or timber felt insecure in doing so, and hesitated. All these things have already disappeared, Mr. Cox having removed the causes by ensuring prompt payment. He has now assumed the general management of the road, thereby doing away with any unnecessary expenses in paying officials with almost sinecure positions, and thus lessening the working expenses. He is doing all this too, without interfering with the efficient working of the road or its extension to Georgian Bay. Mr. Cox is firm, energetic, and far-seeing in business calculations, while he is affable, obliging, and courteous. Since the recent changes in the management have taken place, the press in all sections of the four counties has pronounced in the most complimentary terms upon the new President's business capabilities. Indeed, the change of management has pay, we might say, new life into the road. The arduous duties assumed by Mr. Cox will, we believe, be promptly and efficiently performed, and we can but add our meed of praise to that extended from all quarters, as will be seen from the following extracts taken from our exchanges:

(From the Lindsay Post.)

The strongest feature in the programme, however, is the fact that Mr. Geo. A. Cox will assume the active management of the road. Mr. Cox's name will be a source of great strength to the Company, and is a guarantee that it will be managed in an efficient, prompt and thorough manner. Mr. Cox is one of the most energetic business men in this section of the province; and one of the most shrewd and successful. His success, in fact, has almost passed into a proverb in Peterboro' almost everything that he touches seems to turn out well. The assumption of active control by Mr. Cox is a matter of satisfaction to his numerous friends in Lindsay and to the section north west to whom Mr. Cox's name is a guarantee of excellent management, and who now feel confident that the road will be put in a first-class condition, and that matters will go on in a satisfactory manner. We trust circumstances will prove favorable to the successful carrying out of Mr. Cox's plans.

From the Cobourg Sentinel.)

There is a general feeling of satisfaction and relief regarding the recent changes in the management and policy of the Midland Railway. It is confidently believed that the road, under the management of Mr. President Cox, will hereafter be conducted in an honest and business like manner, and that the public requirements to a greater extent than ever before. The employees who have been so long in arrear of wages are now confident of prompt relief and regular payment in future, and are cheerfully resuming work

(From the Peterborough Review.)

The appointment of Mr. Cox as Manager is the most important, and should give satisfaction both to the Company and the public who make use of the road. His position he has inaugurated several reforms that must eventually ensure still greater confidence in the minds of the public, of the employees and of the bond holders. The very cautiously management of the past bad caused general distrust, and the employees were forced to go for many months without their pay. (From the Port Hope Guide.)

The position that Mr. Cox has assumed is one of great responsibility and trust, and we have not the least doubt but that he will prove equal to the occasion. He has long since shown to the public that he is possessed with energy and ability, together with firmness and tact in the management of his own affairs, and we have every confidence that he will carry the same principles into practice when looking after the extensive and varied interests that will engage his attention while assuming the duties now devolving upon him. It augurs well for the future prosperity of that line, to see the system of retrenchment that has been commenced under the new regime.

(From the Port Hope Times.)

Mr. Cox, the new President, is a gentleman well-known in Port Hope as one of the most enterprising, public, successful business men of Peterborough, and we have no doubt he will prove himself "the right man in the right place." Having been a director of the road for several years, he is fully acquainted with the actual state of the Company's affairs; and the skill and ability of which he has built up one of the largest insurance businesses in the Province will stand him and the Railway in good stead in his new position.

TOWN COUNCIL.

Council met on Monday evening last. Present,—His Worship the Mayor, and Councillors Cahill, McBain, Smith, Ormond, Paterson, Hughes, Douglas, Carlisle, Deane, Baptie.

Minutes of last regular and special meetings read and confirmed.

COMMUNICATIONS.

From the Chief and Assistant Engineers of the Fire Department, presenting their annual report. The report complimented the Brigade on its present efficiency; recommended the payment of the men up to the 1st of October, the purchase of a few necessary articles for the use of the Brigade, and was accompanied by a memorandum of the fires during the year—their cause, amount of loss, insurance, &c.—Referred to Fire, Water and Gas Committee.

PETITIONS.

From Matthew Boyce, complaining of being assessed twice upon the same property.

From John Lavelletta, in reference to error in assessment.

From Jas. Lytle, asking to have the side walk extended on Dublin street from Aylmer west to his house.

From R. Smith, asking for a crossing to his place in the north end of the town.

From George Jackson, asking for a license for a butchers shop for the remainder of the year for five dollars.

From H. C. Rogers, Postmaster, asking that a gas lamp be located at the new Post Office corner.

From William Robertson, in reference to error in assessment.

From Cole Barrett, asking to be relieved of payment of taxes as he has been unable to work since July last.

From Octave Beauvais, asking that two men who came to his house sick and without means be provided with funds to carry them home.—Referred to Charity Committee.

From Andrew Jackson and John Sawers, asking that the assessment of the property rated against John Sawers be transferred to the first named petitioner.

From John Delaney, asking the Council to take into consideration the matter of taxes returned against his property.

Councillor Rutherford entered and took his seat.

The several petitions were referred to the Committees having jurisdiction therein, excepting that of George Jackson, which was disposed of by the following resolution:

Moved by Councillor Cahill, seconded by Councillor Rutherford.—That a butchers license be granted George Jackson for one year from date at the usual amount.

The Mayor stated that on looking through the statutes lately he had found it competent to refer all petitions in reference to remission of taxes to the Court of Revision.

Councillor Rutherford thought that by referring there either to the Chamby or Finance Committee—as formerly—more satisfaction would be given.

ACCOUNTS.

The following accounts were presented and referred to the Finance Committee:—

Aaron Dennstock	$25 00
Michael Halpin, keep of 4 persons over night	2 00

TREASURERS' BONDS.

The Clerk handed in the bonds of the Treasurer for the year 1878—the bondsmen being Isaac Garbutt and the Rev. Edward Riddell Roberts.

The bond was accepted.

Councillor Rutherford acted why the Chairman of the Finance Committee had not called a meeting of the committee lately. A great many important questions—among them the Police Court business—had to be settled.

Councillor Cahill in reply said through an oversight he had neglected to call the committee, thinking the Council did not meet till next week.

PAYMENT OF TAXES.

Councillor Smith said that he had been spoken to by several persons in reference to an extension of time for payment of taxes. The times were very hard and many were unable to pay their taxes. He would move the following resolution:

Moved by Councillor Smith, seconded by Councillor Cahill.—That this Council is of opinion that taxes now passed due should not be collected in the collection of the taxes, but that the same should (amount in arrears[illegible] cause) be collected by the Collector himself, and this Council doth consent so far as it has power, that the Collector may extend the time for the payment of the taxes of those persons who are now in arrears, to that however, the Board may be re-imbursed within the time fixed by the Municipal Act.

Councillor Hughes did not believe in the justice of the act in the case of those who paid the first instalment of their taxes in July were poor men, and therefore were times well enough to pay their taxes now to interest.

Councillor Rutherford was opposed to enabling large pay evening and making them next month pay.

Councillor Carlisle and Councillor Ormond the resolution only for those who were unable to pay, and opposed to have their names exhausted upon the list. Assessor Wood, some other which the system would work.

PETITION TO ATTORNEY GENERAL.

Councillor Smith gave notice of petition to the Attorney-General in reference to the number of Councillors for each ward. The following is a copy of the petition:

To the Honorable Oliver Mowat, Attorney-General and Premier of the Province of Ontario:

The petition of the Municipal Council of the Town of Peterborough humbly showeth:

That the said town is divided into four wards, each of which is represented in the Council by three members in accordance with the provisions of the Municipal Act as at present constituted;

That after a long and fair trial your petitioners are of opinion that the same Municipal Act so far as it relates to the number of Councillors to be elected for each ward is defective and should be amended so far as to provide for the election of only one Councillor for each ward, or that each municipality should have the power to fix the number for each ward, subject to the approval of a majority of the duly qualified electors first obtained for that purpose;

Your petitioners being strongly of the opinion that a change in this direction would give general satisfaction to the ratepayers and would result in the business of every municipality being more expeditiously and economically managed, and having learned that it is the intention of the Government to introduce certain amendments to the Municipal Act at the approaching session, would respectfully ask that an amendment as above indicated should be included in the proposed amendments.

And as in duty bound your petitioners will ever pray.

MONAGHAN DRAIN.

On motion of Councillor Osborne, Mr. Boulton was permitted to address the Council in reference to the Monaghan drain.

THE MIDLAND RAILWAY.

Moved by Councillor Douglass, seconded by Councillor Patterson,—That the Clerk be and he is hereby instructed to request the Town Solicitor to take immediate steps to collect the amount payable by the Midland Railway Company and now past due on account of damages to property holders on Bethune street.—Carried.

CLEARING OUT DRAINS, ETC.

Moved by Councillor Patterson, seconded by Councillor Hughes,—That owing to the heavy rains this fall there is considerable water lying on the streets in different parts of the town, be it therefore resolved that the Street Inspector have the crossings cleared out and some of the water holes filled up so that the water may run off.—Carried.

The Inspector said he did not know how much it was going to cost; but he had only $130 left. There had been paid out of the street and bridge appropriation over two hundred dollars up to the first of July towards the Looks Bridge. If this was not charged against him he would have much more to spend.

The Council adjourned for two weeks.

We have much pleasure in announcing that Mr. George Stewart, Jr's, great work "Canada under the Administration of Lord Dufferin," will contain a complete list of these medals with the names of the parties who have received them, the object for which they were given, and the Thrown the leaves of the bowers down,

Motionless hold in the languid air;
Pointer by vegetation the amendment grow,
Wide blooms laying their gold hearts bare,
Languishing, ere by sun;
Summer is almost done.

Deep-hued roses have long since died;
Silent the birds through the white mists fly;
Down of the thistles, by heat once dried,

Little brooklets exhausted run;
Summer is almost done.

Later the flush of sunrise comes on,
Shortening the edges of the ever-coming day,
Earlier shade of the twilight comes Crickets their notes have begun;

BAILIEBORO'.

The Township Fair in connection with the Agricultural Society of South Monaghan was held here on the 15th inst. and was pronounced by all to be a grand success. The entries were more numerous than formerly and of an improved quality. Visitors commenced to pour into our usually quiet Village early in the day, and by 3 o'clock p.m., the grounds and streets were comfortably filled, while both storeys of the Orange Hall were packed with ladies viewing the results of each others' labors. The weather was all that could be desired. Among the exhibits not entered for competition was a sideboard and dressing case manufactured by J. J. Kerr, Esq., of this place, which unanimously gained on by many a fair damsel and anxious swain about to dive into the mysteries of housekeeping. The Condition of Ontario's Finances.

(From the Toronto Globe.)

The present Government has added largely to the Lunatic Asylums at London and Toronto; it has re-opened the Asylum at Orillia for the reception of idiots; it has taken over the Rockwood Asylum, formerly used for criminal lunatics, from the Dominion Government; and established a new asylum for the insane at Hamilton. Nor is it the first cost of these establishments that has to be provided for alone. The charges for maintenance are very heavy, and must be expected to increase rather than to be diminished. In 1877 they had already amounted to $437,344, against the modest sum of $183,134 spent in 1868. Assistance to education on a progressive scale, and to emigration on a judicious basis, and the construction of colonization roads co-operously with settlement, were all reduced to a system when Mr. Mowat assumed office. So that, in 1872, when the expenditure stood at some $2,000,000 against $1,000,000 in 1871, the increase in the following items accounted for the whole difference, namely:

Education	$198,547
Public Buildings	177,782
Immigration	128,495
Colonization Roads	99,440
Municipalities Fund	48,821
Asylums Maintenance	51,499
	$698,584

It will be recollected, too, that Mr. Sandfield Macdonald had devised a scheme for expending $1,500,000 in granting aid to railways, and that connected therewith—although he never attempted to grapple with it—was the adjustment of the municipal loan fund indebtedness. It was left for the Reform Government of Mr. Blake in the first instance, and Mr. Mowat subsequently, to give full effect to the railway aid scheme; to the latter also belongs the honor of the measure for the adjustment of the municipal loan fund debt, and a distribution of the surplus as an equivalent to untendered municipalities. The railway aid or subsidy expenditure had, up to the 31st Dec., 1877, amounted to $3,044,495, and the municipal loan fund and distribution scheme had called forth a subsidy absorbing to $3,117,221. In the six years 1873 to 1877 the expenditure for public works and buildings had amounted to $1,870,902, in addition Mr. Sandfield Macdonald's previous outlay, and on colonization roads it had amounted to $563,-031. It is, therefore, satisfactory to know that, notwithstanding the heavy drains upon the treasury, either for current or special objects, and notwithstanding, too, the recent falling off in the revenue from Crown Lands—consequent upon depression in the lumber trade—the ordinary business of the Government has been conducted so economically as to leave a very handsome surplus in hand.

After allowing for the expenditure since 1871 on colonization roads, railways, and surplus distribution of no less than $7,616,396, the account of assets and liabilities at the close of 1877 stood as follows:

Investments	$2,719,998
Advances(repayable)for drainage purposes	899,277
Trust Funds in the hands of Dominion Government	2,699,497
Cash deposits	466,86
Other Assets	329,998
Total	$6,966,875
Less Liabilities:
On account of Railway Aid Funds	$244,799
On account of Surplus distribution	992,994
Cheques against Trust Funds	29,982
Due for Rockwood Asylum	66,000
	$7,999,995
Net surplus Jan. 1, 1878	$4,722,780

The Reform Government of Ontario is thus proved to have been at once liberal and thrifty, it has been able, in pursuance of its policy, to give great relief to local burdens on the one hand, while largely promoting local prosperity on the other. Not only has real estate been enormously enhanced in value by the aid given to railways and the appropriations for drainage and colonization roads, but education has been encouraged, the most helpless of the population have been provided for, and every municipality in the country has been relieved or assisted by the removal of prisoners from the county gaols to the Central Prison, where far greater security is afforded for their due punishment, and, it may be hoped, in many cases, reformation. Meantime the distribution of the surplus has resulted in local improvements in almost every direction. An Administration that can do all this and still present a surplus of five millions is not one from which intelligent people are likely soon to withdraw their confidence.

POLITICAL NOTES.

The Montreal Herald says: "It is an extraordinary thing that, long as Mr. Masson has resided in this Province, and great as is the respect the people have for him, we never discovered until last week of what vital importance his presence was to the public affairs of the country.

Says the Toronto Telegram:—Mr. Mackenzie has done the best he could, and his bitterest opponent is without grounds for charging him with deliberate neglect or dishonesty. Since the day he assumed the Premiership he has worked hard, worked faithfully, worked honestly, and as we feel sure all will admit—no matter what their politics may be—worked conscientiously in that direction which he believed it was his duty to take.

This is what the Chicago Times thinks of the recent resolution of the Canadian people to subvert their enlightened fiscal policy of a revenue tariff by the adoption of a policy of commercial restriction and obstruction:

"The new Parliament will have its hands full in trying to meet the extravagant anticipations that have been excited. Of course they will fail dismally, and the popular reaction will be more than Mr. Macdonald can boast, and he will be once more remanded to private life. When the people find out, as they eventually will, that prosperity is not to be created by placing obstructions in the path of commerce, they will have a reckoning with the demagogues who have deluded them."

The Irish Canadian comes out strongly in support of Hon. Mr. Cartwright's candidature for Centre Huron. Speaking of the exclusion of leading men from the House of Commons, it says: "At a time when the interests of the country turn on questions of fiscal legislation, the best-posted men on the subject ought in the case of Mr. Cartwright, because of his familiarity with, of all others, the existing laws of that legislature. Blanche, Tilley, Tweedmouth and other dogs who are now in full cry after this honorable gentleman had, therefore, better be called off from a hunt which promises nothing but the disgrace of persistence, if the Ontario Grit party wishes to hold itself above the opposition of contemptible spites in the interest of that better class of men who would spread scorn of the humbugs on of party shows."

At the Paris Exposition nine hundred and thirty-three prizes have been awarded in the Canadian department, including a large number of diplomas, twelve gold and fifty-four silver medals, the balance being in bronze medals and honorable mentions. Considering the comparative newness of the Dominion as a manufacturing country, this is an extraordinary showing, and is the Canadian Government on this side upon which there is not excellent every facility to exhibitors and to do due effect to the Canadian display.

MURDER TRIAL AT WELLAND.

John Whitby sentenced to be Hanged on November 29th—Courteous Bearing of the Prisoner.

Welland, Oct. 26.—The trial of John Whitby, otherwise known as Jack Smith, for murder, took place in the Welland Court House to day before Mr. Justice Burton. A verdict of guilty was returned by the jury, and the prisoner was sentenced to be hanged on November 29th. The evidence on behalf of the prosecution was ample and conclusive, and was to the following effect:—That the prisoner and a man named Allen left Stevensville on the morning of April 13th, and proceeded along the Fort Erie road in the direction of Victoria; that up to a certain sugar bush between the 6th and 7th concessions they were seen together, the prisoner wearing a peculiar coat and trousers conspicuous by large black patches over the knees, and carrying with him an umbrella and an axe; that on the other side of the bush the prisoner was seen alone by several persons without the coat and umbrella, and having on a pair of trousers without patches; that on the afternoon of the same day the dead body of a man was found in the sugar bush with the prisoner's trousers imperfectly drawn on, and with the coat and umbrella close by the corpse; that the body, being buried, was exhumed on May 4th, and conclusively recognized as that of Allan, who had left Stevensville with the prisoner. This circumstantial evidence was strengthened by the confession of the prisoner on different occasions that he had killed his companion in a fit of passion. Mr Urvene prosecuted for the Crown, and Mr. VanNormen, of Welland, gratuitously defended the prisoner. The evidence, however, was so conclusive that he had to admit the crime and urged on the jury to reduce it from murder to manslaughter. After his Lordship's charge the jury retired, and he ught to a verdict of guilty, with a strong recommendation to mercy. In passing sentence the Judge warned the prisoner to prepare to meet his awful doom. Whitby is 23 years of age, and says he is the son of an Indian woman and a coloured man. He has lived among the Six Nations all his life, and among them he was celebrated for his athletic attainments. The man he murdered was unknown, except that his surname was Allan, and that he was a shoemaker tramping through the country. It is rumoured that a petition is to be circulated to have the sentence reprieved, but the Indian is credited with saying that he prefers death to a reprieve.

Only One of a Family Left.

(New Orleans Picayune.)

A boy came up in the Picayune office to insert a death notice last night.

He said to the gentleman having charge of the advertising department:—

"Another one gone; that makes eight."

"What do you mean?" asked the gentleman.

The boy answered:—"I mean that is the eighth one of my family that has died, five brothers and three sisters. I wonder who will come next?"

"How many are left?"

"Only me."

JOY AMONG THE CHILDREN.

Copeland's Sweet Castor Oil, equally suitable for children and adults. Endorsed by over 600 doctors in Canada. The difficulty of administering nauseous medicines and the desirability of having them pleasant to the taste, induced T. Copeland to undertake research, which resulted in the discovery of a Sweet Castor Oil, perfectly palatable, of the same strength and medical qualities as the ordinary Castor Oil; and while equally safe and harmless yet acting with more certainty, and producing neither nausea nor griping. Some children say it is honey: others call it syrup—they all say they like it. One parent says—My children drink it like water;" another—"We had to hide the bottle or they would have finished it right off;" another—"My little girl has taken it twice without any trouble, and does not know what it is, though she has the ordinary Castor Oil, and we never could get her to take it without a fight;" yet another—"I wish you success of your Sweet Castor Oil; it is a splendid thing—sure to take the place of all common oil."

The extraordinary demand for this improvement in maple household medicine has brought fraudulent imitations into the market, but the public can guard themselves against substitutes (which unprincipled parties are attempting to sell on the reputation of this article) by seeing that the name, Copeland's Sweet Castor Oil, is on both wrapper and direction label.

The undersigned having purchased Messrs T. Copeland & Co's interest in the above preparation, are now manufacturing it from the original recipe.

Mitchell's Belladona Improved India Rubber Porous Plaster.

There never has been a time when the healing of so many different diseases has been attempted by outward application as the present. It is an undisputed fact that over half of the entire population of the globe resort to the use of ordinary plasters.

The principal ingredients used in making these Plasters are Gum Ointment—or better known as the Frankincense of the Bible—Rubber, and Burgundy Pitch; which, when properly compounded, is full of electricity, and when combined with the pure medicinal gums, is found to be one greatest healing medicine ever brought before the human race.

They are commended by all who have used them to out quicker than any other Plasters they ever before tried, and that one of these Plasters will do more real service than a hundred of the ordinary kind. All other Plasters are clumsy looking, and require to be worn continually together in a carry; but with these it is entirely different, the instant one is applied the patient will find no other.

They possess all the soothing, warming, supporting and strengthening qualities of all other Plasters, and many who have been relieved of RHEUMATISM, TUMOURS, CRAMP, and various other complaints in the KIDNEYS, BREAST or STOMACH believe it is solely done by the electrical qualities which the Plaster Plasters contain, and which is imparted to the system, thus effecting these healthy conditions.

They are truly the best Plaster, still very effective; and a sure cure for WEAK BACKS PAINS IN THE SIDE AND BREAST, and are invaluable to those who have a COLD of long standing, and often prevents CONSUMPTION. Sufferers call as they believe they were entirely cured by the use of them of a long standing disease.

Waydown Bebee's Fall Song.

See de leaves a fallin' down—
Hear de breezes blowin.
See de skies a-lookin' like
De clouds would soon be snowin'.

Chorus—Wake up, call fellas—
Hustle in de wood;
Git in your meat and taters,
For we wants some for good!

See de frost on top de grass,
An' h'ar de chill'un cryin';
De ivy green has got a chill,
An' been half am a dyin.

Chorus—Wake up in de mawnin'—
Make dem look heals fly!
Summer's gone an' winter cold
Won't pass—darkey by!

De 'possum wanders all alone,
De woodchuck sadly creeps;
De hickory nut it can't hold on,
An' to de ground it falls.

Chorus—Lift up dem feets, brudder—
Make de chips light!
De winter will be long an' cold,
Kase summer was so bright!

HALLOW E'EN.

Origin of the Celebration.

Thursday last was Hallowe'en—that one night of all the year on which liberty, to a large extent, means license, and freaks are carried on which on any other night would introduce the perpetrators to that abode of fallen saints—the gaol. There's both use and abuse of this time honored custom, however, and when a night's sport is associated with wanton destruction of property, a state of things exists which should not be tolerated. Removing gates, playing on window frames with "taps" propelled by mysterious strings, transferring signs, etc., are sometimes perfectly harmless, but often the work of pulling down fences, destroying tree boxes, etc., is carried beyond all reason and should be properly punished. This out door business appears to be of comparatively modern invention, the early observance having apparently been confined to games and sports indoors mainly of a superstitious character. From these the practice of ducking for apples and of snapping nuts are legitimate outcome.

The celebrated bard, Robert Burns, in his poem on "Hallowe'en," gives copious notes as to the practices in Scotland in superstitious age. He says that it was thought to be a night when witches, devils and other mischief-making beings are all abroad on their lawful midnight errands; particularly those aerial people, the fairies, are said on this night to hold a grand anniversary. The first ceremony of Hallowe'en was pulling each a stock or plant of kail. They had to go out hand in hand with eyes shut and pull the first they met with; its being big or little, straight or crooked, was prophetic of the size and shape of the grand object of all their sports, the husband or wife. If any earth stuck to the root that was "tocher" or fortune, and the taste of the "custoc," that is, the heart of the stem, was indicative of their natural temper and disposition. Lastly, the stems, or to give them their proper appellation, the "runts" were placed somewhere above the head of the door, and the Christain names of people whom chance brought into the house, were according to the priority of placing the runts, the names in question. Burning nuts was a favorite charm. It was the custom to name the lad and lass to each particular nut, as they laid them on the fire, and according as they burned purly together, or started from beside one another, the course and issue of the courtship would be. Burns, in his poems, says:—

The auld guid wife's well-hoordet nits
Are round an' round divided,
And mony lads an' lasses' fates
Are there that night decided;
Some kindle couthie side by side
An' burn together trimly
Some start awa in saucy pride
An' jump out owre the chimla.
Fu' high that night.
Unreeable.

Another superstition was to take a candle and go alone to a looking-glass, cut an apple before it, and some traditions say, you should comb your hair all the time; the face of your conjugal companion to be will be seen in the glass as if peeping over your shoulder. Another was to steal out unperceived, and sow a handful of hemp seed, harrowing it with anything you could conveniently draw after. Repeat now and then "Hemp seed I sow thee, hemp seed I sow thee, and him (or her) that is to be my true love come after me and pou thee." Look over your left shoulder and you will see the appearance of the person invoked in the attitude of pulling hemp. Another charm was to go to the barn and open both doors, taking them of the hinges, if possible. Then they were to take the instrument used in winnowing the corn called a "wecht" and go through all the attitudes of letting down corn against the wind. Repeat it three times, and the third time an apparition would pass through the barn in at the windy door and out at the other, having the appearance of the intended husband or wife. Another practice was to take three dishes, put clean water in one, foul water in another, and leave the third empty. A person was blindfolded and led to the hearth where the dishes were ranged. They dipped the left hand, if by chance in the clean water, the future wife (or husband) will come to the bar of matrimony a maid; if in the foul, a widow; if in the empty dish it foretold, with equal certainty, no marriage at all. It was repeated three times, and every time the arrangement of the dishes was altered. Says Burns in referring to this custom:—

In order on the clean hearth-stane,
The luggies three are ranged,
An' every time great care is ta'en
To see them duly changed:
Auld Uncle John, wha wedlock's joys
Sin' Mar'-year did desire,
Because he got the toom dish thrice,
He heaved them in the fire.
In wrath that night.

When the Earl of Mars headed an insurrection.

Burns winds up his poem and the party as follows:—

Wi' merry sangs an' friendly cracks,
I wat they did na weary;
And unco tales, and funnie jokes—
Their sports were cheap an' cheery—
Till butter'd scones in fragrant heat
Set a' their gabs a steerin,
Syne in a social glass o' strunt
They parted off careerin,
Fu' blythe that night.

Gigantic Bank Robbery.

One of the most cleverly contrived and successful bank robberies ever known, was perpetrated in New York on Sunday morning. About 6 o'clock, the janitor of the Manhattan bank of that city, named Weckle, was awakened by a rapping at the door, and was beginning to dress when 7 or 8 masked men rushed in and handcuffed him and his wife. They forced Weckle to give them the combination to open the vault door, when three were left to guard him and his wife, and the rest went into the bank. They were away about three hours, when they came for their comrades, and all went away together. Soon as possible Weckle gave the alarm, when it was found that the vault had been unlocked and the safe pried open, and the funds and valuables abstracted to the amount of over $3,000,000. The police are actively at work. The best detectives on the force have been put on the case, which is likely to be a baffling one. No robbery could be more perfect

THE HALIFAX AWARD.

The Canadian Dominion is so young as to have little history as yet, but of that little, one prominent event is, and will ever continue to be, the meeting, deliberation and judgement of the Fishery Commission at Halifax. The case as it affected Canada was light to a great extent in the hands of Canadian diplomatists as Commissioner and advocates, and satisfactorily to the people they represented did they fulfil the duties entrusted to them. The case of the Americans was presented with all the cuteness characteristic of Brother Jonathan in his dealings little or big, for he does not seem to regard even a great international question in a manner different from an operation in stock gambling or a diamond-cut-diamond horse trade. For all this, with quiet dignity and clear headed appreciation of the situation, the Canadian advocates completely turned the arguments of the "cute" Yankees upon themselves, to the great discomfiture of the "great and glorious country, the U-nited States." It will will be recollected how the American eagle screamed with vexation, and also how it afterwards made a goose of itself. The award of five and a half millions of dollars was declared preposterous by the Americans, though it had been fixed by a tribunal of their own choice, and one in which their own representation had taken part. The "great Republic," through its press, and by other modes of popular expression, assumed the role of "the Artful Doger" in asserting the award was not binding without a unanimous vote of the Arbitrators. Evidently seeing the absurdity of this conception of a Board of arbitration, they at the same time meanly accused their Commissioner of unfair dealing toward them. They have since also made insinuations of treachery or incapacity against their advocates before the commission. This is the same people that lately accused their countryman of selling a boat-race to a Canadian, defeat by whom is no disgrace. There is an analogy in their refutation of the two results which shows anything but an enviable national characteristic.

Failing in making any impression by their petty complaints of unfairness within the event, they have at length found another on which to fix a pretext for delay in the non-payment of the award. They now claim that because the decision of the Commission does not affect local prohibitions, that the payment by them of the money offers no guarantee that they will be allowed fishing rights on the Canadian coasts. Why was not this point raised at Halifax during the sitting of the Commission? Then and there was the proper time and place to advance their arguments. But even if this contention had been then laid fully before the Court, the only way in which it could have been dealt with by the Commissioners would have been its rejection as beyond their province. They were not there to change, ensure or annul local laws. They could only judge upon a basis of existing conditions, and it were utterly ridiculous in them to waver over future possibilities. They could give a positive decision only on a foundation of positive facts. This they did; and if any of the circumstances affecting their decision have changed, or should change, before the term covered by their award expires, such change may form a reason for new negotiations, but certainly not for a re-opening of the whole case. It would be a manifest injustice to set aside, or reconsider all the arguments, simply because of the former omission, or future interjection of some circumstance of very slight importance as compared with those that the whole case rests upon. The particular circumstance that gave rise to the latest Yankee objection to the payment of the Halifax award was, the forcible detention of American fishermen from fishing on Sunday on the coast of Newfoundland, the local fishermen being prevented by the Sunday law from engaging in their trade, and determined that the scrangers should not forestall them with the catch from which they were thus temporarily debarred. Neither the Halifax Commission, nor any other like Court, could abrogate such local law, much less exempt aliens from its restrictions. That the decision of the Commission should be affected by any such contention, after the event too, is therefore the height of absurdity. The Americans only make themselves supremely ridiculous when they begin to bluster over so small an idea of their own, especially as it calls the worlds' remembrance to some silly vapouring they formerly indulged in, about the time of the Mason-Slidell affair. They need not think that if Britain has Russian machinations to attend to in Asia Minor and in Afghanistan, she will be influenced from the straight course by braggart impudence on the part of Americans, any more than she has been by their equally cheeky "moral ideas." The Court of St. James has ever been ready with a courteous rejoinder to a reasonable remonstrance. This the Americans have found. It will make no difference in the treatment of their complaint by Britain, whether the money be paid before the new case be entered into; but such new case certainly cannot in justice be considered as affecting the old one. It may be that a nation known to hold several millions of a surplus from an award made in its favour, and unable to dispose of it in any manner even remotely bearing on the cause of its payment, should be suspicious of the honour of another power. But all people are not as are the Americans; for which fact no doubt the commonwealth of nations is duly grateful.

POOR, PERPLEXED PROTECTIONISTS.

The chief organ of the Tory party is striving to lull the minds of the now bewildered rank and file, and to turn if possible the Parthian darts shot into the camp from the Reform side. In the expression of popular hopes and fears through the Reform press the Mail professes to see weak inconsistency. Probably there always is a shade of inconsistency displayed between hopes and fears of any kind; and were we looking for analogies we could find them in plenty, and with ease, in the midst of Tory chief councils. With regard to this very point about which the Mail tries to raise a dust there are two classes of the community entrusted. These are Protectionists and Anti-Protectionists. The hopes of the latter incline them to think that the Tory leaders now in power will not attempt to carry out the promises they have made as to changes in the tariff, their fears, to doubt the ability of a government the members of which are weakened by catch-vote pledges to withstand the assaults of the mercenaries they engaged in their cause by glittering prospects—the traders with whom they traded. The Protectionists, on the other hand, hope to gain the fulfilment of the promises made to them—the price for their services—while they fear that those to whom they look for pay will not, dare not, or cannot make the expected return. Thus both Protectionists and Anti-Protectionists are ready to cry out alternately that the Tory government will, and that it will not, inaugurate a policy of commercial restraint. The Reform press in showing forth both these phases of popular feeling, is accused of inconsistency. The inconsistency that is in it lies with the populace, but it is a most consistent kind of inconsistency. There is, however, another kind noticeable, in the Tory leaders and their more immediate followers. It is shown in their eagerness to urge on the first step toward Protection as contrasted with their irresolution regarding the second step. In fact, they not only stand still, as if fearing a gulf before them, they display a desire to retreat from a mistaken and dangerous path. It is this irresolution on the part of the former blusterers that causes such powerful emotions of hope and fear (or inconsistency, if you will) in the people, eagerly urged on so far by braggarts, but now halted suddenly and awakened to the discovery that those to whom they, in insane despair or rapt enthusiasm, trusted are either incompetent or untrustworthy—probably both. What wonder is it that some should cry with earnest seriousness, others mockingly, "Why don't you lead on?" What wonder that many should despair and many others hope, that no further advance will be made in the contemplated direction? It is not at all surprising that conflicting ideas puzzle the people, and that the confusion pervades all ranks and classes, all trades, occupations and businesses.

The confusion is worse confounded among the Protectionists, for they are divided into as many distinct sets as there are diverse interests among them, while the Anti-Protectionists are all united for the common good, alike their own and that of their deluded opponents. Among all the interests to which Protection promises pelf, one alone seems to have sufficient unity for aggressiveness—that of the manufacturers, and these it may be said are only held together by "the cohesive attraction of public plunder." That failing then, as fail it sooner or later must, their organization for offensive purposes will go to general smash, for which no one will then be sorry. It must be that this Protectionist phantom will dissolve and finally resolve itself into its original nothingness, simply through the incongruity of the vapours brought together to make it up. But that fact renders it none the less the duty of those who know the unstable nature of the pressure to warn and undeceive those who are either affrighted or attracted by it, lest they be led to farther follies through their infatuation. In the night of commercial depression the Tory press used the ignis fatuus of Protection to mislead the people, and now leave them not only in the darkness of hard times, but also in the mire of political and commercial perplexity. It must now be the part of the Reform Journals of the Dominion to bring in the true light of reason, and free the floundering and bewildered ones from their incomfortable and positively perilous position. To this end the discussion of a Protectionist policy must be kept up, for by discussion its fallacies will be exposed again, as they have been in the past. The game of the government that has gained power by the Protectionist cry is, if possible, to let the question quietly sink to rest, now that its partial discussion has procured the object sought. Such retiring into oblivion must not for an instant be suffered. In the press, on the platform, and on the floor of Parliament shall the discussion be kept up, till the pitiable pretensions, the commercial contradictions and the utter philosophical poverty of Protection is fully exposed, and the thing itself scouted from the domain of Canadian consideration. However much then the Conservative press desists from and discourages references to Protection. Reform journals should not cease from pressing the question of its political worthlessness and commercial danger on the minds of the people. In this way they will be doing their party and their country the best possible service that can at present be rendered.

The St. John, N. B., Telegram advises the Liberals not to follow the custom of the Conservatives in similar circumstances in opposing the re-election of Cabinet Ministers.

THE REFORM LEADER.

In the columns of a local paper, nondescript of itself, last week appeared a letter professedly from a Reformer, in which the claims of Hon. Alexander Mackenzie to the leadership of his party are challenged—we may say attacked. Now, we are not of those who depreciate such a discussion as unwise and mischievious in itself; but we do insist that it should be entered upon with judicial calmness. This has so far not been the case with the correspondent referred to, that he at once appears to be either a bitter and concealed political opponent of the honorable gentleman he attempts to criticise, or a hungry office-seeker against whose importunities the firmness of Mr. Mackenzie proved invulnerable. The suspicion that he is of one or other despicable class is immediately formed from the intemperate force of his sentences, and his treatment of the two points he endeavours to make against the object of his philippic rather points to the writer as one who is the impatient nurse of disappointed ambition. The whole of his column-long screed may be summed up in an objection to the resignation of the Mackenzie Government before Parliament was called together, and a complaint that the Reform Administration did not distribute the spoils of office wisely and bountifully among its supporters. These are both fair questions for discussion; but the man who does not deal with them temporately weakens his own contentions by the inevitable thought which intrudes itself,—that his heat is occasioned by himself having no share in the "spoils of office," and his chances being abruptly cut off by the Government resigning four months before it had need so to do. If such be not the case why accuse the ex-Premier, who is a man of undoubted ability, honesty of purpose and high moral courage,—with folly, unpatriotic conduct and cowardice, and call him "a fool overhardened with a tender conscience," &c. This is simply unjust, and not the language of a friendly mind. We agree that the perfectly constitutional course of the late Government would have been to call Parliament together before resigning the seals of office, but we will not admit that Mr. Mackenzie is entirely to blame, if blame predominate, in the matter. Not himself alone, twelve others had a voice in the determination of the time, and manner of their retirement. They certainly acted in accordance with the popular wish at the time, for not only all the Conservatives, but also nearly all the Reformers were favourably to immediate resignation. And this is so far the case that the EXAMINER feels while speaking against such action that it represents the present views of a very small minority even of its own party. How then has Mr. Mackenzie's resignation left "his political supporters perfectly helpless and disheartened?" And how can perfectly helpless and disheartened men be supporters? The assertion is utterly absurd! So far from the course adopted by the late Ministers being "injurious and ruinous" to their party, as is alleged, it was perhaps the very best party move they could at that time have made. It at once relieved Reformers from any explanations as to why their leader stood in the way of the ushering in of the promised prosperity, and threw the burden of their own complaints, and also of palpable inconsistency upon the frantic Conservatives. It was a reaction in an instant, so striking as to awaken the popular sense as no Parliamentary debate could begin to do. Nor is discussion in the House shut out, for the question will assuredly be brought forward at the first opportunity. As Ministers the Conservative leaders must either meet argument with argument, or show still more clearly their abandonment of principle. Thus simply as a party manœuvre the late resignation in recess may be reckoned an excellent move; and the fierce fellow to which allusion has been made, upholding as he does the doctrine of party expediency, will surely commend the prudence and foresight that brought it about. However this may be, he cannot say that Mr. Mackenzie sacrificed any party principle in agreeing to the steps taken by him and his colleagues.

On the question of dispensing public patronage much may be said; for it is a politically intricate, as well as a morally delicate question. Before saying more we must declare that we do not understand how under the late Government, Reformers have had to "submit to unfair treatment," or how they could have been "insulted, maddened, and disappointed." It may be that some unreasonable person suffered all these feelings to flow in upon him; but if so he should not write excited letters about it, if for no other reason than out of consideration for party expediency. It all depends however, on what, or who he considers the party. That heads of departments should fill public positions with men from their own party is both proper and expedient; for they know, or can more readily find competent men on their own side. The custom should not, however, become a rule so rigid as to prevent exceptions to it; nor should the di posal or promise of official positions be made an engine for the furtherance of party ends. Ministers may be fair to their party without being false to the country at large. Conscientiousness is highly necessary to keep them within the happy mean; for the temptation to exercise a power so great and so ready to hand, is at all times great. Once it be yielded to its influence is sure to grow, as may be seen in the history of the present Premier, and his followers. When therefore Reformers are told to "take a lesson out of the Conservative book" and to "learn that politics and war are synonomous terms," it is safe to say the advice comes from one who has at some time stultified himself by either giving, or offering, taking, or asking a reward for exercising citizenship privileges, which he considers in the light of rights, to be bartered and trusted with. It is not so, that "all is fair in war" even; for it is not fair that a soldier should relax his efforts for and with his comrades, abuse his officer, and institute mutinous comparisons favorable to the enemy, simply because he has not got the promotion he would have liked, and for which he can show no better claim than hundreds of others within the ranks. The Reform party have reason to thank Mr. Mackenzie and his colleagues in the Ministry that they did not yield to the solicitations of certain pestilent politicians, who for their own ends, would have begun a system of prizes and prizes within the party. Better a thousand times that the Conservatives should hold power twice ten years than that the Reform party should do more harm to the country than all the good they advocate, by giving up the right of principle for the power of purchase.

The Hon. R. J. Cartwright was elected for Centre Huron on Saturday by a majority of 477.

EDITORIAL NOTES.

Hon. Mr. Bachand, a member of the Quebec Provincial Government, died on Friday morning at St. Hyacinthe.

A banquet will be given in honour of Lord Dufferin at Belfast on the twenty-fifth of November.

There is only one Irishman in the Dominion Cabinet, and he was born in Boston. No wonder the Irish Canadian is dissatisfied.

The Montreal Post asks: "How is it that nearly all the Conservative papers have ceased to write about Protection?" Conundrum.

Sir John's Ottawa organ, the Citizen, advocates a soup-kitchen. Soup-kitchens in these National Policy days! Is that what was promised?

An arrangement between the Montreal and the Dominion Telegraph Companies for the pooling of profits was arrived at on Saturday. On the same day the latter Company opened its lines to the Maritime Provinces.

Rev. Dr. Gilooly, the newly appointed Apostolic Delegate for the United States and Canada, has been for nineteen years Bishop of Elphin and is distinguished from his fellow bishops in Ireland by his activity and energy.

An Ottawa telegram to the Chicago press says: "The new Government has formally introduced the American practice of discharging Civil Service employees on the occasion of a change of Government." And so it goes. An American tariff policy; American political practices, and ultimately annexation. And this from true blue Tory loyalists.

In speaking to the people of Londonderry, upon his arrival there the other day, Lord Dufferin said he had left Canada as well governed and contented as Great Britain could desire it to be. Lord Dufferin couldn't say the same thing five years ago, when the Tory party was leaving office; yet we have men like Goldwin Smith saying that they voted for Sir John Macdonald to give us good government at home. On this point it is evident that Lord Dufferin and Goldwin Smith hold very different opinions.

In West Elgin a vigorous effort was made to wrest the local seat from the Reform party. In 1875 the Ministerial candidate for the Local House—Mr. Hodgins—was defeated at the poll by ten votes, but seated on a scrutiny. Last month Mr. Casey was re-elected to the Commons by a majority of about 100. Now the majority of Mr. McLaws is over 200. The Reformers of West Elgin have evidently only gathered fresh motive for action from the recent defeats in many other constituencies.

Mr. Cartwright in the course of a campaign speech delivered in Centre Huron said:—"Sir, we have fallen, but we fell without causing the blush of shame to mantle the cheek of any one of our supporters. We fell as statesmen ought to fall. When they are asked even by their friends to commit themselves to a policy that they honestly believe greatly injurious to the interests of the people confided to their care, then it is infinitely better that those statesmen should retire, and that their places should be filled today, by men who will carry out that particular policy the country desires."

The ex-Premier in Centre Huron, in the course of a masterly speech in which he reviewed the political situation said:—"I am here as a defeated Minister making my first public appearance since defeat, and I hope you do not see in my face any sign of that despondency which the Tories talk so much about. I have fought these people in Opposition for, nearly twenty years in Parliament, and am able to fight them yet in Opposition. When in Opposition we fought for our principles; and we left office rather than carry out any principles but those which we had always advocated."

The fact that a Liberal has been elected from Peterborough to the British House of Commons by a large majority has given rise to some enumerations and investigations which go to show that, notwithstanding the apparent and noisy popularity of the Jingo party and policy, an undercurrent of Liberal reaction has been quietly going on. An analysis of all the casual contests held since the general election furnishes an exhibit highly favourable to the Liberal party. Apropos to the above it is said that Lord Derby will throw in his influence with the Liberal party at next election.

The Duke of Connaught and Prince Leopold will accompany the Marquis of Lorne and the Princess Louise to Liverpool on the fourteenth of November. The Corporation of that city has decided to give them an official reception. On the occasion an address will be presented which says:—"The relations between the inhabitants of this port and our Canadian fellow-subjects are so intimate that everything affecting their welfare is a matter of concern to us. We cordially congratulate them upon an event so well calculated to advance their interests, and to strengthen the ties which bind the Dominion to the Mother Country. The circumstances under which the Princess Louise visits Canada are unprecedented in the history of the Colonial Empire. The appointment of the Marquis of Lorne is, therefore, a signal mark of Her Majesty's favour, and of her recognition of the proved loyalty of Canada."

Death of Chief Justice Harrison.

Chief Justice Harrison died at his residence Toronto, on Friday morning last at 6.40. About the first of August he began to complain, though his physicians are of opinion that an affection of the heart had set in long before that date. Three weeks thereafter he was so far recovered as to be able to walk out, which he rather insisted upon doing. He then went on an easy trip to Montreal, Lake Champlain, and Saratoga, returning after a lapse of ten days with severe inflamation in his right lung. On recovering from this the condition of his heart improved to such an extent that hopes were entertained that he might be able to resume his place on the Bench. The improvement, however, was only of too short duration. A billious attack of two or three days was followed by increasing debility, and he was again cut off to bed the eight or ten days before he death. For the last five days he suffered from slow but steadily increasing congestion of the brain, which, doubtless, was the immediate cause of death. He suffered little or no pain throughout the whole course of his disease.

The late Chief Justice was born at Montreal, where his father, Mr. Richard Harrison, formerly of Monaghan County, Ireland, then resided, but received his education in Toronto, and passed the whole of his life from youth upwards in this city. He was a pupil of Upper Canada College, and afterwards of Trinity College, where he received his degree of D. C. L., and laid the foundation for his entry into the profession in which he obtained so distinguished a position. Without remarkably brilliant talents, Chief Justice Harrison by industry and perseverance became a high authority in many branches of jurisprudence and published several works which are recognized authorities in the Courts. He was for some time editor of the Local Courts Gazette, and subsequently of the Upper Canada Law Journal. In 1847 he became Q. C., in 1871 was elected a Bencher of the Law Society, and in 1875, on the elevation of Chief Justice Richards to the Supreme Court, Mr. Harrison became Chief Justice of the Court of Queen's Bench of Ontario. He stood at the time of his appointment at the head of the Canada law branch of the profession, and his appointment was received with general satisfaction as one not more honorable to himself than in the public interest. To the reputation of a sound lawyer he added that of an honest and upright Judge. In politics the late Chief Justice was a Conservative, and in 1867 was elected to the House of Commons as member for the Western Division of the City of Toronto. Political life, however, was not to his taste, and in 1872 he declined re-election, preferring to devote his attention to his extensive legal practice.

HON. R. J. CARTWRIGHT.

POLITICAL PARTIES AND THEIR MISSIONS—SOME ADVICE TO REFORMERS.

Hon. R. J. Cartwright delivered a magnificent speech at Seaforth on the occasion of his nomination as a candidate for Centre Huron. Following is the concluding part of it:—

Ordinarily speaking, these two great parties, into which in the Mother Country all classes of society are divided, and which to a certain extent tend to prevail here—these two great parties under the old regime arrogated to themselves certain special duties. We used to hear from Conservatives that they held it to be their special mission to oppose everything of a revolutionary or reactionary character, that they wished on all occasions to increase the respect of deference granted to dignitaries, and they desired above and beyond all other things to keep the Empire intact. (Cheers.) These were the cardinal doctrines of the Conservative party when the Conservative party was a party which acted on principle at all. (Hear, hear.) And just in the same way my Reform friends used to contend, and fairly enough, that their special mission was on all occasions to push forward improvements in society, to root up old-world abuses which drove many of you from the Old World to seek your fortune, and I hope to find it, in this other hemisphere; and last of all their business was, whenever they possibly could, to advance the free education of the people of Canada. (Cheers). Should either of the great parties of the State fail in those duties which they specially claim for themselves, it needs no very lengthy study of history, it needs no very lengthy explanation on my part, to show to you that very great and serious mischief must accrue to the whole body politic. (Cheers.) And my indictment against those men who now usurp the style and title of the Conservative party, although they are far enough from fulfilling any of the duties of that party, is this: that they have utterly turned their back on their wholesome traditions, they have forgotten all those principles that they formerly honored, that they have put themselves at the head of a movement which, rightly understood, would alter the whole state of society, which would be revolutionary and reactionary in the last degree, and would practically overturn that condition on which the whole future of Canada depends—that the distribution of property shall be such that the greatest number of our people that can possibly be interested in the material welfare and prosperity of the country should be made to feel they have a stake in it. (Loud cheers.) They have moreover dealt a double stab at their own favorite doctrine, that it was their part to uphold dignitaries on all occasions. I used to hear the maxim (though they have no right to arrogate it, but I merely speak of what I used to hear,) that the first duty of the Conservative leader was, that his honor was stainless, his hands clean, and his personal work unchallenged anywhere. (Cheers.) Sir, seeing that he is now unhappily the chosen leader of the Conservative party, I will not at present at all events, point out to you how Sir John Macdonald's character compares with the picture I have drawn of what a Conservative leader in my own time was held by his followers to be. You can fill that picture for yourselves; and I blush for the degradation of my country; I blush for the degredation of those men who have chosen him as their leader, when I reflect what a tale the annals of Parliament have to unfold as to the way in which that gentleman has redeemed those pledges and discharged those duties in times past. (Cheers.) Then, I say, they have deliberately turned their backs on their own cherished principle—that the first duty of their party was by all possible means to strengthen the bonds that bind our Empire together—when they declare they are about to adopt a policy which, at the best, is but a servile copy of that now in force in the United States. (Hear, hear, and cheers.) Sir, I warn you and I warn them, that if they do commit the terrible blunder they will put to a very great extent, the fate of the future of the Empire, probably the fate of the whole people, at the mercy of the leaders of the neighboring Republic. (Renewed cheers.) If these men go on the course they have marked out for themselves it will be easy, by similar legislation on the part of the American Legislature, to bring about a perfectly intolerable state of things in Canada, and we would have nothing but our own folly to thank if that be, and not long after, the result. (Cheers.) One word more. I know right well, nor do I feel disposed to blame my friends much for it, that many of our friends and supporters throughout the country think, naturally enough, as men smarting under defeat are apt to think, that perhaps after all it would have been better if Mr. Mackenzie had been a more pliable man, if he and his colleagues had been willing to play fast and loose with these great questions, and in a word, been honest in expressing his real sentiments on the points involved. I say I do not wonder that in the first smart of defeat many of our friends should entertain that sentiment; but I have to tell you this: We were aware to a very great extent, though not altogether, of the danger we ran; we saw that the protection question had taken a considerable hold on the public mind, but we relied on the good sense and intelligence of the majority of our people to see through the flimsy superfoge of the National Policy, and to put it down as a whole through the country. There, unhappily, we were mistaken. But bear this in mind; it is a matter of extreme doubt whether, if we had been more expedient and pliable, and endeavored to hunt with the hare and run with the hounds, as proposed by some of our friends, that would have had any other result than to have overwhelmed us with the same catastrophe, but with this remarkable difference—we would have been utterly unable in that case to lift up our voices to warn off those special dangers which that policy contains within itself. (Loud cheers.) That you must remember is a thing which it would have been very difficult indeed for a Ministry to have attempted in the face of an irresponsible Opposition, some of whom during the late canvass took the same ground or advocated precisely the same measures. I entertain no doubt whatever on the fact that had we been foolish enough to adopt such a policy, and had we been unable to avert evil results from flowing therefrom, that there would have been no end to the denunciations both by friend and foe that would have been leveled against my hon. friend Mr. Mackenzie and myself. Bear in mind that all through this period—and nothing can better show you the hollowness of these men's protestations—from first to last all they wanted to know was what policy the Government would adopt, and that they were prepared at a moment's notice—to adopt the opposite policy; and just as now every hustings, almost every stump, in Canada has rung with denunciations of the late administration because we would not for our national industries, because we would not adopt a national policy and put more taxes on the people, so in the other event every hustings and stump would have rung, and with far better cause with the denunciations of us as men who ground the faces of the poor, who had delivered Canada over hand and foot to the tender mercies of a few corporations, or who, as Dr. Tupper told me in 1874, were prepared to trample the Maritime Provinces under the iron heel of an Ontario Finance Minister. (Cheers.) It is matter of history, and these stands my hon. friend (Mr. Mackenzie) to testify to it, that when in 1876 I sat down after having enunciated definitely the policy of the Government after full consideration of this important question, my hon. friend went over to Dr. Tupper, the chosen champion of protection to day, and said: "Now Doctor, had we put on an additional 2½ per cent. were you not prepared to denounce us as no tools and slaves of a protectionist ring?" and to his credit be it said Dr. Tupper did not deny the soft impeachment. (Laughter.) True, he rose equal to the situation, and he then at two hours' notice, and in a speech more than two hours in length, denounced me because I would not yield to our manufacturers that protection which they crave. (Laughter and cheers.) Sir, I do not mean to say that the trial to which you and our Reform friends have been subjected is not a hard and grievous one. I know well there can be no greater test of the political faith or otherwise of any one than to see for a time wrong triumph or falsehood encouraged in high places, or as Carlyle puts it under similar circumstances, there has been from some cause or other a sort of apotheosis of rascality in this country. (Laughter and cheers.) Far be it from us to feel annoyed at the adoption of a policy thought to be best adapted to promote the best interests of the country, and rely upon it if you be firm and staunch your time will come, and that even very speedily. Already, Sir, these men have begun to quarrel over the spoils which were the sole cohesive power that kept them together in the past or can keep them together in future. (Cheers) Already there are signs not a few of division in the ranks of these men, and if you but keep a firm front I promise you that no great lapse of time will elapse before you see my friend Mr. Mackenzie leading an Opposition not merely able in debating power, but very respectable in numbers, on the floor of the House, and perhaps it will be no long time before he succeeds in overturning a Government founded on pretences like those I have described. (Loud cheers.)

ENGLAND AND THE BERLIN TREATY.

BERLIN, Nov. 4.—The Post says:—eight weeks ago, when the Treaty of Berlin was in danger, Bismarck appealed to the signatories to defend it, England, who then rejected the request, now appeals to Austria and France, the supposed adversaries of Russia, for the purpose of reviving the Crimean alliance. Such attempts are useless. Furthermore, England by fostering jealousies, certainly will not succeed in preventing friendly relations between Bulgaria and Greece.

ROME, Nov. 4.—The Diritto states that France has issued a note advising that diplomatic pressure be exerted in favor of the claims of Greece on Turkey. Italy and Germany have already consented to mediate between Greece and the Porte.

OTTAWA

Hon. Mr. Tilley was expected here on Wednesday night, and he will almost immediately after leave for England on business of a financial character in connection with the Canada Pacific Railway. While in England he will confer with the Colonial Secretary respecting the extent to which a protective policy in this country could go without infringing on Imperial obligations or right.

Ald. Barber had an interview with Sir John Macdonald on Saturday last with reference to the course of the Government in connection with the arrival of the Marquis of Lorne. Sir John replied that an answer would be given as soon as the Ministers, and more particularly Dr. Tupper, to whose department this matter belonged, had returned.

On Wednesday next nominations will take place in Terrebonne and North Hastings, on the 9th inst., in Queen's county, P.E.I., and on the 14th inst. in Joliette.

The inquest into the cause of the death of Robert McAuley, the murdered Ottawa Orangeman, resulted yesterday in a verdict of murder by a person or persons unknown.

OUT THEY GO.

Our white Blankets are going out of the store almost as fast as they come into it. They are selling three or four pairs in a team, a great many of them are bought to be sent to friends at a distance.

THE NEWS SPREADING.

It is news for the people of Peterborough and surrounding country to hear that we sell Wrays Blankets by the single pair at a lower price than most wholesale houses sell them by the bale.

THE CASH DOES IT.

Our system of selling for Cash only and giving no credits, enables us to sell goods at prices quite as low as credit stores have to pay for them.

A PROOF.

We are now selling a large lot very superior 28 inch Canadian grey flannel plain and twilled at 8cts per yard, which we guarantee equal to what credit stores sell at 10cts.

IF YOU DOUBT IT,

Then call and buy a yard of our 8ct grey flannel and be convinced that it is equal to what other stores sell at 10cts we sell it still cheaper by the piece.

DRESS EXTRAORDINARY.

We commence a clean sale of winter Dress Goods on Saturday the 9th November.

NOVEMBER MONTH.

November will be the month to buy cheap Dry Goods and cheap Dress Goods in particular.

Our store for Winter Dress Goods—most decidedly so.

WISDOM.

It is the wisest plan to keep clear of credit store keepers and not give them a chance of making fair homes miserable during the Christmas and New Years holidays by sending great long bills and those bothering gentry called "Dues" miss collector.

Teach the rising Canadians never to wear clothing until it is paid for, and Canada will be a happier country in the world in all that is good.

ITS ONLY FAIR.

It is only fair and right that credit stores get all the credit customers. We don't wish to interfere with either them or their customers. But the cash customers belong to us.

That is we consider that we are entitled to them so long as we can sell goods so much cheaper than credit stores, and on no other grounds do we claim them.

NOTE.

Buy your Dry Goods where you can get the best variety, and best value for ready money, and we are sure of your custom.

LOCAL NEWS.

Town Council.—A meeting of the Town Council will be held next Monday evening.

The Omemee "Herald."—Mr. W. J. Watson formerly of the Lakefield News, has associated himself with Mr. Passmore, of the Omemee Herald.

Lamont's boots and shoes continue to take the lead over all others. Customers are being better satisfied every day. All the leading styles in stock.

Vital Statistics.—The registrations for the town of Peterborough during the month of October were:—Births, 29; Marriages, 16; Deaths, 7.

Repeal of the Dunkin Act.—We understand the By-law for the repeal of the Dunkin Act will be submitted to the ratepayers for their votes on the 9th of December.

St. Andrew Society.—The annual meeting of the Peterborough St. Andrew's Society, will be held on Wednesday evening next, 13th inst., at 8 o'clock, in the room adjoining the Council Chamber.

Young Canadians L. O. L.—The regular monthly meeting of this Lodge for November, will be held next Tuesday evening in the Orange Hall. A full attendance of the members is requested.

Closed Down.—Work at Hamilton's Agricultural foundry has been suspended for a few weeks in order to take stock; over-haul the machinery and otherwise get in good running order for their winter trade.

Poultry Association.—The annual meeting of the Midland Central Poultry Association, will be held in the Council Chamber next Tuesday evening at 7.30 o'clock, for the election of officers for the ensuing year.

Municipal.—Municipal elections are beginning to be talked about, we believe several candidates are already in the field quietly canvassing the electors. It will be well to withhold promises of support for the present.

Good Playing.—In a recent game of foot ball played in Toronto, between the Toronto School of Medicine and the Toronto University, the Globe says, Mr. F. W. G. Hamilton elicited much admiration for his magnificent playing.

Game Protective Society.—There will be a meeting of the Peterborough Fish and Game Protective Society this evening, at the Huffman House, for the election of a Secretary-Treasurer, and other business. A full attendance is requested.

Parents, keep your boys' and girls' feet well protected from the cold and damp, and prevent them from catching colds and croup, by buying their boots and shoes from Samuel White, which have been specially made for the fall and winter wear.

In Town.—Mr. John Cox, general agent for Eastern Ontario, for Mr. Stewart's new book, "Canada under the Administration of Lord Dufferin," is now in town canvassing for this work. This is a book, we feel sure, which must meet with a large sale.

Assembly.—A very pleasant time was spent last Thursday evening (Hallowe'en) at a private social assembly at the Choate House. Quite a number were present, and dancing was kept up till the wee sma' hours. An excellent supper was served by mine host Choate.

Honorable Mention.—A correspondent from South Monaghan writes us stating that the elegant furniture shown at the South Monaghan show, was made by Mr. Harry Scott, formerly of this town. Mr. Scott we believe served his apprenticeship with Mr. John Brown, cabinet maker of this town.

Law Society of Peterborough.—An adjourned meeting of this Society will be held at the office of Messrs. Poussette & Roger, on Friday evening next, at 7.30. To consider the proposed increase of the jurisdiction of the Division Courts, and other matters of importance. All members are requested to attend.

Foot Ball Match.—The match between Trinity College School and Peterborough Foot Ball Club, was postponed yesterday on account of the fall of snow, but will be played at an early date. A match will be played on Saturday between the Town and County—commencing at 3 o'clock—admission free.

Note This.—That Mr. Geo. A. Cox after a period of twenty years experience in the various branches of insurance, not a single claim has been disputed. This arises from the fact of representing none but good sound reliable companies, who do not seek to evade payment of claims on imaginary quirks, and of having business done by a thoroughly practical agent.

A Hard Winter Predicted.—Bears and squirrels are more numerous this season than they have been for many years past; and from this fact is adduced the belief that an early and severe winter is before us. Those who have made observations in nature, say that the near approach of those animals to the dwelling of man, in early fall, is almost an infallible sign.

Holloway's Medicines.—Dr. Thos. Holloway, of London, England, writes us drawing our attention to a press fraud which is being practised upon him by Joseph Hayelock, of New York, who announces himself his agent. He complains that the newspaper press of Canada unconsciously aid Hayelock in practising this deception by inserting his advertisements.

Unreserved Sale of Farm Stock.—On Tuesday next, 12th instant, Mr. John Haggart will sell by public auction at the residence of Mr. Daniel McCannon, lot 16, in the 10th concession of Otonabee, all of his farm stock, implements and household furniture. As Mr. McCannon has rented his farm the sale will be without reserve and bargains may be expected. For particulars see posters.

St. Andrew's S. S.—We have been requested to state that Mr. J. H. Friend will give an entertainment in St. Andrew's Sunday School building, under the auspices of the St. Andrew's Sunday School and Band of Hope, on Thursday evening, 21st instant. The programme promises to be an attractive one, a host of local amateurs and Miss Hattie Jeffrey, of Port Hope, being expected to take part in it.

"Love and Hate."—Arthur P. Devlin, who has been the recipient of so many free (?) notices amongst our contemporaries of late, has been in town during the week. He announced a lecture on Sunday evening last in Brethern's Hall, on the subject of "the religion of Love and Hate," but his audience were much disappointed, the discourse being worthy of an escaped lunatic. A fifteen cent admission lecture the next evening failed to draw a house. Ungenerous world!

Poultry and Game in Season.—In catering for the table the best is always the cheapest and the very best, and therefore, the very cheapest in the way of poultry, game, oysters, etc., in season, may be found at the shop of Mr. G. Chamberlain, Hunter street. He is noted for keeping the superior qualities of these palatable and wholesome articles of food, and merits a call from the epicures and all that appreciate the best of oysters, fish, game and poultry in perfect condition.

"Magic."—On Friday evening last Brisco's Combination played to a very well filled house in Beatham's Hall. The piece played was "Magic," or the Water Fiend. The look of most of the best scenery took away much from the effect of the play. The characters were well taken, especially the Negro, the Dutchman and the Irishman. The singing of Miss Healy and Miss Byron was rendered in an agreeable style. The Segrist Brothers were very clever acrobats, and their feats drew forth repeated applause.

Meeting of Dairymen.—A meeting of the Dairymen of the several cheese factories throughout the county, was held in the store of Messrs. T. W. Robinson & Co., yesterday afternoon, in reference to arranging for the sale of the September and October cheese, now held by the factories. After discussion it was decided to bring the whole lot—about 2000 boxes—to Peterborough next Thursday, to offer them for sale in one lot. Nearly all the summer cheese has been shipped on consignment. This lot will be prepared for shipment if not sold.

Anniversary Services.—The religious services in connection with the Bible Christian Church, Ashburnham, will be held on Sunday next, 10th instant. Sermons will be preached as follows:—In the morning at 10.30, by the Rev. Mr. Terrance; in the afternoon, at 2.30, by the Rev. Mr. Wallace; and in the evening, at 6.30, by the Rev. Mr. Bell. On the Monday following, a public tea will be served in the Ashburnham Hall, from 5 to 8 p.m., addresses will be delivered, and an interesting programme consisting of singing, readings, &c., will be rendered by the children of the Sunday School.

Friendship Temple.—At the regular meeting of Friendship Lodge, No. 146, I.O.G.T., on Tuesday evening last, the following members were installed officers for the ensuing quarter:

Bro. T. G. Gillespie	W.C.T.
Sister L. Fleming	W.V.T.

Sister L. Heather	W.A.S.

Don't.—Now that the shooting season is on as the following is appropriate: Don't point your gun at yourself. Don't point your gun at any one else. Don't carry your gun in such a range insludes all your hunting companions. Don't try to find out whether your gun is loaded or not by shutting one eye and looking down the barrel with the other. Don't use your gun for a walking stick. Don't climb over a fence and pull your gun through muzzle foremost. Don't throw your gun into a boat so that he trigger will catch in the seat and the charge be deposited in your stomach. Don't use your gun for a sledge hammer. Don't carry your gun full cocked. Don't carry your gun with the hammer down. Don't be a fool. Don't you forget it.

Lay in Winter Supplies.—This is a good time to purchase a supply of staple vegetables for the winter. Prices are not likely to be much lower than they are at present, and later on they may be higher. A dry place with a moderate and even temperature is necessary for the storage of potatoes and apples, and, in fact, for all kinds of fruit and vegetables that may be preserved in the cold months. Care and attention are also required. The articles stored away should be frequently examined, and if rottenness or moldiness is discovered among any portion of them the portion so affected must be at once removed. The saving made in buying Winter supplies in large quantity by those who have proper facilities for storage will pay for the trouble of taking care of them.

Presentation.—Our popular and well known citizen, Mr. W. Mason, has recently left Peterborough, to take charge of as extensive mercantile concern in Montreal. To loose one who has been so intimately associated with all, who has labored for the natural and moral advancement of our people is no small loss. Mr. Mason by his honorable life—ever courteous, ever ready to help where good could be done, ever ready to labor to make those around him happier and better, won a place in the hearts of our people, which causes them deeply to regret his departure, and if he should return, as we hope he may, will secure for him a hearty and generous welcome. On the occasion of his resigning his Bible Class in the George Street Methodist Sunday School, the members presented him with an appropriate address.

Bradburn's Hall.—Next Monday and Tuesday, Miss Blye, the Young American Actress, will appear in Bradburn's Hall, the first evening as "Juliette" in "Romeo and Juliette" and the latter evening as "Camille." We clip the following flattering notice from the Mail of Saturday last:—

ROYAL OPERA HOUSE.—There was a good attendance at the Royal last night, and the reception tendered Miss Blye was truly cordial in its nature, as she was called before the curtain on different occasions. The programme was varied, containing acts from "Romeo and Juliette," "The Lady of Lyons," "Camille," and "Macbeth," and in each piece Miss Blye gave evidence of the sterling ability with which she is endowed. She is very fortunate in having secured J. J. Brian for her chief support, as that gentleman appears always at home even in the most difficult impersonations. He is a finished and thoroughly conscientious actor.

A New Road Wanted.—There is at Bobcaygeon post-office for signatures, a petition to the Ontario Government asking for a grant of money to assist in opening a road from the village through the north of Harvey to the Buckhorn Road, Cavandish, and the large tract of unoccupied land north of the lakes. The Independent sets out that the opening of this road would be of great value and importance to the Government and this village:—

"To the Government, as it would render accessable to settlement the wild lands of north Harvey and Cavandish, and to this village by giving to it a new "back country," in place of that the trade of which has been taken away by the construction of the Victoria Railway. With the construction of the Lindsay Railway and the opening of the proposed new road through Harvey (and there are many who regard the latter as of equal importance with the railway), the village would again be placed in its old position as the metropolis of an extensive back country, and have the additional advantages of connection with the general railway system of the Province."

Pay Up.—This is the way the Port Hope Times discusses this important question:—"A couple of weeks ago we sent out accounts to all parties in arrears for subscriptions. The result has not been anything like what we had a right to expect, and we must again ask those who owe us to pay up without further delay. A great many subscribers residing in the country owe us for one, two, and three years. That amount may seem trifling to them, and doubtless it is, but hundreds of similiar accounts represent a large sum to us, and we would respectfully ask for an immediate remittance of the amount owing by each one. Farmers have the money now, and are able to pay if they were only willing. Subscriptions can be sent by registered letter or P. O. money order. Fractions of a dollar may be sent in silver in a letter, and if registered will reach this office safely. Now, gentle reader, if you have not yet paid your subscription, please let us hear from you at once.' Readers of the EXAMINER, do likewise.

Weaver's Predictions.—Weaver has ventured upon additional predictions, notwithstanding his repeated failures to hit the weather. His latest forecast is as follows:—"As I long ago foreseen, the winter is about to set in unusually early and very severely. The forests are already as bare of leaves as in mid-winter, and almost one month earlier than for the last three or four years. The rivers are very high for the season, and the swamps are overflowing. Bears have been more numerous than for very many years, and crowd into the settlements in search of food wherewith to fatten speedily for the rapidity approaching. Jd. Black pojd relapse of the weather is incre...ng in severity, and pho winds return more constantly to easterly and northeasterly points. I expect to see good sleighing and severe cold in November, instead of the bare ground and absence of frost as experienced for the last two years. In December we may expect a tempestuous month, with heavy blockades of snow, as in the "olden time." Then will come a lull or break in the weather. This term I cannot attempt to locate definitely, but it will be in proximity to mid-winter. During this period the snows will melt rapidly, and will probably cause extensive floods in many parts of the country. This term will be much more prolonged than our usual mid-winter thaw. Later again a second edition of winter will set in, with more snow and severe cold, and rivers and all waters will remain ice-locked up to an unusually late period. The spring new falling will remain until the temperature is genial to snow, when precipitation in this form will continue through much of November.

Early Marriages.—An entertaining and valuable correspondence about "Early Marriages" has been going on in the Mail for the past two weeks. All sides of the question have been presented by the various correspondents. "A Benedict" writes: "My wife says she can keep house well, clothe herself and children well, and keep a servant on $200 a year. Any married woman who cannot manage her household and live well on the delectable sums must either lack habits of thrift and economy or be downright extravagant. There are hundreds of mechanics, artisans, clerks and others who maintain a family comfortably and respectably and manage to keep out of debt on incomes ranging from $600 to $800 per annum. Men of moderate means don't want wives who require to be pampered, petted and exalted, but workers and helpmeets in the strict sense of the term; and I am proud to say that I never found a woman (of the latter category, who had a good husband, who was other than a good helpmeet, a capital, industrious worker, and a loving partner." In reply to "A Marrying Man" who wants something "tangible" to show him how he can venture to take to himself a wife on his salary of $800 a year, Benedict says the following figures may show him how he can do it, in a moderate way, and have a little to spare for contingencies:—

Food	$260
Clothing	80
Fuel	60
Rent	120
Other household expenses	80
Servant	84
Amusements	20
	$700

Chancery Sittings.—The following are the cases disposed of at the sittings of the Chancery Court, held last week, the first days proceedings being reported in last weeks issue:—

WILSON VS. SMITH.—This was a friendly suit to obtain title to land. Jonn Burnham for plaintiff; Dennistoun, Q.C., for defendant.

FOLEY VS. FOLEY.—This was a suit by younger brothers and sisters of plaintiff to obtain a share of their deceased father's property, but the defendants were virtually a loan company, who held a mortgage on the property. Jeremiah Foley, sr., having died intestate, his eldest son, also named Jeremiah, mortgaged the property to the loan company, who took him for the father. The younger children claimed their shares but all were disbarred by the time limit had elapsed except the youngest daughter, who had been a minor. Judgment reserved. W. H. Moore for plaintiff; H. J. Boyd for defendants.

RITCHIE VS. DRAIN.—Action to compel specific performance of a covenant in a bond to convey to plaintiff certain lands covered with water backed up by a dam on defendant's lot in Dummer. Defendant set up as a defence that he did not execute the bond, but these proved that they had seen the bond executed by defendant. Verdict for plaintiff. Moss for plaintiff; Hatton plaintiff's solicitor; Boyd, Q.C., for defendant; Dennistoun Bros. & Hall, solicitors for defendants.

BUTLER VS. THE STANDARD INSURANCE CO.—His Lordship gave judgment for plaintiff on all points reserved, except as to the right which the husband had acquired by possession of the goods insured, which point he further reserved to consult authorities. He again expressed himself very strongly as to the unrighteousness of the defence set up, and said that if he were compelled to give a decree for the defendants he would also allow them costs.

MENZIES VS. OGILVIE.—Bill filed to realise amount alleged to be due from one Mooney to defendant under a mortgage. Since the bill was filed Mooney had obtained from Ogilvie a discharge of the mortgage, and now alleges that the mortgage was given to secure contemplated advances which were never made. Judgment reserved. Boyd, Q.C., and F. E. Burnham for plaintiff; Moss for defendant: Hatton, defendant's solicitor.

CRONIN VS. CHAMBERLAIN.—A suit brought to redeem property on George Street. The defendant had bought Cronin's title at a Sheriff's sale. The evidence having been taken, the argument was adjourned to be heard in Toronto. Boyd, Q.C., and Dumble for plaintiff; Moss and Smith for defendant.

BRADBURN VS. MITCHELL.—A suit for foreclosure of mortgage. Defendant argued that the sum inserted in the mortgage was not the true sum due, part of the amount being made up of compound interest on former mortgages, which were replaced by the mortgage in question. The evidence showed that the mortgage and an account showing how the sum was made up was read and explained to the defendant. His Lordship said the Court could not vary a written document on such evidence. Judgment for plaintiff. Edmison and Wood for plaintiff; J. Ketchum for defendant.

The Court closed at 7 o'clock on Wednesday evening.

Heating the School Buildings.—The steam heating apparatus for the Collegiate Institute and Central School buildings were completed last Thursday, and on Friday the buildings were heated to test it for the first time. The heating process is on the principle of the wall coil, each room having a separate feed, cut off and return pipe, with casing valve and every other requisite to put the apparatus completely under the control of the teacher or person having charge of the room. The coils consist of flat pipe—three flow and three return—and extend around two sides of each room. In each of the halls is a separate coil. In the main hall of the building, on the first flat, besides this, there is inserted in the floor an iron grating directly over the leading main pipe, so that all heat generating from this is utilized. Altogether there is about 7,000 feet of pipe used. The boiler is about forty horse-power, being 12 feet in length by four feet in diameter, and has fifty-six three inch flues—twenty-eight of them being return flues. There is a water space of two and a half inches all round the fire box. It is fitted up with a patent look-up safety valve and a common safety valve. The lock-up valve is fixed to blow off at fifteen pounds, and is so protected that it cannot be tampered with by either the Janitor or any one else, except the Government Boiler Inspector, thus precluding any chance of danger. It is warranted to stand a cold water pressure of 150 pounds to the square inch. At present five pounds of steam is sufficient to heat all the rooms, and in the most severe weather not more than ten pounds will be required. Besides the boiler is a large boiler plate tank capable of holding 300 gallons. This receives the return water or condensed steam from the pipes and is forced back into the boiler by a force pump. As this water is always hot, a considerable saving of fuel is thus gained. To properly heat the buildings so far it has taken less than half a cord a day, while with the old heating apparatus it took from a cord to a cord and a half. A uniform heat of degrees is to be maintained through the rooms during the winter." The total cost of the whole apparatus is $1,838. The work has been done by Mr. Wm. Hamilton, and is very creditable to him, both for the despatch with which it has been done, and the satisfactory manner of its working. There has also been a large soft water tank capable of holding 7,000 gallons placed between the two buildings, from which the supply of water is obtained.

The International Review for November-December is published, and may be obtained by mail, post-paid, of the Publishers, on receipt of price, or at the bookstores. It opens with Professor Tait's brilliant reply to the article of James Anthony Froude on "Science and Theology," in which he powerfully opposes Mr. Froude. Professor Tait, of College, Edinburgh, eminent among the scientific men of Europe, is well known as one of the authors of that remarkable volume entitled "The Unseen Universe," which he prepared in connection with Prof. Balfour Stewart, of Manchester. His name carries the weight of the highest scientific authority. Next comes an article from Gen. W. Johns, as an independent voter, in which he warns the nation of some ordeals which threatens its safety. Mr. Spofford, Librarian of Congress, gives a very interesting account of the wonderful growth of the Nation al Library, and makes some suggestions which it will be well for Congress to consider. Dr. Hall treats, in his masterly way, of the latest phases of belief regarding the Final Philosophy. Albert Rhodes, U. S. Consul at Rouen, France, contributes an exceedingly well written paper on Successful Mediocrity, taking ground that successful men are generally only moderately endowed with brains, while men of genius fail and are often disgraced. In the article on "Social Democracy," Prof. J. von Huber throws light on the current of events in Europe. Dr. Huber is a colleague of von Holtzendorff and associated with Dr. Dollinger at the head of the Old Catholic movement in Germany. The second in exhaustive paper, although it fills forty pages of the Review it is not divided, in order that readers may have the whole essay at once before them. The poem is old English by Mr. Green is wonderfully well done and gives promise of great success in the writer, late matriculant in St. Catherine's College, Cambridge England. Mr. Horace White gives a very valuable review of the supposed situation, and discusses some of the results of specie resumption. His article is peculiarly timely and much needed. Wilkie Collins has sent in this number a story in which he displays the magnificent control of the English language for which he is distinguished. The story is one that will make this number more than usually readable and attractive to all members of the families which, or it has been went to go. It has long been the project of the editor to infuse an enlivening element into the Review, and thus wrest it from the staid gravity of the quarterly type and enable it to follow its mission on a bi-monthly. In thus introducing the story it resembles the Revue des deux Mondes. In the department of Contemporary Literature, several writers, living at so many different literary centres, in the United States, England, France and Germany, give the widest possible view of the literary movement at home and abroad. We observe that in order to include "The Shooting Story" the publishers have enlarged the number by adding forty-eight extra pages without increasing the price.

INSPECTORS' REPORT.

From James Stratton, Inspector of Public Schools, the following report:—

To the Chairman and Members of the School Corporation of the Town of Peterborough:—

GENTLEMEN,—I beg to state, that during the past two weeks, I have been visiting the different departments of the Public Schools, and I am pleased to be able to report them, so far as visited, very orderly indeed; progress reasonable; and no cause for complaint.

The attendance in Miss Mathews's room is unduly large for one teacher, I found 91 pupils present, and need scarcely remind the members of the Board that no teacher can teach so many and secure very marked progress.

The windows of the school building in Ward No. 1., are very loose, and hence even moderate winds, cause an undue noise, that an hour of a carpenter would easily remedy.

I have only further to add, that during this and next week, I hope to complete my visit to all the rooms, when, if any thing may appear so necessitate it, I may report more fully,

I have the honor to be, gentlemen,

Your obedient servant,
JAS. STRATTON,
P. S. Inspector.

From Wm. Toole, offering to supply a desk similar to the Bennet desk, for $2.25 each.

THIRD WARD SCHOOL.

Mr. ERRETT said he had found upon visiting the Third Ward School, that the present furnace was altogether inadequate to heat the building. He thought double windows and a porch might help it.

MISS MATTHEWS ROOM.

Mr. DUMBLE said the matter of Miss Matthews room had been referred to a Committee, of which he was Chairman, but they had not considered the matter. However, he believed it was a question for the Board to deal with. He thought it was absolutely necessary that an assistant teacher be employed.

Mr. ERRETT said there would be a room ready in a short time that might be used by a portion of the pupils at present in this room. Another teacher would have to be engaged at once, as it was impossible for one teacher to do justice to such a large number.

The INSPECTOR said he had found the seating in Miss Matthew's room very deficient. This was the cause of much disorder, and he would ask the Board to give it their attention.

Mr. ERRETT said he had noticed what Mr. Stratton spoke of, but he could see no other plan except re-seating. It was impossible for any teacher to manage 90 noisy children without disorder.

Mr. MCCLELLAND advocated a cheaper rent than the Bennet rent.

THE THIRD WARD SCHOOL.

Mr. ERRETT moved, seconded by Mr. ROMAINE,—That the Property Committee be, and are hereby directed to have double windows placed on the north end of building, and on the west window in Mrs. ...'s room, and porches to each outside door on Third Ward School.—Carried.

RELIEVING MISS MATTHEWS'S ROOM.

Moved by Mr. DUMBLE, seconded by Mr. MCCLELLAND.—That an additional teacher be employed to relieve Miss Mathews room, and that a proper room be fitted ... for such teacher and that the proper Committees provide the necessary furniture and make the necessary appointments.—Carried.

THE COUNTY GRANT.

Moved by Mr. DENNISTOUN, seconded by Mr. DUMBLE.—That the County Council having paid over to the Treasurer of this Board the sum of $600, granted by that body for school purposes for the year 1878, on the understanding that pupils from the County should only be charged the same fees as resident pupils. It is therefore resolved that the fees charged to non-resident pupils from this County, during the present year, in excess of the fees charged to resident pupils be refunded to them, and that for the balance of the year they be charged the same fees as resident pupils.

SEATING THE ROOMS.

Moved by Mr. DUMBLE, seconded by Mr. MCCLELLAND.—That the Property Committee be and are hereby instructed to get suitable seats for Miss McCready's, Miss Matthews and the present vacant room, and this Board would suggest that an economical plan of seating as may be sufficient for the requirement of the rooms be adopted.

Mr. SHAW thought that tenders should be asked for the work.

The suggestion was then added to the motion, after which it was put and carried.

MECHANICS' INSTITUTE.

Moved by Mr. SHAW, seconded by Mr. EDMISON.—That the requisition from the Peterboro' Mechanics' Institute for the use of one or more of the rooms of the Central School, to be used for evening classes, be granted, provided they (the Institute) furnish their own light and make arrangements with the Janitor for the proper care of the building during the time occupied.—Carried.

PROCEEDS OF SCHOOL DEBENTURES.

Moved by Mr. DENNISTOUN, seconded by Mr. EDMISON.—That the balance of the proceeds of the school debentures, viz: $300 and the accumulated interest thereon now in the hands of the Town Treasurer being required for the meeting of the cost of permanent improvement which this Board has made, relying on this fund, the Secretary make application to the town authorities for payment of the same.

There being no other business the Board then adjourned.

The National Scourge.

It is estimated that the annual damages caused by the ravages of insects and worms exceed $150,000,000 in the United States alone. Truly an enormous loss! Yet it sinks into insignificance when compared with the ravages of that more terrible scourge, Consumption, which annually sweeps hundreds of thousands of human souls into eternity. The causes of consumption are various, depending in every instance for its development of the disease upon the scrofulous diathesis, or temperament, of the victim. Thus the same cause which will produce in one person an attack of acute disease or a slight nervous prostration, will engender consumption in a person of scrofulous habit. That consumption can be cured by proper treatment will be readily perceived when the exact nature of the disease is understood, viz: the accumulation and deposition of scrofulous matter (tubercles) in the lungs. Obviously, the principal remedies required are (1) a powerful alternative, or blood purifier, to arrest the accumulations and also cleanse the blood of the scrofulous matter, and (2) a mild expectorant to expel the diseased matter from the system. This course of treatment, in conjunction with a strict hygienic regime, has proved the most successful method of curing this disease. Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery and Pleasant Purgative Pellets are the best alterative and cathartic remedies before the public, and have been alone used in thousands of cases of consumption, with the most marked efficacy. Dr. Pierce's Invalids' Hotel, at Buffalo, N.Y., affords special and unequaled advantages to consumptives, not only possessing the best medical and hygienic means of treatment, but having the essential advantage of being situated in a climate where the inhabitants are notably free from this disease.

The Greatest Remedy Known.

Dr. KING'S NEW DISCOVERY for Consumption is certainly the greatest medical remedy ever placed within the reach of suffering humanity. Thousands of once hopeless sufferers, now loudly proclaim their praise for this wonderful discovery to which they owe their lives. RICH PRIZES TO AGENTS! LIB

Do We Well to Mourn?

Yes, grieve! it can be no offence to Him
Who made us sensitive our loss to know;
The hand that takes the cup filled to the brim
May well with trembling make it overflow.

Who made us sorrow mean it should be felt;
Who gave us tears would surely have them shed;
And metal that the furnace doth not melt
More yet be hardened all the more instead.

Where love abounded will the grief abound;
To check our grief is but to chide our love;
With withered leaves the more bestrewed the ground,
The fuller that the rose hath bloomed above!

Yes, grieve! 'tis Nature's—that is, God's—behest,
If when in Nature called in WH Divine!
Who fain would grieve not cannot know how blest
It is to sorrow, and yet not repine.

THE GREAT LONE LAND.

Some Interesting Facts—A Splendid Country for Farmers—The Story of How Major Walsh Escaped American Extradition—Sitting Bull's Camp—No Indian Troubles Anticipated—The Remarkable Fertility of the Saskatchewan Valley.

Mr. Edwin Allen, the newly-appointed Dominion Indian Agent for the southern district of the North-West Territories, and recently a Deputy-Inspector of the Mounted Police at Fort Walsh, is in Ottawa. He has been in the North-West five years, and left there on October 8th. It took him twenty-one days to make the journey to Ottawa. From Fort Walsh to Wood Mountain, 130 miles, and from the latter place to Bismarck, on the Missouri River, 300 or 400 miles farther he journeyed by trail, and the remainder of the distance he traversed by rail. He supplies the following information:—

At Fort Walsh, besides the Police post, there is now a settlement of forty or fifty trading posts and houses. There is also a large floating population of half-breeds, who in the winter occupy log huts and in the spring go on hunting expeditions. Three winters ago there were no less than 600 families of half-breeds at this settlement, which they make their headquarters. The soil here is good. This year the police have raised very fine potatoes and vegetables—indeed, enough of the former to supply the detachment for the winter. They also had sown wheat, which at the time of Mr. Allen's leaving had not been cut. At that time, however, it looked full and fine, and promised to be an abundant crop. The climate is also good. Horses and cattle run out all the winter. The snowfall is very light, and it is frequently taken off by what are called the Chinook winds, which blow from the Pacific coast. Owing to the limited falls of rain, grass retains its nourishment in the winter. The Indians and half-breeds work their horses all the winter and feed them on grass, which the horses obtain by scraping the light snow away with their hoofs. The winter frosts are very severe, and the cold more intense than in many parts of Ontario and Quebec. The winds which sweep the prairies are piercing, and sensible clothing must be worn. The much-talked-of summer frosts have not destroyed the vegetables grown at the Fort for the past two years. In summer the temperature is much the same as that at Toronto. The prairies are well adapted for stock raising, which pursuit can be followed here with less expenditure than in any other part of the continent; but, on account of prevalent drought, the prairies are not so well adapted for grain growing. The valleys are, however, good for the latter purpose, being well watered and possessing remarkable fertile soil.

Fort McLeod is 180 miles west from Fort Walsh, and is situated at the foot of the Porcupine Hills, which form the base of the Rocky Mountains. It is surrounded by a very fine agricultural district, suitable for either grain or stock-raising, and equal to any land in Ontario. Many farmers went in there this summer, and about one hundred houses occupied by whites have been erected. Fort McLeod settlement is something larger than Fort Walsh.

Wood Mountain Post is Major Walsh's present headquarters. It is 175 miles east of Fort Walsh, and 90 miles north of the Missouri River. It is situated on the open prairie, and forms the range of the hostile Sioux. Sitting Bull's camp is here. It consists of 500 lodges. There is also a large settlement of half-breeds at this point, and Major Walsh has twenty men stationed here. Sitting Bull is peaceably inclined at present, and appears to be desirous of obeying the Canadian laws. When the Sioux first invaded the territory Major Walsh informed the invaders that he was the Commander of the district, and explained the nature of the laws which were in force. Sitting Bull readily promised to obey them, and it is to the credit of this much-abused Chief that since he has been on Canadian soil he has shown every desire to be a loyal, law-abiding subject. The only trouble is with the young bucks, who are continually stealing horses from the American side, and exchanging them to avoid detection. As Mr. Allan was passing by this post on his journey to Ottawa, Major Walsh had just taken ten mules and eleven horses out of the hostile Sioux camp. These had been stolen from the American side. Since the advent of the hostile Sioux the buffaloes have chosen an entirely different direction for pasture. Two years ago in this district the police passed through herds of buffalo two hundred miles in breadth, but now these buffalo are scattered in every direction over the prairies. Some have crossed the Missouri and gone south, where they have not been seen for years previous; others have crossed the North Saskatchewan. The buffalo are further east than they have been for twenty years, and the Rocky Mountains alone prevent their migration westward. Buffalo meat is becoming so scarce that in a few years the future of the Indian will become an important subject of consideration for the Dominion Government. The Indians will have to be encouraged to abandon their nomadic pursuits and adopt those of agriculturists. Some of the Indian tribes—the Assiniboines, Sauteaux, and Crees, for instance—have become impressed with the inevitableness of this state of affairs, and last year they requested Major Walsh to petition the Government to assist them in following agricultural pursuits. They alleged that buffalo was growing so scarce that they could no longer maintain themselves and their families. The petition was forwarded to the Department of the Interior, but sufficient time has not elapsed for its requests to be considered. At present there is no fear of an outbreak of war, notwithstanding occasional reports to the contrary. Even if there should be an outbreak, a little judicious management would prevent its continuance.

Mr. Allen gives the following true account of Major Walsh's escape from extradition by Indians:—

"A few months ago a hunting party of fifteen or twenty braves from the hostile Sioux camp went two miles across the American boundary in the search for buffalo meat. While there the party met two young bucks belonging to their own camp, with five or six head of horses which they had stolen. One one of the two young bucks was the son-in-law of a member of the hunting party, and he was asked by his relative where he got his horses. He explained that he had found them, and his relative angrily replied, 'You lie; you stole these horses.' He then knocked his son-in-law's brains out with his war club. The surviving buck swung the Sioux were angry rode off some distance and shouted: 'You have killed my comrade; now I will go and kill Major Walsh.' The party pursued him, but his horse being fleeter than their's, he distanced them. He was subsequently captured, however, by the Ogallalla Sioux camp where he had taken refuge. Sitting Bull, learning that the young buck was a prisoner, rode to the camp and took him to Wood Mountain Post, Major Walsh's headquarters. The commander of the Mounted Police was absent at the time on detachment duty, and Sitting Bull returned to his own camp with his prisoner. When Major Walsh arrived at home, Sitting Bull interviewed him and offered to deliver up the prisoner for execution, or, if Major Walsh preferred it, he would be the executioner himself. Major Walsh replied that he entertained no fear of personal injury from the young buck, and he asked that he should be released. There was no doubt that the Indian would have exterminated Major Walsh at the time but the fearless conduct of the brave removed his misplaced anger. The crime of the old Indian in killing his son-in-law was committed on the American territory, beyond the jurisdiction of the North-West Mounted Police. In explanation of his rash crime the old Indian said that when the Camp came to the land of their Great White Mother they promised to refrain from horse stealing, internecine quarrels, and murders, and to obey the laws of the country. The old men of the camp were earnestly trying to do so, and desired to live peaceably and raise their families, but a few young men were disobeying these instructions, creating disturbances, and thus imperilling the safety of the whole camp."

THE PARIS EXHIBITION.

Address to the Prince of Wales, and Reply—Probable Establishment of a Colonial Museum—Rumors re Canadian Commissioners.

At the British Embassy in Paris on Friday last, the Prince of Wales received an address from the members of the Colonial Commission to the Exhibition. All the leading Commissioners were present.

Mr Kester, Canada, read a brief address, in which the Commissioners recommended the creation of a permanent Colonial Museum in London, where the products and manufactures of Her Majesty's more distant possessions might at all times be on view, would diffuse throughout the Mother Country add better knowledge of the nature and importance of the resources of the several dependencies of the Empire, would facilitate its commercial relations, would aid the researches of men of science, would assist in marking the progress achieved from time to time, and would afford valuable information to intending emigrants. We, therefore, venture to approach your Highness with the earnest prayer that your Highness may be pleased to further this movement by giving it your personal interest and co-operation. The nucleus of such a collection might be at once commenced with the articles now in Paris. We beg your Highness to prevent their dispersion by using your influence to secure at least temporary accommodation for their exhibition in London until further steps can be taken.

The Prince replied as follows:—"I receive with great satisfaction the address just presented me on behalf of your respective Colonies. In your loyal mention of Her Majesty is expressed that sentiment which is felt by every subject of the Sovereign, and nowhere more devotedly than in the Colonial dominions. I avail myself of this opportunity of expressing my warm acknowledgments to the Governments of the various Colonies which you represent for the cordiality with which they have acted on my invitation to participate in the Exhibition. My thanks are no less due to you and your fellow Commissioners for the hearty and efficient co-operation they have afforded during its progress. The remarkable display of Colonial produce and manufactures which has been made cannot but have impressed all who witnessed it with the rapid progress which the different Colonies have made and with the great future which awaits them. But while the Colonial Courts are a fitting illustration of the enterprise and advancement which exist in the outlying portions of her Majesty's dominions, even higher results will flow from your participation in the exhibition. It has given the Colonies opportunities of becoming better acquainted with one another—opportunities of which you have made worthy use; it has brought more prominently under each other's notice your varied products and resources; and above all, it has tended to promote unity of colonial feeling and to strengthen those ties of loyal affection that now so happily bind together all portions of Her Majesty's dominions. I most heartily thank you for the share you attribute to me in the achievement of the measure of success we have together attained, notwithstanding the many difficulties that necessarily beset so vast an enterprise. I am fully grateful to you for your appreciation of the Secretary, Mr. Cunliffe Owen, to whose efforts, and to those of the able and zealous staff engaged with him, we all owe so much. I agree with you in thinking that many advantages would flow from the establishment in London of a museum displaying in an adequate manner the various rich products of the Colonies. The practicability, however, of the mode of carrying into effect such a scheme must of necessarily require mature deliberation on the part of your respective Governments. Its success must depend on their readiness to provide the means to found and support it. But, wishing to promote an idea containing so much to recommend it, and one presented to me by my fellow-workers in the exhibition, it will give pleasure, in the meantime, to apply to the commissioners of the exhibition of 1851 to place at your disposal a space requisite for preservation during the ensuing year of such goods as you may desire to retain as a nucleus for a permanent collection. During the interval time will be afforded to your Governments for the necessary consideration of the scheme. Meanwhile, I can but assure you of the warm interest with which I will continue to regard every proposal tending to knit more closely the Colonies to each other and to the Empire at large."

The Prince then announced that the Queen had been pleased to confer the order of St Michael and St. George upon the leading Colonial Commissioners, including Mr. Pellatier, president of the Canadian Commission, and Mr. Kester. It is understood that these honors have been bestowed at the personal request of the Prince of Wales.—Globe Cable.

Neglect for the Living, and Honor for the Dead.

(From the New Dominion Monthly.)

Great and gifted men, who almost suffer the pangs of want, and die neglected and broken-hearted, are often, long years after, paid the tender tribute of praise and tears by loving and admiring hearts. When disappointment and unhappiness cannot vex, nor success elate, the recognition and honor is tendered for which they longed and labored, but died without attaining.

While they bravely struggled to surmount the difficulties that beset and obstruct the path of ambition, the world remained cold and distant. It reached out no helping hand, nor offered any word of cheer or comfort to the noble spirits battling with the Tiber tide. But while they suffered all the pangs which unrewarded and unnoticed merit endures, detraction belittled their labors and envy blackened their character and ruined their career.

But after their aching heads were laid low, when their mighty minds had ceased to labor, and their proud hearts were beaten and bruised to death on the terrible conflict in which they conquered and were conquered; when they had achieved victory from posterity, and were beyond the hearing of earth's censure or applause, multitudes of admirers emerged from obscurity, and over their senseless ashes erected marble memorials and inscribed upon them mocking epitaphs.

It is sad to think of the great gifts of many, so little appreciated before death, so poorly paid for in their first fruits of recognition; and the heart goes out in strong and tender sympathy to the poor ambitious unfortunates, whom gifts are now so widely and unjustly acknowledged, but who cannot be comforted by the world's appreciation.

It is an old, old story, that [illegible] ing itself from the time when [illegible] its way through the ocean [illegible] which now contend for the honor of having been his birthplace, to the present day.

We blame the world greatly, and not without some charge it with heartlessness, envy, malice and uncharitableness. But the world is not so guilty as it seems.

This neglect of the great and gifted is a curious custom of humanity, but its existence can be easily accounted for.

It is not because the world does not admire greatness, but because the world, which is at best no wiser than it should be, does not wish to appear to posterity as deficient in taste or judgment, and experiences considerable difficulty in anticipating the verdict of futurity.

The world is willing to encourage honest merit, but honest merit has many counterfeits, and the world is seldom able to distinguish the genuine from the spurious article, during the life of its unfortunate possessor.

The world is seldom well satisfied that a literary or artistic aspirant deserves success, until his death has removed all occasion to judge his performances from any other than a neutral and an unbiased standpoint. It reasons in a circle which leads to the non-conclusion of silence and neglect on the part of the world, and to discouragement and starvation on the part of the aspirant for its recognition and applause.

The world, moreover, is aware that it has made mistakes. It has lionized men whom it thought great and gifted in one generation, and laughed at its folly in the next. It has derided and starved men of genius while they lived, and wept for its blindness and heartlessness when they were dead.

The world is, therefore, cautious.

"All that glitters is not gold,"

but we may not always be able to recognize the precious metal. The world does the best it can, but it rarely distinguishes itself by doing anything remarkably wise. It dislikes to make mistakes, but cannot help making them continually.

Even among those who are acknowledged to be great and gifted, there is great diversity of opinion in regard to new aspirants for literary or artistic fame. Genius does not seem to recognize genius on readily as one would suppose. It has sneered at the pretensions of a Dickens within my own recollection, and the world cannot be greatly blamed for doing the same thing.

There is, however, one mistake the great and gifted man never makes. He never doubts that he is great and gifted. The shallow-brained perpetrator of plaistitudes is also just as confident that he has genius, and never discovers his error. The world is sometimes of his opinion, and flatters him, and honors him while he lives, but when he dies, discovers its mistake, and straightway shelves him in oblivion.

The great and gifted man may console himself, if he can, while his garments grow thin and threadbare, and his appetite is unappeased, with the reflection that the world will sometime acknowledge his gifts and honor his memory. But this sort of consolation is not very comforting. If the great and gifted could listen to some of the speeches that will be made, or partake of some of the banquets that will be given, or pave the mausoleum that will be erected in his honor, the consolation would be much more substantial and satisfactory.

It should be borne in mind also that your great and gifted man has faults in common with ordinary humanity—only, unfortunately, they are frequently more glaring; and if his peculiar claim of special privileges be admitted, and especially if prematurely, he may dot in an end of appearances and make no limit of demand; he may become a capacious sponge, a non-payer of debts, or a borrower of money, such as Lamartine, Dumas and Webster, or Edgar A. Poe, and divers others, unhappy and make-shift geniuses.

Now the world does not like to be annoyed in this manner. It is willing to pay for amusement and instruction, but dislikes to pay too great a price, or to pay more than once for the same thing. It has no faith in renewed and irregular contributions.

But after death the case is altogether different. The world understands that it owes a debt to genius, and it is generally willing to pay. It owes genius a mausoleum. That purchased, paid for and erected, the appreciative world supposes the debt to be liquidated, except with respect to annual festivities speeches, dinners, toasts, poems and parades, and it has no fear of another mausoleum being demanded.

But this does not, after all, signify any special degree of generosity or disinterested gratitude; for the world, and not the great and gifted dead, admires the mausoleum, and the world, and not the departed, eats the dinners and drinks the toasts.

J. O. MADISON.

AN ENORMOUS LOSS.

Canada has, perhaps, suffered more from want of proper attention to the dairy and its products than from any other mistake which her farmers have made. The course of events this season has been calculated to draw special attention to this subject, and we trust the several lessons which all connected with the butter and cheese business have had this year will be the means of bringing about a complete reformation of the evils which have so long diminished our revenue from this important source. The bottom of the whole evil, so far as butter is concerned, is in the practice of country store-keepers receiving it in pay from the farmers. It is almost impossible for the store-keeper to discriminate between good and poor butter, partly from want of knowledge and partly from fear of losing customers. If the farmers had to sell all their butter to better buyers who would pay cash for it, and as a matter of course would see that they got value for their money, those who make bad butter would learn by experience that it is a bad habit, while those who do take pains would be stimulated by getting a higher price than their neighbors, to try and do better still. What are the facts? There is an unusually large stock of butter in Canada to day, and we think it safe to say that more than three-fourths of the entire quantity could be purchased at from seven to ten cents per pound. That is about half of what it should be worth, and might have been worth, as good butter is selling in this market at from ten to sixteen cents.

It is true that the weather this year has been very unfavorable for both butter and cheese, and there are doubtless many who will give the weather the full blame for the heavy losses incurred; but it is a fact that man's intellect was given to him for the express purpose, among other things, of making him master of the situation, and it is his duty and privilege to find means to overcome the difficulties which he meets, whether caused by the nature of the country, or the climate, or even the changeable and unreliable weather. The intelligity of the cheese produced this year has been chiefly due to the unfavorableness of the weather; but even the cheese factories have not in all cases been as careful as they should have been. Expecting a ready market they were not so anxious to make cheese that would keep as if they had expected to hold it. The quantity of cheese produced has been greatly in excess of any previous year, and that has doubtless fully as much to do with the difficulty of effecting sales as the lack of quality.

We have repeatedly drawn attention to the inferiority of the great bulk of the butter made in Canada, and to the great loss resulting from carelessness in its manufacture. We have also endeavored to warn our farmers that it is unjust as well as unwise to hold back their produce in the hope of getting higher prices when they have debts to pay off which cannot be met but by the sale of their crops. This year [illegible] behind the other. [illegible] butter as fast as [illegible] they would have [illegible] for it than they can possibly do now, [illegible] it has deteriorated so much that most of it is unfit for table [illegible] These causes who hold on to [illegible] and cheese while leaving their [illegible] may, therefore, fairly step and consider it after all it is not the best policy to do right. The loss to the country this year on account of the inferior quality of our butter and cheese, and the delay in getting them to market, can scarcely, we think, fall short of two million dollars, and as cattle raising seems destined to be a much more important branch of our agricultural operations in the future than it has been in the past, it is perhaps well that these lessons should be learned now, even at so great a price, if only they be learned.—Witness.

COLLISION ON THE GRAND TRUNK.

Two Freight Trains Smashed Up—A Brakesman Fatally Injured.
